CRIME GROWS WHILE WAR OF WORDS GOES ON

2 Detectives Shot; Lieutenant Hurt.

While the subject of crime in Chicago was being discussed, argued and studied in conjunction with reiteration of the charge that the morale of the police department is broken, criminals yesterday continued their depredations.

LIEUT. JOHN LOFTIS.

The Chicago Crime commission revealed several confidential reports on which the statement was based that the police morale was low. The president of the commission, Charles H. Holden, who is also a bank official, said conditions are intolerable, and blamed the public as well as the police, the courts and the laws for conditions.

One report was that some of the police willfully delay delivering prisoners to the county jail to give time to the professional bondsmen to enter into negotiations with the prisoners, starting the foundation for the "fix" through which trapped criminals escape. Another charge was that in some cases police permit or connive at the intimidation of witnesses.

Crimes of the Day.

Among the day's crimes were these:

Detectives Andrew Kernan and John Stapleton were shot by gunmen, one of whom they captured.

Lieut. John Loftus of Hudson avenue station was found unconscious on Sheridan road, suffering from injuries to the head believed to have been inflicted by criminals.

Two robbers held up Miss Leona Wagner, cashier of the William J. Quigley company, seeking the payroll of $2,500. They obtained $103.

Mrs. Esther Cherry, 1225 Newberry street, was attacked with an ax in her home and is near death. Police suspect a former boarder.

Two stickup men held up a man at the entrance to the Security bank, 741 Milwaukee avenue, robbed him of $50, and probably fatally injured a laborer who was struck by their automobile as they escaped.

Two Safes Cracked.

Safeblowers had possession of the entire Keehn building, 306-8 North Michigan avenue, through Friday night until yesterday morning, and they opened two safes very leisurely.

Four men were discovered in the act of burglary at the plant of the Highway Auto Supply company, 4712 South Western avenue, and one was captured after the exchange of a dozen shots.

Patrolman Edward Troy captured two armed gunmen at 47th street and Wentworth avenue. A diamond stick pin and a watch were identified as stolen Friday night from A. J. Bracsen, 7315 Oglesby avenue.

A Premier cab chauffeur was robbed of his uniform, cab and $14.

Two bands of youthful robbers, said by the police to have confessed many holdups and burglaries, were captured by the West North avenue police.

A gang of masked men entered the home of Benjamin Devine, 2551 Ainslee avenue, while all the family was home and boldly proceeded to tie them all up and take $600 in jewelry and cash.

Delay in Moving Prisoners.

For some time the crime commission has been checking on the hours at which the prisoners committed by the Municipal courts reach the county jail. A sample day was said to be Jan. 8, last Thursday, when only nine prisoners had been received by 6:15 p. m., and thirty-one more up to 9:15 p. m.

The courts in most stations complete their business by noon and by 4 o'clock at the latest in those where afternoon sessions are held, it was pointed out. Prisoners who have not furnished bail before the hearing are committed to the county jail.

The information was that every station has at least one pet bondsman, who is permitted to solicit business in the cells. These get busy at once in behalf of those who employ them, and a lawyer is recommended who will likewise be well acquainted and friendly with the arresting officers.

Explanation of Discharges.

That was one solution offered as the reason for the discharge of more than 2?,000 of 276,000 arrested, the figures being taken from a recent Municipal court report. Politics and loose court procedure and friendly or apa-

WOMAN LAWYER MAY BE NAMED FEDERAL JUDGE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Selection of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement, as a compromise in the controversy over the federal district judgeship in northern California is under consideration by President Coolidge.

MRS. MABEL W. WILLEBRANDT. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

This became known today after Mrs. Willebrandt had been summoned to the White House for a conference with the chief executive. Soon after her departure Senator Shortridge [Rep., Calif.] called to renew his recommendation for the appointment of Judge A. F. St. Sure of San Francisco, now a member of the District Court of Appeals of California.

Should Mrs. Willebrandt be appointed she would be the first woman to be named to the federal bench. Her home is in Los Angeles and she has been assistant attorney general since the beginning of the Harding administration.

500 IN RIOT AT CHURCH DANCE; 30 PUT IN CELLS

Five hundred young people attending a dance given under the auspices of a Luthern church at the Milna hall, 3158 South Halsted street ended in a riot early this morning.

As a result a hundred or more received bruises in the general fighting and thirty young men were locked up at the Deering street police station. They are charged with disorderly conduct.

Lieut. Thomas Mangun whose squad was passing the hall when the fighting began learned that the row originated when several intoxicated men entered the hall and tried to break up the dance. They did.

U. S. WINS SHARE OF GERMAN FUND

Allies Agree to Split the German Payments.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Through the efforts of Ambassadors Myron T. Herrick and Frank B. Kellogg, and Col. James A. Logan, American observer on the reparations commission, America has won every point on its right to share in the Dawes plan funds from Germany, and $16,000,000 already on deposit in the Federal Reserve bank in Washington is to be paid over to the treasury immediately for the account of the army of occupation.

Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer and leading figure in the allied financial conference here, stated tonight: "The delegates of the six powers concerned—Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Serbia, and Roumania—have agreed on all points involved."

He said experts will begin drafting resolutions embodying the decisions tomorrow, and a plenary session will be held Tuesday to ratify them.

"I expect to proceed to London Wednesday morning, and if one or two minor subjects still are open I will leave experts to complete them," Mr. Churchill added.

U. S. Extends Time of Payments.

As THE TRIBUNE announced Thursday, the United States traded its priority under the Wadsworth agreement on the $250,000,000 claim for the occupational army for complete recognition of the additional claims of $200,000,000 to $350,000,000 for war damages. This claim was considered shaky because the senate refused to ratify the Versailles treaty. The new agreement provides that the army costs shall be reimbursed in twenty-five years at $10,000,000 annually, and the war damage claims shall be spread over thirty-five years at similar annuities unless the United States reduces the period by making deductions in the total claims for alien property held, like former German shipping.

Cut Belgian Percentage in 1927.

The allied finance delegates, without the Americans participating, have decided to continue Belgium's 8 per cent share of reparations two years more until the Belgians receive the balance of 200,000,000 gold marks [$50,000,000] due to extinguish its priority; after which it will be reduced to 4½ per cent. From 1927 this 3½ per cent will be applied to reimburse America's claims.

The lump sum allowed France, Great Britain, and Belgium to maintain the Rhine armies of occupation was reduced from 250,000,000 gold marks [$62,500,000] to 160,000,000 gold marks [$40,000,000], dating from last September. This will necessitate a drastic reduction in the number of French troops in the Rhineland or else France must defray the cost itself, and it is also expected that the Ruhr and Cologne will be evacuated.

CONFESS THEY ROBBED TWENTY BANKS LAST YEAR

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 10.—Breaking down under a crossfire of questions, George Musick of East St. Louis and William Dewitt of Venice, Ill., confessed to the robbery of more than twenty banks during 1924, Dennis Ganan, chief of detectives in Springfield, announced here tonight.

Upward of $500,000 was obtained in the robberies, the statements of the men said. Their operations extended over a period of several years, they said.

Doubt that the men could have taken part in so many robberies was expressed by a private detective employed by several banks. "They robbed too many banks to be true," he said.

URGE WEEKS TO END CITY'S SEWAGE PERIL

Great Rally Appeals to Congress, Too.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Chicago held one of the greatest town meetings in its history yesterday afternoon.

Peril of the pestilence that walketh in darkness, the army of typhoid germs gathering for an onslaught on the city, touched the common heart as only great emergencies can do.

LAWRENCE F. KING.

This peril, made very real by the recent Supreme court decision affecting the flow of lake water through the Chicago river, brought a unity of spirit seldom witnessed in this city. Such a spirit could repel Indians, rebuild ruins, accomplish subways or other miracles.

The city council chamber, where representatives of the sanitary district and leading civic associations sat on the platform with the mayor, was filled with men and women, each one representing an important group, ready to march on Washington or Springfield or anywhere else to accomplish something.

Action Follows Talk.

After hours of speeches and hundreds of offers of service this community uprising took form in the way of a resolution in which these lines of action were decided upon:

To petition Secretary of War Weeks to permit the present flow of water from the lake until the purity of water supply is protected in other ways.

To urge congress to permit 10,000 cubic feet of water a second to be withdrawn from the lake for sewage dilution.

To ask the Illinois legislature for more elastic provisions in the bonding and taxing power in order to get more money for sewage plants.

To make Chicago's needs known to every one in power in Washington and Springfield and to carry on a campaign of education in the city.

It was agreed by all the speakers, and this included experts in sanitation, engineering, and health, that unless the present flow is continued until disposal plants are completed, that a typhoid epidemic is certain.

Faith in Washington.

It was also the belief of the speakers, including lawyers and law makers, that President Coolidge and the secretary of war would not permit such a calamity and that the permit is certain to be granted. However, this only settles the problem temporarily.

The work of the sanitary district in the past, its efforts to keep the water supply pure, and its plans for the future, were indorsed by the assembly. In fact, the situation has served to draw attention to the magnitude of the task that confronts the sanitary trustees. Their work has served to protect the city at the foundation of its growth—health. With this menaced, untold disaster could be read by industrial, banking, and labor interests, and by each man in his home. The women were there in great force, with virtually every big women's organization in the city represented.

METER SYSTEM URGED

One other suggestion was made that seemed to meet with favor. That was that Chicago adopt at once a universal metering system, thereby saving millions of gallons of water and protecting the lake levels to this extent.

Every one at the meeting was furnished with a copy of the recommendations of the engineering board of review of the sanitary district, which gives a complete program of remedial measures. This board consists of twenty-eight eminent engineers who have worked outside the influence of the sanitary district. Their conclusion is that a diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second is necessary during the warmer portion of the year in order to protect the drinking water.

In Days of Old.

President L. F. King of the sanitary district presided at the meeting, explaining that the Supreme court decision made possible a limitation of withdrawal to 4,167 cubic feet a second. He said the district had been preparing since 1920 for such a decision and now treats by artificial means a greater volume of sewage than any other city in the country.

E. J. Kelly, chief engineer of the

HUGHES' NOTE OF RESIGNATION; COOLIDGE'S REPLY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Secretary Hughes' letter of resignation and President Coolidge's reply follow:

"My Dear Mr. President:

"The period of service which was in contemplation when I took office is now drawing to a close, and, in accordance with the intention I have heretofore expressed, I beg leave to tender my resignation as secretary of state, to take effect on March 4, 1925.

"It will then be twenty years since I undertook public work in New York, and during that time, with the exception of a little more than two years after the armistice, I have been engaged almost continuously in the discharge of public duties.

"I feel that I must now ask to be relieved of official responsibility and to be permitted to return to private life. As foreign affairs are perennial, I know of no more appropriate time to do this than at the end of the present administration.

"Permit me again to express my deep appreciation of the confidence you have reposed in me and of the privilege of serving under your leadership. I shall have an abiding memory of your unfailing kindness.

"Assuring you of my earnest support of your administration and of my hope that, although out of office, I may still be able to be of service, I am, my dear Mr. President, with highest esteem,

Faithfully yours,
"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

President Coolidge, in his reply, dated Jan. 10, said:

"My dear Mr. Secretary:

"Your favor of recent date advising me that you have irrevocably decided to adopt your long cherished intention of retiring on the fourth of March, I have received with much regret. I can well appreciate that you are personally entitled, after twenty years of public service, to seek some of the satisfaction of private life.

"But I cannot refrain from empressing my feeling of personal loss at the prospect of your retirement, and also the loss that must inevitably ensue when one of your ability and experience goes out of an office which he is so well qualified to fill.

"I realize, however, that this is in the nature of things, and so wish to put my emphasis on the appreciation that I feel for your loyalty at all times to me, your many expressions by word and deed of a friendship on which I could not set too high a value, and the exalted character and disinterested nature of the important public service that has come so constantly under my observation.

"I trust you may have a well merited repose and that satisfaction which alone can come from a consciousness that the duties of this life have been well performed.

"With kindest regards, I am,
"Very cordially yours,
"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

FLEEING AUTO FALLS IN SEWER; WORKER INJURED

Paul Fermento, 52 years old, 628 North Avers avenue, was seriously injured yesterday when he was struck by an auto carrying two holdup men fleeing from the police.

Fermento was working in a sewer excavation at Grand avenue and Green street. The bandit car, traveling at high speed, plunged into the hole. Both robbers were thrown out.

One escaped, but the other, Stanley Murawski, 26 years old, 716 North Racine avenue, was captured by Detective Sergeant McCarthy and his squad. Paul Rekosiewicz, 1033 West Chicago avenue, identified him as the man who had robbed him of $50 a short time before.

SHIFT ON MAR. 4; SECRETARY TO PRACTICE LAW

Envoy to Britain to Take His Place.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Hughes has resigned his portfolio, the resignation to take effect March 4, next.

He will be succeeded in office by Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, now American ambassador to Great Britain.

The announcement was made at the White House late this afternoon in the following official statement.

"It was announced at the White House that Secretary of State Hughes would retire from the cabinet on the fourth of March, in accordance with a long cherished plan of his, and that his place would be taken by Ambassador Kellogg, who is now the American ambassador at London."

Capital Is Surprised.

The announcement took Washington completely by surprise. There has been no evidence of any disagreement or friction between Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hughes and no indication that the secretary contemplated retiring, his friends and members of the diplomatic corps understanding that he would remain at his post a couple of years longer at least.

The transfer of Mr. Kellogg to Washington revives speculation on the appointment of a new ambassador to Great Britain. There has been more or less speculation on this matter for months, Mr. Kellogg having intimated his desire to relinquish his post.

McCormick Mentioned.

Two names have figured conspicuously in this gossip. One is that of Senator Medill McCormick [Rep., Ill.], who retires from the senate on March 4. The other is that of James M. Beck, solicitor general of the United States.

Another name mentioned today was that of Alanson B. Houghton of Corning, N. Y., now ambassador to Germany. Those leaning to this view have assigned Senator McCormick to the Berlin post.

There also were rumors here today that after a brief space of time Mr. Hughes would return to the Supreme court, either to take the place of Justice O. W. Holmes, whose early retirement is forecast, or that of Chief Justice Taft.

This is based on the rumor that Mr. Taft desires to quit the bench on account of ill health.

Hughes and Coolidge Cordial.

Mr. Hughes gives as his reason for resigning a long cherished desire to retire to private life after twenty years of almost continuous public service. His letter to Mr. Coolidge is cordial, and the President's reply is no less cordial and warm in its expression of esteem.

One bit of gossip going the rounds is that the President had not asked Secretary Hughes to remain in the cabinet after March 4, when Mr. Coolidge will begin serving as President in his own right and not as the official heir of the late President Harding.

Hoover, Mellon to Remain.

It was semi-officialy anounced at the White House shortly after the election that the President had asked Secretary of Commerce Hoover to remain in the cabinet and had obtained his consent. It was also understood that the President had asked Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to remain in his official family. The President himself was authority for the statement that he hoped to induce Secretary of Labor Davis to reconsider his decision to retire.

The gossip has it that Secretary Hughes became offended as time wore on and the President failed to invite him to remain in the cabinet, whereas there was undoubted evidence that he had asked other members to retain their portfolios. Thereupon, 'tis said, the secretary determined to quit.

Those who know the President and Mr. Hughes intimately scout this story. They are confident that Mr. Hughes was the first cabinet member the President asked to stay.

Disliked Borah's Rise.

Another story is that Mr. Hughes took umbrage at the ascendancy of Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] in the counsels of the President on foreign policies, particularly with reference to the incident of the observations Mr. Coolidge made on the world court in his message to congress last month. The President recommended that the senate approve the entrance of the United States into the world court with the reservations originally enumerated by Mr. Hughes, and then with an additional reservation to the effect that this country should not be bound by advisory opinions rendered by the court in causes which we had not voluntarily submitted for adjudication.

That additional reservation was stipulated, it is understood, at the instance of Senator Borah. Up to that time Mr. Coolidge had maintained an unwavering stand on the Hughes reservations, and his message gave the first evidence of yielding to the influence of the group of irreconcilable senators headed by Mr. Borah, which had been at loggerheads with Secretary Hughes throughout the Harding administration.

Foes for Years.

Mr. Hughes and Mr. Borah have been at swords' points for years and it was foreseen that if the senator were to be made chairman of the foreign relations committee little harmony between the committee and the secretary of state could be expected. Partisans of Mr. Hughes thought that the President ought to prevent the choice of Mr. Borah for chairman of the committee, but Mr. Coolidge not only failed to oppose but appeared to desire his selection.

The secretary of state is said to have been offended by these developments and ruffled also by friction with Senator Borah since the latter became head of the committee.

The only incident indicating a possible disagreement between Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hughes occurred within the last fortnight. Mr. Jusserand, the retiring French ambassador, in a speech told of the desire of France to pay her war debt. The next day the President caused it to be stated he would take no notice of such statements unless they were submitted to the American debt funding commission.

Coolidge Corrects Statement.

The ambassador called on Mr. Hughes the following day and submitted that the White House comment was unfair, the French views on payment of their debt having been communicated to Mr. Mellon, chairman of the commission.

Mr. Hughes hurried to the White House and apprised the President, who issued a statement correcting the impression given the day before and stating that the French position had been made known to the chairman of the debt funding commission. It was clear that Mr. Hughes thought a correction in order.

Neither the President nor Mr. Hughes could be reached tonight for further light on the resignation. The secretary left Washington a few hours before the announcement and is on a train tonight headed for Atlanta, Ga., to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the American Bar association.

Regarded as Significant.

While this gossip may or may not contain clews to the solution of the mystery, there is a disposition to regard the announcement of the resignation nearly two months in advance of its effective date as fraught with unusual significance.

To many observers there appears to be a close connection between the announcement and the Paris conference on the allocation of German reparations payments under the Dawes plan. The most important development in that conference up to date has been furnished by the objections raised, chiefly by Great Britain, to the payment of American war claims against Germany from Dawes plan annuities.

After yielding in principle and agreeing to the participation of the United States, Great Britain is still withholding full assent pending an agreement on the amount of the American claims and the extension of the period in which the cost of the American army of occupation is to be liquidated.

Kellogg on Commission.

Ambassador Kellogg, Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France, and Col. James A. Logan, American observer on the reparations commission, are the representatives of the United States in these negotiations. Mr. Kellogg is actually the chief American plenipotentiary, and it has devolved upon him to match wits with Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, in the moves pertaining to the claims question.

There has been a deal of cabling between Ambassador Kellogg and Secretary Hughes in the last forty-eight hours in connection with the British opposition to the American position, and the dispatches from Paris this morning indicated that a crisis in the negotiations had been reached. The American delegation apparently had informed the British that the United States is not prepared to yield further, and none of the Americans attended an important meeting today.

Will Influence Parley.

It is suggested by those who entertain this theory that the added prestige of Ambassador Kellogg in consequence of the announcement of his forthcoming elevation to an office second in importance only to that of President of the United States will exert a profound influence on the negotiations.

Not only will Ambassador Kellogg be able to shape his course in this conference in conformity with his future foreign policies but the European representatives will understand that the future attitude of the United States in respect to matters in which they are vitally interested will be influenced to a marked degree by the experience of Mr. Kellogg in dealing with them now. Those who entertain this view regard the announcement as calculated "to bring the allies to time" in the pending negotiations.

The announcement of the prospective change in the office of secretary of state created a sensation among that portion of the personnel of political Washington which learned of it this evening. There had been persistent rumors that Mr. Hughes intended to leave the cabinet, and these were repeatedly denied in official quarters.

WARREN IS NAMED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—President Coolidge today sent to the senate the nomination of Charles Beecher Warren of Michigan for attorney general in his cabinet.

Mr. Warren will take the place of HarHarlan F. Stone, who has been appointed an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States.

Opposed by Couzens.

The President selected Mr. Warren in spite of the opposition of Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.] and other Republican members of the Michigan delegation in congress, who had suggested the naming of Gov. Groesbeck of Michigan.

Mr. Warren already has figured prominently in the affairs of the present administration. He was the President's choice for chairman of the resolutions committee at the Republican national convention at Cleveland last summer, and in that capacity drafted the party platform upon which the President based his campaign for reelection.

WEEK MARKS MANY CHANGES IN HIGH OFFICIAL PLACES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Tonight ended a week of changes in high places of the government which perhaps never has had its equal except at a change of administrations.

The upsets al came virtually without warning, and in each case of a resignation a successor was named within a matter of a few days—in some cases within the space of a few hours.

These are the offices involved and the men whose resignations and appointments have been anounced or indicated last Monday morning:

JOSEPH McKENNA, resigned after twenty-seven years on the Supreme court.

HARLAN F. STONE was named to the Supreme court, forecasting his retirement as attorney general.

CHARLES B. WARREN was named attorney general.

CHARLES E. HUGHES resigned as secretary of state.

FRANK B. KELLOGG was selected for secretary of state, making a prospective vacancy in the ambassadorship to the Court of St. James.

JAMES R. SHEFFIELD, New York City, was confirmed by the senate to be ambassador to Mexico.

Oliver Wendell Holmes was said by his friends to have decided to retire from the Supreme court before March 4.

WIFE WON'T WAKE KELLOGG TO TELL OF APPOINTMENT

Envoy Is Asleep When News Reaches Paris.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Jan. 11., 1 a. m.—The news of the appointment of Frank Kellogg, United States ambassador to Great Britain, as secretary of state reached Paris at midnight. When a TRIBUNE representative called at the residence of Ambassador Herrick, where Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg are guests, everybody was fast asleep.

The concierge finally agreed to disturb Mr. Herrick, who said: "Impossible, there must be some mistake," when the caller imparted the news. Mr. Herrick agreed to awaken his guest, but Mrs. Kellogg stated she preferred not to awaken her husband, who was tired after his arduous day at the allied financial conference.

Wouldn't Talk, Herrick Says.

"Anyhow, he would say nothing until he was officially advised of his appointment," Mr. Herrick said.

It seemed evident that Mr. Kellogg's appointment caused the greatest surprise to the ambassador's wife and to Mr. Herrick.

Ther is the greatest interest in French political circles as to what will be Mr. Kellogg's attitude regarding Russia. It is not generally believed that he will be so determined regarding Moscow as Mr. Hughes.

With Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, and other powers resuming relations with Moscow it is felt here that the United States must follow suit.

LONDON NOT SURPRISED.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—[By the Associated Press.]—The appointment of Ambassador Frank B. Kellogg to a cabinet post at Washington causes no surprise in London, where for weeks the papers have published rumors that he was to be given a place in the home government. Similar rumors that Charles E. Hughes would resign also have been afloat.

In diplomatic circles Mr. Kellogg has been considered a very able ambassador. It is generally known he worked steadily and quietly not only in Anglo-American affairs but in helping to clear up Europe's post-war problems.

The American ambassador and his wife leased the Crewe house, one of the great West End residences. There they entertained on a scale which British court society seems to expect from the ambassador of the world's richest country.

GUN ROW SHOWS ARMS PARLEY IS NEED NOW—BORAH

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Calling on another disarmament conference at an early date was declared to be desirable today by Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations. Senator Borah reiterated his advocacy of such a conference in commenting upon President Coolidge's position relative to elevation of naval guns. Senator Borah said that he approved the President's position. He added:

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH.
[(C.) Champlain Photo.]

"I think that we ought not to take the chances of shattering the whole disarmament movement and opening up another great naval race on account of minor matters. The question of gun elevation is not wholly unimportant, but it is not so important as that of preserving and advancing the cause of disarmament.

"It seems to me, however, that this situation calls for more speedy action in calling another disarmament conference."

KELLOGG ROSE UNAIDED TO NICHE IN HALL OF FAME

From Plowboy to State Secretary His Career.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Frank B. Kellogg's career is the story of the rise of an obscure but ambitious Minnesota country lawyer to United States senator, then to the court of St. James as ambassador, and now to the post of secretary of state.

It is the story of a farm boy who studied hard at night, and in spite of the lack of opportunities which are available to most students today, forged ahead, laying a sound foundation of knowledge which has served him well and which has served his state and his country so well in the years he has been in public life.

Made Fortune in Law.

Although Mr. Kellogg is accounted a wealthy man, he has no interests outside his law practice. The fortune which he has—and it is accounted large enough to meet the expenses of the embassy in London—was accumulated, his friends say, in his law practice, largely before he won the title of "trust buster" for the Roosevelt administration.

Mr. Kellogg was born in Potsdam, N. Y., Dec. 22, 1856, and when 9 years old came with his father to a farm in Olmsted county, Minn., where he worked on the farm and studied by night. He attended rural school and later the grade school at Elgin, Minn.

His early ambition was to be a lawyer, and when he was 19 years old he left the farm and began the study of law in Rochester, Minn., receiving his early instruction in the law offices of H. E. Eckholdt and R. A. Jones. He was admitted to the bar in 1877 and began to practice immediately.

His story of his first case is interesting. "For my first case," he said, "I was to receive $6 in cash and a ride to and from the justice court.

Suit About a Horse.

"The suit was over the ownership of a horse and the owner of the horse was my client. I rode with him to court, won the case, and collected $3 of my fee, but on the return trip the horse dropped dead, and I had to walk the remaining twelve miles."

Kellogg's ability quickly was recognized and he was elected city attorney of Rochester. He served in the office three years and then five years as Olmsted county attorney.

He gained recognition outside his home county when he accepted and won a much rejected lawsuit, entitled "The Towns of Plainview and Elgin vs. Winona and St. Peter Railway Company," which he fought up to the United States Supreme court and won.

Partner of Senator.

He was invited to associate in the practice of law in St. Paul with the late United States Senator Cushman K. Davis and Cordenio A. Severance, and when Davis went to the senate Kellogg succeeded him as active head of the firm.

At various times Kellogg served as general counsel for United States Steel corporation and as counsel for several of the larger railroad companies.

He attained national recognition as attorney for the Hill interests in the Northern Securities case, and subsequently was called upon by President Roosevelt and Attorney General Knox to investigate the methods of several important corporations. He served as special attorney general for the United States in the investigation of the Standard Oil company, and his conduct of the case which developed led to an ultimate victory for the government.

Elected to Senate.

His friends prevailed upon him to file for the Republican nomination for United States senator in 1916, which he did, winning the nomination and subsequently the election. He was a candidate for reëlection in 1922, but was defeated by Dr. Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Laborite.

The late President Harding named Mr. Kellogg as his legal adviser at the convention of the Pan-American union at Santiago, Chile, and afterward he returned to the practice of law in St. Paul.

It was at that time that Mr. Kellogg began the construction of one of the finest residences in St. Paul, costing a quarter of a million. It was thought then that he planned to retire from all official life.

He was named by President Coolidge as United States ambassador to Great Britain Oct. 26, 1923, succeeding Col. George Harvey.

Mr. Kellogg was married to Clara M. Cook, daughter of George Clinton Cook of Rochester, Minn., June 16, 1886.

RED WHO TURNED UP PALS IN 1881 IS PUT ON TRIAL

MOSCOW, Jan. 10.—[By the Associated Press.]—One of the most extraordinary trials in the criminal history of Russia opened here tonight in a courtroom crowded with communists, revolutionists, and foreign visitors. The defendant is Ivan Okaldski, 65 years old, who participated in the assassination of Alexander II. in 1881.

Okladski is on trial for his life on the charge of having turned traitor and betrayed his accomplices in that famous murder which shocked two continents. His confession following the slaying caused the death or exile of all his accomplices.

Nikolai Krylenko, soviet Russia's most ruthless prosecutor, is conducting the case for the state and, although nearly forty-five years have passed since the killing of Alexander, a formidable array of surviving revolutionists of the 1881 period and thousands of documents will be produced in court to show Okladski's disloyalty to his brother revolutionists and anarchists.

COUNTESS DE JUMILHAC.

GENEVA JUST A BIG TAMMANY, M'CORMICK SAYS

Calls Freedom U. S. Foreign Policy.

New York, Jan. 10.—[Special.]—The Geneva protocol, designed by the signatory nations as an effective means of leading to permanent world peace, met with rough handling today at the Saturday discussion of the National Republican club, when United States Senator Medill McCormick likened the Geneva conference to "an international Tammany." Representative Theodore E. Burton, who desires a world court, declared the United States would never sanction the protocol, and Prof. Herbert Adams Gibbons of Princeton denounced the protocol as being more dangerous than Article 10 of the Versailles covenant.

The Policy of Tradition.

"The foreign policy of the United States," said Senator McCormick, the first speaker, "may be repugnant to some of us, it may be acceptable to some of us, or, again, some of us may approve its general tendencies and broad purposes while we criticize it in detail. There is, none the less, an American foreign policy influential on the course of events in Asia, Europe and the two Americas. It is the traditional foreign policy of the United States.

"This policy is not fostered of isolation, but of independence; a policy of collaboration, and not of alliance. It is primarily an American policy and not a European policy or an Asiatic policy or a world policy.

It Gives U. S. Influence.

"We are not less influential, but more influential, because that is our policy. Our detachment from European complexities, our aloofness from the international Tammany and our attachment to American independence make alike for our security at home and our influence abroad in solving the most urgent foreign problems, when we consent to join in their solution."

Former Chicago Wife

Count and Countess de Jumilhac arrived in Chicago, former home of the countess, yesterday for a short visit with friends. They are stopping at the Blackstone hotel.

The Countess de Jumilhac was formerly the wife of Ray Atherton of Chicago. They were divorced last summer in China, where he was attached to the diplomatic staff. On Oct. 1 Mrs. Atherton was married to Count Pierre de Jumilhac, noted French polo player, who created a sensation in Paris two years ago by an alleged beating for Georges Anquetil, a journalist, who published an account of a card game with former Ambassador Hugh C. Wallace.

During their stay the count and countess will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Schwarz.

MYSTERY GIRL ALMOST SOLVED BY RADIO PLEA

Though still unidentified, the recent publicity has caused a constant stream of visitors at the county hospital to attempt to identify Charlotte Norris, the mystery girl. Also, the warden's office has been flooded with a new tide of letters and telegrams. To all inquiries yesterday she replied, "I don't remember." Laporte, Ind., claimed her as a resident, as did Pittsburgh, Pa. Persons from both places will come here to test beliefs in their cities that she is known there.

One of the most promising clews was supplied by Miss Esther Wexler, 1517 North California avenue. Miss Wexler said Miss Norris played a piano at the Princess theater, Rushville, Ind., last summer, was known there as Charlotte Norris, and lived with her mother at that place. That girl expressed a desire to come to Chicago in the winter and sing here. Miss Wexler said she met Miss Norris in Rushville.

Miss Wexler said the mystery girl resembled the Miss Norris she knew.

SURFACE LINES APPRAISAL DUE EARLY IN WEEK

Mayoralty Fray Waits on Board Report.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The board of engineers—Maj. R. F. Kelker for the city, William J. Hagenah for the bankers' committee, and Gen. William Barclay Parsons, the neutral member, appointed to appraise the surface lines, has about completed its task. The report is expected soon.

Corporation Counsel Busch told the local transportation committee Friday that he had been informed the engineers would report tomorrow. Mayor Dever, said yesterday after talking with Gen. Parsons, that he did not expect the report Monday—but perhaps on Tuesday and probably on Wednesday.

Schwartz Asks More Light.

After that report is finished, Chairman Schwartz of the transportation committee desires to retain the engineers further to supply some figures on the elevated properties.

Aldermen believe the engineers will report a value for the surface lines in excess of $162,701,535, the contract price fixed in the 1907 ordinances. They also forecast that the city administration's figure on the elevated lines will be in excess of $75,000,000, or a total for both above $237,000,000. But few guesses could be obtained regarding how much above that total the aggregate will be.

Seventy-five million will not be enough to buy the elevated lines, if Samuel Insull sticks to his declaration that they will not be sold for less than $90,000,000 securities outstanding. But the ordinance as framed contemplates such a contingency. It provides for naming a price in its text and then permits the issuance later of enough more securities to acquire the elevated properties.

What Will Suit Bankers.

The expected surface lines value of $162,701,535 will be satisfactory to the bankers' committee.

Regardless of the merits of the questions involved, it is reasonably certain that as soon as the city administration names the price they are willing to pay for the surface lines and the elevated the mayoralty campaign will be started for the election of April, 1927.

Mayor Dever will either have to adopt the prices or oppose them. If he opposes the values there is little or no hope that the committee and the city council will adopt his ordinance with the values presented.

Then, as soon as Mayor Dever approves of those figures, former Mayor Thompson can be expected to disapprove of them. In fact, he has already done so. Mr. Thompson desires to be the chief executive of the city again, and he appreciates the value of a traction issue as a campaign advantage.

Thompson Opposed in 1918.

The value of $162,701,535 for the surface lines and more than $75,000,000 for the elevated roads are the values agreed upon in the 1918 ordinances, plus estimated or actual additions to property since that date. William Hale Thompson opposed the 1918 ordinance. One of his chief reasons for vetoing it was the value placed upon the surface and elevated lines.

It is as definite as a future event in legislation can be that the mayor's ordinance will not be submitted to the voters on Feb. 24. It will be deferred to April 7, at least.

REBELS HAVE NO PLACE IN PARTY, LONGWORTH SAYS

Burton Also Speaks at Ohio Dinner.

New York, Jan. 10.—Addressing the thirty-ninth annual dinner of the Ohio Society of New York, Representative Nicholas E. Longworth, Republican leader in the house, predicted that the next congress, with Republicans having a clear cut majority in both houses, would be one of the most efficient legislative bodies in history. He also declared himself in favor of barring from Republican party councils the followers of Senator La Follette in the recent presidential campaign—a step already taken by senate Republicans.

REP. NICHOLOS E. LONGWORTH.
[H. & E. Photo.]

Not Republicans, He Says.

"These men," he declared, "cannot and ought not to be, classed as Republicans in the next congress. They left the Republican party deliberately, and did everything possible toward its undoing.

"Shall we take them to our bosom and keep them in the inner chambers of our party councils? To do so, in my opinion, would be to deliberately ignore the mandate of the last election, by which the Republican party was commissioned to carry out a definite legislative program and to adhere to certain fundamental governmental principles.

Seek Party Distinction.

"As I interpret that mandate, it imposes upon us the duty of seeing that the machinery to execute it shall be made as efficient as possible, and surely that could not be done if we were to put in key positions in the next congress men who have opposed and are opposing that program and who have sought and are seeking the destruction of the very foundations upon which, as we hold, our governmental structure is based."

EUROPE STILL SEEKS WAYS TO DODGE WAR DEBT

Total Due U. S. Reaches Twelve Billions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Just because Great Britain is paying her $4,600,000,000 war debt to the United States and because France avers that she intends to pay her $4,000,000,000 debt to Uncle Sam sometime, it should not be assumed that Europe has abandoned the pretty notion of inducing America to cancel those bothersome obligations.

Great Britain decided to begin paying when it became apparent to British business men that their credit and the credit of their country was becoming seriously impaired by the lack of assurance that Britain intended to honor that little promissory note signed J. Bull reposing in the American treasury.

Will Dodge Shaky Credit.

France, it is not doubted, will evince a burning eagerness to pay about the time it dawns upon the thrifty Frenchmen that their credit will continue shaky until their nation gives an earnest of honoring its pledges.

At no time, however, have Great Britain and France abandoned their maneuvers to draw the United States into a position in which it would be induced or compelled to cancel the debts.

If cancellation were agreed to France would forgive debts aggregating $2,717,908,500, Great Britain $8,684,334,000 and the United States $12,041,440,921.

*Finland, Great Britain, and Hungary have already refunded their debts and are paying in on them. The refunding terms have been approved by congress.

†Lithuania and Poland have made similar refunding agreements which will go into effect immediately upon ratification by congress.

Debts in Five Classes.

These figures represent total indebtedness to the United States, principal and interest, as of Nov. 15, 1924, from the governments concerned. All unfunded debts are in the form of demand obligations. The debts fall into five classes:

1. Money advanced during the hostilities, nearly all of which was spent in the United States for the purchase of war supplies. (Authorized under Liberty bond acts.)

2. Advances through the American relief administration after the armistice for the purchase of relief supplies. (Act of Feb. 25, 1919.)

3. Sales of surplus war materials after the armistice. (Act of July 9, 1918.)

4. Sales of flour through the United States Grain corporation. (Act of March 30, 1920.)

5. Advances through the United States shipping board for transportation.

All Handled Alike.

The debt funding commission has made no differentiation in the handling of the various types of debts, all being treated alike.

Similarly, the commission has rejected all suggestions that money borrowed but spent in the United States for munitions or food should be separated from funds actually exported and should be scaled down, accorded a lower rate of interest, or deferred to some distant date.

A brief description of the refunding agreements and of the status of the negotiations between the United States and other debtor countries follows:

Armenia—There is no government recognized by the United States.

Austria's Time Extended.

Austria—The time of payment of principal and interest of the Austrian obligation was extended until June 1, 1943.

Belgium—Baron de Cartier, Belgian ambassador at Washington, who has been appointed by the Belgian government to negotiate with the commission, has stated that he hoped to lay before the commission proposals for the refunding of debt. Meanwhile Belgium has paid in full interest due on such of her obligations as were incurred for the purchase of surplus war supplies.

Czecho-Slovakia—On April 9, 1924, the commission was advised that the minister of Czecho-Slovakia at Washington had been authorized by his government to proceed with negotiations. No proposals or representations with reference to refunding have as yet been received.

Finland Is Paying.

Finland—An agreement was reached on terms similar to those entered into with Great Britain and was approved by act of congress of March 12, 1924. Bonds of Finland amounting to $9,000,000 were received by the treasury on March 22, 1922, and payments of interest and principal are being made regularly.

France—In July, 1922, the French government sent a special mission headed by M. Jean V. Parmentier, director of the movement of funds of the French treasury, to the United States to discuss the debt with the commission. M. Parmentier laid before the commission certain data relating to the financial and economic situation of France. He said that his government desired to postpone for an indefinite period consideration of this matter until the financial situation of France should become more clear, particularly as to reparation receipts from Germany. No definite settlement has been proposed up to date. Meanwhile France has paid in full interest due on such of her obligations as were incurred after the armistice for the purchase of war supplies.

The British Terms.

Great Britain—An agreement was reached on Feb. 2, 1923, which was recommended by the President to congress on Feb. 7, 1923, and approved by act of congress Feb. 28, 1923. Bonds of the British government aggregating $4,600,000,000 were received by the treasury on July 5, 1923.

The principal of the bonds shall be paid in annual installments on a schedule subject to the right of the British government to make these payments in three year periods.

Interest is to be payable upon the unpaid balance at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, from Dec. 15, 1922, to Dec. 15, 1932, thereafter at the rate of 3½ per cent per annum.

Greece—No move to refund the existing debt has been made.

Hungary Gives Bonds.

Hungary—An agreement was reached on April 25, 1924. The terms and arrangements for the payment of interest and principal are substantially the same as those accorded Great Britain.

Italy Takes No Action.

Italy — The Italian government stated in July, 1922, that it was prepared to send representatives to this country to negotiate with the commission, but no further action has been taken.

Latvia—No proposals or representations with reference to refunding have as yet been received.

Liberia—No proposals or representations with reference to refunding have been received.

Lithuania — An agreement was reached on Sept. 22, 1924. The terms and arrangements are modeled on those made with Great Britain.

Nicaragua—This indebtedness has not been refunded.

Poland Makes Terms.

Poland—An agreement was executed on Nov. 14, 1924. The terms are substantially the same as those made with Great Britain.

Roumania—Representatives of the Roumanian government appeared before the commission on Nov. 22, 1922. The exact amount of the debt was considered and unified. No proposals have since been received.

Russia—There is no government recognized by the United States.

Jugo-Slavia—Representatives of the government appeared before the commission on April 7, 1924, and stated that due to the economic and financial conditions existing in their country it did not feel that it could do so at the present time.

19 BOYS, 9 TO 18, CHARGED WITH ORGY OF CRIME

Police in Suburbs Seize Gang.

Eighteen boys, ranging from 9 to 18 years, are under arrest in three western suburbs, charged with many crimes from jackrolling to pilfering from railroad station cash registers, and auto tire thefts, ring snatching and forgery.

The names of only nine of the boys have been made public thus far. They are: Joseph Gugluidzo, 155 21st avenue; Angelo Doglianest, 105 21st avenue; Paul Gorraco, 914 22d avenue; Edward Schiller, 811 23d avenue; James Garraco, 914 22d avenue; Louis Giordgno, Pascal Walter, 914 24th avenue, and Henry Brandt, 802 12th street, all of Melrose Park.

Four of the boys are held in the Maywood police station. Others are divided between the Melrose Park and the Oak Park stations.

The arrests of the boys started early yesterday morning, when Chief Edward H. Dudley, Lieut. R. H. Daily, and Patrolman Edward Hardig of Maywood, and Chief Henry Pein of Melrose Park had finished questioning a 9 year old boy, whose name they refused to make public.

The boy, caught picking pockets, told on the gang, the police say. When all were questioned, the police declare, they learned that a Northwestern railroad cash register had been robbed, $900 in cigarets taken from a store, fifteen auto tires stolen, bad checks written, a home robbed, purses stolen, and intoxicated men jackrolled. The estimate of the thefts is $25,000, the police say.

MRS. BAUMGARTH FINDS SON AND BRIDE, AGED 14

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Baumgarth—he's 18 and she's 14—both pupils of the Austin High school, who were halted in Memphis, Tenn., after their elopement, are speeding back toward Chicago in an automobile, with Mrs. Henry Baumgarth at the steering wheel.

Young Baumgarth is the son of Dr. Henry Baumgarth of 2144 Cleveland avenue. He took his father's automobile and Dorothy Sheridan, 4036 Wilcox street. Their first stop was Crown Point, Ind., where they were married. After that nothing else mattered. They just rode and rode, and at Memphis the police halted them.

Mrs. Baumgarth arranged the release of the couple as well as the best man, Joseph Merty, 1756 Montrose avenue, who accompanied the couple on their wedding spree.

There was an affecting scene between Mrs. Baumgarth, her son and his child wife. Several kisses were passed around. Merty was declared in also.

JAIL FOR UNION LEADER; 3 GET CONTEMPT FINES

Peter S. Shaughnessy, president of the Bricklayers' union, yesterday was fined $500 and costs, and his business agent, John J. Stretch, was sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment in the county jail, when Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan found both guilty of contempt of court.

Another business agent, John Campbell, was fined $300 and costs, and Charles L. Wilde, assistant financial secretary of the union, was fined $50 and costs.

Judge Sullivan punished Shaughnessy and his aide for violating an injunction issued last May restraining them from assaulting, threatening, or intimidating employés of the Union Contracting company. The firm at that time was engaged in the construction of sewers in various parts of the city.

BAR RAW OYSTER DISHES IN STATE AFTER JAN. 15

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 10.—Letters to all local health authorities in Illinois notifying them of the action of Dr. Isaac Rawlings, state health director, in forbidding serving of raw oysters in Illinois after Jan. 15, were being mailed today by the state department of health.

The drastic action, Dr. Rawlings said, was necessary because previous warnings that there was great danger of typhoid infection through consumption of uncooked oysters had not been heeded.

"In Chicago," Dr. Rawlings said, "I found them serving raw oysters everywhere with apparently no thought of the danger."

COURAGE IN DUEL WITH MURDERER WINS HERO PRIZE

Colored Policeman Kills Slayer of Partner.

Courage which impelled him to battle with a desperate gunman whose first bullet had instantly killed a fellow officer, won Jesse McKinney, a colored policeman assigned to the Stanton avenue district, The Tribune's $100 award for bravery during the month of December.

In the pistol duel, McKinney fatally wounded the thug but not before he himself had sustained serious wounds. Officials of the Michael Reese hospital reported yesterday that McKinney's condition is still grave.

A few minutes after midnight on December 24, McKinney and Policeman William Holmes, also colored, were dispatched to investigate a complaint that a woman had been assaulted and robbed in front of 3721 Giles avenue. Leaving the patrol box, the officers walked swiftly east in 37th street to a point 100 feet east of Prairie avenue.

Ordered to Halt.

There, in the darkness, they met two colored men, hurrying as though in fear of pursuit. Moving to draw his revolver, Policeman Holmes ordered the two men to halt and throw up their hands, shouting that he was a policeman. Holmes' last words were interrupted by a shower of bullets from the revolver of one of the men. The other had fled.

With the first bullet, Holmes dropped to the ground, shot through the heart. Although he was dying, Holmes propped himself on his elbows and emptied his revolver at the gunman before he collapsed. As his comrade fell, McKinney drew his revolver and at the same time, the murderer emptied his second gun at McKinney. Four of McKinney's six bullets were found in the thug's body while two of the latter's slugs pierced the policeman's stomach. The bandit, George Williams, a notorious police character, was later found in the rear of 3707 Prairie avenue where he had crawled away to die.

O'Keefe Runs Second.

Policeman Luke O'Keefe of the Hyde Park station was a close second to McKinney for the bravery prize. On the night of Dec. 29, while patrolling his beat, he discovered a fire in the store at 6349 Cottage Grove avenue. Certain that other passersby would summon the fire department, O'Keefe smashed his way through upper flats, warning the occupants of their danger.

DEFAULTER DIVES 200 FEET TO HIS DEATH IN GORGE

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 10.—C. B. Van Slyke, cashier of the Miners and Merchants' bank of Chelan, Wash., drove his automobile off the Chelan gorge bridge today and plunged 200 feet to his death soon after the bank had been closed by a state examiner.

J. C. Minshull, state supervisor of banking, said there was an apparent defalcation of $45,000 in the bank's accounts and that Van Slyke last night confessed he had used the money.

NAUGHT IN SIN OR GIN, BARS TEACH M. DE P. HEITLER

MICHAEL G. HEITLER.

Michael G. Heitler, widely known in these parts as Mike de Pike, just back from his second sojourn in Leavenworth penitentiary, spent yesterday greeting old friends, most of whom he had not seen for fifteen months.

As upon the occasion of his return from his first stretch in the federal pen, Mr. Heitler announced he has reached the opinion that it gaineth a man naught to engage in sin and wickedness and scoffing at the Volstead act.

Mike said he intends to lead the straight and narrow from now on and will spend the major portion of his time in perfecting his principal invention, a furnace that will burn sawdust with all the heat producing effects of anthracite.

The return of Heitler to the west side, where he formerly reigned as vice lord and later as a booze baron, was seventy-two days ahead of schedule, that length of time having been granted for good behavior in the federal prison.

Heitler was sent there as principal in a $200,000 booze conspiracy, which included the shipping of large quantities of Old Grandad whisky from Louisville to Chicago.

He was sentenced to serve eighteen months and pay a fine of $10,000. Although convicted on March 9, 1921, Heitler wasn't taken to prison until Oct. 25, 1923, after his appeal had twice been carried to the United States Supreme court.

Movie Operators Accept 7 1-2 Per Cent Pay Increase

An all day session between representatives of the Motion Picture Operators' union and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' association of Chicago resulted last night in a compromise wage agreement which they hoped will settle all difficulties for the next two years. The operators accepted a 7½ per cent increase in wages on a two year contract.

KLAN KICKED OUT OF KANSAS HOME BY STATE COURTS

Ruled an Organization for Profit; Balk Charter.

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 10.—[By the Associated Press.]—Enjoined by the District court, ousted by the state Supreme court, the Ku Klux Klan today found itself without a home in Kansas. The decision of the Supreme court today holding the klan was a corporation organized for profit, and as such could not operate in Kansas without a charter, delivered victory to the state in the suit brought in the high court twenty-six months ago.

No Friends On Charter Board.

Members of the hooded order found little solace in the thought that they might seek sanction of the state charter board. In an election steeped in klan and anti-klan animosities, two state officials, who comprise a majority of that board, were elected against the opposition of the klan. The third, the state bank commissioner, will be appointed by the new governor when he assumes office Monday.

Meanwhile Charles B. Griffith, attorney general, who prosecuted the klan ouster suit for the last two years, and Frank J. Ryan, secretary of state, hold the trump cards as the majority controlling the charter board.

Court Redress Possible.

Redress, however, could be sought in the courts, should the klan elect to appeal a refusal of the charter board to authorize its incorporation. And it has been whispered about that the legislature which convenes Tuesday is strongly pro-klan, although apparently nothing but a radical change in the statutes could give aid to the klan in this respect.

URGE WEEKS' AID TO BLOCK SEWAGE PERIL

Great Rally Appeals to Congress, Too.

district, said he remembered the days when the Chicago river caught fire and chickens walked across the river, and the drinking water had to be strained for worms. To meet this situation Chicago turned a river around and made it flow backwards, one of the great engineering feats of the world. With what has been spent and what is planned, he said, the total by 1945 will be $256,000,000. He said the district had already spent $29,308,000 in sewage disposal plants. By 1945 they expect to take care of a population of 6,782,000. He said the report of the engineering board of review was the bible of the trustees, that it was the truth, and that he expected publication of its details to stop much of the opposition to the 10,000 feet flow.

This report states, he pointed out that the Chicago diversion has lowered the great lakes about five inches, while diversions elsewhere, improvements of outlet channels, and climatic conditions, have caused a lowering of two to three feet.

CITY IS AT CRISIS

George F. Barrett, special counsel for the district, said that Chicago was at a crisis in affairs of sewage and water supply.

"In order that the sanitary district protect the water supply," he said, "it is required to have in the main and connecting channels a flow of water of sufficient size at all time to keep the sewage from flowing into the lake. Ten thousand feet a second is necessary in dry weather. If only 4,167 is flowing to Lockport and a storm and flood comes, we cannot maintain the outflow to prevent the sewage water from backing into the lake. It takes from twenty-four to thirty hours to increase the outflow from 4,167 to 10,000. Imagine 6,000 feet a second of sewage water flowing into the lake. In two days the water would be unfit to drink. Every bathing beach on the great lakes would be affected."

Mr. Barrett made a plea for sinking of all partisanship and recrimination in this crisis. He said that plans had been made to spend every dollar permitted under the law and that the Illinois legislature would be appealed to at this session to help Chicago in her hour of need.

Paul H. Norcross, Atlanta, Ga., secretary of the engineering board of review, vouched for the independent truth found in that report.

"The health of your city is jeopardized," he said. "You must apply for relief with the feeling that right is on your side."

Mayor Dever was presented.

Dever's Faith in Washington.

"I am satisfied that the war department will deal with this city fairly," he said. "The situation is so acute that on a proper decision in Washington reposes the health and industrial welfare of this city. As I understand the Supreme court decision it fixed the fact of power to deal with this problem in the war department. I do not think any authority has held that this city could properly be cared for if the flow was reduced to 4,167 feet. Under that amount the city would be seriously imperiled.

"A year ago last October we had a storm that caused a backing of the water in the Calumet. Sewage passed into the lake for a few days. There was an epidemic from 39th and 103d streets. There were 150 case of typhoid with twelve fatalities. When the wind changed the epidemic disappeared.

"In a matter of such supreme importance to Chicago there can be no politics. How can we convince the war department that we must have a continuance of that flow until it becomes possible to handle sewage with artificial plants? We will do all that can be done."

Eliminate Criticism.

Maj. Rufus W. Putnam, army engineer in the Chicago district for four years, advised that criticism be eliminated and every effort be made to keep up the good feeling that now exists toward Chicago in the war department. He also said that unity of program was necessary, that one proposition only should be presented to Washington. He suggested that it would be a good thing for Chicago in this situation to adopt a universal metering ordinance and then go ahead in this method of saving water. It has been estimated, he said, that this would cut the cost of the sewage treatment program 20 per cent.

Congressman M. A. Michaelson, member of the rivers and harbors committee, which will eventually have to pass on this problem, told of the troubles in the Illinois delegation at Washington last Monday when a meeting was called to consider action on the Supreme court decision. Downstate members could not agree with Chicago members, he said.

TOO LATE FOR CONGRESS

As congress will adjourn March 4 he stated that there was no time to do anything at this session and that the only relief was through the President and secretary of war. The Illinois congressmen, he said, think that no man will take upon himself the responsibility of having typhoid fever turned loose in Chicago.

Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen said that few people realize the menace that confronts the city today. He said of 2,495 samples of unchlorined water sampled last year 100 per cent was contaminated. After chlorination it was 100 per cent safe.

"The drinking water will not stand one bit more of pollution," he said. "The chlorine plant is working to capacity. We are sitting on dynamite. We must meter and filter our water."

Arthur Burrage Farwell, Miss Margaret Haley, John M. Glenn, Charles Wacker, George Dixon, William J. H. Strong, Wallace Clark, Frank Ryan, and others talked briefly on the situation. It was Miss Haley who suggested that the board of education be brought into the fight in the town meeting plan suggested by Andrew B. Hulitt.

Mr. Glenn, the veteran secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, said that an investigation ought to be made to find out what Illinois members of congress are opposed to the Chicago program.

"I have heard talk like this for thirty years," he said. "We ought to do something now. Why not put on meters?"

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, was present. At the motion of Miss Haley, the Wacker resolution was amended to include the aid of the labor bodies. This was followed by a flood of offers, including:

The Women's City club, League of Women Voters, Lake View Women's club, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Rogers Park Women's club, the West End Women's club, the Physicians' Fellowship Club auxiliary, the Cook County Women's clubs, Illinois League of Women Voters, Illinois Women's Athletic club, Women's City club, 5th ward; Illinois Sunflower club, Catholic Women's league, Chicago Lawn Women's club, Illinois Teachers' federation, Grand Order of Job's Daughters, South Side Catholic Women's club, Chicago Culture club, Chicago Public Affairs' association, Hyde Park Improvement association, the Association of Technical Engineers, Chicago Chapter Association of Engineers, City of Forest Park, North Shore Motor club, Chicago Real Estate Board, Chicago Association of Commerce, Chicago Contractors' association, Chicago Hotel association, United Master Butchers' association.

Roar of Approval.

It was an impressive offer. So many seconds were made for the Wacker resolution that President King had to call a halt and the vote in favor of this action was given with a roar.

The city council held a special meeting yesterday morning to consider the sewage disposal crisis. A committee was appointed by the mayor to coöperate with the sanitary district trustees. The committee consists of Ald. Arvey (chairman), Moran, Guernsey, Frankhauser, Byrne, Adamowski, Self, Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, Corporation Counsel Busch, and Health Commissioner Bundesen. A resolution was adopted offering this committee aid and coöperation.

Resolution Details Drainage Canal History and Fourfold Relief Plan

THE following resolution embraces the action of the council chamber massmeeting yesterday in the sewage disposal crisis and carries a complete history of the controversy to date. It was presented by Charles H. Wacker of the Chicago Plan commission, seconded by the representatives of several leading civic associations, and was adopted unanimously. The resolution, which had been prepared by Attorney George F. Barrett and the drainage trustees, is as follows:

"Whereas, Between the years 1800 and 1827 it was the firm belief of leaders of public thought in our country, that, for the protection of the nation and for the benefit of its commerce upon the great lakes, an outlet should be constructed connecting Lake Michigan at Chicago with the Gulf of Mexico, and this subject, of nation-wide concern, was generally discussed throughout the country as well as in the congress of the United States.

How Canal Started.

"Whereas, In the year 1827 congress, by legislation, requested the state of Illinois to construct such a canal and granted land upon which the same might be built; and,

"Whereas, Between the years 1836 and 1848, the state of Illinois, with a population never greater than 270,000, built the Illinois and Michigan canal at a cost to it of more than $7,000,000; and,

"Whereas, Lake Michigan, since the year 1848, when Chicago had a population of about 5,000 people, to the present time, when the population of Chicago and the sanitary district approximates 3,500,000 people. has been the only source of water supply for the people of this community.

Protection Always Problem.

"Whereas, Since the organization of the city of Chicago one of its greatest problems has been the protection of this water supply from contamination by sewage; and,

"Whereas, The Illinois and Michigan canal, from 1848 until 1900, and the sanitary channel, from 1900 down to the present time, have contiuously been used by all of the people of the United States for commercial purposes and by the people of the city of Chicago and adjacent territory for the purpose of diverting the sewage of Chicago and its environs from our water supply; and,

"Whereas. Notwithstanding the expenditure of about $5,000,000 by the people of Chicago, the Illinois and Michigan canal, though operated to its capacity, was so inadequate for the protection of Chicago's water supply that typhoid fever was epidemic, and the death rate therefrom reached the appalling figure of 174 per 100,000 people annually.

Typhoid Prevalent.

"Whereas, Epidemics of typhoid fever spreading from Chicago throughout the entire country compelled Chicago to solve its water supply and health problem in a maner which would thereafter prevent typhoid epidemics; and,

"Whereas, The drainage and water supply commission of Chicago, composed of engineers of worldwide reputation, working in conjunction with a legislative joint committee and the health departments of Chicago and Illinois, recommended the construction of our present sanitary channel for the purpose of protecting Chicago's water supply and the disposal of its sewage by dilution, which was then the only satisfactory method for handling sewage of large communities; and,

"Whereas, To divert Chicago's sewage from and to protect its water supply a drainage channel of 10,000 second foot capacity was absolutely necessary and was constructed by the sanitary district of Chicago at a capital cost of $102,000,000.

10,000 Cubic Feet Needed.

"Whereas, The present sewage and drainage condition of the sanitary district of Chicago is such that for many years hereafter it will be absolutely necessary to have a diversion of 10,000 cubic second feet of water from Lake Michigan to prevent the sewage of Chicago from emptying into and polluting our water supply; and,

"Whereas, Since 1914 the sanitary district has been engaged in the construction, as rapidly as its financial ability would permit, of artificial sewage treatment plants to supplement the sanitary channel in the disposal of sewage; and,

"Whereas, The sanitary district has already expended, in the work of erecting sewage treatment plants, about $34,000,000, and is engaged upon the completion of a comprehensive sewage treatment system requiring the expenditure of $105,000,000 additional during the next twenty years.

State Aid Needed.

"Whereas, In order to complete the construction of this sewage treatment program it will be necessary to obtain aid from the legislature of Illinois, and that without this aid the income of the sanitary district from all sources between now and the year 1945 will be insufficient; and,

"Whereas, Under constitutional limitations and restrictions, it is impossible for the sanitary district or the city, or either of them, to do anything other than this in the protection of our water supply; and,

"Whereas, The cutting down of the flow in our sanitary channels to 4,167 cubic feet of water per second, in accordance with the recent decision of the Supreme court of the United States, will pollute our water supply and produce a typhoid epidemic in Chicago and surounding country of such magnitude as to amount to a public calamity; and,

"Whereas, The lowering of lake levels charged to Chicago's sanitary diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second is the very small amount of five and one-half inches, and the reduction of our flow to 4,167 cubic feet per second will increase lake levels only about three inches, and then only after many years of average rainfall.

Little Change in Level.

"Whereas, Reliable authorities have determined that the levels of the great lakes are from two to three feet below their normal stage, due to causes other than the Chicago sanitary diversion; and,

"Whereas, The people of the city of Chicago have offered to defray the expense of constructing regulating works to restore lowered lake levels due to the diversion, which have been found to be practicable by the engineering corps of the United States army, as well as by the engineering board of review appointed by the sanitary district of Chicago, consisting of twenty-eight of the most éminent engineers in the world;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved by this gathering of representatives from official, civic, religious, social, fraternal, business, and industrial organizations of the city of Chicago and surrounding territory, held in the council chambers of the city of Chicago on the 10th day of January, 1925, that the efforts of the sanitary district of Chicago to maintain a pure water supply for the people of our community, and its plans for the completion and operation of artificial sewage treatment plants which have been indorsed by said engineering board of review, be, and the same are hereby approved.

Asks Weeks to Help.

"Be it further resolved, That in this great emergency so vital in its effect upon the lives and well being of our people and the people of the entire country, that we ask the Hon. John W. Weeks, secretary of war of the United States, to permit the sanitary district of Chicago to withdraw the amount of water at present diverted by it until such time as the health and lives of our people may be protected in some other manner; and,

"Be it further resolved, That we urge the congress of the United States to enact speedily legislation permitting the sanitary district to withdraw from Lake Michigan through its sanitary channels 10,000 cubic feet of water per second for the protection of Chicago's water supply and for the protection of the health and lives of the people of the sanitary district and of the entire nation, and that we call upon the general assembly of the state of Illinois to enact such legislation as may be necessary to permit the sanitary district of Chicago to complete its sewage treatment program.

Sent to Coolidge.

"Be it further resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this meeting and that copies thereof be engrossed and transmitted by Lawrence F. King, chairman, to the Hon. Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States; the Hon. John W. Weeks, secretary of war; Maj. Gen. Harry Taylor, chief of engineers of the United States army; to each of the members of the senate and house of representatives of the congress of the United States, to the governor of the state of Illinois, and to each of the members of the senate and house of representatives of the Illinois general assembly."

FIGHT NEW YORK CANAL AS BLOW AT LAKE SEAWAY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Advocates of the St. Lawrence waterway project are opposing a suggested appropriation of $100,000 for a new survey to determine the feasibility of a ship canal across New York state from Oswego to the Hudson river.

Members of the New York delegation in congress have received letters from the northern New York development league, composed of commercial organizations, opposing the proposed appropriation as a futile and wasteful expenditure of the public fund.

"This league is heartily in favor of the immediate construction of the St. Lawrence waterway," says the letter. We see in the appropriation of $100,000 for a ship canal across New York state from Oswego to the Hudson river, an attempt to defeat, or at least delay, the St. Lawrence project.

"The St. Lawrence route will require only 31 miles of canal, divided into short stretches of 8-15-8 miles; while the Oswego-Hudson canal will be a restricted channel 168 miles long, climbing up and down over a divide, as shown by the report of the international joint commission.

"The cost of the St. Lawrence improvement for a thirty foot channel will be $269,000,000, as compared with $650,000,000 for the Oswego-Hudson canal.

50 TOWN RALLIES ON SANITARY NEED TO BE HELD JAN. 19

Town meetings will be held in fifty schoolhouses, one in each ward of the city, on the evening of Jan. 19, under the auspices of the Chicago Public Affairs association, to consider the question of keeping the water supply pure. The board of education wil be asked to send the news through the children. Speakers from the sanitary district will mask the rounds. Arangements will be made to broadcast one of these meetings.

TWO LAKE CITIES SAY LOW WATER IMPAIRS HARBOR

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 10.—A resolution condemning the Chicago "water steal" from Lake Michigan and reciting the impairment to the local harbor as affecting navigation, was adopted today at a joint conference of officials of Menominee and Marinette.

The resolution states that the lowered water has already damaged manufacturing and summer resort interests in both cities to the extent of thousands of dollars.

Cities Called to Protest Meeting.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 10.—[By the Associated Press.]—A meeting to protest the diversion of any water from the Great Lakes which would tend to impede or lessen commerce on the great lakes, has been called for the morning of Jan. 15 at Cleveland, O.

YOUR CREDIT IS GOOD WITH SKEELES-BIDDLE

Many families, when unexpectedly confronted with the need of a funeral director's help without being ready to pay spot cash for his services, feel that their only chance of obtaining credit accommodations is by dealing with a near-by undertaker.

The fact is, of course, that the average one-funeral-a-month undertaker simply cannot afford to extend credit unless he adds to his already high cash prices an extra and exorbitant profit.

Caskets as Low as $25

And even then, he is usually found hounding the client for his bill as soon as the funeral is over.

Consider the advantage of dealing with a firm having ample capital and operating one of the largest undertaking businesses in the middle west—Skeeles-Biddle Company, with their two establishments and magnificent funeral chapels.

Buying caskets and funeral supplies in the large quantities required by our businesses, we get the largest discounts and lowest manufacturer's prices. At the same time we are not only able but are glad to extend credit to any honest person or family.

A telephone call will bring a member of our firm in any part of the city instantly. If, after you have talked with him, you are not convinced that Skeeles-Biddle service will satisfy and please you better than any other, you will not be under the slightest obligations to retain us.

"ITALY'S MAN OF DESTINY" FACES FIGHT FOR LIFE

Mussolini Will Not Quit Under Cloud.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Jan. 10.—Benito Mussolini, a year ago Italy's man of destiny, is now fighting for his political life and the endurance of the ideals which inspired the foundation of Fascism.

Under the cloud of accusations from which he cannot free himself until the slow machinery of the law has ground out the last details in the trial of Deputy Matteotti's murderers, he is using every means in his command to keep off the hostility of the growing opposition which sees in the time still intervening before the Matteotti process an opportunity to hurl him from his high position into political oblivion.

If this undoubtedly capable man clears himself of personal responsibility for the crimes charged against his party, he will silence a large portion of the opposition and consolidate his position until he appeals to the country in the new elections. If he does not clear himself then the senate, and eventually the king, must decide what action to take against the country's premier. These elections cannot be held before November, and it is entirely probable that they won't be held until the spring of 1926.

Think He Should Quit Now.

The opposition feels that it is strong enough to rest its case on the outcome of the trial, but it believes that Sig. Mussolini, under this cloud of accusations, should lay aside his power until he is cleared. Sig. Mussolini, from his almost unassailable position of dictator, in fact if not in name, refuses to retire under a cloud.

The men accused of the murder of Sig. Matteotti cannot be brought to trial for at least six weeks and in the meanwhile, the opposition is trying the Fascist party and Sig. Mussolini out of court, and a summary of the arguments for and against the Fascist leader would not be uninteresting.

Here is the case for Sig. Mussolini:

ONE—As the Fascist leader he is called the savior of Italy from communism.

TWO—He is credited with having restored internal order and given direction to the internal policies of the government, in contrast to what his supporters call the opportunist policies of previous governments.

THREE—He has inaugurated (by his opponents called imperialist) foreign policy.

Stops Unemployment.

FOUR—He is credited with having stabilized Italian exchange, inaugurated an era of prosperity, put Italian industry on a firm basis, and done away with unemployment.

FIVE—He has increased and collected taxes and reduced the cost of the government.

SIX—He settled the long and outstanding question of Fiume in Italy's favor and concluded treaties of friendship with Jugo-Slavia and Switzerland and commercial treaties with seventeen nations.

Here is the case against the Fascisti leader:

ONE—He is accused of knowledge of and complicity in the Fascisti terrorism and murders.

TWO—His party, and he as the leader, is accused of intimidation at elections, silencing the opposition by violence, setting aside the law to advance party interests, arresting innocent men for political activities, exiling opposition leaders, muzzling the press, inspiring attacks and arson against newspapers, and destroying the rights of free speech.

THREE—He is accused of maintaining a personal and party army at the expense of the government.

Seven Parties Oppose Him.

Lined up with Sig. Mussolini in the fight at the present time are only the Fascisti, composed of the youth of the country; many former soldiers, big land owners not belonging to the aristocracy who employ farm labor, and a portion of the great industrialists. His own following, according to an analysis of his oyn speeches and the estimates of the opposition's most able leaders, is 15 per cent of the country's voters.

Today the following parties are lined up against Sig. Mussolini, in the order of their relative strength and importance:

ONE—The Liberals, Italy's old conservative group, the historical party which made Italy an independent kingdom and which draws its support from the landed aristocracy, a great group of small land owners, tenant farmers, and a small portion of the agricultural proletariat.

TWO—The Democrats, professional men, shopkeepers, bureaucrats, and a portion of the intellectuals.

THREE—The Socialist Labor party, Socialists who have withdrawn their opposition to the throne and whose aims are within the constitution. This party is composed of the bulk of the industrial proletariat, a part of the agricultural proletariat, and some intellectuals.

FOUR—The Populists, the united Catholic forces of the country, the clergy, etc.

FIVE—The Maximalist Socialists or Marxians, adhering to the second internationale and composed of a portion of the industrial proletariat which is out and out for a Socialist republic.

SIX—The communists, a small group of the industrial and agricultural proletariat, with a thin sprinkling of intellectuals.

SEVEN—The Republicans, a still smaller group composed of those elements of all classes, except the Socialists and communists, who desire the abolition of the crown.

Little Possibility of Revolt.

Sig. Mussolini's harsh measures inaugurated in the last few days have evidently silenced the opposition's guns and brought an impasse which must remain until the legal forces of the country have finished with the men accused of killing the Socialist deputy and leader of the Socialist opposition.

There is little possibility of a revolution in Italy. The opposition does not desire it and it is not equipped or armed for such an event. King Victor Emmanuel, who controls the army today as he probably never before controlled it, holds the key to the situation, for the army is the only force that could overcome the militant Fascism.

SANITARY ENGINEER TELLS OF CITY'S PERIL

E. J. Kelly, chief engineer of the sanitary district, speaking yesterday at greatest town meeting in city's history. Mr. Kelly compared present danger if the Chicago river's intake is cut to olden days, when the river caught fire and chickens walked across its thick scum. Citizens had to strain water for domestic use to remove worms and insects. Nearly 2,000 citizens attended yesterday's overflow meeting in the city council chambers, and resolutions to meet the sanitation crisis were adopted. These included appeals for present and permanent relief to Secretary of War Weeks, the congress, and the Illinois general assembly. Dozens of civic organizations pledged aid in the crisis.

JAPAN'S ENVOYS TOLD TO FIGHT ARMS PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 10.—It is learned in London that Japanese representatives abroad have been instructed shortly to place before the governments to which they are accredited Tokio's view on the proposed disarmament conference.

The Japanese government is opposed to a conference because any disarmament arrangements which it might arrive at would be prejudicial to Japan, which has two potential enemies, the United States and Russia.

Russia is not likely to become a member of the league of nations or consent to any disarmament agreement for many years to come, and the United States also is not likely to join the league. Japan, therefore, believes it would be madness for it to agree to disarm on terms which might be suitable for the European powers.

OFFERS BILL TO CUT RED TAPE IN TRAVEL ABROAD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—A bill designed to do away with the expense and inconvenience to which every traveler abroad, either for business or pleasure, has been subjected to since the war in the matter of securing vises to their passports, was introduced in the house today by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.].

The bill authorizes the President to waive vises altogether, or to reduce or waive vise fees including the application fee, in the cases of nonimmigrant aliens desiring to visit the United States for a period not to exceed one year, provided "like treatment is accorded by the governments of the countries from which such aliens come to American nations, visiting such countries temporarily under similar conditions."

Mr. Fish will ask an immediate hearing on the bill before the foreign affairs committee of which he is a member, and endeavor to have it passed at the present session.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 10.—Termination of the contract of Cecil B. De Mille with the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, of which he was director general, was announced at the studio today.

27,000,000 ARE NOT ENROLLED IN SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Twenty-seven million American boys and girls don't go to Sunday school, according to a report on the general Sunday school situation just completed by the Rev. Clarence H. Benson, head of the religious education department of the Moody Bible institute.

The Protestant churches, he says, are failing to reach two-thirds of their youthful constituency, and are not doing all they might for the remaining third.

"All of our desperate criminals of today are under 22," the report says. "Juvenile courts, a modern innovation, last year heard the cases of 200,000 delinquent boys and girls. Why this juvenile crime wave? Why these juvenile courts?

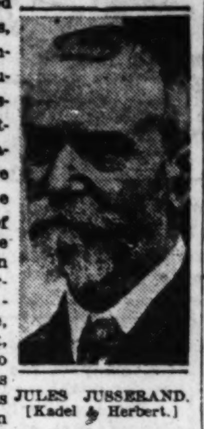
"The state is providing 1,000 hours a year for the study of arithmetic, history, and geography. The Protestant church provides only seventeen hours for study of the Bible, and is reaching but one-third of its constituency at that."

Griffith Sells New York Studios for $700,000

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Jan. 10.—David W. Griffith, motion picture producer, has sold for $700,000 his studios and 32 acre estate here to E. W. Hammons of New Rochelle, who plans to develop the property into a residential district.

Washington Bids Farewell to Veteran Jules Jusserand

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.



JULES JUSSERAND.
[Kadel & Herbert.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—It required two large banquet halls, a hundred and fifty tables, five cabinet ministers, four Supreme court justices, fifteen United States senators, twenty-five members of the house, officers of all arms of the service, and men and women internationally eminent in science, literature, art, and education to effect tonight this nation's good-bys to Jean Adrian Antoine Jules Jusserand, for two and twenty years "the voice of France" to a hundred million Americans.

The dean of the diplomatic corps, ambassador from France during five administrations, and best beloved Frenchman on these shores since Lafayette, is going home after half a century's service to his government, and our people wanted him to go home with happy thoughts of them, though tonight they are far from happy in their realization that this is his last formal appearance before them.

Doesn't Forget Ushers.

The humblest doormen and ushers over in the caverns of the state department were not happy in these last days when Jusserand, making his farewells to high officials, also remembered to say courtly adieux to the men, white and black, who for two decades have ushered him through these corridors.

Somebody asked the ambassador not along ago about the report—or rumor, rather—of the real estate he was said to have acquired in Washington and did he intend to part with it?

"All that I have acquired in Washington," replied the dean, "is friendships, and I shall never part with them."

Since he first came among us fifteen American universities have honored him with degrees, dozens of learned societies have taken him into membership.

Tonight's festival is the culmination of the good man's leave takings and its spirit is so spontaneous and so affectionate that it is not surprising that the dean has been touched to tears.

Nearly a thousand friends sat before him. Banners of the two countries, standards of the Pan American league, of the D. A. R. and of the Boy Scouts of America, with its motto, "Do a good turn daily"—which might be Jusserand's motto—hung above his head, and bushels of flowers were strewn around him. The 150 tables were each sentineled with a dozen little French and American flags and the effect of that as one looked down the vista of the two halls was as of an army of Lilliputians marching with banners before him.

Coolidge Sends Word.

President Coolidge sent to the banquet his farewell to "a delightful friend and an honorable and upright man." Former President Taft, who once declared Jusserand to be "as much a part of Washington life as the capitol or the Washington monument," bade goodby to "dear friend and neighbor." Secretary Hughes acclaimed him, also by letter, "not only for what he has done but what he is—loyal, devoted, sincere, the broad visioned friend of America, radiating good will."

Maj. Gen. LeJeune, commanding the marine corps, presented a gold medal "as a symbol of the affection of the citizens of Washington," and an engrossed parchment. Speaker of the House Gillett presided and paid tribute and Justice Sanford of the Supreme court and Hiram Bingham, the new senator from Conecticut, made addresses in the affectionate strain which has been the keynote of all the farewells to Jusserand.

YANK PLANES WING WAY OVER CRADLE OF MAN

Cruisers Visit Land of Arabian Nights.

Yesterday's installment of the story of the American air circuit of the globe, as recounted by Mr. Thomas, told of the stop of the army airmen at Karachi, India, in preparation for the flight across wild Baluchistan mountains and the Arabian desert. Today's chapter relates the adventure over those lands of antiquity.

BY LOWELL THOMAS.

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate and the McClure Newspapers Syndicate.]

SECTION L.

What could be more romantic and adventurous than flying in an airplane across Persia to Bagdad? All the way from Kamchatka and the Kurile islands to the minarets of Stamboul on the Golden Horn the American world flyers were winging their way over countries, cities, and rivers the mere mention of whose names makes one realize what a fascinating and marvelous experience it was to look down upon them from the clouds in the course of man's first aerial circumnavigation of the globe.

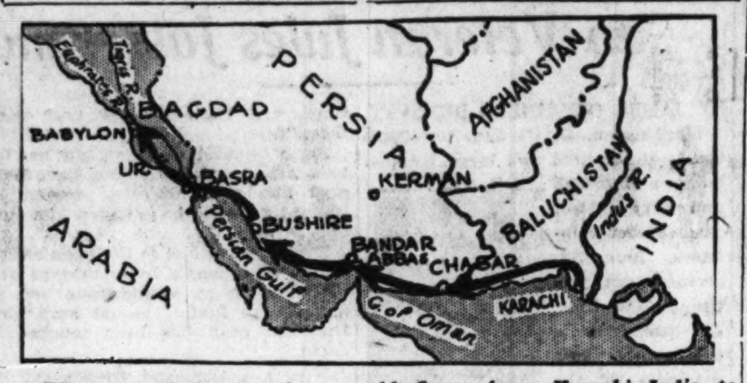
In "The Arabian Nights" there is a fantastic tale of a Persian prince who rescued his princess with the aid of a magic horse. By mounting this mysterious charger and turning a wooden plug the horse instantly was transformed from an inanimate object to a neighing, prancing winged Pegasus that carried its rider wherever he expressed the wish to go.

Fact Outdoes Fancy.

That story originated in the brain of a Persian writer long centuries ago. His name is unknown to us. But whoever he was and whether he was versed in the mysteries of the alchemy, astrology, and black magic of the east and read the future through a crystal glass or not, like Jules Verne, his wildest dream has come true. His magic horse has been reproduced even to the self-starter corresponding to the wooden plug in the shoulder of that mythical flying steed.

After their morning flight from Karachi across the nightmare badlands of southern Baluchistan to Persia the flyers only stopped in Chabar long enough to take on a fresh supply of fuel. The English consul, who had consented to act as agent for the American airmen at this remote port on the Gulf of Oman, had arranged a supply of gas and oil for them in a tent, right out on the landing field, and had also hired a gang of coolies to help refuel.

AT HISTORY'S FOUNTAINHEAD



The route of the American world flyers from Karachi, India, to Bagdad. Karachi was left on July 7 and Bagdad reached the following day, following a flight over desolate Persian wildernesses and lands teeming with the evidences of antiquity.

Moreover, he had refreshments waiting for them at his bungalow. But the boys were so anxious to push right on to Bandar Abbas that the consul had his wife and servants served the lunch in the tent beside the planes.

Over Persian Mountains.

"At 2:30," says Jack Harding, "we took off again and flew for four solid hours over more of that rugged, uninhabited Persian coastal region. Beneath us were barren cathedrallike rocks and cañons more desolate than any in Arizona.

"Away off to the north in the direction of Kirman and Seistan, where nomad tribesmen weave Persia's most exquisite rugs, a desert mirage followed us most of the way to Bandar Abbas. It was the first time that I had ever seen a mirage. Instead of resembling water it looked more like a lake of quicksilver to me. When I half closed my eyes I could imagine I was seeing almost anything from palm trees and camel caravans to ships at sea or the minarets of an oriental city.

750 Miles in One Day.

"It was 6:30 on the afternoon of July 7 when we arrived over the landing field at Bandar Abbas. We had started at 6:30 in the morning, and with the exception of two hours we had spent refueling at Chabar we had flown continuously. We had traveled a distance of approximately 750 miles, all the way from Karachi, India, across Baluchistan, and nearly half way across Persia. This is the land of the camel caravan, and to cover that same distance by caravan would take over a month! We had made it in just ten hours.

"Although not a large city, Bandar Abbas, with the exception of Bushire, is the chief port of Persia. It is situated on the Strait of Ormuz, which connects the Gulf of Oman with the Persian gulf. The principal inland city which it serves is Kirman. Caravans laden with carpets, grain, tobacco, and cotton come in to Bandar Abbas every day.

"The only white people there are the few attached to the English and French consulates. The former put us up for the night in his home eight miles from the town, which really looked more like a fortress than a house, and was surrounded by high walls.

"We were warned to stay away from the natives of Bandar Abbas as much as possible, because there was a cholera plague raging at the time. In fact, many of the native inhabitants had fled to the mountains to escape it.

"There was only one motor car in all that part of Persia. It was a wheezy flivver of pre-war vintage that created a lot of amusement as well as no end of excitement, because no one was ever quite sure when it would start, or when it would stop. In order to start it you had to get a crowd of coolies to push it.

"Then to bring it to a full stop you had to jump out, run ahead with a plank and block the wheels. Not even the alchemists, astrologers, and other wise men of the east could find out what was wrong with that cantankerous flivver. The British consul claimed that a Persian sorcerer had bewitched it.

"That night the few white people in Bandar Abbas dined with us at the British consulate. The hit of the evening was the consul's little ice machine. Sad to relate, it was only big enough to make ice for just one round of drinks, and then for the rest of the evening everything had to be cooled by evaporation, just as it was done thousands of years ago.

"Three of us slept in one house and three in another. Ogden, who happened to be bunking near me, woke up in the middle of the night with an uncontrollable thirst. He tried to go back to sleep, but his throat was too parched. So he got up and went prowling about in the dark. Finally, in the courtyard, he bumped into the wall of a well, and in feeling around discovered a thatch-roofed little structure where the earthen jars used in evaporating the water were kept. The rest of that night he spent in this hut, sleeping and drinking intermittently.

Off on Early Start.

"At 3:30 we were up and on our way to the planes. The supply of gasoline had been sent here in two gallon tins, and when you remember that we had to pour between 300 and 400 gallons in each plane, you can imagine what a long job it was. But we lined up the coolies like a fire bucket brigade, and got through in time to get away at 5:30. Then we made a fast flight along the Persian gulf to Bushire, arriving there at 9:30 a. m.

"Most of the other airmen who have passed down this coast, including Poulet, the Frenchman who flew from Paris to the Dutch East Indies, and Ross Smith, Mathews, and Parer, all of England to Australia flight fame, had encountered severe sand storms between Bandar Abbas and Bushire.

"Fortunately we were not troubled by these storms, and saw nothing but wild, forbidding looking country on our right, mirages along the horizon to the north, and to our left the waters of the Persian gulf, where the galleys of Cyrus, Sargon, Hammurabi, and Nebuchadnezzar used to ply back and forth.

Over Terrible Country.

"If anything the country we passed over between Bundar Abbas and Bushire was the most vicious and inhospitable we had seen. As Sir Ross Smith said after he had passed this way, it 'appears as if a mighty harrow had torn down the mountain sides into abysmal furrows. Fantastically shaped ridges and razorbacks rise precipitously from deep valleys barren of vegetation and desolate of life.'

"Midway between Bushire and Bagdad we left the desert and came out over the delta of the Shatt-el-Arab, the wide river formed by the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates. While flying near here we looked down and saw the flat roofed houses, bee hive bazaars, caravanseries, wharfs, and palm groves of Basra, the port of entry to Mesopotamia.

"During the world war Basra was the main British base in this part of the east.

"This was another part of our journey that was exceptionally rich in historical associations. We were looking right down upon the very region between the Tigris and Euphrates which tradition tells us was the Garden of Eden.

"As we flew on toward Bagdad we occasionally saw ridges and bumps in the sand, and we imagined they were indications of buried cities of the past. We all realized that we were actually looking down on what was once the most densely populated part of the earth.

Look Down on Babylon.

"About an hour south of Bagdad our maps indicated to us that we were directly above the most famous city of the ancient world, a city whose name has come down through the ages for 5,000 years and is still familiar to every American school child, the city where Nebuchadnezzar carried off the Children of Israel into captivity and where the prophet Daniel had his adventure in the lions' den shortly before he translated the handwriting on the wall at Belshazzar's feast. This city that we were looking down upon was none other than ancient Babylon.

"As we flew along, before my mind's eye there came a picture of this metropolis of the early days of human civilization, about the time when the curtain of history was raised to reveal a mighty city fifteen to twenty miles square, with hanging gardens and luxurious palaces, with its great pyramid forming a lofty pedestal for a forty foot golden image of the god Baal, with its wall a hundred feet high, the wall that was pierced by a hundred gates of brass and that was wide enough for four horse chariots to dash along the top. And I couldn't help but wonder just how long it will be until New York, Chicago, London, Paris, and all the other great cities of our day will have vanished into the dust just as Babylon has done.

"It was just 5:50 when we landed on the British aerodrome near Bagdad. At last we had reached the city of Arabian Nights fame, the home of the illustrious caliph, Haroun-al-Raschid, and the home of both Aladdin and of Sinbad the Sailor."

KANSAS TO SIFT BRIBE CHARGES AGAINST DAVIS

Governor in Denial as Others Accuse Him.

BULLETIN.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 11, 3 a. m.—[Special.]—The Sunday edition of the Kansas City Journal-Post, in a copyrighted article, states that the imminent arrest of Gov. Jonathan M. Davis of Kansas and his son, Russell G. Davis, is indicated by Tinkham Veale, Shawnee county attorney, of which Topeka, the state capital, is the county seat. County Attorney Veale, the Journal-Post states, indicated he will issue warrants for the arrest of the Davises on bribe charges.

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 10.—[By the Associated Press.]—Talk of a legislative canvass of the pardon and parole records was crystallizing among Kansas legislators tonight as they gathered here for the opening of the 1925 legislature next Tuesday.

In the wake of the disclosure of an alleged payment of money to Russell Davis, son of Gov. Jonathan M. Davis, for the delivery of a pardon, there came increasing reports today of other alleged irregularities.

Charges Come to Light.

Half a dozen accusations have come to the attorney general's office within the last two weeks, declared Attorney General C. B. Griffith. Investigation by his department has been going forward, Mr. Griffith stated.

In his first statement since his involvement in an alleged deal in which he was said to have received $1,250 for delivering a pardon, Russell Davis declared his father had known nothing of the affair.

The statement follows:

"In regard to the Pollman pardon, I have no statement to make other than my father knew nothing about my conversation that I had with Pollman down on our farm, in Kansas City, or in the National hotel yesterday, until I told him about it at about 6:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

"On his and my mother's account I regret being so foolish as to be led into such a trap as was set for me.

"RUSSELL DAVIS."

Gov. Davis issued a statement to the people of the state, reiterating his avowal of his own innocence in the matter and attributing to his son's "unsophisticated nature," his falling into "indiscreet acts."

The governor has never denied that his son accepted money.

No Funds; Denied Pardon.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 10.—[By the Associated Press.]—Glenn A. Davis, tailor instructor at the Hutchinson, Kas., reformatory, relates in an affidavit made public by the Kansas City Journal-Post here tonight that Gov. Jonathan M. Davis of Kansas refused his request for a pardon from the Kansas state penitentiary after he had rejected a request of the governor for money.

The affidavit states also that Davis, who is at liberty on parole after having served part of a sentence for murder, acted as the governor's agent in an attempt to collect a $1,250 bribe from Fred W. Pollman, who sought a pardon from the governor. Pollman was at liberty on parole. He was convicted of forgery in connection with the failure of the La Cygne, Kas., bank.

"The governor told me to advise Pollman to employ 'one of my agents,' if he wanted anything done, the affidavit stated. I asked him who his agents were and how much money it would take. He told me if Pollman would take about $1,250 down to his farm and employ his boy, that he would get what he wanted, as he paid a great deal of attention to what his boy said. He also said that if Pollman did this he might look at my case in a different light."

DISAPPEARS

ISAAC REESE.

A man believed to be Isaac Reese, 38 years old, 725 Sheridan road, a hotel clerk, committed suicide yesterday by leaping into the lake at Waveland avenue. The body has not yet been recovered.

Laborers working along the lake saw the man dart past them, leap on a mass of ice, then disappear. The Lincoln park police were notified. A few moments later a woman entered their station.

"I'm Mrs. Isaac Reese, and my husband left a note for me that he was going to end it all by jumping into the lake," she told the captain. She told the police her husband had been despondent for several weeks because of ill health.

CRIME FIVE YEARS AFTER.

Five years ago THE TRIBUNE in an editorial, "Crime Must Get Out," presented to its readers the problem of crime as the major issue before this community. The Chicago crime commission had recently been created by the Association of Commerce and under the directorship of Henry Barrett Chamberlin had begun the extremely important work it is still carrying on. At the same time Ald. Guernsey, Maypole, and Steffen, with the support of some other members of the council, had taken up the question of police efficiency and crime conditions, and THE TRIBUNE, asking public appreciation of their courage and public spirit, pledged its support to every agency committed to the task of freeing the city from crime and announced its purpose to "agitate for crime suppression until the great mass of the people is solidly welded together for law and order, instead of remaining a loose and unorganized citizenry at the mercy of systematized outlawry."

That task, as is sadly apparent today, is far from completed. In the frequent recurrence of sensational crime or some flagrant defeat of justice it seems to us that no ground has been gained. We never expected anything but a long and bitter struggle and certainly progress toward success has been slow. Yet we think there has been and is progress. The public, not only in Chicago but perhaps generally throughout the United States, has begun to show a realization of the gravity of the crime situation. Leading men have awakened to the problem and have begun to emphasize it as an issue, even an overshadowing issue, of American society. A conspicuous example is William Jennings Bryan's recent pronouncement and we count it as especially significant and encouraging, not merely because of Mr. Bryan's influence, but because he is a representative of a class of moral and religious leaders whose presence in the fight against crimes of violence has been strangely lacking up to this time. They are active in efforts to deal with that phase of crime which is called vice, and there is no question that this phase must be frankly faced and vigorously fought. But they have been so preoccupied with this problem and with the effort to enforce prohibition regulations and regulations against gambling or other moral disciplines of the law that they have ignored what is a greater evil, the more sinister and deadly prevalence of murder, rape, and other crimes of violence which give the United States a record of criminality not only unequaled but even unapproached among civilized peoples. For example, the review of the year's activities and accomplishments of the Chicago Church federation makes no mention whatever of this terrific phenomenon of American life, although we find a declaration against war, a world court Sunday, a world court week, and a "register and vote" campaign cited among the events of the year.

In our opinion one of the outstanding reasons for the lack of prompt and effectual dealing with the problem of crime is this astonishing indifference of the churches and reform organizations to its major aspect, crimes of violence. They and the public have, after all, only a given amount of moral energy, of time and strength and means, and so long as they stay out of this fight and expend themselves upon campaigns against lesser moral irregularities and upon attempts to enforce sumptuary regulations, the struggle to overcome organized criminal violence and to check the tendency to take life on almost any sensual impulse must be foredoomed to failure.

Among the clergy here and there a clear seeing man speaks out against the great evil, as Dr. John Thompson did the other day, but this is as a voice crying in the wilderness, while we have repeated pronouncement, propaganda, and organization by churches, church federations, and individual clergymen on behalf of the enforcement of moral regulations, the abolition of war, the saving of the world. It seems to us that it is futile to demand or expect the enforcement of moral regulations of habit while the law against murder is unenforceable to an extent unknown elsewhere in Christendom. It seems to us futile to declare for the abolition of war throughout the world while we ignore the scandalous war upon life in our own household.

There is war, war here at home upon human life, and we shall not abolish it by crying peace, peace to the world. Our Chicago record is little short a murder a day. The nation has a murder record so high that our nearest rival has only half as many homicides per capita as we have. Dr. Hoffman, a leading student of the subject, says "the evidence is incontrovertible that we are slowly drifting toward a degree of acquiescence in crime and criminal traits which if not sternly dealt with will permeate every strata of our American society." A point has been reached in our national life where no one is safe anywhere at any time. Murders are committed with fiendish cruelty and often with superhuman ingenuity which baffle the authorities and defeat the ends of justice.

Murder has become, in fact, a deliberate, accepted resource in some phases of labor organization. Professional criminals have developed talents for organization to perpetrate crime and to escape apprehension, trial, or punishment which in many cases are more efficient than the means, methods, and instrumentalities of the law. They have evolved relations with politics which influence and defeat justice at every turn. Organized crime with violence, in short, has become a problem of government and basic social control which is the most serious and difficult with which our self-governing nation has to deal.

Meanwhile, as Dr. Hoffman points out and as repeated sensational crimes of passion ought to [illegible] we are revealing an acquiescence in the lawless resort to violence which is permeating all strata of our society, and, as was recently said in an address to newspaper men, "there has developed a habit of using homicide as a settlement of financial, personal, and conjugal differences which certainly has not been seen since the days of the Italian renaissance."

Confronting this really appalling development, and as an inevitable consequence of public indifference and the diversion of moral and religious agencies to far less serious reforms, we have a system of police and an administration of the laws against felonies shot through with fatal weaknesses and perverting influences. Justice is halting, uncertain, inadequate. It is perpetually evaded and outraged by the skilled technique of organized criminality or made helpless by the extraordinary abuses of humanitarian sentiment, by a false complaisance toward crimes of sex passion when committed by women, by a complete disregard of the innocent victims of crime, by a bewildering transposition of sympathy from victim to the offender caught in the toils of justice.

It is evident that if the growth of crime is not stopped it will sooner or later destroy our civilization.

The immediate need is for leadership against it. Our present officeholders either profit by it or ignore it. Our reform organizations avoid the issue and appear to resent its being obtruded upon their claim to the limelight. For them "Thou shalt not kill" is a dead letter.

It may require an entirely new leadership to lead us out of this wilderness.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE SAYS NO TO THE NAVY.

President Coolidge has made known his definite and final opposition to the elevation of guns on American battleships to give them their maximum range. Readers of this page are probably familiar with the essence of the issue. It is to give the American ships a range which would make them in fact what they are supposed to be in the treaty, the equals of the British ships.

It may be unfortunate that the elevation would do more. It would transfer superiority of range from the British to the American. Secretary Hughes says that the treaty permits the change. Japan consents to it. It is understood that Japan already is availing itself of the privilege. It is further understood that the British already have attained their highest elevation.

Mr. Coolidge takes the position that an increase in the range of American guns would be in spirit a return to competition and that the spirit of the treaty must govern if it is to accomplish its purpose. Many American supporters of the President will regret that he should come to this decision.

The spirit of the treaty is equality in strength in the naval relations of Great Britain and the United States. The hope of peace was based on that and our concession to it was the destruction of the mightiest ships on the seas, surely a great testimonial of purpose.

If the treaty permits, as it does, a change in gun range it does not seem to us that it is out of the question for the American ships to have a superiority which the British ships now have. We cannot imagine such a consideration penetrating British consciousness, that it was morally wrong for them to have an advantage which was not contrary to agreement. It is beyond reason that they would reproach themselves if they took it. They would not even faintly understand why they should not.

Probably no government but an American would say that it was fair under a treaty of equality for the other side to have a permitted advantage but unfair for America to have it. The opportunity lies in our hand, the advantage lies in the British hand and what they have is wrong for us to take. That could be justified only on the highest grounds of secret diplomacy, in exchange for a consideration of which the public is not informed, a consideration outweighing in the mind of the administration any benefit which could result otherwise and one not mentioned in the discussion. We can only hope that there is this consideration, although if it were stated we doubt that it would appear worth the price we pay for it.

The President also mentions economy, but it is difficult to admit this into serious discussion. We spend nearly $300,000,000 a year on the navy department. The appropriation asked by Congressman Britten for gun elevation was $6,500,000, one drop in the navy bucket but the drop which would change thirteen ships, which were costly to build and are costly to maintain, into the first instead of the second ships of the world's navies. It does not seem real economy not to put a few sound shingles on an expensive but leaky roof.

The spirit of the treaty is equality. It does not prevail. If we had to go back on our word to increase the power of the ships it would be different. Even then we might say that we were deceived into an agreement which did not give the results intended and that the deception had vitiated the contract. But the opposition would be stronger if there were a prohibition. Our state department says there is none. It is a matter of policy and the administration policy makes a sacrifice which we trust will never be as serious in event as it is in possibility.

RAILROAD PROGRESS.

In its issue of New Year's day THE TRIBUNE published in its advertising columns a statement by Mr. Markham, the able and progressive president of the Illinois Central railroad system. Mr. Markham says that the railroads have been encouraged by the last two years of operation under the Esch-Cummins transportation act to expend more than $2,300,000,000, and that they interpret the election of Mr. Coolidge as, among other things, a mark of confidence in the railroads as operated under this act.

We think the inference is fair, inasmuch as Mr. Coolidge openly opposed the repeal of the transportation act and the third party which demanded its repeal was decisively defeated.

The result in this field is important, as indicated by the statement by Mr. Markham that the railroads will now proceed to spend in the coming year over a billion dollars in further improvement of their facilities. Any one who realizes how widespread throughout industry such expenditures by the railroads are will understand that this means a strong tonic, beneficial immediately in a wide range of industries, to labor and to invested capital.

But there is a more important and far reaching benefit assured by wise railroad expenditure. There is hardly anything more important to the economic health of the nation or the prosperity of all its people than efficient transportation, and that necessarily means progressive transportation. This country is growing rapidly in population and more rapidly in wealth production. Therefore the railroads must keep pace with multiplying needs, must constantly better their facilities, and if they do not the whole country will suffer.

At the present time the railroads have brought their efficiency up to a high level, but they must keep going forward with the growth of the nation. With hard roads and motor trucks, the development of hydro-electric power production, and the realization of the lakes to the gulf and Atlantic seaways, our transportation facilities are going to be greatly increased, but the railway systems of the country will continue to be the main reliance of the country and if restrictive measures are imposed upon their energetic expansion and improvement the restriction will not be confined to the railroads, but will pass quickly to the nation's business and be felt directly and indirectly by our people in every section and every walk of life. We have now a system of regulation which protects the public effectively from serious abuse of power in railway operation so far as management is concerned. The transportation act provides a moderate plan for insuring consideration of the public's interest in controversies between the companies and their employés. It also gives some assurance to capital that a fair return upon actual investment will be permitted. Consolidation into more efficient systems is to be encouraged, if not compelled. Finally the public has responded to the railroads' appeal for fair play and to their effort to improve facilities with a more friendly attitude toward railroad needs.

In short, the prospect of stabilizing the railway situation and developing a constructive national policy of railway development is brighter than it has been for a generation and, while all is by no means clear sailing, railroad management—provided it is conscious of its public responsibilities and wide awake to meet and improve changing conditions—has reason to look with a new confidence into the future.

PERILS OF WASHINGTON.

Washington has one advantage for the United States in being its capital. The climate is an opiate. Spring and autumn are delightful, the summer deadening, and the winters not stinging. It is a place for lotus eaters. What congress can do for the good of the nation is small beside the damage it might do. Energy is not desired in a congressman.

Lloyd George once said that if the seat of British government had been in Yorkshire, instead of parts of Middlesex, Kent, and Surrey, the English, instead of having a revolution every two or three hundred years, would have one every two or three years.

Opium instead of ozone is a good political element in the climate of a capital. If it were in Minnesota instead of the District of Columbia, Magnus Johnson might be running the government. Aside from climate Washington is a total loss.

It was laid out when there wasn't any west, and to it there never has been. Western representatives go to Washington. Each one is met and a rose is pinned on him. Then a lily is put in his hands and for the rest of his term he looks natural.

He may well ask where is the sting in death. He has a good time. His horizons contract. His quarters are comfortable. He isn't expected to have any ideas. He knows it would be in shocking bad taste if he had. He has joined a club and he learns not to have shocking bad manners. If he has, he will not be permitted to play golf and his wife will see to it that for her sake alone he does not put his foot in it.

If he has any information he gets it from a Washington or New York newspaper. In the one he has reflected the diplomatic cleverness of the foreign establishments, generally with Great Britain predominating. In the latter he finds the social note of England, that blessed isle to which all good New Yorkers go when they die. It isn't Paris. They go there while they are alive.

Every good seaboard colonial is buried in Westminister, and our westerner, every time he smells his lily, decides that he had better kick in again for the upkeep of Sulgrave Manor.

Better move the capital. We'd not ask that it be taken to Chicago or Duluth. That might be too dangerous. A lot of lean men might be tearing at the foundations of government in a few years. St. Louis, yes, or Kansas City.

We'd most highly recommend Grand Haven, across the lake from us, on the pleasant eastern shore, the Riviera of these parts, where flowers and fruits abound and where in winter the wind is tempered by the waters. If not that, then even Los Angeles. Congress probably could sleep just as well out there, but before it went to sleep it would elevate the guns on the battleships in order to sleep undisturbed.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

The days have taken a leap out of darkness as the sun comes on back north from his winter solstice and his farthest south. Twilight has been reborn in the evening sky. From the white light over snow on western fields to scarlet flames to purple curtains. The white narcissus which was a star for Christmas has faded out. There is a thawing roof and dripping icicles from the eaves. The snow packs and a mild day paints a mirage of violet banks and budding thorn for an instant before the purple curtains fall. Behind them is the song of a lark unsung but heard, beyond snowdrifts yet to come and storms yet to fill the firs with white.

Winter has but started to unroll his bolt of goods, but illusion seeks a slope, otherwise white, with the bloom of trilliums.

REFORESTATION IN AMERICA.

[The Winnipeg Tribune.]

Twelve states in the American Union prohibited hunting during the fall of 1924. The object of this action was twofold—to reduce the forest fire hazard, and to protect the game. But the prevention of forest fires was the foremost aim of the prohibition.

This is indicative of the trend of events in regard to forest conservation in the United States. The nation has become aware of the fact that forests are within measurable distance of exhaustion, and that unless prompt and adequate steps are taken to replace the timber which has been cut or burned at such a prodigal rate during recent years, there will soon be none to be had.

A recent report shows that conservation and reforestation are much farther advanced in the United States than in Canada. While four times as much timber is cut each year than is reproduced, the work of reforestation has got a good start. There are now 160,000,000 acres of national forests. States have extensive woodland. New York has 2,000,000 acres of state forests, and Pennsylvania 1,000,000 acres, with other states following in line. Even the cities are beginning to acquire their own forests. Fitchburg, Mass., and Rochester, Gloversville and Glen Falls, N. Y., have their city forests.

Reforestation has begun in Canada, but not on a scale yet where it begins to offset the annual consumption and destruction. It seems incredible that, with the depletion going on at the rate it is in this Dominion, and with the facts in the possession of all, no great nation wide effort has been made to begin reforestation on a grand scale.

FRESH AIR SLEEPING.

THERE is an art of sleeping in comfort in fresh air in winter. Unless the art is learned and practiced, people will stick to warm places. There may be greater danger of pneumonia, consumption, meningitis, measles, and colds if one sleeps in an overheated, close, ill-ventilated room, but who cares if the alternative is discomfort? Discomfort is here now and the danger does not make itself manifest until tomorrow, or next week, or next year.

Dr. S. A. Knoff tells us that close fitting garments are necessary. The old-fashioned night shirt and the ordinary gown used by females have no place in the equipment of an open air sleeper. The night garment used by children has both legs and feet. The cold weather night garment of the adult should have the same parts. The sleeves should end in mitts, or at least in wrist bands. The head should be covered with a hood made of some warm material. This hood should cover the head and neck snugly and fit close around the face and neck. The nose is liable to get cold. Dr. Knoff prevents this by wearing some absorbent cotton over the bridge and tip of the nose. This is held in position by a small piece of adhesive tape.

When people who wear glasses go out into the open air in very cold weather, especially on windy days, the part of the face touched by the metal of the glasses is apt to get painfully cold. If a little cotton or wool is fastened with adhesive tape so that it prevents the metal from touching the skin, this discomfort can be avoided.

Not only is it necessary that the open air sleeper should have snugly fitting body clothes, but he should make his bed clothing conform to the same principles. The Alaskan sleeping bag is comfortable because it fits the body. No air leaks in through the openings and around the shoulders, and the cover does not work up from the foot of the bed.

To prevent draughts around the shoulders, Dr. Janeway advised the use of two pillows. These pillows fitted together so that a triangular space was left between. The apex of this triangle was at the head of the bed. The sleeper lies with his shoulders between the pillows, toward the base of the triangle and his head on one of the pillows. The pillows stop the drafts around the shoulders fore and aft. They also carry some of the weight of the cover.

To lessen the weight of the cover, Dr. Knoff makes a paper blanket by sewing newspapers together in several layers. This newspaper blanket is placed between the other covers. Paper blankets are on the market.

Dr. Knoff advises going to bed with a hot water bottle. Many hygienists think that is bad advice. When you wake up chilled at about 3 o'clock, a cold water bottle is not a pleasing bedfellow.

DON'T LET CHILD BOSS YOU.

F. P. M. writes:

1. I have a little girl 5 years old. She has had whooping cough all summer, but is better now, but still coughs once in every hour or so. The other morning she coughed up phlegm and a little blood twice that day. Do you think this serious, or is it a result of whooping cough?

2. This same child has had a little spot on her back. It started big as a penny last July and it now covers her whole back. It is red and the skin peels off. This has me worried. She seems to be in good health and eats everything. She eats a lot of candy and things must be sweet or she will not eat.

REPLY.

1. So far as the whooping cough is concerned, that is gone. When the child was having the original disease it contracted ordinary bronchitis and that is holding on. If she is otherwise healthy and strong you need do nothing.

2. I judge this is a patch of tetter or eczema caused by eating the wrong foods. Break her of the candy and the sweet food habit. It is poor judgment to allow a 5 year old child to boss you.

CAUSE OF MILK LEG.

Mrs. E. M. L. writes: Will you please write an article on so-called "milk leg" occurring after childbirth? The cause and the treatment.

REPLY.

As a rule it is due to clot in a vein. In some instances inflamed lymph vessel is responsible. Behind it lies a rather mild infection. The treatment consists in wrapping the leg in warm coverings; keeping it elevated and massaging it carefully.

Later an elastic stocking may be worn. It takes a long time for the leg to return to the normal.

SUBJECT TO QUOTA RESTRICTIONS.

La Grange, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Friend of the People.]—My nephew is an army pilot in another country. He is studying mechanical engineering and the English language. Would he not be exempt from the yearly quota of immigrants if he wanted to come to the United States?

F. N.

Your nephew would not be exempt from the quota by reason of the fact that he is studying mechanical engineering and the English language.

He should make application to the nearest American consul for an immigration visa, which will be given to him at such time as he can be given an allotment under the quota.

HOWARD D. EBEY,
District Directer of Immigration.

GIRL IS OF AGE.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A girl's parents live in Wisconsin and she lives in Illinois, although her father lives in Chicago part of the time. She is also 18 years of age. What rights have the parents over her? She supports herself in every way. Have the parents any right to take a specific sum of money from her?

H. G.

Her parents have no legal rights upon the facts that you state.

MORE CINDERS COMING.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Friend of the People.]—I wonder what can be done to have a sidewalk laid on two lots on Bonfield street on the west side of the street just north of Lyman street? Several people recently fell on account of the uneven condition of the walk. The lots are owned by the city.

MRS. J. M. R.

There is a cinder sidewalk for vacant lots on the west side of Bonfield street just north of Lyman street. A little more cinder filling is necessary to make the walk even, and this will be attended to within a few days.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

THE HUSBAND'S WILL.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 5.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A husband having no children, but leaves a wife, dies leaving only personal property in his estate, and wills all of his estate to his brothers, sisters, nephews, and nieces, and in his will enters a clause as follows: In case I shall be the husband of ...... at the time of my death, it is my will that she shall receive no more of my estate than she shall be entitled to by law.

1. Could this kind of a will be held legal?

2. Under such a will what portion could a wife claim in his estate where there is no children or real estate?

T. A. S.

1. Yes.
2. One-half of the estate, subject to debts.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 11, 1865.

SPRINGFIELD.—The inauguration of Gov. Oglesby has been postponed until next Tuesday owing to the death of one of his children.

JULESBURG, Colo. — Indians attacked the Overland Mail Express three miles west of here and robbed the mail and express. They also attacked a mule train, killing one man and wounding another.

CHICAGO. — "Marching Through Georgia" is the name of a new song in honor of Gen. Sherman's march "from Atlanta to the sea," by Henry C. Work. The subject, treated as it is in Mr. Work's most popular style, will insure for the song a great success, or we are greatly mistaken.

CHICAGO.—Of the proceedings of the Recorder's court we are unable to give any report because the deputy clerk refused to give our reporters access to the papers or minutes. It is, to say the least, a novel idea that the Recorder's court is a close corporation and entirely at variance with the notion we have formed of the records of all courts.

CHICAGO.—Prominent among the many new business blocks erected during the last year in our city is one covering lots 1 and 3, Randolph street, corner of Michigan avenue, a large, commodious structure, six stories in height, with liberal appropriations of vault room under the sidewalks, built for Charles G. Smith, the well known wholesale druggist.

CHICAGO. — Recruiting was dull yesterday and the day before, only twenty men having been secured. The towns, as well as the wards, were inclined to withdraw from the market until such time as prices for recruits shall be reduced. The amounts paid to those who did enlist ranged from $350 to $425.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 11, 1900.

LONDON.—Lieut. Gen. Lord Methuen, commanding the British forces advancing for the relief of Kimberley, is to be relieved of his command and retired, it is reported here. Incapacity due to the strain of the campaign is given as the reason.

SPRINGFIELD.—Gov. Tanner yesterday confirmed the report that he was a candidate for United States senator against Cullom.

WASHINGTON.—Two thousand persons greeted the President and Mrs. McKinley at the first formal reception at the White House this season.

CHICAGO.—Honoré Palmer, son of Potter Palmer, has started out to learn the banking business as a messenger in the Merchants Loan and Trust bank at a salary of $25 a month. His brother, Potter Jr., is said to be seeking employment also. Both are graduates of Harvard.

WASHINGTON.—Miss Cecelia Sherman Miles, daughter of Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army, was married at noon today to her second cousin, Capt. Samuel Reber of the signal corps of the army.

CHICAGO.—"Rubber tires for carettes" is the cry raised by Ald. Goldzier, and the finance committee of the city council has recommended passage of an ordinance providing all omnibuses and carettes be equipped with rubber tires.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 11, 1915.

CHICAGO.—A. A. Sprague, founder and senior member of the wholesale grocery firm of Sprague, Warner & Co., died suddenly last night at his home, 2710 Prairie avenue. Mr. Sprague, who was 79 years old, had attended a concert in the afternoon in the Fine Arts theater.

CHICAGO.—Active work on the White Sox team of 1915 will begin tomorrow when Owner Charles A. Comiskey and his new manager, Clarence Rowland, meet here for their first conference since the latter was announced as leader of the south side team.

CHICAGO.—A real movie drama has been completed by Mrs. Edith Ogden Harrison, wife of Mayor Harrison, and will be produced by Essanay. It is based on her first novel, "The Lady of the Snows."

ST. PAUL.—Marshall P. Wilder, the author and humorist, died at a local hotel today from heart trouble complicated by a slight attack of pneumonia.

WASHINGTON.—More than 100,000 immigrants in Illinois can neither read nor write, according to a report prepared for the United States bureau of education by H. B. Wheaton.

PARIS.—The official statement issued by the ministry of war tonight indicated that the Germans are continuing their offensive movement along the whole western front, but said they have made no gains.

THE CHILDREN ARE GOING BACK TO SCHOOL —THANK GOODNESS!

HE'D WIDEN AUGUSTA STREET.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—I have been a reader of THE TRIBUNE for many years and a few days ago I noticed an editorial suggesting a new boulevard north of the river and south of Chicago avenue.

Now I fail to see just how that could be accomplished owing to the blockade from Crawford avenue west, south of Chicago by the C. & N. W. R. R. Co. Why not make Augusta street a boulevard. It is wider than Ohio street and much longer at least extending west to the Forest preserve, and east to Elston avenue just east of Racine avenue; when the new bridge across the river at Ogden avenue is constructed it could be utilized, then open up a street five-eighths of a mile east, including only one more bridge, and connect with Oak street. This gives a direct route for a boulevard from the lake to the forest preserve, a distance of some eleven miles or more and I suggest offers the easiest and most practical site south of Addison street. It would be a godsend to the west side and as you can readily see would connect with everything going north and south; for those adjacent west of Sacramento boulevard that desire to go northward could turn there—those east of there could go on to Oakley or to Ogden avenue for short cut to Lincoln park. There as you go past the Drake hotel it would be a beautiful curve to the outer drive and the pier, or could turn south at La Salle street.

Augusta street offers the solution in my opinion and should be utilized.

G. W. CLARK.

WHERE TO SEND YOUR RADIO "KICKS."

Chicago, Dec. 29.—I note in your columns recently a growing number of complaints against a so-called "broadcast" station on the south side alleged to be operating under call letters which I do not recall, but commencing with the figure 9. Perhaps I can shed a little light on the affair and direct the complainants to the proper authority, which information a number have requested.

In the first place, this is not a broadcasting station at all. The prefex "9" to the call letters indicates that it is either an amateur station or an experimental station. It is not of the latter class unless the letter X directly follows the 9. The balance of the letters in the call have no meaning, but the first figure and the following letter always indicate the class of station and the district in which it is located.

Complaints in regard to the operation of stations alleged to be causing undue interference, which interference is believed to be willful or malicious, or occurring by reason of improper adjustment of apparatus, may be filed with the United States supervisor of radio, custom house, Chicago, and no other authority, inasmuch as this officer has entire jurisdiction over this district, acting under the department of commerce at Washington.

I trust the above will serve to enlighten the complainants.

HOWARD S. PYLE
Manager WGO, formerly United States Radio Inspector, Department of Commerce.

"AND IN CHICAGO ROTTEN JOURNALISM."

Park Ridge, Ill., Dec. 31.—The paid bunk artists of THE TRIBUNE, euphoniously called correspondents, always manage to overdo their stuff. When their stories of Russia grew grossly inconsistent with each other these were stopped at last amid the laughter of the intelligent portion of the population. The same will happen in the present campaign against prohibition. The effort to prove that prohibition increases crime might be thought to be so inconsistent with common sense that no man would advocate it, but nothing daunts your Mr. Evans. After showing that prohibition is filling the state prisons in formerly wet territory, he shows that an even greater increase has come in Kansas, dry for two generations and really dry all the while, since wet newspapers do not encourage law violations in that state. Is the use or lack of liquor the prime factor in the present crime situation? In some social situations it is. Just now we have an army of four million men disbanded and in our civil population. The like of this is unknown in American history. After every war in history there has been a big increase of crime. While 95 per cent, perhaps 99 per cent, of our soldiers are honored citizens, it is well known that the demoralization due to camp life has wrought havoc with some. The forces that make for crime are war, drink, irreligion, unduly secularized education, and rotten journalism. In Chicago the last named may be counted as very important.

THE WOMAN'S CITY CLUB ON TEACHERS' PAY.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Your editorial of this morning protesting against the proposed action of the finance committee of the board of education in cutting off the customary bonus of eighth grade, manual training, and special teachers of the schools strikes a high note in economic suggestions which should find a response in the mind of every one honestly interested in the children of Chicago. The position of the finance committee, as we all know, is a difficult one, because it is a conscientious group of citizens who wish honestly to spend the taxpayers' money in the best way. But your suggestion that an underpaid teaching force is not an efficient one is too good to be disregarded by the taxpayers of Chicago and their agents, the finance committee of the board of education. The citizens of Chicago should indicate to this committee that they will support it in spending money as well as in its judicious saving of it where the spending is wiser than the saving.

WOMAN'S CITY CLUB,

THE CORRUPTION IN THE LAW TRADE.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Your Sunday's editorial on "Habeas Corpus" brings to my mind another one of your editorials, law and medicine, which throws considerable light on the present situation of crime and law procedure.

Just why is it, Mr. Editor, that of all the professions law is the only one which refuses to adopt adequate steps to purify itself of the crooked elements and of all those antiquated methods of procedure which are wholly inadequate to deal with present day conditions?

To me, at any rate, it does seem as if lawyers deliberately refuse to adopt efficient methods because this would deprive them of a great many opportunities to prey upon their fellow men. Talking about parasites, I am inclined to think that at least half of the lawyers are the worst kind of parasites preying upon humanity; worst, because they not only do not produce anything worth while for the betterment of this world but in addition they debauch our whole social, political, and economic structure.

A LITTLE PROBLEM FOR MEDILLIANS TO ANSWER.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 6.—The news that a radical in Michigan had been sentenced to prison from three to ten years for alleged criticism of the capitalistic system got two and one-half inches on page two of this morning's TRIBUNE.

The news [?] that a TRIBUNE correspondent had been arrested in Italy, [probably for writing things the government there didn't like], and then released a few hours later, drew five inches on the front page of the same paper.

In view of the fact that an inch on the front page is worth from three to ten times an inch on the second page, what is the relative news value of these two items?

This is a problem for Medillians to answer.

Must we "operate" on the editorial department to reach their [editor's] sense of humor?

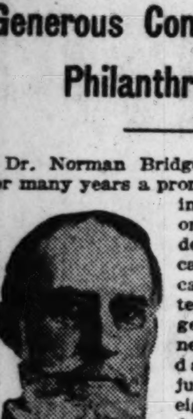
NORMAN BRIDGE, PHYSICIAN AND FINANCIER, DIES

Generous Contributor to Philanthropies.



DR. NORMAN BRIDGE.

Dr. Norman Bridge, formerly and for many years a prominent physician in Chicago and at one time president of the Chicago board of education, died yesterday in Los Angeles after an illness of a few days. He had just passed his eightieth birthday.

In 1892, impelled by a tubercular tendency, he gave us his large practice here, moved to California, regained his his health, and became a wealthy oil developer. He was vice president of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company. During all these years he remained a professor emeritus of medicine of Rush Medical college, where he had received his professional education. He retained a large acquaintance in Chicago and, with Mrs. Bridge, was frequently in this city.

Born in Vermont.

Dr. Bridge was born in Windsor, Vt., Dec. 30, 1844. When he was 12, his family moved to DeKalb, Ill. Between 1866 and 1867 he attended the University of Michigan. He was graduated from the Chicago Medical college in 1868 and from Rush Medical college in 1878. Until his departure for the west he was a member of the faculty of the latter school.

In May, 1874, he married Miss May Manford of Chicago.

Dr. Bridge was widely known as a medical author, an educator, and a philanthropist.

Large Sums to Charity.

To will his fortune to charity, as he wished, he was forced in 1916 to establish a Chicago residence in the Drake hotel because of the California law which prohibited a testator from giving more than a third of his estate to benevolent institutions.

Dr. and Mrs. Bridge asserted that since they had no children they wished to leave at least two-thirds of their estate to charity.

During his lifetime he made many bequests. Among these was the founding and endowment of the Norman Bridge laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, created for research work in physics. He is credited with having devoted over $500,000 to this foundation.

Gave Generously to Rush.

He was also a generous benefactor of Rush Medical college, and gave large amounts in addition to the University of Southern California, the Southwest Museum, the Los Angeles Symphony, the Los Angeles Orphans' home, the Hospital Association of the Lutheran Church and many other causes.

From 1881 to 1884 Dr. Bridge was a member of the Chicago board of education. In 1882 and 1883 he was president of the board. From 1886 to 1890 he was a member of the board of election commissioners.

He contributed largely to medical literature, and besides many papers and essays was the author of a book on tuberculosis. Other books which came from his pen were "The Penalties of Taste," "The Rewards of Taster," "House Health," "Fragments and Addresses," and "The Marching Years."

Survived by Widow.

With Mrs. Bridge, who survives him, Dr. Bridge celebrated his golden wedding anniversary in Los Angeles last May. Shortly after this he passed through Chicago on his way to Vermont, where he received an honorary degree at the University of Vermont.

He was also the holder of honorary degrees from several other colleges. He was a member of the Chicago Institute of Medicine, the American Medical association, and the Association of American Physicians, of the University, Union League, and Quadrangle clubs of Chicago, the University and California clubs of Los Angeles.

TAKEN BY DEATH

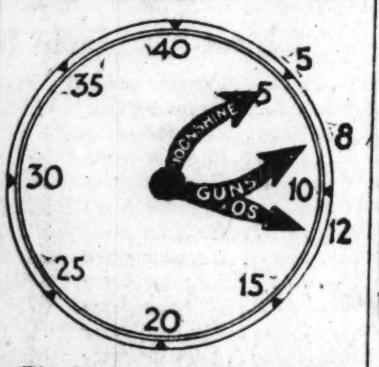
MRS. FRANKLIN HARDINGE.

Word of the death of Mrs. Franklin Hardinge was received in Chicago yesterday. Mrs. Hardinge died on the operating table of a New York hospital while returning from Paris, where she had visited her daughter who is a student at the Sorbonne.

Mrs. Hardinge's husband, Franklin Hardinge, is president of Hardinge Brothers, Inc., manufacturers. Their home was at 912 Buena terrace. Mrs. Hardinge was a member of the Chicago Woman's club and the Chicago Musical club, was president of the auxiliary board of the Ravenswood hospital, and past president of the Lake View Women's club.

She is survived by her husband and two children, Helen and Franklin, four sisters, Mrs. H. H. Hardinge, Mrs. Marguerite Bradd, Mrs. George English, and Mrs. Alex Henderson, and a brother, J. L. L. McCormack. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

HANDS OF DEATH



The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1.

POLICE OFFICER'S AUTO HITS MAN CROSSING STREET

John Bellin, 26 years old, 822 South Wabash avenue, died at the county hospital yesterday. He was struck by an automobile Dec. 31 at Madison street and Western avenue.

Thomas Greenburg, 61 years old, 1012 South Winchester avenue, broke his leg last night when an automobile driven by Police Lieutenant V. J. Cahill of the Maxwell street station struck him at Roosevelt road and Paulina street. Greenburg was taken to the county hospital by the lieutenant.

Mrs. Joseph J. Sullivan, 6137 Vernon avenue, wife of the head of the Chicago Undertaking company, was recuperating from injuries received Friday night when struck by a taxicab at State and Lake streets. The chauffeur was arrested.

J. C. Woodington Will Be Buried Tomorrow

Slicing Machine company, who died Friday morning in a hospital in Laporte, Ind., of typhoid fever, will be held at noon tomorrow at his home, 1117 Forest avenue, Evanston. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Woodington, who was 49 years old, is survived by his widow, two sons, and a daughter. All business houses in Laporte, where his factory is located, were closed yesterday out of respect.

$405,700,000 IS ASKED FOR VETS' CARE DURING 1926

76 Millions Below Current Appropriations.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—The amount recommended for the United States Veterans' bureau during the fiscal year 1926, as contained in the supply bill for independent offices reported to the house today, is $405,700,000, which is $76,258,272 less than current appropriations. Increases are made in only two items, one of $44,000,000 for military and naval compensation, and another of $10,000,000 for military and naval insurance.

The appropriation will necessitate a reduction of at least 1,000 in personnel by July 1 next. A net reduction of 400 employés already has been accomplished.

How Money Is Divided.

The committee recommends for hospital and medical service a total of $35,000,000, of which $13,583,240 is to be allotted to other government hospitals and contract institutions caring for veterans. This latter total is divided as follows: Army, $2,636,020; navy, $1,496,500; soldiers' homes, $3,366,550; interior department, $567,750; public health service, $310,300; fee medical service, $894,729.74; fee dental service, $170,225.26, and fee contract hospital, $3,840,165.

Other major items in the veterans' bureau appropriations are: Salaries and expenses, $45,500,000; printing and binding, $200,000; military and naval compensation, $127,000,000; vocational rehabilitation, $38,000,000; adjusted service pay, $12,000,000; adjusted certificate fund, $50,000,000, and military and naval insurance, $98,000,000.

Premium Receipts Fall Off.

The $10,000,000 increase in the insurance item is necessitated, the report states, because the premium receipts are falling off and the claims increasing.

"The premium receipts for 1924," the report states, "amounted to $13,598,752.95. The estimated receipts for 1925 are $12,170,051. There was a balance of $10,265,526 from the no-year appropriation in 1925. This balance, plus the premium receipts and the appropriation of $88,000,000, amounts to $110,435,577.

WHITE EAGLE AND STARLIGHT WED VIA RADIO

Chief White Eagle of the Caughnawaga tribes of the Iroquois nation, whose home is in Chicago, and the Princess Starlight, who before adoption by the Iroquois was Miss Jacquelina Norris of Montreal, Canada, were married last night in the radio studio of WLS, Chicago.

The ceremony was performed in the tribal language, and followed strictly the customs of the chief's ancestors. Chief Little Chief, a Sjoux, officiated and representatives of seven Indian nations took part in the ceremony. Chief White Eagle is a Carlisle graduate.

An Indian ceremony of rejoicing followed the wedding. All of the proceedings were radiocast from WLS.

NAGEL—Herman B. Nagel. In sad and loving memory of our dear father, who passed away nine years ago today, Jan. 11, 1916.
He heard a voice we could not hear
Which said he must not stay;
He saw a hand we could not see
Which beckoned him away;
Softly the bells kept tolling,
Bidding us look beyond the veil
To the land where loved ones meet.
FROM YOUR LOVING CHILDREN.

OLSEN—Inga Olsen. In sad but loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, who passed away six years ago today, Jan. 11, 1919.

No Matter Where You Live, Call "Hursen"

You may be 1 mile or 20 miles away from the nearest Hursen "funeral-home." It actually takes less time for Hursen to answer your call, no matter what your distance, than is usually required by others who may be situated close by.

This is because of Hursen's perfected organization, which is ready like an army, for instant, expert, personal service. Hursen never makes any added charge for distance covered. There is no other institution of the kind in America whose services are in such great demand, at such great distances.

Calls 20 miles away, from the North Shore towns, from Maywood and west of it, from South Chicago and south of it—these are everyday occurrences at Hursen's. This shows what over 3,000,000 people think of "Hursen" funerals. Super-elegance in quality, in service, in automobile equipment, and in environment, all at a fraction of the charges made anywhere else—all these have built "Hursen's," the greatest institution of its kind in America.

Hursen's invariable rule is that his prices are always far less than those exacted anywhere else, without a single exception. Hursen elegance and Hursen service are beyond competition. You may telephone the Hursen establishment nearest you, if you prefer. Call Hursen, of course!

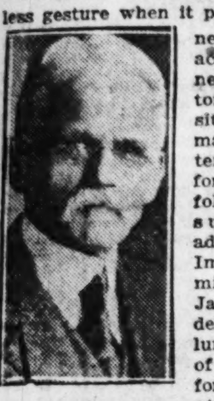
CONGRESS WRONG TOWARD JAPAN, U. C. CHIEF SAYS



PRESIDENT BURTON.

Congress made an entirely thoughtless gesture when it passed the Japanese exclusion act, President Ernest De Witt Burton of the University of Chicago maintained yesterday in an open forum discussion following Mr. Yusuke Tsurumi's address on "The Impact of the Immigration Law on Japanese Life," delivered before a luncheon meeting of the council of foreign relations at the La Salle hotel.

One thoughtless gesture, President Burton pointed out, cannot be nullified by another gesture.

Urges Study of Question.

"The way, therefore, to reëstablish the friendship between the two nations, which was not broken, but disrupted, by the hasty action," President Burton declared, "is for both sides to have patience. For both sides carefully to gather data about the whole question.

"Of course congress didn't know, but at the very moment it passed the law the west coast universities were making a survey of the Japanese immigration situation. That survey was smashed to bits."

The most disastrous phase of the government's action, according to President Burton, is the fact that it "sets back the entire democratic movement in Japan."

It is that democratic party, he believes, on which depends not only the hope of the orient but the peace of the world.

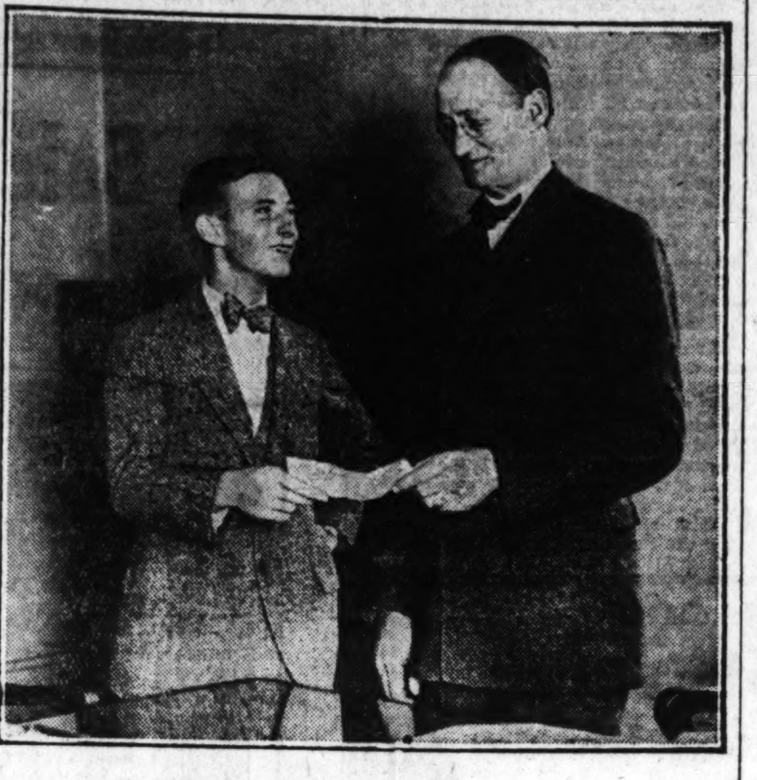
Mr. Tsurumi, who is the son-in-law of Baron Goto, a former prime minister and now mayor of Tokio, told the audience that Japan resents not so much the immigration law as the method of its enactment.

Forget Gentlemen's Agreement.

"The action," the Japanese diplomat said, "seemed to disregard the 'gentlemen's agreement' entered into in 1907 by Theodore Roosevelt."

Philip K. Condict, vice president of the International Western Electric company, on his return yesterday from a six weeks' business trip to Nippon, denied stories of naval increases.

WESLEY GIVES $10,000



Wesley Barry and President Walter Dill Scott.

Gift to N. U.

Wesley Barry, youthful moving picture star, yesterday presented a check for $10,000 to President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university, to be used in scholarships for deserving students. The president of the university is to select one boy from Chicago high schools. The boy must stand well in his studies and in school activities, and must have earned and saved money during his high school days. He will be given a scholarship valued at $1,000.

BRITISH WORRIED BY RED AGENTS IN INDIA, PERSIA

Soviets Are Reviving Old Czarist Policy.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The committee of imperial defenses is undertaking a serious study of the soviet activities on the Persian, Afghan, Indian, and Chinese frontiers, on account of reports recently received, which point to a revival of the old czarish policy of driving against the British interests in India. Reports received from British agents on all these frontiers indicate that the regions are swarming with Russian agents, who are not the familiar communist spouters, but men of the old Russian officer and adventurer type, who are not talking communism, but nationalism.

The soviets are abandoning the scheme of linking up the border tribes as soviet units of the Russian soviet republic and are encouraging the formation of new tribal republics on national lines under tribal leaders. Some of these new republics from west to east are the Turcoman, Uzveg-Tajik, Kirghiz, and Karakirchiz republics.

Activities in Turkey.

The Turcomans are on the borders of Persia, and the British consul, Thompson, at Meshed, near the Persian frontier, reports great activity among the Persian tribes who are allied by race and language to the Turcomans. Mr. Thompson has warned the government that the object of the agitation is to form a vast confederation of nomadic tribes in Persia, which would be under Russian influence and might destroy the British influence in Persia.

Next to the Uzveg republic, which borders on Afghanistan and which actually touches British India at one point and the semi-independent principality of Kashmir, to the throne of which Sir Hari Singh is the heir, at another.

Offer Russian Help.

Tajik also touches Indian and Kashmir and is closely allied to Uzveg, while Karakirchiz borders China and similarly contains tribes akin to those across the Chinese frontier. During the war German and Austrian agents did their best to stir up trouble for Great Britain in these regions, and it is said some of these men have been identified now in the Russian service.

The Russian agents are preaching the most extreme nationalism and are promising Russian help when the time comes for the new nations to throw off the British yoke.

One good effect, from the British point of view, is the improvement in the relations with Afghanistan. The Amir is no more pleased with the prospect of trouble on his borders than England.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

In an editorial on Thursday discussing the case of William A. Bither, THE TRIBUNE stated that the old indictments were reinstated and nolle prossed before Chief Justice Jacob H. Hopkins of the Superior court. This was a mistake. The only connection Judge Hopkins had with the Bither case was as presiding judge during the trial which resulted in Bither's conviction and later when Judge Hopkins overruled a motion made by Bither's attorneys for a new trial.

MEXICAN RULER TURNS GUNS ON REACTIONARIES

Denounces Campaign of Falsehoods.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, Jan. 10.—President Calles, in an interview with THE TRIBUNE today, told the reactionary crowd which had been sounding the government just where they get off. Affirming that his administration stood by the principles of revolution, he scored the leaders of the extreme radicals and Reds who have persistently misrepresented his every act. He classed them and the reactionaries in the same category, both trying to mislead public opinion for their personal advantage, to the detriment of the welfare of the nation.

"The so-called national agrarian syndicate, which in no way represents the immense majority of agriculturists of the nation, nevertheless profess to speak in their name and interest," President Calles said. "So far have they gone in this direction that protests reach my office daily from agriculturists who disown any of their political acts.

Is Political Organization.

"This agrarian organization, exclusively political, not content with having furnished people and funds to aid the De la Huerta insurrection against the institutions of the country, attempted to lead astray the opinion, judgment, and activity of the revolutionary party, to which they professed to belong. Our attempts to uphold law and preserve order they advertised as desertion, and attempted to inspire mistrust in the minds of the country and people of the republic as to the aims and acts of the government.

"This bore natural fruit in restlessness and acts of violence and suspicion of the good faith of the government. Violence followed violence. My government wishes to state here it will punish, without restriction or pity, those found guilty of committting violence, and that the nation may realize that the agrarian program must be carried out in strict conformity with the law.

In Harmony with Peasants.

"My government now, as always, is identified with the aspirations of the groups of peasants of the country. It is not possible to cause trouble between the government and these bodies and their representatives since we are moving forward in perfect harmony."

MONARCHISTS TO GET 3 PLACES IN GERMAN CABINET

Hans Luther Strives to Form Government.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Finance Minister Hans Luther's efforts to form a right wing cabinet, including the monarchists, who claim four and are certain of three portfolios, are succeeding better than Chancellor Marx's attempts to form a middle party cabinet, but the issue is still doubtful. Meanwhile, the fateful Jan. 10, the day on which the first part of the Versailles treaty expires, has passed into history and the entente remains in possession of the Cologne zone—a fact which no German cabinet could face.

The internal crisis has brought at least one result. Chancellor Marx, leader of the Catholic party, and Foreign Minister Stresemann, leader of the people's party, now are open enemies. After months of effort to work together, the Catholic party today accuses Herr Stresemann of stabbing their leader in the back and of quitting the republican movement in order to ally himself with the monarchists. The Catholic party refuse to participate in the Luther cabinet.

The Catholic organ, Germania, concludes a bitter attack on Herr Stresemann with the ironic words: "Although the nation go to ruin, long live Herr Stresemann."

Demand Removal of Ebert.

Gen. Von Ludendorff's Voelkische party continued its efforts to oust President Ebert when it presented a resolution today saying:

"President Ebert, according to the Magdeburg libel suit, was shown guilty of high treason. Moreover, President Ebert for years has been friendly with the Barmat brothers. Therefore, President Ebert is closely connected with the Barmat bank scandal and other east Jewish affairs. The scandals have hurt the president's reputation in foreign lands. We expected a president so seriously accused would resign. Now we ask that the president be put out through a national referendum."

Truce in Tariff War.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 10.—A customs war between France and Germany was delayed for at least three weeks by Germany's offer to continue the status quo pending further negotiations for a commercial treaty to supersede France's treaty rights which expired today. Herr Trendelenbourg, the German delegate, returned from Berlin at noon and called on M. Reynaldi, minister of commerce, this afternoon.

It is realized here that the German move is aimed to apply pressure on the French for the evacuation of Cologne as the allied military control commission's final report is expected to be submitted within three or four weeks. If the French decide Germany is demobilized and disarmed as the Versailles treaty requires and Cologne is evacuated, Germany will sign the commercial accord already outlined.

NEW BRITISH SEA GIANTS MAKE OLD NAVIES OBSOLETE

Link Plane Carriers with 16-Inch Guns.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Great Britain's new armada, the foundation of which is now being laid, will be made up of craft unlike anything that naval science has ever seen or heard of before. The design of two new capital warships, the Nelson and the Rodney, writes a London naval correspondent, will put all existing warships back in the Victorian era.

These fighting ships, which are already near completion, will have an appearance as strange as anything H. G. Wells ever imagined in his visionary novels on warfare of the future.

Without a funnel showing and scarcely any superstructure, they are designed to serve a double purpose. A clear deck space gives a long broad sweep for the launching of airplanes, thus increasing the vessels' battle radius by hundreds of miles.

Carry Nine 16 Inch Guns.

The arrangement of the big guns also will be new, being concentrated forward. They will consist of nine sixteen inch guns, mounted in three turrets and three guns to a turret. No batteries at all will be placed aft.

Heavily armored decks will be laid as a protection from attack from the air. The magazines are being grouped forward under superarmored decks. The absence of funnes provides unobstructed space for planes. The smoke fumes from the engines will be carried off via tubes stretching alongside which will also aid in throwing up smoke screens.

Marks Beginning of New Navy.

Bombing tests and aerial tactics for the new style of sea fighting have already been begun. Important tests will take place next week when the British navy sinks the Monarch in the Atlantic under the terms of the Washington naval agreement. The destruction of the Monarch will be carried out in the greatest secrecy.

It is declared here that the Nelson and the Rodney mark the beginning of a new British navy.

CROWE ASKED BY MRS. STOKES TO DISMISS SUIT

Prosecutor Says He Will Ignore Request.

A request to abandon charges against W. E. D. Stokes of New York City, multimillionaire hotel man, who is charged with conspiracy to defame the character of his former wife, Helen Elwood Stokes, has been made by Mrs. Stokes, it became known yesterday.

The case is scheduled to come up before Judge William Gemmill on Jan. 12.

State's Attorney Crowe said that an effort would be made to get her to testify, but in any event the trial would proceed.

Mrs. Stokes' Letter.

The letter, dated 851 Clarkson street, Denver, Colo., says Mrs. Stokes' mother is very ill, that her young son, Jimmy, had an operation recently, and that her daughter suffered a broken arm.

"And all this," the letter continued, "has conspired to weigh me down.

"I cannot leave my children and do not feel physically able to enter into another litigation with Mr. Stokes and know that he would make it another mud slinging contest that would further reflect upon our children.

"Considering all these things, my friends advised me to do my part to stop all litigation between us, and I have decided to ask you if the case against Mr. Stokes could be indefinitely postponed or dropped that I might have peace.

"I do not want to seem indifferent or ungrateful to the good people of Chicago for investigating my case, but there is a limit to physical endurance, and I feel that I have reached that limit."

Fears Loss of Money.

SEEKS PEACE

Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes.

It was later learned that on Jan. 3 Mrs. Stokes wrote to Assistant State's Attorney W. W. Smith, asking that the case be postponed. In this letter she said:

"Mr. Stokes is stating to those around him that he intended to break the trust formed for me should he be acquitted. So, you see, our future depends upon the outcome of this trial.

"Should the case come to trial would you have Mr. Erbstein help you and assist in the trial? I request this, not that I have any lack of confidence in you—for I have the utmost in your ability—but Mr. Erbstein got the evidence on those many tricks of the other side and I feel it would be most disastrous for us not to avail ourselves of this knowledge."

VIOLET PHIPPS DEAD; MURDER IS SUSPECTED

Coroner Orders Inquiry Into Beating.

Violet Phipps, long a queen of Chicago's underworld, is dead.

Last night, after some of the circumstances of Mrs. Phipps' death had become known, Coroner Oscar Wolff ordered an investigation to find out whether she had been murdered. A post mortem examination of the body indicated spinal meningitis, the direct cause of death, had developed after Mrs. Phipps had been beaten by hoodlums six months ago.

"From a preliminary report of the case it is entirely possible that a murder charge may result," said Coroner Wolff.

The passing of Mrs. Phipps in her palatial house at 3423 Michigan avenue was so quiet and seemingly lawful that the coroner's office was not notified until twelve hours after her death, and the police did not learn of it until even later.

Coroner's Physician Excluded.

Mrs. Phipps, who was 40 years old, died some time Friday night. The death certificate was passed by the health department and burial arrangements had been made at noon yesterday.

Then, whatever machine there was working towards secrecy slipped a cog or two, and Dr. Reinhardt was instructed to call at the Phipps house and make an examination of the body.

Arriving there at 1 o'clock unaccompanied, Dr. Reinhardt applied for admission to the house. He displayed his badge of authority and explained his mission. But some one, the doctor does not know who, impolitely refused the coroner's investigator admittance.

Married a Millionaire.

"I believe it was a brother of Mrs. Phipps," said Dr. Reinhardt, "but I am not sure. Anyway, whoever it was either was slightly inebriated or did not know of the coroner's authority."

Failing to gain admission, Dr. Reinhardt went to the police and later made the post mortem examination. An inquest will be held tomorriw morning.

Mrs. Phipps first gained notoriety when she was married to a Pittsburgh millionaire. Many times her establishment was raided by police. One chapter of her fame concerned the efforts of the telephone company to prevent her from having an instrument in her house. The effort failed.

DECEMBER FALL CAUSES DEATH.

William Burke, 58 years old, 2828 West Congress street, died at the county hospital yesterday of injuries suffered on Dec. 17 when he slipped on an icy sidewalk.

100 FREEZE TO DEATH IN NEAR EAST; HERDS OF STOCK ALSO DIE

TIFLIS, Ga., Jan. 10.—[By the Associated Press.]—One hundred persons and thousands of cattle have been frozen to death during the unprecedented cold weather now prevailing throughout the Caucasus. In several cases shepherds and farmers who went to the fields to tend their sheep or cattle, were found frozen with their flocks.

Driven from their mountain shelters by the fierce cold and lack of food, great droves of antelope and wild boars have invaded the plains and valleys only to perish in their tracks.

In the Alexandropol district of Armenia, where Americans of the near east relief are caring for thousands of orphans, the thermometer registers 32 degrees below zero.

The Caucasus has not experienced such bitter cold for a century and it is feared the effect on the crops will bring a famine next year.

BIG GAIN SHOWN IN EXPORT VALUE OF FOODSTUFFS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Principal export classes of foodstuffs—grain products, meat products, and canned and dried fruits—were shipped abroad during the first eleven months of 1924, to the amount of $720,302,760, a gain of $88,686,688 over the figures of the corresponding period of 1923, when valuations of $631,616,072 were reached, according to the foodstuffs division of the department of commerce.

This increase was due chiefly to the increased value of grain and grain preparations, which during the 1924 period in question registered a jump of approximately $97,000,000.

Paige-Jewett Engineers Offer

NEW

Smoothness—Ability—Comfort
Beauty—Silence—and

Permanent Perfected Performance

Already the motor-wise have learned that all this is true. They have learned that these two cars—the New Paige and the New Jewett—possess a combination of qualities never before produced—permanent qualities.

New power results have been engineered without enlarging the ample-size motors. Yes, and without "speeding them up." New smoothness and silence have been created with costly balanced crankshafts, silent chain drive for pump and timing shafts, and many other engineering refinements.

And—Fear No Follies—the motors are sixes. Because we, like the engineers of the world's costliest cars, can find no abler, smoother, sturdier type. Inherently balanced, amply-sized for their jobs, they serve long and economically. More cylinders would only complicate them—reduce efficiency—increase expense to you.

New riding ease comes from springs specially designed to get the full comfort of balloon tires. And permanent steering ease is produced by ball-bearings and special gearing that offset balloon tire friction.

The New Paige and New Jewett possess performance which can fairly be called perfected. Jewett gives it to you in a car of convenient size. Paige, in a bigger car with the added advantage of greater size and power. As you experience this performance you realize that there is no step beyond it today.

And it has been produced along proved lines—not experimental. We have retained the fine engineering features which our years of use have proved permanently satisfying.

The Paige-Jewett saw-blade steel clutch that engages so softly and with Paige-Jewett transmission makes gear-shifting effortless. And practically noiseless even in shifting from high to second at 30 miles an hour! The all-steel universal joints with sealed-in oil that lasts for 15,000 miles and postpones wear and back-lash many years. These and many other features proved in millions of miles' service, could not be bettered.

All these new advantages cost you nothing more. Paige and Jewett prices have not been increased. Judged by comparable cars—both the New Paige and the New Jewett are underpriced $150 to $200.

U. S. ATTORNEY, COLLINS RAPPED BY JUDGE DAVID

Jurist Assails "Slander" of City Courts.

Malicious and slanderous attacks on the judiciary of Cook county, made by high officials and broadcast through the press, have done more to undermine respect for law in Chicago than any other agency, declared Judge Joseph B. David of the Superior court yesterday. He spoke before a meeting of the Irish Fellowship club at the Morrison hotel.

Olson Is Assailed.

The latest official to lend himself "to these tactics of a cheap, petty sensationalist or politician is United States District Attorney Edwin A. Olson," Judge David said.

Chief of Police Collins, the judge said, is one of the worst offenders.

"It is time," he said, "for Mayor Dever to put a muzzle on his police chief unless the mayor can influence him to the extent of discontinuing his foul, unjust slanders against the courts."

No Specific Instances.

"None of these defamers cites specific instances," Judge David declared. He asserted District Attorney Olson had made a wholly malicious and uncalled for attack on the integrity of the state courts without giving the name of any judge, without citing a case, and without producing any facts. The district attorney spoke on Friday before the Better Government association.

Mayor Dever's much discussed New York speech, in which he was declared to have cast aspersions on Chicago judges, was commented upon by Judge David.

"The mayor, a friend in whom I have great confidence," Judge David said, "has denied he meant the state judges when he spoke in New York. I must accept his word for it."

Should Muzzle Chief.

"But only yesterday I noted in the newspapers a statement attributed to the mayor's subordinate, the chief of police," the judge continued. "He said that he would continue attacking the courts.

"Mayor Dever should put a muzzle on his police chief, and not permit him to besmirch the honor of the mayor's own former colleagues on the bench."

Judge David launched then into a discussion of the writ of habeas corpus, "a priceless heritage of a free and independent people." He criticized editorial comment on the subject, made in THE TRIBUNE, and said there was but one construction to be placed on the law, and that any judge who failed to follow that construction was violating his sacred oath of office.

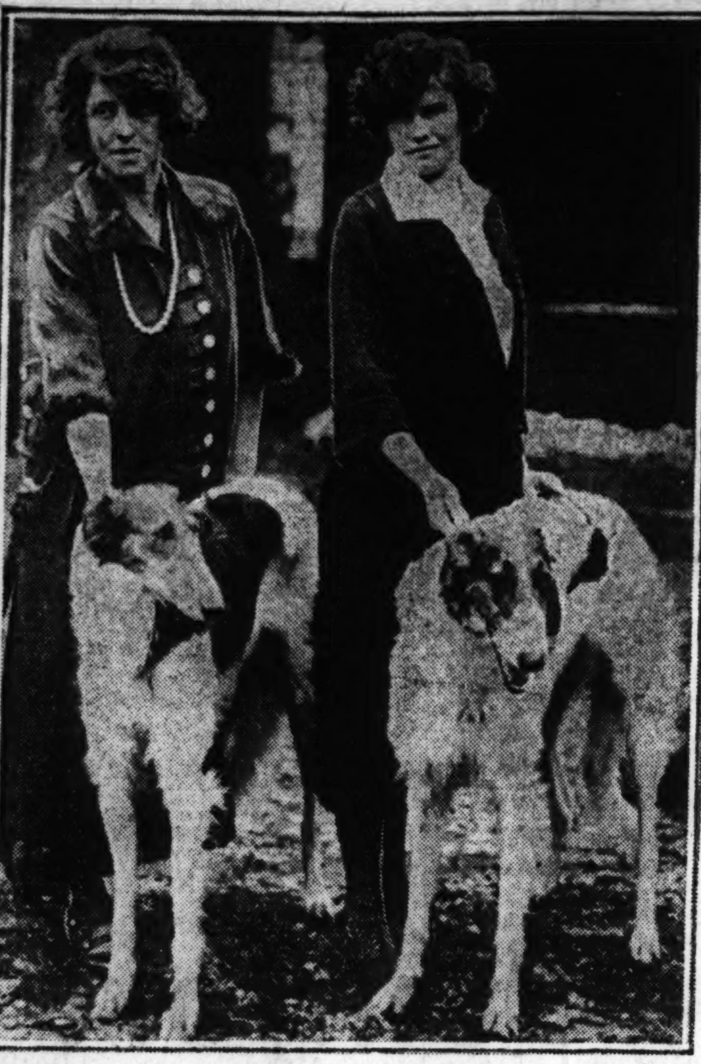
"Who Is to Judge?"

"The editorials said that the writ of habeas corpus was made to protect the innocent, not to aid criminals," Judge David said. "But who is to judge whether a man be innocent or criminal? The policeman?

"If we make the policeman and his superiors, who often are guilty of gross violations of personal liberty, judge and jury of a man's innocence, then the time is at hand when we have not a republic, but an autocracy.

"The judges must hold the scales of justice. If they tilt them, swing them against the constitution of the nation, then there will be tyranny, oppression, and then anarchy."

DOGS BUILT FOR SPEED



The Russian wolf hound at the left is held by Mrs. Harold Claxton and is called Kuropatkin; the other, held by Mrs. Stanley McGill, is Borgia. Both dogs are at the Illinois Kennel club show in the armory of the 131st infantry, 16th street and Michigan avenue. A feature at the show today will be an exhibition by the police dog Von Sauer Brum, owned by George Berger of Norwood Park, Ill.

MISS WOODRUFF IS MARRIED TO MARSHALL KEIG

Miss Gertrude Woodruff, sister of George Woodruff, Chicago financier, was married last night at the Central Presbyterian church in Joliet to Marshall Keig of Lockport, vice president of the Consumers company of Chicago.

Among Chicagoans who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Fitzmorris, Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Elson Whitney, Mrs. Leroy Dupee, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Rich, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford D. Caldwell.

CRIME GROWS WHILE WAR OF WORDS GOES ON

More Secret Reports Are Made Public.

thetic feeling by the police were other explanations offered.

Mr. Holden said he did not intend to create the inference that "shakedowns" or graft was responsible for the 200,000 arrests and subsequent dismissals. Gambling raids and arrests without warrants made up a large part of the 200,000, he said he had been told.

He has several ideas which are being worked out, he said, through the crime commission in coöperation with the authorities to bring about a greater measure of protection for the public and a lessened measure of protection and consideration for the evildoer.

Dever's View of Situation.

Mayor Dever agreed upon the necessity of improving conditions and Mr. Holden made it plain that neither he nor the organization of which he is president, or any one else that he knows, is seeking the removal of Chief Collins. Mayor Dever had this to say:

"Chicago is particularly exposed. The criminals escaping punishment in other cities find their way easily to Chicago by way of the twenty-seven or more railroads entering this city.

"The repression of crime epidemics is solely a police matter, perhaps, because that is the only effective weapon we have at hand. But to prevent a recurrence of such epidemics drastic changes in court procedure, a general return to the churches, education, and an awakening of the former universal respect for law and order would be helpful.

Attitude Toward Dry Law.

"So far as emphasizing the control of any particular form of lawbreaking is concerned, I do not know of it. My direction to the police department and Chief Collins' direction to the department is that all laws must be enforced impartially.

"I think the mayor of any large city will say that the eighteenth amendment has caused his administration a world of trouble. No city has been so exposed to the effects of beer running and illegal liquor selling as has Chicago.

"I'm not laying any special stress on the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment simply because it is the eighteenth amendment. I am not now and never have been a prohibitionist. But because we believed it was the inspiration of much murder, robbery, and other crime, we believed we were striking at the roots of our trouble by suppressing that form of lawbreaking, in common with all others.

"We are not diverting police attention from any class of criminals or crime in order to enforce a particular law. Any mayor who really wants to do right has to meet conditions as he finds them and strike at all lawbreaking as best he can."

LOFTUS BADLY HURT

When Lieut. Loftus was found at Broadway and Montrose avenue early yesterday morning the first belief was that he had been struck by an automobile, which had sped on. He was taken to the Lakeview hospital, where it was feared he had fractured his skull.

Then there were reports that four men in an automobile were seen in that vicinity, and it was thought they were holdup men.

The police assigned to investigate were working on the theory that Lieut. Loftus, who had for years been assigned to the detective bureau, stepped on the running board to get a view of the suspects and he was struck on the head with a revolver or blackjack.

OPEN NEW STATION

Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins created the West Englewood police district yesterday. In a general order he transferred one lieutenant, ten sergeants, and thirty-four patrolmen to police the area, to be known officially as district 11-A, between Ashland avenue and the city limits and the Illinois-Michigan canal and an irregular southern boundary reaching as far south as 89th street.

Temporary station quarters have been set up in a store at 6200 South Kedzie avenue, where active work will begin at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Residents of the district, led by Ald. Thomas Byrne, have long been asking for a station of their own.

Lieut. Edward Murnane, formerly of Hyde Park station, will be in command of the new station. The list of sergeants is headed by Christopher J. Reed, who has been in the chief's office for many years.

ADVANCED SIX SEDAN

Here's the newest Nash enclosed car conception—large and roomy, swung low on the 121-inch Advanced Six chassis and powered with the big Nash Six motor.

Here is quality of custom-built character; here is beauty that captures your instant admiration; and here is a price that buys you more sheer value than the industry has ever offered in this type of car.

Doors are extra wide; the upholstery is of choice mohair cloth, and there are Nash design four-wheel brakes, full balloon tires, five Budd disc wheels, special Nash easy-steering mechanism, and an array of further important attractions.

CHICAGO MAYOR RIVALRIES MARK INAUGURAL DAY

Thompson, Hamiltonian Forces Rally by Train.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Political interest in the second inaugural of Gov. Len Small Monday centers not so much in the main show as in the two side shows brought to the scene by two big special trains from Chicago.

One of these is the special carrying William Hale Thompson, his friends and his third mayoralty campaign. The second special is the one arranged by the Hamilton club. Under the leadership of their president, Alexander Fyfe, who was the harmony chairman of the county campaign last fall, the Hamiltonians are swinging more and more into active politics, and the special, it is believed, is designed to show the weight the organization carries.

See Fyfe Entering Lists.

But there are many who believe that the club's special and its program here are more than an oragnization matter. They think that probably they are a demonstration of the personal popularity of President Fyfe, intended to prove his availability as a candidate for mayor.

The theory is that if "Sandy" was acceptable to the regulars, the Deneenites and the Lundinites as chairman of a joint committee he ought also to be worth considering as the choice of the three groups to beat Thompson in the Republican primary.

Simple Inaugural Planned.

The official ceremonies of the inaugural will be simple. At 11:30 o'clock Col. Albert L. Culbertson will lead fifty mounted men to the executive mansion. Thence they will escort the inaugural party, the governor, the newly elected state officials, the joint committee of the assembly, and two justices of the Supreme court, Frederick R. De Young and Clyde F. Stone, to the arsenal.

At the arsenal the two houses will sit in joint session and, after taking his oath, Gov. Small will read his message.

SPECIAL TRAINS TO CAPITAL.

Seven special trains will leave Chicago tonight carrying visitors to Springfield for the inauguration of Gov. Small and other state officers. Former Mayor William Hale Thompson and a following now listed at 910 in the reservations will occupy three trains leaving the Illinois Central station at midnight. At the same hour the Hamilton club will have four specials leaving over the Illinois Central and Chicago and Alton.

Fred Lundin plans to leave earlier today on a regular train. He is to be a guest at the executive mansion.

ALMA RUBENS.
[Wetzel Photo.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 10.—Alma Rubens, screen actress, whose off stage name is Alma Goodman, today applied to the Superior court here for a divorce from her husband, Daniel C. Goodman. She alleges Goodman started beating her on their honeymoon after their marriage at Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 12, 1923. The Goodmans separated in January, 1924.

FRANCE TO TRY IBANEZ FOR BOOK ON SPANISH KING

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 10.—The French government today started prosecution of Blasco Ibanez, noted Spanish author, on a charge of carrying on propaganda and interfering with the government of a neighboring friendly state. The specific accusation was based on his pamphlet attacking King Alfonso and Dictator Primo de Rivera of Spain. A similar prosecution was started against a publisher, M. Flammarion, and Jean Louvre, a translator of the pamphlet.

Señor Ibanez was summoned today, but, being on the Riviera, the hearing was postponed until Tuesday.

GUARDING THE HOME.

This is an era when more and more women are sharing the responsibility of public and semi-public interests. This is but natural, for it is now recognized that the interests of the American home and of American government are closely allied.

Yet the far-seeing women allow no portion of their homes to recede in appearance because of these new demands on their time. New articles of furniture replace those which grow shabby; new linen and decorations help to keep the atmosphere of cheery, attractive home life intact.

For these women realize that when the home deteriorates the family interest in it likewise deteriorates. And such a loss to the cherished goal of pre-wedded life should not be tolerated.

SENATE REJECTS MUSCLE SHOALS SUBSTITUTE BILL

Only Five Votes Given to Wadsworth's Plan.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Another step toward final disposition of Muscle Shoals legislation was taken in the senate today when the Wadsworth substitute was rejected by a vote of 5 to 65.

Under the Wadsworth substitute for the Underwood bill, as approved in committee of the whole earlier in the week, a commission of five would be created with power either to lease the Muscle Shoals property or provide for government operation. The commission would be composed of the secretary of war, the secretary of agriculture, and three others appointed by the President.

The five who voted for the Wadsworth substitute were Senators Wadsworth [Rep., N. Y.], Bingham [Rep., Conn.], Pepper [Rep., Pa.], Edge [Rep., N. J.], and Norbeck [Rep., S. D.].

Jones Offers Substitute.

Following the rejection of the Wadsworth substitute Senator Jones [Rep., Wash.] offered his substitute providing for a commission of three members, composed of the secretary of war, the secretary of agriculture, and one other appointed by the President, to study the entire problem and report back to congress next December. This commission would not have power to take final action, as would be the case under the Wadsworth substitute. Pending final disposition of the question by congress the Jones substitute would authorize the secretary of war to dispose of power temporarily.

Action on the Jones substitute is in prospect on Monday or Tuesday, but prospects today seemed less favorable for its adoption than was the case a few days ago.

Coolidge Favors Underwood Plan.

Reports were in circulation that President Coolidge had passed out the word that the administration favors the Underwood bill in preference to the Jones substitute. Previously the impression had prevailed that some of the administration senators, who supported the Underwood bill in preference to the Norris government ownership scheme, would line up for the Jones proposal.

Shrine's Arabian Night to Defray Coast Trip

An Arabian night's entertainment, based on secret ceremonies of the Shrine, will be staged tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday night at Medinah temple. Proceeds of the performance will be used to help defray expenses of the Shrine's delegation to the convention at Los Angeles next summer.

17 SHIPWRECKED SAILORS SAVED BY U. S. STEAMER

New York, Jan. 10.—[Special.]—After being tossed about at the mercy of Atlantic hurricanes for almost a week, sixteen seamen and the skipper of the waterlogged, ice coated four masted schooner Manuel Caragol were rescued early today by the freighter Knowis, according to radio dispatches received through the Independent Wireless corporation.

The crew of the Manuel Caragol was taken from the stricken ship in heavy seas at great risk to the lives of the Knowis seamen. Then the derelict was set afire, but failed to burn well because of its water soaked condition. Capt. Humphrey of the Knowis reported in his dispatch that the schooner constitutes a menace to navigation.

The schooner, which is of Portuguese registry, sailed from Montevideo on Aug. 12, it was learned. Off Florida the Manuel Caragol encountered heavy coast storms and was blown off her course. As she progressed northward she ran afoul of the gales and blizzard traveling southward from the Grand Banks. In the heavy, ponderous seas she shipped water and became unmanageable.

76 ARRESTED AS GAMBLERS.

Seventy-six men were arrested last night in Conway Union hall at 2358 West Lake street on charges of being inmates of a gambling oresort. James Beck, 1506 South Kostner avenue, was booked as keeper.

Comparison Further Shows HUDSON World's Greatest Buy

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

Being the world's largest builders of six-cylinder closed cars permits Hudson to give values beyond all comparison.

Economies in manufacture and the experience gained in three years' concentration on closed cars have resulted in the best cars and the lowest prices of our history.

Despite the fact that Hudson has alone offered closed car comforts at open car price, its real appeal has been the brilliant character of its performance.

With the Famous Super-Six

Hudson has the famous Super-Six chassis. Its motor solved the problem of smooth performance. It increased motor and car life to the extent that thousands of cars have service records exceeding a hundred thousand miles. The Super-Six was created by Hudson, is patented and belongs exclusively to Hudson.

Note the prices at which Hudson closed cars are sold. Think of their values in good looks, in the way they retain their attractions and the little attention and cost required to keep them in first-class appearance and condition.

They have reduced closed car costs for thousands. They afford advantages to be found only in costlier cars, and yet their cost is but little more than cars whose sole appeal is price.

Hudson is the "World's Best Buy." Comparison shows that. Sales prove it.

Note These Prices

U. S. TO CHANGE RADIO STATION WAVE LENGTHS

Midwest Revision Is Set for Thursday.

Radio fans who spin their dials around to points familiar next Thursday night may expect to run into stations they've never heard before or ones they have been accustomed to getting on entirely different wave lengths.

It'll all be because E. A. Beane, supervisor of radio for twelve and a half middle western states, has assigned a big batch of new wave lengths for the high powered class B stations of his district.

Air Traffic Congested.

The new assignments, Mr. Beane explained yesterday, have been made to provide more channels in the air for new sending stations now in prospect."

"The fans can look forward to a merry time Thursday night and for several nights thereafter," Mr. Beane said. "The new arrangements will provide many surprises and some confusion. The action was necessary, however, to relieve the fast increasing congestion of the well known ether."

The announcement included the assignments in meters and kilocycles in conformity with the department of commerce's expressed desire to make the more tangible kilocycles the bases of measurement rather than the elusive wave lengths.

Introducing Kilocycles.

In the following list the meter measure is listed first after the name of the station and the second figure is the number of kilocycles.

W-G-N [Chi.], WEBH [Chi.]	376.7	796
WMAQ [Chi.], WQJ [Chi.]	444.8	674
WLS [Chi.], WCBD [Zion]	344.6	870
KYW [Chi.], WHA [Mad., Wis.]	535.4	560
WJJD [Mooseh't.], WTAS [Elgin]	3028	990
KOA [Denver]	322.4	930
KFKX [Hastings, Neb.]	288.3	1040
KSAC [Manhattan, Kas.]	340.7	880
KSD [St. L.], KFUO [St. L.]	549.1	546
WOS [Jefferson City]	429.5	698
WOC [Dav.], WHA [Iowa City]	498	602
WOAW [Omaha], WHO [Des M.]	522.2	574
WHAS [Louisville]	399.2	751
WHB [K. C.], WDAF [K. C.]	414.1	724
WCCO [Minn.]	419.3	715

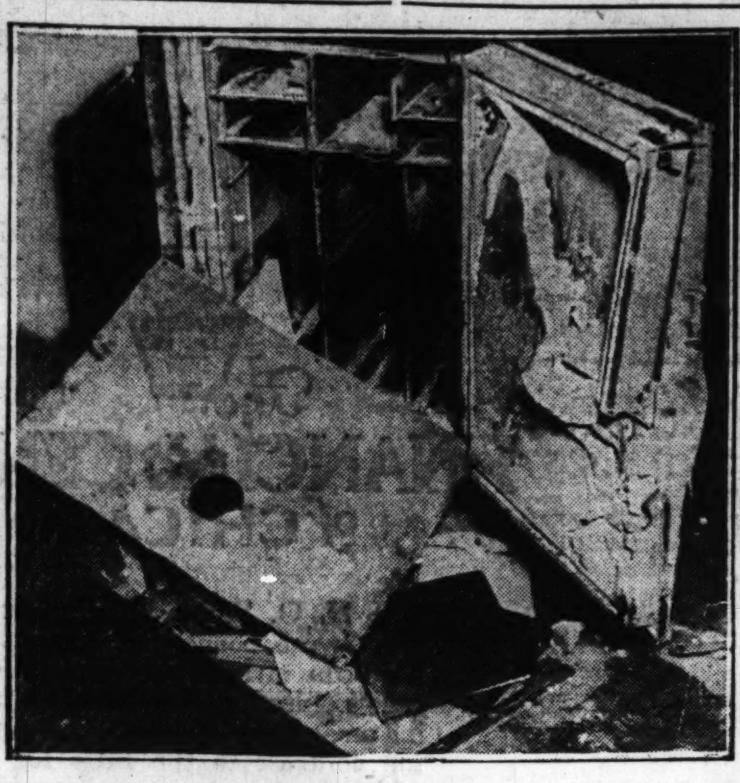
The two stations in Northfield, Minn., which divide time, were given assignment of 890 kilocycles and 336.9 meters.

It was explained that it hoped to eventually get away from the highly theoretical features involved in establishing measurements by wave lengths, a system that is bound to be variable, whereas the kilocycle system is one of absolute accuracy, based upon generative and other mechanical equipment, under the definite control of radio engineers.

Two Held as "Fences" in Thefts of $160,000 Bonds

New York, Jan. 10.—Alfred Gulden, dealer in mortgages and loans, and Harry Lester, a real estate broker, were arrested today in the Hotel Ansonia, charged with receiving stocks and bonds worth $160,000, stolen in three thefts in the last two months.

$100,000 SAFE BLOWING



Safe in Plamondon-Gabriel company from which $28,500 in stock certificates was taken. Safe blowers cracked another strong box in the Keelin building at 308 North Michigan avenue, also.

Safes Looted

Search for a gang which rifled two safes in the Keehn building, 308 North Michigan avenue, yesterday was redoubled upon discovery that securities believed to total more than $100,000 in value were included in the loot.

The safe containing the securities was in the office of the Plamondon-Gabriel company, interior decorators. The loot included stock certificates covering 420 shares of Union Carbide and Carbon company, valued at $28,560. The stock was issued in the name of Alfred D. Plamondon and the certificates were numbered: C-8245, C-8246, C-16855, C-16856, and B-69004.

The four thieves went leisurely about their work after binding and gagging the watchman, Henry Giska, 60 years old, 3222 Augusta street, whom they had encountered in the corridor of the second floor. Giska was dragged to the basement, where for some time he was unconscious. Regaining consciousness, he wriggled loose from his bonds and summoned police.

UNIVERSAL TO BUILD 22 STORY CINEMA IN LOOP

Plans 2,600 Seat Movie East of Apollo.

BY AL CHASE.

Plans have been drawn and work is expected to start within a few weeks on another whopping big loop cinema and office building for the Randolph street Rialto, a few feet west of State, by Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film company.

A Chicago firm of architects, whose name will be announced later, has designed a 2,600 seat playhouse with a twenty-two story skyscraper in front, to occupy the 100 feet of frontage on Randolph, just east of the Apollo theater and approximately ninety feet west of State.

Hopes to Open in 1925.

Mr. Laemmle hopes to have his big Chicago house ready for the flickering films the last of this year. Universal pictures are now given their first Chicago showing at the Randolph theater, across the street from the site of the new playhouse. The lease on this expires in 1927, when it reverts to Jones, Linick & Schaeffer.

The new Universal headquarters for the middle west will stand on the leasehold at 31-33 West Randolph owned by William Collins and Miss Florence Kranz' holdings adjacent on the east. It is one of the best theater sites in Chicago, being close to State street, at the eastern end of the Rialto and having alleys on two sides.

B. & K. Get McVicker's.

Balaban & Katz have taken over the management of McVicker's theater for several years, it was announced yesterday. Under the new arrangement, which goes into effect immediately, Paramount motion pictures hereafter will be divided among the McVicker's, the Chicago, the Roosevelt, and the Randolph theaters, the last now under construction.

Boston Scrod (Baby Cod) 40c—Halibut (and Peas) 40c

two sea-food items which, at these low prices, can't be beaten anywhere

Every day hundreds of people, who are particularly fond of fish and sea-food, come to the North American for our delicious specialties. They tell us that these items of ours can't be improved upon even by the highest priced hotels and restaurants—in which they often pay double our prices (or even more).

Boston Scrod (a Tuesday and Friday specialty of ours) is the same delicious fish item so popular in the East, shipped out especially for us by fast express. When it reaches you, hot from the pan, it is as "tasty" a dish as one can imagine. Our Halibut (ready every day from 11 a. m. to Midnight) comes from the icy cold waters near Alaska. Deliciously fried and browned it is juicy and tasty—not dry and tasteless as is so often the case with fish. A big portion of either of these specialties costs only 40 cents.

Food values like these prove that it pays to "serve yourself" here—and that we are giving the greatest possible amount of good food for the least money.

Recent advances in coffee prices mean we must now pay 10 to 15 cents a pound more than we did a few months ago, yet we have neither lessened the quantity, lowered the quality, or raised the price—which is 10 cents for a 2-cup pot of incomparable coffee.

Among our other quality items at low prices are:

Fried Premium Chicken: with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce. Dark meat 55c
White meat 65c

Roast Turkey: A big portion with stuffing, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce. Dark meat . 85c
White meat 95c

And for Breakfast:—

Honey Waffles: With 3 strips of bacon or Mickelberry's Old Farm sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey 25c

Bacon and Eggs: 2 fresh eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon 30c

H.O. STONE & CO. CHICAGO FOUNDATION LAID IN 1835

The FINANCIAL CENTER of CHICAGO

The H. O. Stone Building at the Northwest corner of Clark and Madison streets, to which Chicago's oldest business house is moving on or about March 1st, is a striking contrast to the little log fort which the young pioneer found here in 1835.

Yet it is a logical part of the Greater Chicago which this far-visioned young business-builder even then foresaw—a fit setting for the strong and successful House for which he laid the foundation not far from this busy corner 90 years ago today.

90th ANNIVERSARY

Chicago's Oldest Business House

NINETY YEARS ago today, a young pioneer rode into Chicago to seek his fortune. His name was H. O. Stone.

He staked everything he had on Chicago's future, and won. He laid the foundation of the financial house which bears his name—the oldest business house in Chicago.

Always in the center of Chicago's business activity, the House of Stone has grown up with the city. This 90th Anniversary announcement brings the news that the organization is about to move into a building of its own—the H. O. Stone Building.

H.O. STONE & CO. CHICAGO FOUNDATION LAID IN 1835

The H. O. Stone Building stands right in the heart of the "Loop," the Northwest corner of Clark & Madison—the financial hub of Chicago.

The location of the Bond Department on the Bank Floor, brings this old established house into still closer and more convenient contact with the investing public. Here, as always, you are sure of a cordial welcome, friendly service and time-proven investment safety.

LANDIS BARES SCANDAL CONFESSION

FRANKLIN SKATERS CAPTURE WEST PARKS TITLE

ROLL UP LONG LEAD OVER FAST PULASKI OUTFIT

Speed of John Cromley Assures Victory.

TABLE OF POINTS

Franklin	54	Humboldt	14
Pulaski	29	Garfield	8
Harrison	28	Eckhardt	3
Columbus	18	Dvorak	2
Douglas	14

Skating honors for the west parks system went to Franklin park's team in the tourney yesterday afternoon, the winners copping 54 points, while Pulaski was second in the point column, totaling 29, with Harrison following closely with 28 tallies. The ice on the Garfield park lake, where the tourney was held, was in fine condition for racing, with a hard surface, and the weather was not too cold for a big and interested gallery to line the edge of the ice.

The biggest contribution to Franklin park's victorious total was made by John Cromley, who won two events—the 440 and mile jaunts for boys over seventeen.

Cromley Is Star.

Cromley's form was about the best displayed in the meet yesterday, and his cleverness in the starts as well as his powerful strokes accounted for his notable victories. He also was the leader fo the Franklin park relay team which flashed across the line first, but which was forced to concede first place in the senior event to Pulaski, being disqualified.

Miss Julia Kwak, winner of the Tribune junior girls' Silver Skates Derby last year, led the whole field and copped first in the senior girls' 440 yard event at Garfield park yesterday, leading Miss Eileen Riordan, who was second, by :05 4-5 at the end. Her time was :57 1-5. Miss Riordan fell near the finish but was able to complete the grind just ahead of the field.

Serro Leads Juniors.

Among the junior boys the work of Charles Serro of Harrison was outstanding, his two victories in the 880, clocked in 1:43 3-5, and in the 440, timed in :46, accounting for a good share of his team's tallies. He, too, was the strong man on a relay team which finished first but which was disqualified, yielding first honors to the Franklin juniors. Summaries:

110 yards, boys under 12 years—Won by Bert Arias [Humboldt]; C. Jackinski [Harrison], second; Jake Cohen [Franklin], third; Howard Lipman [Douglas], fourth. Time, :13 2-5.

220 yards, boys under 14 years—Won by Bert Arias [Humboldt]; Jake Cohen [Franklin], second; Jack Stone [Douglas], third; Joe Proemba [Harrison], fourth. Time, :29 2-5.

440 yards, boys under 14 years—Won by Dan Cherin [Douglas]; Ed McDonough [Columbus], second; Howard Johnson [Garfield], third. Time, :55 2-5.

440 yards, boys under 17—Won by Charles Serro [Harrison]; Ed Cernock [Franklin], second; Robert Chapman [Columbus], third; Carl Felt [Columbus], fourth. Time, :46.

880 yards, boys under 17—Won by Charles Serro [Harrison]; George Schultz [Harrison], second; H. Winter [Columbus], third; Carl Felt [Columbus], fourth. Time, 1:43 3-5.

440 yards, boys over 17—Won by John Cromley [Franklin]; Ed Hruska [Franklin], second; Chester Okrakinski [Pulaski], third; Alex Wisner [Pulaski], fourth. Time, :45.

One mile, boys over 17—Won by John Cromley [Franklin]; Chester Okrakinski [Pulaski], second; Ed Hruska [Franklin], third; Frank Krvak [Pulaski], fourth. Time, 3:53 4-5.

40 yards, girls over 16—Won by Julia Kwak [Pulaski]; Eileen Riordan [Franklin], second; Josephine Weiss [Harrison], third; Ruth Neil [Dvorak], fourth. Time, :57.

220 yards, girls under 16—Won by Helen Peklo [Franklin]; Dot Johnson [Garfield], second; Jessie Wolfe [Douglas], third; Mildred Smutney [Dvorak], fourth. Time, :31 2-5.

Junior relay—Won by Franklin; Pulaski, second; Eckhardt, third.

Senior relay—Won by Pulaski; Columbus, second.

RAVENSWOOD DISTRICT

TABLE OF POINTS.

Henry	78	Budlong	14
Waters	26	Field	11
Audubon	19	MacPhearson	7
Belding	15	Swift	6

Winning all three relays and five of the eight individual events, skaters of Henry playground yesterday captured top honors in the Ravenswood district of the city playground qualifying ice races at Welles park. The winning team amassed a total of 78 points with its closest competitors, Waters, having 26. Summaries:

110 yards, boys, under 12—Won by Cole, Swift; Strand, MacPherson, second; Grubert, Waters, third. Time, :17 4-5.

220 yards, boys under 12—Won by Eiseman, Henry; O'Brien, Swift, second; J. Schaa, Henry, third. Time, :27.

Maroons Lose to Illini in Cage Tilt, 27 to 16

Although neither team showed much flashy basketball, the University of Illinois quintet was too much for Coach Nels Norgren's Maroons in the opening game of the Big Ten season for both schools at Bartlett gymnasium last night, and carried home the long end of a 27 to 16 score. The Midway gym was packed to capacity, a crowd of 3,500 seeing the battle and about 500 being turned away.

Coach Craig Ruby's boys jumped into the lead as the game opened and were in front the entire distance. The score at half was 12 to 8. In the first half Chicago managed to keep within a few points of the visitors, but in the closing session the Illini steadily drew away from the locals.

Maroons Poor Shots.

In addition to some loose teamwork the Maroons were lax in basket shooting and missed many attempts at the free counter. Fouls were abundant on both sides and many of the winning points were scored via this route.

There were no "Red" Granges in the Illini lineup, but there was one Daugherty and one Haines. Daugherty was high scorer for the victors, with four baskets and five free throws, while Haines' guarding was exceptional. Capt. Mauer and Martin did some high class performing for the victors also.

Barnes Is Star.

Capt. Weiss, who was reported to be out of the game, appeared in the Maroon lineup, but main honors went to Harrison Barnes and Bill Abbott. Abbott scored two baskets and Barnes counted one—and these were all the Maroons got. Lineup:

GOPHERS, 16; BADGERS, 14

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—The Minnesota basketball team broke into the win column in the Big Ten conference race tonight by nosing out Wisconsin, 16 to 14, in a hard fought struggle. After gaining a 11 to 6 lead at the end of the first half, Minnesota found itself tied at 12-all shortly after the start of the final period. A sensational shot by Merickel, followed by another short basket by Rasey, gave the Gophers the margin that meant victory. Not a single point was scored by either side in the last five minutes. PURPLE LOSES, 29-16

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—In a ragged but at times fast game here tonight Michigan took its first conference tilt from Northwestern, 29 to 16. The Wolverines started the scoring and led at the end of the half, 12 to 4. Neither team showed any consistent teamwork, but the Michigan five had the advantage from the start.

The Purple was unable to get close to the basket and its long shots were often successful. Baker, Purple star forward, could not get clear because of the close guarding of Cherry, who dogged his footsteps continually.

A crowd of 9,500 people packed Yost fieldhouse to see the game. Lineup:

OHIO NIPS INDIANA

Columbus, O., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Ohio State was victorious over Indiana, 30 to 22, in the opening Western Conference game for both teams here tonight. A crowd of 8,166, the third largest local basketball crowd in history, saw the game.

Johnny Miner, Buckeye forward, led the scoring with eleven points, making four field buckets and three foul shots. The entire Ohio team worked like clock work and never was headed from the time the Buckeyes made their first field goal a few seconds after the game started.

Krueger, Logan and Sponsler each registered six points for the Hoosiers, but Lorber easily was the visitors' star. His guarding was excellent. Lineup:

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

EASTERN FOOTBALL.

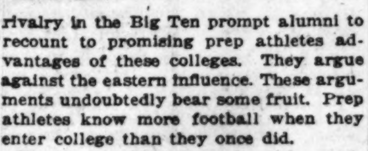
NUMEROUS readers have requested our promised reasons why eastern football never will regain its former "prestige." We do not recall having used this particular word. We thought we differentiated between prestige and supremacy.

There are several reasons why eastern football will not enjoy its former supremacy. All radiate from the growth and expansion of colleges in middle west, south, and Pacific coast.

Even allowing for coeds, many state universities now have male student bodies equal to or greater than those of Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, which once dominated the gridiron.

University of Illinois, for instance, receives biennial appropriation from the state legislature of around $10,000,000—equal to the interest return upon $100,000,000 endowment.

With better instruction and better facilities than formerly, more western boys attend college nearer home. Western men always were prominent as athletes in eastern schools. Keen competition and rivalry in the Big Ten prompt alumni to recount to promising prep athletes advantages of these colleges. They argue against the eastern influence. These arguments undoubtedly bear some fruit. Prep athletes know more football when they enter college than they once did.



Finally, coaching throughout the country is well systematized. Increased attendance allows payment of more attractive salaries. So no section has a monopoly of football's instructive brains.

Thus with basic conditions on a practical parity, there is no reason why any one section should establish supremacy. There will be times when a champion will emerge as did Notre Dame in 1924. With equal opportunity, however, honors should be pretty well distributed over a period of years. That's why we think the east has lost for all time its outstanding former "supremacy."

On Nov. 25, 1899, with Yale leading, 10 to 6, and 30 seconds to play, Poe kicked a perfect field goal for an 11-10 Princeton triumph, field goals then counting five points. Poe was a little fellow in those days of giants, weighing around 140 pounds.

RICE IN U. S. TO NEGOTIATE FOR GIBBONS BOUT

New York, Jan. 10.—Thomas S. Rice, sporting writer of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and the American representative of the National Sporting club of England, arrived in this country today on the Lapland and announced he would open negotiations immediately with Eddie Kane, manager of Tommy Gibbons, relative to the proposed match between Gibbons and Luis Angel Pirpo, Argentine heavyweight, to be held at the London club.

Rice said Kane was expected in New York within a few days to talk over the matter with him. He said he had an attractive offer to make to the St. Paul boxer. Rice declared that Firpo has already signed contracts for the match.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted by the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Clara Hergenrether, 6025 Ellis avenue, Chicago, is awarded $5.

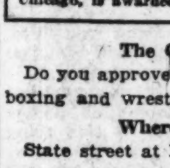
The Question.

Do you approve of women attending boxing and wrestling bouts?

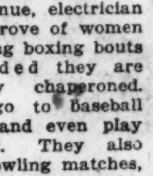
Where Asked.

State street at Lake.

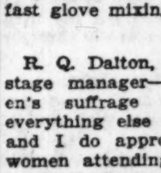
The Answers.



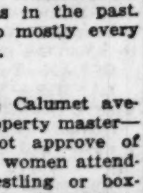
Thomas Biltgen, 5440 South Winchester avenue, electrician—I approve of women attending boxing bouts provided they are properly chaperoned. They go to baseball games and even play baseball. They also have bowling matches, so they might just as well go in for all other sports, including boxing, if they think they would enjoy a little fast glove mixing.



R. Q. Dalton, 3507 Lowell avenue, stage manager—Women's suffrage claims everything else manly and I do approve of women attending boxing bouts inasmuch as boxing is a manly sport. Women have been attending wrestling and boxing bouts in the past. Women have taken up mostly every other sport but boxing.



Louis E. Glick, 5344 Calumet avenue, property master—I do not approve of married women attending wrestling or boxing bouts, for this is one sport that is for men only. I have attended many a boxing show where women were present and they all became so excited that they almost hung a thick lip on the old man during the bout. The women get more excited than men when somebody lands a good punch.



Nels Lund, 666 North State street, carpenter—I do not think that women should attend boxing or wrestling bouts, for this is one sport that men should attend alone. Watching a fight doesn't leave a man in a delicate mood, and when women see boxing it has a tendency to coarsen them. I believe in women taking up other sports that will aid them in keeping their health.

Fred T. Hoffman, 3031 Leavitt street, stock salesman—I am in favor of women attending boxing and wrestling bouts, as it quickens the eye, keeps them young and full of pep, and also gives them confidence to protect themselves if attacked. However, I don't think women generally care to see many boxing bouts, as one or two usually is enough for them.

Jack, a la Val, With Estelle, Kids Scribes

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 10.—[United Press.]—The most famous lovers in Hollywood, Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, and Estelle Taylor, brunette screen actress, were the center of attraction here today at a gathering of 2,000 fight fans at the ground breaking ceremonies for a boxing stadium.

The two were all the more interesting because of the fact that Miss Taylor was yesterday divorced from Kenneth Peacock of Philadelphia and the way is all paved for her marriage to the champion of all the big boys, which Hollywood expects.

Dempsey, in his new sideburns and remodeled nose, and Estelle, in a new dress, excited about so much fuss, marched in state down a lane cleared by officers to the shovel, necessary in every ground breaking.

Very Close Friends.

"Don't ask me when Jack and I are going to be married," Miss Taylor giggled to reporters assembled about the shovel. "I'm interested in my picture work and that's foremost right now. I think our marriage is entirely a newspaper issue. The sporting editors are against it and the motion picture editors are for it. Maybe we'd better put it up to a newspaper man's vote to decide."

"Estelle and I are still very close friends," Dempsey chimed in. "I think a great deal of her and she thinks a great deal of me, and that's as far as it goes—at least right now."

The champion climbed up on the steam shovel and made a short speech to the multitude.

"Glad to be here. Don't think I'll fight in California. Hope the ten round game is here to stay. My future plans indefinite," was heard above the bustle.

Herbert Rawlinson, who was toastmaster, called on Estelle. She stood up, smiled, and then sat down.

Take Ride in Shovel.

"She opened her pretty mouth, but nothing came out," Rawlinson translated to the crowd.

Then Estelle and her big swain rode up in the huge maw of the shovel and were photographed by a flock of moving and "still" picture cameras. They got all dirty, but apparently considered it quite a lark.

And when Jack lifted her down she snuggled in his arms in a noticeably satisfied and at home manner.

T. ROSS LEADING GUN IN LINCOLN PARK TRAP SHOOT

T. Ross was the winner in the singles shoot at the Lincoln park traps yesterday afternoon over the 16 yard course, breaking 49 out of the 50 targets. Eric Hall shot into second position with 47, while C. Pike was third with 46. O. W. Johnson, Grover Alexander, J. A. Groves, and L. Lowry, each taking 45, tied for the fourth position.

W. G. Warren outshot other members of the club in the doubles event and won with an 83 score.

TESTIMONY IN BRIBE CASE IS GIVEN TO FANS

Dolan's Evasive Answers Convicted Him.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

One of the most impressive facts disclosed in the twenty-five pages of typed testimony of the Jimmy O'Connell-Cosy Dolan case, which was made public yesterday by Commissioner Landis, was the statement in several instances by the commissioner that the case is not closed.

In the testimony the former federal judge, who now is the boss of organized baseball, made it quite clear in his last interview with O'Connell that the case always is open for further evidence as long as he is alive. This condition and the character of the evidence of Dolan in contrast to that of Ross Young, Frank Frisch, and George Kelly are the impressive features.

As was stated at the time of action, the testimony of Dolan consisted mainly of the answers "I don't remember," while that of the other three players named in the confession of O'Connell were emphatic and decisive denials. It was on such testimony that Landis judged Dolan guilty and acquitted Young, Frisch, and Kelly. The commissioner figured Dolan's testimony as strong as a confession and judged him guilty more because of his own answers than because of the charges made by O'Connell.

Case Not Closed.

It was in the last hearing granted to O'Connell, after he had received the notice of his banishment from baseball, that the commissioner brought out forcibly that the case was not closed. O'Connell asked the question of the commissioner: "Do you think you have gone far enough into this thing?"

"You saw my statement?" replied Landis.

"That it is closed?" answer O'Connell.

"No," from the commissioner. "That anything that comes to me will be followed to the end, no matter where it goes or whom it involves; that the only thing that ever closes a thing of this kind with me is the grave."

A few paragraphs further on in the testimony the commissioner, still talking with O'Connell, stated: "On your question as to whether this ended, I tell you that it is not ended; that if anything happens, if there is anything in the world that suggests further inquiry, it will be followed up; that it is never ended——"

"If you can give me any additional facts, or if you can give me any suggestions involving anybody else in or out of baseball, baseball officials, club owners, ball players, league officials, or people outside—the papers this morning talk about gamblers being behind this—if you have anything in the world that connects anybody else with this thing, I want you to give it to me.

Asks for More Facts.

Further on just before the interview closed, is the following:

LANDIS—I say if you have heard gossip from anybody else, whether it is from a ball player or a baseball manager, or baseball president or league official, or anybody, a bat boy or from somebody on the outside—if you have anything of any character about this thing, I will take it and follow it up.

O'CONNELL—That is all I wanted to know. I wanted to know whether it was closed and whether I was made the "goat, or whether it still is open."

LANDIS—It is open. As I said before, a thing of this kind is always open until after the funeral of the individuals involved.

O'CONNELL—That is all I wanted to know. I thank you very kindly.

The typed testimony begins in the middle of the first hearing of Dolan before the commissioner following the confession of O'Connell, who named Dolan as the man who asked him to go to Heinie Sand of the Phillies and offer him $500 to ease up in the game against the Giants. No stenographer was present to take the confession of O'Connell nor the first part of Dolan's testimony.

Bares Dolan Answers.

The commissioner had interrogated Dolan regarding his having talked to O'Connell on such a proposition. O'Connell had stated that Dolan opened the talk by asking him if he knew Sand. The testimony in part which follows shows the character of Dolan's replies:

LANDIS—It has been about five minutes since I asked you whether you can now recall any such conversation and you have been sitting here thinking, trying to recall whether you did or did not have any such talk.

DOLAN—I cannot recall.

LANDIS—You cannot recall it?

DOLAN—No, sir.

LANDIS—Is that the best answer you can give me?

DOLAN—That is the best answer I can give you now. I cannot recall it now.

LANDIS—You cannot recall it now?

DOLAN—No, sir.

LANDIS—This is Tuesday. This conversation which I am asking you about between you and O'Connell, O'Connell says, took place at the clubhouse at the Polo grounds last Saturday. That is three days. And you say you cannot recall any such conversation. The conversation I am asking you about is one which Mr. O'Connell tells me he had with you at the Polo grounds clubhouse before the team went out on the field. The conversation between you and O'Connell was in substance, as stated by O'Connell, that you asked him if he knew Sand.

Does Not Remember?

DOLAN—Did I ask him?

LANDIS—This is O'Connell's state-

"THAT'S ALL THERE IS TO IT," PARTIES IN O'CONNELL CASE SAY

BOYES SPRINGS, Cal., Jan. 10.—[United Press.]—"Well, that's all there is to it," was Jimmie O'Connell's comment today on the testimony given out by Commissioner K. M. Landis in Chicago.

"I told Commissioner Landis all there was to it and then I told the newspapers the same thing, and the testimony given out today isn't any different.

"That's all there is to it and there's nothing for me to say and nothing more I want to say."

Mr. and Mrs. O'Connell are spending the winter here.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 10.—[United Press.]—"That just bears out what I said in the first place," Long George Kelly, first baseman of the New York Giants, said here today commenting on the "bribery" testimony made public by Commissioner Landis.

"I told all my story at the time and I have nothing more to say about the affair. This report shows my story still stands. I had nothing whatever to do with bribing Heinie and I know nothing about such an attempt."

ment, that you said to him, "Do you know Sand?" Do you remember me putting that in this question to you?

DOLAN—I remember it now, when you are talking about it now.

LANDIS—Did you talk to O'Connell about Sand last Saturday?

DOLAN—In reference to what?

LANDIS — About knowing Sand. Sand is the shortstop of the Philadelphia team.

DOLAN—Yes, I know that.

LANDIS—O'Connell says you asked him if he knew Sand. This was last Saturday that he says you asked him that, and that he told you he did and that you told O'Connell to go to Sand and ask him not to bear down hard on us, meaning the Giants team, and for O'Connell to tell Sand, that is you told O'Connell to offer Sand $500 if he would not beard down too hard.

DOLAN — I don't remember it, judge.

LANDIS—You don't remember it?

DOLAN—No, sir.

LANDIS—And that is the best answer that you can give: just that you don't remember?

DOLAN—I don't remember.

LANDIS—Then do you remember of O'Connell coming back to the bench after practice, you being on the bench, and your asking O'Connell what Sand said, and, O'Connell, what was your reply?

O'CONNELL—I told Dolan that he would not do it.

LANDIS—Do you remember that conversation?

DOLAN—No, I don't.

LANDIS—You just have no recollection of that?

DOLAN—No, I don't remember anything like that at all.

Trio Deny Story.

In contrast to Dolan's loss of memory were the answers given by Young, Frisch, and Kelly, before O'Connell, when called before the commissioner, each coming along unbeknown to the others. Young was the first, and a few of his answers follow:

LANDIS—Do you remember seeing O'Connell and Dolan talking together and asking O'Connell what Cozy had said to him and O'Connell telling you that Cosy had asked him, O'Connell, to go and see Sand, shortstop of the Philadelphia club?

YOUNG—No, sir.

LANDIS—To talk to Sand of the Philadelphia club and offer him $500 if he would not bear down on the New York club that day?

YOUNG—No, sir.

LANDIS—Did O'Connell tell you that?

YOUNG—No, sir.

LANDIS—And then did you tell O'Connell to go ahead?

YOUNG—No, sir.

LANDIS—Are you dead sure of it?

YOUNG—Yes, sir.

O'Connell's Talk (?) with Young.

LANDIS—I wish you would tell me again, Mr. O'Connell, just what your talk with Young was?

O'CONNELL—He asked me what Cozy said.

LANDIS—What did you tell him?

O'CONNELL—I told him he wanted me to see Sand and offer him $500 not to bear down on us.

LANDIS—What did Young say to you?

O'CONNELL—As far as I can recall, he said "go ahead."

LANDIS—What do you say about that, Young?

YOUNG—No, sir; I did not say anything to anybody fixing anything, or anything like that.

Frisch was just as emphatic, as a few of his answers show:

LANDIS—Did you have any talk with O'Connell about any Philadelphia player?

FRISCH—No. sir.

LANDIS—Just what was that talk between you and Frisch, O'Connell?

O'CONNELL—I told him what Dolan told me.

LANDIS—Did he ask you what Dolan said to you or did you just tell him?

O'CONNELL—I just told him.

LANDIS—What did you tell him?

O'CONNELL—I told him Dolan wanted me to talk to Sand and offer him $500 not to bear down on us.

FRISCH—Who said that, Dolan?

O'CONNELL—Yes.

Dolan Just Kidding.

FRISCH—I think he must have been kidding.

LANDIS—What did you say Frisch said to you after you told him what Dolan had said to you?

O'CONNELL—"Give him anything he wants."

FRISCH—I never said that. That is news to me.

LANDIS—Did you see Dolan and O'Connell talking there?

FRISCH—No, sir.

LANDIS—And you had no talk at all with O'Connell?

FRISCH—No. sir.

LANDIS—And his statement is that he told you what Dolan had said to him, and that you said, "Go ahead and give him what he wants," meaning to give Sand what he wanted for not bearing down on the New York club.

FRISCH—That is news to me.

LANDIS—Do you think you could have had such a talk with O'Connell last Saturday afternoon and now forget it?

FRISCH—No, sir.

Friendly with O'Connell.

LANDIS—Have you any idea why O'Connell would tell me this about you if it was not true.

FRISCH—I don't know.

LANDIS—Have you any idea that he does not feel friendly toward you?

FRISCH—No, sir.

LANDIS—Did you have any talk with anybody on the team about this?

FRISCH—No, sir.

LANDIS—When did you first hear about it?

FRISCH—About what?

LANDIS — About this offer that O'Connell made to Sand.

FRISCH—I never heard anything about it. The only thing—you hear a lot of kidding around. That is all I hear. On a pennant contending team you always hear a lot of kidding and some things. That is all I hear. You always hear that, judge, on a pennant contender.

LANDIS—This is not kidding.

FRISCH—I understand.

LANDIS—When was the first time you heard of this?

FRISCH—Just now.

LANDIS—Here in this room?

FRISCH—Yes, sir.

Kelly Enters Denial.

George Kelly was the last of the players to be questioned, and his testimony was a most emphatic denial, as a few of his answers show:

LANDIS—Do you know O'Connell?

KELLY—Just since he joined our ball club.

LANDIS—Did you have any talk with O'Connell last Saturday about Sand?

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—Any kind of conversation with him about Sand?

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—Do you remember Mr. O'Connell coming up to the cage while you were at batting practice and your asking him a question?

KELLY—About what?

LANDIS—About Sand.

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—Sand is shortstop for Philadelphi?

KELLY—Yes, sir.

LANDIS—This was last Saturday. Do you have in mind the game and day clearly?

KELLY—I have.

Sand's Name Not Mentioned.

LANDIS—And you are dead sure you did not ask him any questions about Sand?

KELLY—Not a thin gabout Sand.

LANDIS—Where were you when you got the club's request to come down here?

KELLY—I was at home.

LANDIS—How did you come down?

KELLY—In the machine.

LANDIS—Did you stop anywhere?

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—Did you see anybody since you got word?

KELLY—Not a soul.

LANDIS—Do you remember asking O'Connell at the batting cage Saturday, referring to Sand, "What did he say?" Did that happen?

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—You are dead sure of that, are you?

KELLY—Yes, sir.

Couldn't Be Mistaken.

LANDIS—You could not be mistaken about that?

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—Had you heard before batting practice that day that there was anything between any of the New York players and Sand?

KELLY—Uot a thing.

LANDIS—Or that Sand was to be approached?

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—When did you first hear about that?

KELLY—I am just hearing it now.

LANDIS—This is the first?

KELLY—Yes, sir.

LANDIS—No gossip or rumor?

KELLY—Not a thing.

LANDIS—How are you and O'Connell in the matter of friendship?

KELLY—Very good friends.

LANDIS—Mr. O'Connell tells me that he went to Sand out there on the third base line and asked him who the fellows were for, meaning the Philadelphia players, and meaning who they were for to win the pennant. Do you follow me in this?

KELLY—Yes, sir.

The Bribe Offer.

LANDIS—And O'Connell said that Sand said they were not for anybody, but were just playing the season out, and O'Connell said he told Sand there would be $500 in it for him if he would just not bear down against the Giants that afternoon in the game, and Sand told him he would not do anything like that, that he would go out there and do his best, and O'Connell said that after he had that talk with Sand, he walked over by the cage where you folks were in batting practice, and that you asked him what Sand had said, and that he told you Sand said he would not do it.

KELLY — I don't know anything about it.

LANDIS—Did that happen?

KELLY—No, sir.

LANDIS—When did you first hear about that $500 thing?

KELLY—Just now. It is all news to me.

When the testimony of the players had been taken in which they made emphatic denials, and only O'Connell and the commissioner were left in the room, Landis asked O'Connell two questions.

LANDIS—Have you any idea why these men, if this thing happened as you say it did, why they should deny it in this way?

O'CONNELL—No, sir.

LANDIS—There cannot be any mistake about it as you have told it to me?

O'CONNELL—No, sir.

O'Connell was then excused, and Dolan was called in for one question.

LANDIS—You have no recollection about anything now that you did not have a while ago, that you can tell me?

DOLAN—No, sir.

Sand Tells His Story.

In order to get into the official records, Heinie Sand was called into the room following the exit of Dolan and asked to tell again just what happened on the field before that Saturday game..

SAND—Do you want me to say it in my own way?

LANDIS—Yes, just as it happened.

SAND—Johnny Couch, also a member of the Philadelphia club and myself walked from the club house to a position between short and home and started to warm up when Jimmy O'Connell came up to me and started to talk about a few games that he had arranged with the San Francisco club that was to be played when he arrived home. After talking to Couch and Oeschger and myself for awhile, getting their word that they would take part in those games and asking if I would play, I told him that I could not as I was going to stay in the east this winter. Oeschger went to the bench and Couch walked about forty feet away from me and started to warm up and then Jimmy asked me what our club thought about his club winning the pennant. I said to him that I hoped the best club would win. He said: "That is not it. How do you fellows feel toward us winning the pennant?" "Well," I said, "as far as I am concerned I would like to see you win, being a friend of mine." He said: "Well how do the other boys feel about it?" I said: "I don't know." I said something about "Well I would like to see it end up with us taking two games from you and Brooklyn beating Boston twice, which would make a tie." He said: "Hell, we don't want to play Brooklyn," and I said that was the way I would like to see it end." He said: "Would $500 change your opinion, Heinie?" I looked at him kind of disgusted and I said: "Jimmy, I am not interested," and he said: "All right, Heinie, this is just between you and me. It needn't go any further. You go out there and do your best," and with that I walked to the bench and he went to the batting cage.

Dolan's Second Interview.

On Oct. 7, while the world's series was in progress and a week or more after the exposure of the attempted bribery and the expulsion of Dolan and O'Connell, Dolan sought a second interview with Commissioner Landis at his hotel in New York. The interview was granted and the conversation in part follows:

DOLAN—Hello, Judge, how are you?

LANDIS—Come right in and sit down.

What is your full name. I have forgotten it.

DOLAN—Albert J. Dolan.

LANDIS—You are commonly called Cosy Dolan?

DOLAN—Yes, sir.

LANDIS—Did you call me on the telephone and want this interview?

DOLAN—Yes, sir.

LANDIS—What about it?

DOLAN—I want to interview you to tell you, Judge, I don't know absolutely anything about this thing. You knocked me cold the other day when you gave me that note.

LANDIS—When I gave you what?

DOLAN—When you sent that note up to me. I didn't know what it was all about. I didn't have any more idea you was going to suspend me as I have sitting right in this chair.

LANDIS—You remember O'Connell being in that room, Cosy?

DOLAN—Where? Yes, sir, I do.

LANDIS—Why do you stop and ask me where. Have you forgotten that you and he and I were together in a room?

DOLAN—No, sir.

LANDIS—Why did you say, where?

DOLAN—I mean last week.

LANDIS—Were you and I and O'Connell ever together anywhere else?

DOLAN—No, sir.

LANDIS—Now, I asked you to listen to his answer to a question that I asked him in your presence, didn't I?

DOLAN—Absolutely.

LANDIS—And what did he tell me about you?

DOLAN—Well, you read this—

LANDIS—Well, did he tell me that you had taken him to a Sunday school?

DOLAN—No, sir.

LANDIS—What did he say?

DOLAN—He said something about going to Sand, or doing something to that effect, and I told you right off the reel—I says right off the reel: "I don't remember anything like that, Judge." When I said that, I meant I don't know anything about it.

LANDIS—I am now asking you what he told me.

Won't Stand for It.

DOLAN — Said something about coming up, saying about Sand, about $500.

LANDIS—What about $500?

DOLAN—Offered to him, or something to that effect.

LANDIS—Who told him to do it. What was it he told me?

DOLAN—I don't know anything about that.

LANDIS—He said somebody told him to offer Sand $500.

DOLAN—He said I told him to offer Sand $500. That was in the interview, wasn't it?

LANDIS—I am asking you, Cos, isn't that what he told me? Do you want to answer my question?

DOLAN—I certainly want to, but I don't want you to force it on me like that. I am innocent in this thing now.

LANDIS—You didn't hear him tell me that?

DOLAN—Yes, he said something. I don't want you to do that Judge. You know damned well I hadn't anything to do with this. I don't want you to force this on me, and I won't stand for it.

LANDIS—You are not going to issue any ultimatums to me.

DOLAN—I don't want to issue any.

LANDIS—You are standing here and telling me in that belligerent attitude and manner what you won't stand for. I haven't any interest in that. Maybe you could get me in a physical combat. You are a younger man than I am.

Not Looking for Fight.

DOLAN—Judge, I don't want you to think that. I am not that kind of a man.

LANDIS—Although, maybe, I could put up some sort of a little defense if you want to try it.

DOLAN—Judge, I don't come down here to look for a fight.

LANDIS — Do you remember that O'Connell told me that you told him to offer the money to Sand?

DOLAN—Yes, sir, I remember that.

LANDIS — Did you have any talk with O'Connell in the clubhouse?

DOLAN—I, judge? So help me, God, I never had a talk with him in my life.

LANDIS—A week ago I asked you in the presence of O'Connell, and you told me you couldn't remember, and that was three days after the incident. I couldn't understand why, if he was lying about you, you didn't say, "I did not do it." Everything you said was, "I can't remember."

DOLAN—Judge, here is what—now in that—when I answered that way, "I didn't remember," I meant I didn't know anything about it. That was my way of answering, judge. I am not the best educated fellow in the world.

LANDIS—Now, what you mean here is that whenever you told me a week ago today that you didn't remember, that was your way of saying you didn't do it?

DOLAN—Yes, sir, absolutely.

LANDIS — Well, is there anything else now that you want to tell me?

DOLAN—Not a thing, judge. I just want to get this interview. I wanted to get put right. You put me down. I am out of bread and butter. I have nothing in the world. I have been in the game for sixteen years, and there has never been anything against me. I have been in here before you, judge, and I never did one thing against anybody in my life. You can write to my home. I will give you the best lawyers or anybody in my town—the mayor of the town. This is a tough thing for me, I will tell you.

LANDIS—Do you think it was nice for me?

DOLAN—No, sir, but tough for me.

LANDIS — Well, there is nothing more you want to tell me?

DOLAN—No.

LANDIS—All right. Good-by, sir.

NORTHWEST CLUB HOLDS SKATING TOURNEY TODAY

A field of more than 400 skaters will compete today in the annual ice tournament of the Northwest Skate club which will be held on the Humboldt park lagoon. The feature of the program will be the series of four races to decide the Illinois senior men's champion, the winner of the most points in these four events to be crowned state champion.

The title series is closed to class A skaters and all of the stars of the local clubs, including Francis Allen of the Austin-Columbia A. A., who last Sunday won the city championship, will compete. The races in the championship series will include a 220 yard, 880 yard, one mile, and two mile.

Steffen to Referee.

Besides the championship events, races for boys and women and other class skaters will be held. The program will start at 1:30 o'clock, according to Secretary Chris Ihle of the Northwest club.

Judge Walter P. Steffen has been named referee of the tournament, while President Frank M. Kalteux of the Western Skating association will act as starter, and Edward A. Mahlke and Henry Olsen will be clerks of course.

Race Added at Elgin.

A one mile race for class B skaters has been added to the program of events which will be run off next Sunday at Lords Park, Elgin, Ill., by the Elgin Skating club. The race is a part of the open program which will be held in conjunction with the tristate championship tournament.

Four races for class A skaters make up the tri-state championship meet, while the open program includes races for class skaters, boys and women and two closed races for Elgin skaters.

A special train will be run by the Western Skating association for the Chicago skaters who will compete and the entries for the tournament will close Tuesday with Edward A. Mahlke at 2846 West North avenue.

CHICAGO CURLERS NIP MILWAUKEE IN TIGHT SCRAP

In over thirty years of intercity play the Chicago and Milwaukee curling clubs have not had a more thrilling finish than in their match at the Washington park rink yesterday, the Chicago "knights of the beson" winning 70 to 69. Chicago was eight points down at the end of the morning round and with two matches finished in the afternoon, the score was tied. The skips in the third match were Robert Lawrie of Chicago and Ben Gregory of Milwaukee. F. Findlay, the Chicago lead, put in a good stone and as his mates put on two good guards it remained there untouched and proved the winning stone.

In the morning games Skip David Robertson of Chicago defeated Skip G. H. Hall, 16 to 7, but the veteran Ben Gregory of Milwaukee and his men swamped Herman Holthoefer's rink, 17 to 3, while William Currie of Milwaukee defeated George Alexander and his men, 12 to 9.

In the afternoon Alec Mackay defeated Currie 21 to 11, but C. Smeaton of Milwaukee defeated W. Dalrymple 13 to 10. In the other match Robert Lawrie defeated Ben Gregory of Milwaukee 11 to 9.

The visitors were entertained at a dinner at the Brevoort hotel at night.

TRIB TROPHY TO BE PRESENTED AT CAGE GAME

THE TRIBUNE Silver Football trophy, awarded to the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team during the season of 1924, will be presented to Harold (Red) Grange of the University of Illinois next Saturday night. Through invitation of Athletic Director George Huff, the presentation will be made by Harvey T. Woodruff, originator of the idea, between halves of the Illinois-Indiana basketball game at Champaign.

This sterling silver oval, full size of the outdoor pigskin, is engraved with Grange's name and college, and an explanation of the honor accorded him. It becomes his permanent property without further effort and is not subject to challenge.

Aroused Big Interest.

The trophy was offered for the first time last fall, and the contest for its possession aroused great interest throughout the conference. Grange's principal rival was Baker of Northwestern, with Parkin of Iowa, Clayton of Purdue, and Harry Thomas of Chicago contenders.

Selection of Grange was made by THE TRIBUNE through coöperation of twenty-one prominent Big Ten athletic authorities. They included all Big Ten football coaches, nine game officials (including Walter Eckersall, Commissioner Griffith, and Harvey Woodruff.

To Aid Team Play.

The purpose of the trophy is not to name and reward the greatest football player in the Big Ten (although few will deny that honor to Grange), but to designate the player of greatest value to his team throughout the season. This condition was adopted that the contest might not tempt players to individual brilliancy but encourage them to team play and so develop team morale. It thus is regarded as a constructive factor in present advancement of the gridiron game.

GRANGE AWARDED EASTERN TROPHY AS BEST PLAYER

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 10.—Award of the Leonard M. Thomas trophy to Harold ("Red") Grange, University of Illinois football half back, has been announced by the directors of the Veteran Athletes of Philadelphia in recognition of his ablity as the "most valuable player in the country."

"The directors considered that the extraordinary scoring power of Grange constituted not merely the greatest offensive threat in the country," a statement by the directors said, "but that his scoring power was also a defensive factor of the first magnitude."

It is expected that Grange and Robert Zuppke, the Illinois coach, will be present at the nineteenth annual championship night of the Veteran Athletes on Jan. 24, when the Notre Dame football team will be given a trophy symbolizing football supremacy of America and the University of Pennsylvania a trophy as eastern champions.

NEW PRO CAGERS TO MEET CRACK EASTERN FIVES

Several crack eastern pro basketball teams will be seen at the Broadway armory this season, meeting the Chicago Bruins. Manager George Halas of the new Chicago five, composed of former Big Ten captains, is arranging a schedule of one game a week.

The Chicago Bruins, who are battling under the auspices of the 202d Coast Artillery Corps, open their campaign against the Beloit Fairies Thursday night.

SILVER SKATES RACES DRAWING RECORD ENTRY

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

With one more week remaining before entries close for the annual Silver Skates Derbies of The Tribune to be held at Garfield park on Jan. 25, indications are the entry number will exceed 2,000, which will be a new record for this skating classic.

Complete team entries have been received from only two organizations—Corkery playground and Franklin park. No nominations have been sent in by the various skating clubs, schools and other playgrounds, but when these entries are in the total will approach the 2,000 mark. To date more than 600 entries have been listed, but most of them are from individuals with no club, playground, or school affiliations.

Reed Speedy Entry.

Among entries already received are two who should make strong bids for honors in the two leading races. Eddie Reed, who is now a student at the University of Illinois and who skated under the colors of the Alverno A. A. last year, is a strong favorite for honors in the boys' senior event. In 1923, Eddie won the intermediate race and was a strong contender for honors in last year's senior race which was won by Francis Allen of the Austin Columbia A. A.

Evelyn Cox of Waters playground, who won the girls' junior race in 1922, should be a strong contender for the silver skates in the girls' senior derby. Miss Cox is about the most persevering skater who ever competed in these races. She took part in the first girls' derby in 1921 and has been trying to win a pair of silver skates ever since.

O'Neil Farrell, winner of the intermediate derby last year, is another strong possibility for first place in the boys' senior and the same is true of Claude Brignall, who will skate under Maroon colors of the University of Chicago. In fact, there are so many good skaters in the race that the one who gets the breaks and takes advantage of the openings should win.

Kids Show Big Interest.

While the major races will attract most attention, keen interest is being shown in the juvenile derby, open only to boys under 14 years of age. This race has attracted the largest entry thus far, which goes to show the youngsters take a keen interest in ice racing. In fact this is the main reason why The Tribune derbies are staged. They are put on to foster and encourage healthy outdoor exercise for the growing boys and the youngsters are certainly availing themselves of the opportunity. The distance of this race will be a quarter of a mile final with 220 yard qualifying heats.

In addition to the skates which will go to the winners of first, second, and third places, those who finish fourth and fifth in each event will be given Tribune silver and bronze medals, respectively. The team which scores the highest number of points, five places to count, will be given a shield.

Entries Close Sunday.

Entries close next Sunday at midnight. An entry blank appears on the sports pages for those desiring to race. Team entry can be made by classifying the entrants in derbies on one piece of paper, which must be signed by an official of the club. No entry fee is required. Registration with the Western Skating association is the only requirement.

CATHOLIC PREP CAGERS TO STAY THROUGH MEET

Basketball teams which will come from every part of the country for the National Catholic interscholastic tournament, under auspices of Loyola university at the north side university gym on March 19, 20, 21, and 22, will be guests of the school until the end of the tournament. This was the announcement yesterday by the Rev. Joseph Thorning S. J., chairman of the board of directors of the meet.

The Rev. Mr. Thorning is carrying out the same plans that made the opening of the tourney last year such a success. Though caring for every quintet until the end of play will be a large expense, the board of directors again voted to keep every player here to see the championship game, instead of sending the vanquished home after their elimination.

Local Catholic league teams will not be invited to play in the meet in the same way as last year. In the inaugural tourney, four parochial league quintets were allowed to play, but in the coming meet, only the champion will be given an invitation as one of the probable list of thirty-five starters. This new decision will be an added incentive for the local fives, every one of which hopes to gain admission to the big tournament.

In sending invitations to out of town teams, only the ones which have come through elimination tournaments successfully will be given recognition. There will be only one exception to this edict in cases where quintets have good records and have been unable to compete in elimination meets.

RARE DOGS ON EXHIBITION HERE

St. Bernards and coach dogs, rarely seen at canine shows, were well represented with good specimens at the opening of the dog show yesterday at the 1st regiment armory. One of the attractive features is three couples of English fox hounds.

All classes of sporting and nonsporting dogs were well represented. The show will close with another display of the many breeds of canines today.

HAUGEN DEFENDS SKI TITLE NEXT SUNDAY

Lars Haugen, the present national champion, is in for a rough time in defending his honors in the international ski tournament, which will be held next Sunday at the big Norge Ski club slide in Fox River Grove at Cary, Ill. The best riders in this country as well as of Norway and Canada are entered in the meet which has attracted nation-wide attention.

Alf Bakken, who recently joined the Norge club, probably will be Haugen's chief source of worry. Bakken holds records for the slides at Cary, Coleraine, Minn., and Canton, S. D., and has been among the consistent winners for the last two years. Bakken has been jumping in great style in practice and hopes to defeat the champion.

Henry Hall of Detroit, Mich., one of three brothers, also is looked on as a dangerous rival for Haugen. Hall is a veteran jumper in point of years, although still a young man, and has competed over the Norge slide before.

Anders Haugen, brother of the champion, Harry Lein, one of the U. S. Olympic riders, and Barney Reilly, the little Irishman of Colleraine, Minn., are other riders who will give Lars a battle. Several riders from Norway are entered but all are more or less unknown as they never have competed at Cary.

Officials of the Norge club have arranged to care for a big crowd at the tournament. Special trains will be run to Cary the day of the meet over the Chicago and Northwestern and the specials will leave for Chicago immediately after the tournament is over. Tickets for the meet are $2.50, including railroad fare, or $1 admission for the grounds for those who drive. Parking space has been arranged for the motorists on the grounds.

Tickets for the meet will be sold at the Northwestern terminal at Clinton and Madison streets next Saturday all day and Sunday morning. Tickets also will be distributed at Spaulding's during the week.

Another practice session will be held for the riders today. Last Sunday more than twenty riders worked out at the hill and Alf Bakken set a new unofficial standing jump record of 172 feet.

Entries for the meet received to date follow:

Alf Bakken, Oluf Skogen, Hans Hansen, Arne Sletner, Carl Norman, Einar Jensen, Harry Lion, Agnar Rehnberg, Henry Hall, Alf Jansen, Erling Gordon, Sig Stedt, John Waugen, Carl Hall, Olaf Mathisen, Christ Hansen, Clarence Hall, Christ Berge, Erling Dahl, Martin Haldaasen, Knut Orsahl, Ingvald Bruseth, Wilh Ursin, Knut Bakkelid, Erling Eide, Roy Krogh, Dudley Carmichael, Morris Waterman, Barney Reilly, Erwin Zalud, Oscar Cornell, Tarald Hoidalen, John Plichta, Peter Jerve, Terje Jensen, Trygve Petersen, Ole Feiring, Eugene Petersen, Hans Ruud, Julius Blegen, Ketil Motzfeldt, Henrik Lundh, Thor Wollebak, Carlyle Lindholm, Reidar Lundh, Hans Thorsdalen, Otto Vikre, Arthur Gundersen, Leonard Hedman, Ole Gundersen, Lars Haugen, Andrew Olsen, Sven Welhaven, Arvid Bakke, Carl Gronland, Lars Jensen, Ted Stang, Carl Gundersen, Grenner Gundhus, Myron Gundersen.

Fleetest Runner Displays Speed Friday at I. A. C. Meet

When Paavo Nurmi, the great Finnish runner, whose sparkling performances featured the Olympic games held last summer, toes the mark at the Coliseum on Friday night with Joie Ray of the I. A. C. and Willie Ritola of Finland, those fortunate enough to get into the big building will see the greatest foot racer of all times.

Previous to Nurmi's scintillating running in Paris last summer, Alfred Shrubb of England was generally recognized as the greatest runner of all time. Joie Ray of the I. A. C. has always been considered America's premier middle distance foot racer, although some thought Melvin Sheppard, Norman Taber, Johnny Overton, or Paul Jones were entitled to this honor. Kolemainen of Finland is also prominently mentioned when the question of the world's greatest runner of all time is broached.

Nurmi, however, has eclipsed performances of these great athletes. His marvelous running in New York City last week, when he won two races, smashed three world's indoor records, and defeated both Ray and Ritola after corking races, stamps him as an athlete of exceptional ability.

Match Race Feature.

In his first appearance in America last week at New York City, where he ran for the first time on a board track, Nurmi lowered the world's record of 4:14 3-5 for 1 mile to 4:13 3-5. It was in this race that he defeated Ray by 3 yards after a gruelling contest in which Nurmi came from behind to win. After a 90 minute rest, Nurmi returned to the track and won the 5,000 meter run in 14:44 3-5, which lowered the old world's record of 14:54 3-5 made by Ray in 1923. The other world's indoor record to be broken by Nurmi was the 1,500 meters, which he covered in 3:56 1-5, and which beat the old record of 4:01 3-5 made by Ray last year.

The three cornered race between Nurmi, Ray, and Ritola, which will be the feature of the annual indoor handicap track and field games of the I. A. C. will be run over a distance of 1¼ miles. This distance was set by Nurmi, who is anxious to crack every existing indoor world's record from 1 to 5 miles.

The present world's indoor record for one and one-quarter miles is 5:33 3-5 and was made in New York City by Joie Ray in 1922. When Nurmi cracked the three records in New York City the track measured eleven laps to the mile. The course at the Coliseum will be ten circuits to the mile and Nurmi is expected to make much faster time.

Other Stars to Compete.

Following his return to Chicago, Ray asserted he used some bad judgment in racing Nurmi in New York. He believes with just a little better judgment of pace, he will be able to defeat the Finlander, and it goes without saying he will bend every effort to win from Nurmi in his home town and before his host of followers.

Nurmi, Ray, and Ritola, however, will not be the only athletes of national and international reputations to perform. Tried performers who were members of the victorious American Olympic team which competed in the world's games in Paris last summer, will compete in their specialties. The entries closed last Friday and the lists are now in the hands of the Central A. A. U. handicapper, who will announce the allowances during the week.

College Relay Planned.

In addition to the regular list of handicap events, there will be contests for high school performers and a special invitation two mile university and college relay. Tickets for the games, which should be by far the most successful ever held in Chicago, are on sale at the I. A. C., 112 South Michigan avenue, and the meet will be conducted under the personal direction of Charles A. Dean, chairman of the Tricolor athletic committee and manager of last year's American Olympic team.

Joie Ray yesterday openly declared he would take the measure of Paavo Nurmi in their mile and a quarter race at the Coliseum.

Ray, starting training for the event, gives Nurmi high praise for the race he ran in his American debut in New York, when Ray trailed him to the tape.

120 OLYMPIC STARS RETIRE FROM TRACK

New York, Jan. 10.—Twelve athletes who wore the American shield in the 1924 Olympic games have hung up their running shoes and announced their permanent or temporary retirement from active competition. This was revealed by officials of the Wilco A. A. today, following replies from invitations to sixty members of the last American Olympic team to compete in the Wilco's indoor meet Feb. 7.

Alfred Leconey, former intercollegiate sprint champion and a member of the American Olympic 400 meter relay team which broke the world's record in winning the Olympic championship, and Fred Lovejoy of Cornell, another sprinter, both declined the invitation to compete in the Wilco games, saying they would do no more running for the present indoor season, at least.

Taylor Forced to Quit.

J. Coard Taylor, New York A. C. quarter miler and former Princeton hurdler, has been forced into permanent retirement by the tendon injury he received at the Olympic games in the final of the 400 meter race. Schuyler Enck, former Penn State half miler and the first American to finish in the Olympic 800 meter race, reports that he has no facilities for training where he is now employed, and consequently must retire from competition. Larry Brown, former Pennsylvania track star, is another middle distance runner to quit competition.

One of the chief surprises in the list of replies received was one from Ray Buker, the present national mile champion and one of the men who was expected to be a formidable rival indoors for Paavo Nurmi. The former Illinois A. C. star is now studying at Boston for missionary work as a minister, and cannot find time to train.

Others Decied to Quit.

Johnny Romig, former Penn State star; Earl Johnson, distance runner of Pittsburgh; Karl Anderson, Illinois A. C., hurdler; Brutus Hamilton, all-around star from Kansas City; Fred Tootell, Olympic hammer throwing champion, and Tom Lieb, former Notre Dame discus thrower, are among the others who have decided to forsake the track for various reasons and retire to business or professional careers.

Maine Tankers Down Harrison Teams Twice

Maine Township High school swimmers added another dual meet to their list of victories yesterday at Des Plaines, winning from Harrison seniors and juniors by respective scores of 42 to 17 and 35 to 24. Capt. Merrill of the winning seniors tallied 14¼ points, with victories in the 100 and 40 yard crawls, besides swimming on the relay team and second in the 60 yard backstroke.

ST. PHILLIPS IN GAME.

A double basketball attraction has been billed at the St. Phillips A. C. clubhouse for Tuesday. The home team is slated to clash with the J. P. I. Buckeyes in the windup at 9 o'clock and the Armour Square Lightnings take on the J. P. I. Flashes in the other game an hour earlier.

U. S. GOLF BODY DECIDES IN FAVOR OF A NEW BALL

New York, Jan. 10.—[By Associated Press.]—The United States Golf association, at its annual meeting here today, decided not to send a team to Great Britain this year to defend the Walker cup, went on record as favoring a standard ball of less driving power than the present ball, selected dates for the four big championship events, and elected officers for the coming year.

The decision to omit competition for the Walker cup was reached because of two reasons, the expense involved and the wish to confine this competition to alternate years. No date was selected for the next competition, but it is generally understood that in 1926 the American team will invade England for a Walker cup match.

Favor New Ball.

The subject of the standard ball occupied the major part of the meeting. William C. Fownes Jr., chairman of the committee on implements and the ball, reported that tests held in various parts of the country during the last year convinced the committee that a ball which will meet the needs of the average player was necessary.

These tests, he said, were held in coöperation with the Royal and Ancient club of Great Britain, and although no final decision had been reached jointly, the American committee had decided on a ball to be not less than 1.68 inches in diameter nor more than 1.55 ounces in weight.

This ball, according to Mr. Fownes, is more adapted to the American game than the present ball of 1.62 inches in diameter and 1.62 ounces in weight. The committee had originally intended to put this ball in play Jan. 1, 1926, but out of deference to the British club, which organization has not yet completed its tests, it was decided to defer until Jan. 1, 1927, the universal use of the new standard ball.

Mr. Fownes also reported on the action of the association during the year in permitting the use of the steel shaft, citing the reasons for so doing, namely that it gave no playing advantage over hickory, that it is durable and of uniformly good quality, and thus affords relief to many players who would otherwise be using poor quality hickory shafts, and that it conserves the supply of hickory.

Seek to Shorten Meets.

Several suggestions to cut down the playing time and to reduce the field of entries for the national amateur championships were discussed, but no definite agreement was reached. The delegates felt the competition was too long drawn out and too cumbersome to golfers and spectators alike.

Official dates for the four national championships conducted by the U. S. G. A. were fixed as follows:

Amateur, Oakmont Country club, Pittsburgh, Aug. 31 to Sept. 5. Open, Worcester Country club, June 3 and 4; women's, St. Louis Country club, Sept. 28 to Oct. 3; Public links, Salisbury, Country club, Garden City, N. Y., Aug. 4 to 8.

Officers Reëlected.

All the officers with the exception of Herbert H. Ramsay of New York, who was elected secretary in place of C. S. Lee of New York, were reëlected. The new officers and the new executive committee follow:

President, Wynant D. Vanderpool, Morris County Golf club, Convent, N. J.; vice presidents, Robert A. Gardner, Onwentsia club, Chicago; William C. Fownes Jr., Oakmont Country club, Pittsburgh, Pa.; secretary, Herbert H. Ramsay, the Creek club, New York; treasurer, Edward S. Moore, National Golf Links, Southampton, L. I.; counsel, Adrian H. Larkin, Shinnecock Hills Golf club, Southampton, L. I.

Executive committee—Roger D. Lapham, San Francisco Golf and Country club, San Francisco, Cal.; William J. Foye, Omaha Country club, Omaha, Neb.; Thomas B. Paine, Atlanta Athletic club, Atlanta, Ga.; James D. Standish Jr., Lochmoor Country club, Detroit, Mich.; Cameron B. Buxton, Brook Hollow Golf club, Philadelphia; Herbert Jaques, the Country club, Brookline, Mass.; Alan D. Wilson, Merion Cricket club, Philadelphia; Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago.

Sectional representation — William C. Fownes Jr., Pennsylvania Golf association; Robert A. Gardner, Chicago District Golf association; Roger D. Lapham, California Golf association; William J. Foye, Trans-Mississippi Golf association; James D. Standish Jr., Western Golf association; Alan D. Wilson, Pennsylvania Golf association.

Nominating committee, 1926—Alfred M. Coats, chairman, Rhode Island Country club, Providence, R. I.; Paul Moore, Morris County Golf club, Convent, N. J.; C. Chester Allen, Kenosha Country club, Kenosha, Wis.; Robert T. Jones, Atlanta Athletic club, Atlanta, Ga.; Allen T. West, St. Louis Country club.

LOCAL GOLF

THE first of a series of team matches to be played at the Hub indoor school will be staged tomorrow at 12:30, Chick Evans and Art Sweet meeting Frank MacDonald and Jimmy Meehan in a thirty-six hole event. Six other teams will compete in this round robin tournament.

Following the decision by the board of governors of the Acacia Country club to rebuild the burned clubhouse, the women's auxiliary met yesterday at the Sherman house and pledged its support in the movement. The governors next Thursday night will receive three sets of plans for the new building. After their inspection a special meeting of the membership will be called to ratify action. It is hoped to start the new quarters by March.

The board of governors of the Illinois Juniors' Golf association is considering a novel plan to develop the game of probable future champions. It has been proposed that sixteen or twenty of the most promising players be placed under professional instructions and every angle of the game, including the rules, be drilled into them.

Walter Egan of Exmoor, former western amateur champion, has started on a long golf tour that includes Florida, the Panama canal, and a trip up the Pacific coast to California, and finally a visit with his cousin, H. Chandler Egan, at Medford, Ore.

"Red" Ormsby, American league umpire, has weathered many an extra inning tilt on the diamond, but he hoisted the white flag yesterday at the Tavern Golf club after having refereed the first half of a thirty-six hole indoor match. Scotland and Ireland clashed in the event, George Hamilton and "Al" Carnegie of the land of heather meeting and defeating Pat Collins and Eddie Murphy of the Emerald Isle, 2 and 1. The trouble started when "Red" called a foozled putt by Murphy a strike, and grew when he declared Carnegie's slice at the third hole a foul. Ormsby stuck it out for eighteen holes and then quit.

Walter Crowdus and Eldridge Robinson defeated Chick Evans and Capt. E. F. Carter, 3 and 1, in a thirty-six hole exhibition match which marked the opening of the Tivnan and Yorgan indoor school at 218 South Clark street yesterday.

AD MEN'S GOLF IS RAINED OUT

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 10. — Rain today forced the postponement of the tournament held by the Winter Golf league of advertising interest. The Tin Whistle golf meet was called off. The Advertisers will start play tomorrow on the links of the Mid-Pines Country club, where they will play in foursomes. The women's championship will start Monday.

POLOISTS DUE TOMORROW FOR INDOOR TOURNEY

The advance guard of the players who will compete in the first intercity indoor polo tournament in history starting Wednesday afternoon at the new riding club, Ontario street and McClurg court, is looked for tomorrow. The seven visiting trios will practice on the tan-bark arena Tuesday.

Two strings of polo ponies arrived at the club yesterday, those owned by the New York and Detroit teams. The fifty-eight remaining ponies should arrive by tomorrow night at the latest. Word has been received that all are on the way.

Star Players Coming.

Many of the leading indoor polo players of America are included among the entrants who will battle here on Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday, both afternoons and nights. The complete list of entries follows:

Detroit—J. McCarthy, Gerald Christopher, and F. C. Collins.
Cincinnati—O. De G. Vanderbilt, T. B. Manuel, and Harrison Smith.
Cleveland—A. G. Allen, Dudley Millikan, and C. Todd Ebert.
Philadelphia—F. T. Chambers, J. C. Kinsley, and J. N. O'Neil.
New York—B. Hamilton, P. Ladin, and W. L. Fanning.
Brooklyn—L. W. Mortenson, J. H. Sackman, and H. C. Parsons.
Newark—J. D. Gessford, T. Bryce, and R. E. Towers.
Chicago—Capt. P. P. Rodes, Lieut. M. M. Corpening, and Lieut. L. Smith.

To Open Ticket Sale.

According to the rules of the United States Indoor Polo association, under whose auspices the tourney is being staged, the teams must be handicapped not less than six and not more than twelve. The Chicago trio is exactly twelve.

Tickets for the tournament go on sale early this week at Spalding's, the event being open to the public. Scores of visitors are coming from all parts of the country.

AMATEUR CHAMP ENTERS SIX DAY BICYCLE RACE

Willie Fenn Jr., amateur champion of 1923, who was America's representative in the sprint races at the Olympic games last summer, has forwarded his signed contract to Manager Paddy Harmon for the Chicago six day race. Fenn is the son of the famous Willie Fenn who held the amateur championship of America in 1920. The youngster is a chip of the old block and is expected to be a second Bobby Walthour Jr. He was unable to give a true account of himself at the Olympic games because he became ill, but as an amateur in America in 1923 and also in 1924, before he went to Paris he was invincible.

Fenn is only 20 years old and will be one of the youngest riders in the race. He weighs 170 pounds and is 5 feet 10 inches in height. Fenn's father was a corking good six day rider and the youngster is expected to be just as good. It would not be surprising if his dad acted as his trainer in the Chicago grind.

NEWMAN PICKS TOMMY TO COP DEMPSEY'S TITLE

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

New York, Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Tommy Gibbons will beat Jack Dempsey if they ever meet again.

Sounds like a rash sort of statement, but after listening to all the silly prattle about this mug and that mug being groomed to fight the champion, the more we are inclined to believe that there is only one man in the whole field of challengers that has any right in the same ring with Jack Dempsey. Tommy Gibbons is that man, in my opinion, and I have been weighing the matter very carefully in my mind before putting it on the line for the boys to shoot at.

Let's ask ourselves a few questions along the line of getting a challenger for the champion. Who is there outside of Tommy Gibbons that would stand a ghost of a chance against the Manassas mauler, and the answer is, NOT ONE. Then why not Tommy Gibbons for another bang at the big champion? We honestly believe Tommy Gibbons will beat Dempsey if they ever meet again. They are bound to meet again. There will be a demand for such a fight.

Tom Will Be Champ.

Any time that a man can travel fifteen rounds with Dempsey he deserves another chance, and when that chance comes you will find Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul the next heavyweight champion of the world.

All the talk about that affair at Shelby and the assertion that the bad men of Montana intimidated Dempsey and forced Dempsey to carry Gibbons is the bunk, pure and simple. I was fortunate enough to be in Shelby when they pulled that Dempsey and Gibbons bust, and I didn't notice any bad men. I have often wondered many times since what they mean by the bad men of Montana. All I could see was a set of game sportsmen who rushed in at the last minute to save the fair name of their state and go down in their pockets to get enough money, or nearly enough, to put the show across.

In making the prediction that Gibbons can beat Dempsey I am not influenced by any prejudices in the matter. I have known Jack Dempsey for many years and have been with him at his training camps for all his important fights. I know Jack Dempsey as one of the finest fellows that ever lived and am glad to include Jack as one of our best friends. I know Jack Dempsey is one of the greatest fighters that ever pulled on a glove, but I am just expressing an honest opinion in the matter when I say Gibbons will beat the champ when they meet on the return trip.

Saw Shelby Scrap.

As for Tommy Gibbons, I also know Tom very well. I have covered Gib's camps on nearly all his big fights and know him as a different sort of man to be found in the boxing racket. Morally, mentally and physically, Tommy Gibbons is the greatest fighter that ever lived. A clean living fellow, whose wildest dissipation is a brace of strawberry ice cream after a hard day's work.

In support of my prediction, I want to say that I saw that fight between Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby. Just lucky to be assembled with the rest of the war correspondents, sending a play by play account of the fight and the suggestion that the champ let Gib stay, is, in our opinion, the finest line of junk that was ever peddled from a ring side.

Dempsey tried to kill Gibbons right off the bat. Gibbons had the champ's goat before the start, when he worked the old army game of making an opponent sit alone in the ring fretting half to death while waiting for his opponent to arrive. Dempsey nearly died of nervousness, while Gib sat back in the shade of his camp and didn't stir for the battle field until he got good and ready.

Then when Gibbons did get into the ring, he didn't give any body a tumble, but going over to Dempsey's corner where a raft of seconds with Jack Kearns in charge, were doing their derndest to keep the champion in good mood. Gibbons brushed the crowd surrounding the champion to one side and then grabbing Dempsey by the hand gave it a yank, which paralyzed the champion for the moment.

Tom There at Finish.

Dempsey was dead sore. No one else had ever dared pull that stuff on him and he told Kearns just before the first bell that he would make short work of that fresh Gibbons guy. Well, what he did to Gibbons is history, but we noticed that Tommy Gibbons was still up there at the end of the fifteen rounds ready and willing to fight the champion all day if necessary. O, yes: Dempsey carried Gibbons in that famous quarrel. Like Kelly did.

I believe Tommy Gibbons was too timid that afternoon. Probably a little bit too cautious, facing such a murderous hitter as Dempsey.

Tom Won't Miss Chance.

Gibbons will box rings around Dempsey on their next trip and knock him bowlegged just as sure as you are alive. You can go bet that if Tommy ever gets the champ in the same position as Georges Carpentier had him in that famous second round in Jersey City, or where Luis Firpo had him in the first round at the Polo Ground a little more than a year ago, he will never escape. Don't forget that Gibbons is a sharp shooter and never makes a move unless there is an objective point.

Dempsey can be hit with a right hand as was evident in his scraps with Carpentier, Firpo and Gunboat Smith. Well, if those eggs could hit him with a right hand and have him in trouble, you can go and bet something pretty that Gibbons will hit him and when he does we will have a new champion.

Now, boys get out your old Louisville sluggers and go to work on me one at a time.

ZBYSZKO'S OPPONENT

Allen Eustace is trying a head chancery and body lock which may come in handy when he and Stanislaus Zbyszko go to the mat at the Coliseum Wednesday night. The winner may get a chance at the new champion, Wayne "Big" Munn.

UNIVERSITY OF IOWA PAYS $56.67 TO PUT GRID MAN ON FIELD

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—It costs $55.67 for a University of Iowa football player to trot on the field for the initial practice and the remaining sports necessitate an expenditure of $30 per man. This covers the cost of but the first equipment. Track men come next in the list and baseball players are the cheapest of the major athletes with an initial expense of $28.40. Swimmers are the only group of men not requiring an expensive individual equipment.

OREGON BOXING LAW UNDER FIRE AS SOLONS MEET

Portland, Ore., Jan. 10.—Dissatisfaction with the results noticed since the present ten round boxing law was put in effect by the Oregon legislature has reached such a point that a number of amendments to the law probably will be offered at the session which opens Monday.

One group will attempt to have the law changed to prohibit more than four rounds of boxing in any one fight.

Chief opposition to the present law centers on the powers given municipal boxing commissions. Under the present law the fighters are selected by the commission.

Bennie Leonard Improving After Tonsillitis Attack

New York, Jan. 10.—Bennie Leonard, world's lightweight champion, who has been ill with an attack of tonsilitis, continues to show improvement, it was said at his home here today. The champion is still in bed, but he is permitted to sit up for a short time each day. His physician expects him to be recovered completely in a week.

LEWIS CALLS OFF HIS EUROPEAN MAT TOUR

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Billy Sandow, manager of Ed (Strangler Lewis, who lost his world's heavyweight wrestling title to Wayne Munn here last Thursday night, announced today he has canceled the proposed European tour of the former champion. Lewis was scheduled to sail Jan. 16.

Sandow asserted the reason for the cancellation was because Lewis lost his title on a technicality. The tour was to have been over a period of six weeks with a liberal guarantee for each week. Sandow also asserted Lewis' attorney has advised him to apply for an injunction restraining Munn from using the title of world's heavyweight champion. Sandow claims Lewis was entitled to the match on a foul as a result of being thrown out of the ring.

Lewis probably will be discharged from the hospital here in two or three days, it was said today. Lewis, who suffered a strain of the sacro-iliac joint in the match, was reported to be resting comfortably.

LOCAL SOCCER TEAMS RESUME GAMES TODAY

Local soccer players will resume competition today after a layoff occasioned by the cold weather. The big event will be the meeting of the Thistles and Olympias, who will replay their tie in the national soccer cup competition at 47th avenue and 19th street. The winner of this match will enter the first round of the national cup series and will have to oppose the Bricklayers. Matches in the first round must be played before Jan. 18.

In the first meeting of the Olympias and Thistles the game ended in a row twelve minutes before time, and a replay was ordered.

Another big attraction this afternoon will be the clash of Swedish-American and Sture teams at Riverview park in the second round of the national amateur championship contest.

Carl Johnson, manager of the Swedish-Americans, reports that Riverview field is in fine shape. Johnson's team, then managed by Ernie Olson, was runner up for the national amateur championship last season, and Carl expects to go all the way this year. However, "Andy" Anderson, who handles the International league champs, avers his aggregation will stop the Major leaguers.

The Canadian club, Major league champs, will meet Mistletoe of the St. George league at Ogden park in an exhibition match.

Sparta will meet the Joliet steel works club at 27th street and Kostner avenue.

All games will start at 2:30.

SUCCESS
Without a Parallel
In Motor Car History

As a manufacturing and business achievement, the success of the Chrysler Six in its first year before the public is remarkable enough.

But it is even more remarkable since, both in number of cars produced and in money-volume, it reaches figures never before recorded in the 25-year history of the motor car. In its first year, just closed, Chrysler Six has built and shipped more than 32,000 cars. The public has eagerly paid over $50,000,000 for the privilege of enjoying the motoring superiorities which were unknown until Chrysler revealed them.

One year ago the Chrysler Six was little more than a name to the public at large. Beyond the word of Walter P. Chrysler that it was striking an entirely new note in motoring performance and efficiency and comfort, it was an unknown quantity.

Today it is the one car talked about above all others.

Never before has a motor car so quickly and completely captured the whole public. Never has any car appealed so irresistibly to buyers of all classes, and to owners of all classes of cars.

Never has any car so completely swept aside traditions or so surely pointed the way to the obsolescence of the cumbersome, the heavy and the wasteful in motoring.

Never before have such results as Chrysler Six provides been achieved with such compactness of construction and yet with comfort of such superlative degree.

In a word, the Chrysler Six—in the 25th year of the motor car, when it might have seemed that the full gamut of engineering and manufacturing ingenuity had been run—gave to the public a car which in size and weight, in comfort and room, in performance and economy, in alertness and stamina, was precisely what the public had long wanted, but never before received.

What has come to Chrysler Six in its first year is nothing more than the reward and the recognition which the world is sure to bestow upon something distinctively superior to that which has preceded it.

Thus Chrysler Six completes the first of what enthusiastic Chrysler owners predict will be many successful years—years in which we shall earnestly strive to keep the Chrysler as far ahead of the wasteful and the commonplace as it stands at this minute.

CHRYSLER SIX

MUNN TO WATCH EUSTACE MAT GO WITH ZBYSZKO

When Allen Eustace of Wakefield, Kas., and Stanislau Zbyszko, the Pole, take holds in the main event of the wrestling show to be conducted by Promoters Ed White and Joe Coffey at the Coliseum on Wednesday night, Wayne Munn, the new world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will be at the ringside.

Munn accepted an invitation from the promoters to come to Chicago and be introduced at the show. Not only did the new title holder accept the invitation, but he has consented to act as referee of one of the preliminaries. Munn and Manager Kauffman will arrive on Wednesday morning and will stop at the Morrison, where they will be given a dinner on Wednesday evening by local promoters and wrestlers.

May Wrestle Here.

While he is in Chicago, Munn may be signed to meet a worthy opponent at a futuer show. He may be asked to meet the winner of Eustace-Zbyszko bout, as the local promoters have several dates at the Coliseum for the remainder of the mat season. At any rate, Munn will watch every move of the grapplers in the main event, Eustace especially.

Eustace broke into the limelight by tossing the might Pole when the latter was a strong championship contender. This bout took place in Milwaukee, where Stanislaus had agreed to throw Eustace and Bill Demetral in a given length of time. Allen was the first to tackle the Pole and pinned him. It then was not neccessary for Demeral to take holds with Zbyszko.

Broke Pole's Leg.

The pair met for the second time in Grand Rapids, Mich., and the Kansan secured a leg hold after the men had been on the mat for more than an hour. The Pole would not give up, and, as a result, had his leg broken. He was then forced to forfeit the match. Following this contest Eustace retired for a time to work his farm in Kansas and take on a little more weight.

Both have been defeated by the former champion, Lewis, and each is content to go along and defeat enough of the challengers to secure a championship match with the new title holder on his merits. They are about equal in weight, but Eustace is much the younger and faster. Both have unlimited endurance and for this reason Promoters White and Coffey will have the men in the ring and ready to wrestle at 10 o'clock on the night of the contest.

In the semi-windup Joe "Toots" Mondt will take holds with Joe Zickman and William Demetral, and Hassen Giles will take holds in one of the one fall preliminaries. Another match will complete the progarm, which will open at 8:30 o'clock.

Woods and Waters by BOB. BECKER

FUR HUNTERS AND ICE FISHERMEN ARE BUSY.

THE trappers and ice fishermen are busy boys right now as with the waterfowl hunting season over most of the hunters have joined the stove league for a few months. Although some conservation organizations lament the activities of the ice fishermen as it is felt that this sport is just one more way of depleting our game fish, there is not a great number of fishermen who care to buck cold winds and fight frost bites by staying many hours on the ice so the army of ice fishermen is not a large one.

But from the Gulf of Mexico to the far north the fur hunters are on the job in large numbers. Although the farmer's boy looks upon trapping as more fun than work, in the north country where the thermometer reads 40, 50, or 60 below and living is often a struggle against the elements, the fur hunters' game is a serious business.

The man who has never run a trap line in the snow has missed quite an experience. The thrills and anticipations that a fellow experiences as he follows the string of sets along the creek, through the woods and in the valley make up for some of the discomforts. We'll never forget the fun we had outwitting one crafty mink when we were trapping in Oregon one autumn. For several mornings we read the story of this mink's hunting in the snow until he came to our set, scorned it and went on his way rejoicing. But a real duck for bait and a set in the stream finally landed Mr. Mink who was living along a small stream where a number of beavers were supposed to be the bosses of the ranch.

While in Alaska we never tired of listening to the Indians and guides tell about their fur hunting expeditions in the dead of winter. More natural history would be spilled in these story telling hours than a fellow could experience in two life times. First Gene, our guide, told us of mushing with his dogs into a valley where the wolves were killing mountain sheep and camping out while he scattered poisoned baits for the big killers. As it was only 50 below zero at the time camping must have been a real pleasure. But he got the wolves, praise be. Then one of the Indians told us about one of his trips over the trap line, of the lynx, mink, marten and wolves trapped and of the cunning, powerful wolverine that wrecked his sets, broke into his food cache, and otherwise worried him until killed. Living in a tent when it was 40 to 60 below, this Indian said he was very comfortable "most time," although one day he froze his cheeks and nose.

With good fur getting scarcer and scarcer the trappers in the frozen northland are not bagging their prize skins without plenty of work and hardships.

RUDOLPH AND SEABACK OPEN CUE TILT HERE

Charles Seaback of Boston will be the next local attraction in the National Pocket Billiard league here, meeting Erwin Rudolph at Mussey's Madison street room, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, in a series of six games. Seaback, who last played here in the national championship tournament several years ago, is a newcomer in the league, and so far has not shown as well as expected.

The week will be one of the most interesting in the schedule, as Taberski and Woods are billed to start a series at Syracuse tomorrow, while St. Jean of Minneapolis and Natalie, who are in second and third positions, will start at Baltimore the same day.

On Thursday Champion Greenleaf and Bennie Allen of Kansas City will open at Philadelphia. St. Jean last week took five of the six games from Seaback, and equaled this season's record of five innings for 100 points. The standings:

	W.	L.	H.R.	B.G.
Greenleaf, Philadelphia..	29	13	73	6
St. Jean, Minneapolis...	27	15	61	5
Natalie, Baltimore........	23	13	52	6

CHICAGO BANK FIVE TAKES TEAM LEAD AT AURORA

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—The Marshall Square State Bank of Chicago shot into first place in the five man event of the eleventh annual Interstate Bowling tournament here tonight with 2,886, replacing the Fenske Brothers, also of Chicago.

With more than a hundred bowlers on the alleys today, the leaders in the other two events remained unplaced. Armstrong and Smith of Belvidere, Ill., are leading in the doubles with 1,230, and E. Schupp is on top in the singles with 656. Bowlers from Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, and Wisconsin will be on the alleys tomorrow. Today's best scores:

INTERNATIONAL RACES FAVORED BY EUROPEANS

BY FRENCH LANE.

There is more interest in the continuation of racing in England and France than there is in this country, according to Billy Ryan, the Beau Brummel of American race tracks, who was back in Chicago yesterday after a several weeks' visit in Europe.

He had been delegated by the Chicago Business Men's Racing association to call on officials of the jockey clubs in France and England, and to inspect racing plants in those countries with the view of incorporating some of their building plans in the improvement program at Hawthorne.

France Wants More Races.

"In France the racing interests are particularly anxious to continue the international series with the best horses of America," Ryan said. "They still can't figure out how Epinard was beaten in all of his races here last season, and are not convinced that American horses are faster or have greater staying qualities than those bred in Franec or England. They want a chance to prove as much.

"Owners and breeders in France and England are waiting anxiously to learn what the international program will include this year, and if the right sort of races are arranged there will be more invaders here again this year."

Talk Plans This Week.

Billy Myers, superintendent of the Hawthorne track, will meet with Ryan this week and go over some of the ideas of track improvements that the Chicagoan was able to pick up across the Atlantic, and several of them, no doubt, will be included in the Hawthorne changes.

AUGIE CLINCHES PRIZE IN CITY BILLIARD LEAGUE

With only one more game to play, Augie Kieckhefer is leading in the Chicago Billiard league race and cannot be passed in the first section of the schedule which will finish on Friday. He is assured of first prize, but the disposition of the other awards is uncertain. Tomorrow Durocher will play Towle at Mussey's Jackson street room, Jacobs will meet Kennedy at Rainbow No. 2, and Sorger will oppose Lawyer at the Windy City.

The BULL'S EYE
Published every Now and Then
Proprietor MR. ROGERS Circulation Mrs. W. ROGERS Editor WILL ROGERS

I KNOW people are going to say "What do you think of Will Rogers writing and endorsing 'Bull' Durham?" That's where you're wrong. I am not endorsing it. I never smoked any tobacco in my life, not even 'Bull' Durham.

If you want to know the real truth why I signed up to write a lot of pieces for these people, it's because I love animals. Have you ever studied that picture of the 'Bull' carefully? . . . have you ever seen such a kind-looking animal? I thought this:—certainly no one who cares as much about dumb creatures as they do would put out anything but the best smoking tobacco possible—so I said all right, I'll write your stuff. Honestly, the money part of it didn't have much to do with it. That is, not very much.

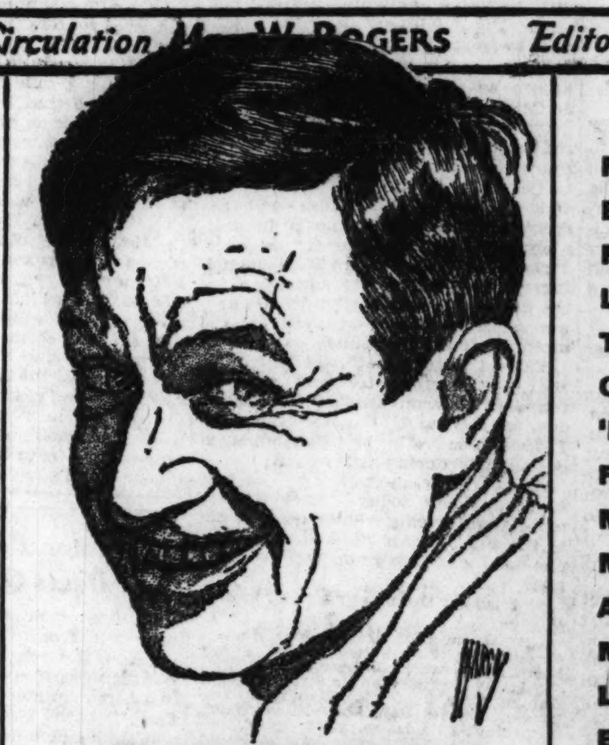
Seriously, though, out where I come from, unless a male member of the population has got that 'Bull' Durham tag hanging from the shirt pocket, he's liable to be arrested for indecent exposure. And, you believe me, you can't sell those western hard-boiled eggs much and keep on selling them unless it's got class.

Guess maybe this not smoking thing has sort of got me winging. Wonder if that's why things has turned out this way. Come to think of it, it may be a moral lesson to the youth of this country. The moral in my case being, if you want to grow up and know nothing but telling jokes and have people laughing at you all the time, don't smoke.

But who wants to go through life acting the fool?

Will Rogers

P. S. There will be another piece here next Sunday. Watch for it.



Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist, announces a series of 'Bull' Durham advertisements that will appear here weekly. They are worth watching for.

Even the best Furnace must be properly installed
ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEM
Mackenzie

An Expert Engineering Service to Help You Heat Your Home-Properly-Efficiently-Economically

HAVE you been one of the disappointed multitude of home owners whose homes just wouldn't heat properly? If you have, you know the utter hopelessness of the situation. The builder blames the furnace people. The furnace people blame the builder. Alibis aplenty but no action. Then you realize that four walls make a house but it takes a good heating system to make a home.

ROUND OAK MOIST AIR HEATING SYSTEMS are not sold on "guess" installation. They are individually designed by ROUND OAK home heating engineers and installed by ROUND OAK service men.

First, ROUND OAK ENGINEERS study the blueprints of your home or the home itself. A ROUND OAK installation is planned to heat it properly, efficiently and economically. Then ROUND OAK service men install it. This is, in effect, a four million dollar guarantee of heating satisfaction—for behind the ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEMS are the entire resources of the ROUND OAK organization, built up through more than a half century of service.

Three Health and Comfort Functions —Not Just Heat

ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEMS healthfully warm the home, humidify the heat, and ventilate as they humidify.

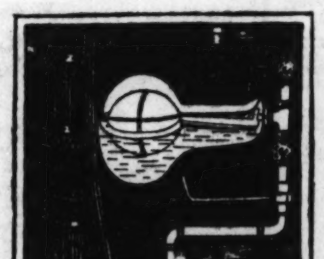
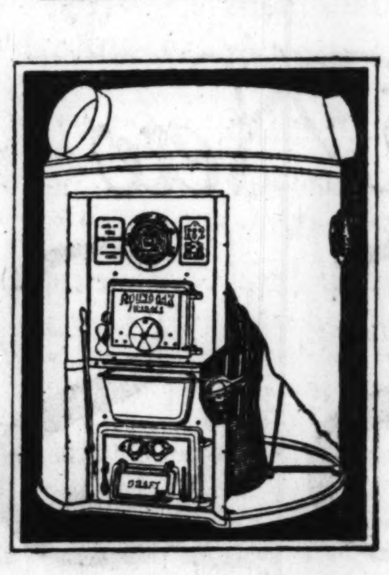
They ventilate and humidify automatically. They flood every nook and corner of your home with warm moist air as close to nature's own product as artificial heating has ever come. Your physician will tell you that this ideal form of heating prevents many colds and winter illnesses because it does not dry up the delicate membranes of the human respiratory system. This health-heat is quickly available too, for the ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEM is extremely flexible—ready with quick chill-chasing heat in the cold mornings and an easily checked fuel saving fire when the home gets warm. As moist air is the heating medium there are no long waits for it to heat up or when the fire is checked to cool down.



The ROUND OAK HUMIDIFIER with which each ROUND OAK FURNACE is equipped, automatically moistens the air of your home.



Fuel Consumption is Low

First, because of the proper construction of the large, deep fire pot, the individual mounting and leak-proof fitting of each installation, the larger radiating surfaces of extra metal and the longer fire travel. Second, because circulating warm, moist air does not require the fast burning, fuel eating fires that dry air does. The moist air carries and holds heat naturally—dry air, like superheated steam, takes far more fire.

We assume responsibility for the installation and satisfactory performance of every ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEM installed according to our specifications. Every ROUND OAK distributor has been trained and equipped to deliver our service and we stand back of him at all times, should occasion ever demand.

Use Round Oak Engineering Service

All ROUND OAK Certified Distributors can render you FREE ENGINEERING SERVICE through the ROUND OAK ENGINEERS. Submit your plans to them and they will gladly and without cost give a sketch or blue print of the heating equipment necessary to properly and economically heat your home—will show you the type of ROUND OAK HEATING SYSTEM recommended and give you an estimate of the combined cost of the system and installation. Time payments gladly arranged, making a ROUND OAK SYSTEM within the reach of every home owner. You'll be surprised at how little a ROUND OAK furnace costs. Why pay more? If not listed, write for dealer's address and our descriptive book "Moist Air Heating."

MOTORDOM

300,000,000 Miles Roll Up Daily on U. S. Highways

Road Convention and Show Feature Greatest Industry.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

HIGHWAY traffic in the United States has increased so rapidly in the last few years that some of the statistics which have been collected seem hardly believable. For example, it was announced recently that during the summer months a volume of traffic amounting to 300,000,000 passenger miles a day was carried by the highways of the country. Inasmuch as the railroads of the United States handled a volume of traffic amounting to 600,000,000 passenger miles each year, the importance of the highway in national development can hardly be overestimated.

Under the federal aid system which has been in existence for a number of years, new roads are being built in every section of the country which are paid for through the coöperation of the United States bureau of public roads with the various state highway departments. At the present session of congress, it is probable that $80,000,000 will be appropriated for federal aid during 1926. This money will, of course, be distributed among the states, each state matching the amount received from the federal government and using it for the construction of roads approved by the United States bureau of public roads of which Thomas H. MacDonald is the chief.

In every part of the country roads are being built and there is hardly a state which is not engaged in some notable highway project. The state of New Jersey is building a new bridge across the Raritan river which will cost nearly $4,000,000 and which will handle traffic which on a busy day amounts to nearly 18,000 vehicles per day. This bridge has been designated by the legislature as the Victory bridge. In Utah the state is building with the assistance of federal aid a highway across the Great Salt desert known as the Wendover road. An unusual feature of this project is six miles of construction extending across the salt beds which are subject to flooding to a considerable depth. The depth of the salt varies, but averages about three feet. The embankment for this section of road was made by a trenching machine. Wooden culverts through the embankment are used to equalize the water level on both sides, at the times of year when the salt beds are flooded.

Illinois in the center of the country has finished project No. 9, which is a road 143 miles in length extending across the state and following the route of the Old National trail from Marshall, near the Indiana line, to the western border of Illinois at East St. Louis. This is an important link in the nation's highway system.

Many other big highway projects, such as the Pacific highway in California, and the new bridge over the Savannah river, which will make a new route to the south, also are being put through. One after another, the weak links in the country's chain of highways are being strengthened.

The men who are doing this work met in Chicago Jan. 5 to 9. The American Road Builders' association, which is more than twenty years old and has been prominent in the good roads movement ever since its organization, held its annual convention and road show at that time. The convention sessions, held at the Congress hotel, were open to all and the various problems of the great highway industry were thoroughly discussed. The road show was held in the Coliseum and adjoining buildings, the Coliseum itself having proved inadequate to hold the vast array of road making machines and other exhibits. Last year more than 15,000 persons attended the road show, and attendance this year reached about 20,000. Contractors, engineers, public officials, and others identified with highway construction from every state and from a number of foreign countries attended.

Chicago has been selected for the convention because of its central location and this time of the year has been chosen because of the fact that in so many of the states highway construction is suspended.

Big Auto Output.

Automobile output for the first nine months of 1924 is within 9 per cent of last year, and is the second best record in the history of the business. The total for November, based on shipping reports submitted to the directors' meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in New York, was 248,113.

SHATTERING WORLD RECORDS

Stepping up the tiny, 122 cubic inch race cars to the unheard of average of 126 miles an hour, big time pilots showed an astonishing burst of speed on this new Culver City track near Los Angeles last month. The "shot" shows Bennett Hill, the winner, on the outside. Tommy Milton, directly behind him in car 5, took third place in the event. [Wide World photo.]

Hoosier Officials Open Lists for Big Speed Classic

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Entry blanks for the thirteenth annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes, scheduled for Saturday, May 30, 1925, have been placed in the mails by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. This will be the seventeenth season for the world's most famous automobile speed-course, the $50,000 five-century dash being inaugurated the third season and the track being idle during the years this country participated in the great war.

The conditions for the coming race will be almost identical with those for the 1924 event. Cars eligible must not be powered with engines exceeding 122 cubic inches piston displacement, which in European terms is two litres. It will be the last year for these engines, the speedway having announced last summer that beginning with the 1926 race the engines would be limited to 91½ inches or one and one-half litres. The two litre class started in 1923 and last May 30th the late Joe Boyer, driving a Duesenberg averaged 98.23 miles an hour lowering the records made by larger engines.

Cars with two litre engines must weigh not less than 1,400 pounds. The contending drivers must average eighty-five miles an hour for ten miles or four laps of the course to go to the starting line. Not more than thirty-three cars will be permitted to start, the slower cars dropping out if more than thirty-three qualify. The trials will be conducted on May 26.

The $50,000 in cash, which is annually supplemented by awards of almost an equal amount by accessory and equipment makers, will be divided among the first ten drivers to complete the distance, with $20,000 to the winner and $1,400 to the tenth pilot. In addition to these prize monies a consolation prize of a substantial amount will be awarded, the amount and manner of distribution will be announced previous to May 30.

Lines for Motor Morons

Tom Jones has gone to heavenly heights;
He tried to drive without his lights.

Jack Hayes this busy life forsakes;
He never would re-line his brakes.

Here's all that's left of Amos Bossing;
He tried to beat it to the crossing.

No more from Brown are earthly smiles;
He took the curve at forty miles.

Ted Small has gone to his abode;
He kept the middle of the road.

Here lies our friend, poor Tony Dix;
For booze and gasoline won't mix.

Jim Henry's friends are all bereft;
He made a short turn to the left.

Ben Gray is free from earthly pains;
A rainy day—he had no chains.

Poor Bill's beneath the sod, alas!
He speeded up and tried to pass.

Now Tom has joined the heavenly band;
He tried to drive it with one hand.

Three A Makes War on Hundred "Come On" Clubs for Motorists

FURTHER assurance of protection for car owners against the fraudulent tactics of certain types of motoring organizations is seen in the temporary injunction recently secured against an organization appropriating the nationally known trademark of the American Automobile association, according to a statement just issued by the latter organization from its headquarters in Washington.

The injunction was served on the Atlantic Automobile Association, Inc., by the United States marshal on Nov. 26, the statement says, and was sought by the American Automobile association, through its attorneys, in the interests of thousand of car owners who were being led to believe that they were to benefit by a service that had existed for twenty-three years.

Officials of the A. A. A. declare that the final disposition of this case will be of particular importance to motor car owners throughout the country. The A. A. A. already has listed nearly one hundred "fly by night" automobile clubs, practically all of which are known to have been organized for personal profit by their promoters.

Road Building Promises Demand for Cars in China

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PEKING, China.—[Special.]—The actual number of motor cars now in China, according to the latest census, is 8,508, in addition to which there are also 1,130 trucks and buses and 1,100 motorcycles.

Statistics of the number of cars imported into China in 1922 and 1923 are not obtainable, but the Chinese maritime customs gives the value of the imports in these two years at Hk Tls. 2,297,155 and 2,501,295 respectively, a Haikwan tael being equal in value to $1.50 approximately. Data for the first half year of 1924 are yet unavailable.

The future prospects of the car trade in China entirely depends on the construction of roads throughout the country. As a movement has been started to build good roads in various provinces and dependencies, it may be safely predicted that a great demand for motor vehicles will be created when these roads are completed.

Sale of New Road Bonds Insures Action in 1925

Contracts for 600 Miles of State Roads to Be Let.

ILLINOIS has launched the $100,000,000 state bond issue road program, the first official action being taken by the sale of a block of $4,000,000 of the new state highway bonds. Col. C. R. Miller, director of the department of public works and buildings, presided at the sale. The various state officers were either present or represented.

The bonds were 4 per cent serial bonds, the only difference between these bonds and those of the $60,000,000 bond issue being that semi-annual interest payments are provided. Six groups representing fifty-nine of the leading financial institutions of the country were represented at the bidding and public auction bids were taken. The bonds were sold to the group headed by George B. Gibbons & Co., Inc., of New York City, which offered the highest price on the forty-sixth auction bid. The bonds brought the price of $3,902,300, or a rate of 97.5575. The interest yield on the bonds will be approximately 4.28 per cent.

The present sale was necessitated by the fact that large sums are due highway contractors on work which has just recently been completed on the state bond issue road system, and the revenues from motor license fees have not as yet been collected in any quantity. The successful sale of these bonds clears away the last obstacle to the continuation of the vigorous prosecution of Illinois' road work which has characterized the last four years. For three successive years, Illinois has broken the world's record for the amount of pavement built by any state in any year, reaching a climax by completing 1,205 miles during the year just closing.

The department of public works and buildings will now be able to award the contracts for some 600 miles of road on which bids have been pending, and also to close the contract for approximately 4,500,000 barrels of cement on which bids were recently received.

APPLY BRAKES EASILY.

Save your brakes for emergency, by avoiding sudden stops and continual braking down grades. A car should be stopped by applying the brakes and then releasing, instead of holding them down.

Packard Six and Packard Eight both furnished in ten body types, open and enclosed. Packard's extremely liberal time-payment plan makes possible the immediate enjoyment of a Packard—purchasing out of income instead of capital.

No car that Packard ever built has made friends so quickly and so numerously as the Packard Six.

Now, because of recently announced price reductions of the enclosed models, the Packard Six, in unchanged quality, is available to more men and women.

Thousands who have always wanted the quality and distinction belonging to Packard now can gratify that desire.

For example, the price of the Packard Six Five Passenger Coupe has been reduced $765—now $2685 at Detroit.

Announcing the New KISSEL 6

FIVE PASSENGER BROUGHAM

First of the finer closed cars to sell at an open car price—the beautiful new Kissel Brougham, $1895!

In introducing this great value, Kissel again gives unmistakable evidence of its far-seeing progressiveness and rare manufacturing genius.

In nowise is this new Brougham to be compared with other closed cars selling at open car prices. In the first place, the custom-built body is the same solidly constructed Kissel body you have always admired, except that it is smarter looking than ever, with longer lines of sweeping gracefulness, a more spacious interior, comfortable form-fitting seats with genuine Chase Mohair upholstery, large 30-inch doors and larger windows giving clearer vision.

Toned a rich lustrous black (Duco finish) with crimson wheels and crimson three-line stripe. Balloon tires and hydraulic four-wheel brakes without extra cost. Other outstanding features of this new Kissel include specially designed frame with "kick-up" in front, which gives a low center of gravity; spring side-play adjustment which, by means of a specially designed spring-hanger with adjustable bearing, prevents all side-play in springs; hand-fitted bronze graphited bearings which form a silent, velvet-like cushion at all working points and practically eliminate rattles and squeaks.

Moreover, this Brougham chassis, like all Kissels, is equipped with an entirely new Automatic Lubrication System under Sidney Dawson patents. With one filling this car can be driven several hundred miles without giving a thought to chassis lubrication.

But above and apart from all these features, is the now famous "Latest Advance Engineered Kissel Motor" which powers this great car. This motor, which can be driven continuously at 70 miles an hour for hours at a time without fear of burning out bearings and which will travel 25,000 miles and more without the usual service work, is the same which Colonel Wall drove over the Indianapolis Speedway in a grueling test and proclaimed to be one of the staunchest, smoothest-performing engines he had ever encountered.

Oil is forced to every working part of the "Latest Advanced Engineered Kissel Motor" under pressure. All reciprocating parts have been lightened. Cylinder walls have been honed to glass smoothness. Thermostatic control, an integral part of the cylinder head, results in better thermal efficiency of engine, more power, less gasoline consumption. From every standpoint, this new Brougham measures up to the high manufacturing standards of Kissel and maintains Kissel's outstanding reputation for style leadership.

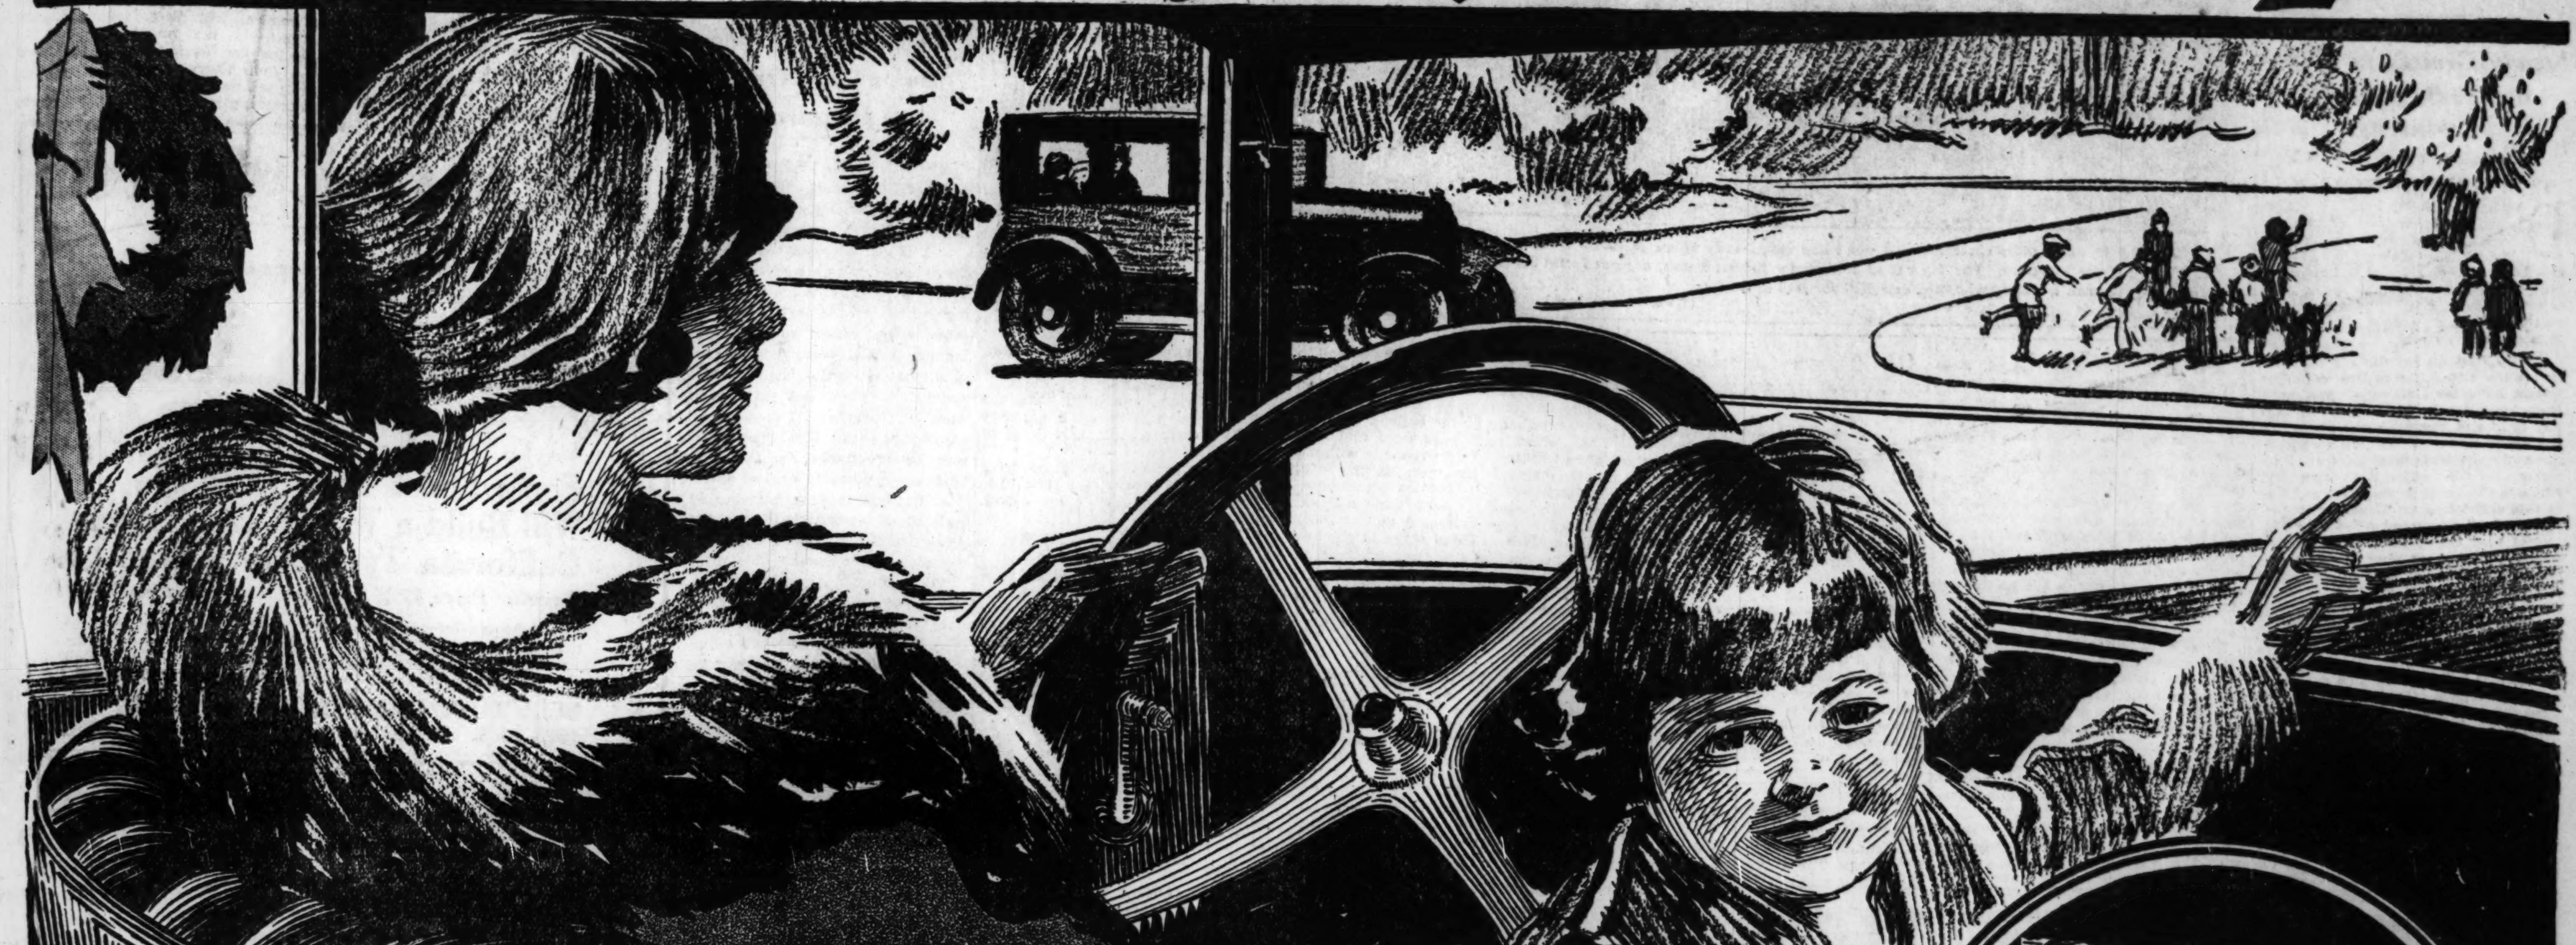
All Steel Vision - All Steel Safety - All Steel Strength



IN THE face of present-day traffic conditions in and around Chicago, the question of driving vision has become one of the biggest things to think about when you buy an automobile. The best way to safety is to think about safety.

Here is full driving vision as it should be—a complete panoramic view of the road, and everything on the road, as you see it from the driver's seat of the new Overland All-Steel Sedan—with none of the neck-stretching, head-twisting, eye-shifting difficulties of trying to see around both sides of a fat wooden body post!

Safer driving—of course. The all-steel construction of Overland bodies does away with bulky wooden corner-posts—giving drivers fully 50% more driving vision.

After all, "Safety First" in motor car driving is largely a matter of "seeing the other fellow first."

All-steel bodies give Overland the same relative superiority that steel ships have over wooden ships—and steel railway coaches have over wooden coaches. Everybody knows that steel is vastly stronger than wood; that steel endures far longer than wood; that steel withstands shocks that would demolish wood!

So Overland, always progressive, has adopted all-steel bodies for both closed and open models—the lowest priced line of motor cars in the world with bodies entirely of steel!

Inside the all-steel body of the new Overland Sedan you find roomy comfort as well as protection. Under the hood lives an engine that translates power into POWER—reliable as reliability itself. And engineered into this and every Overland model are 23 big-car mechanical advantages which keep adding and adding to your satisfaction the longer and longer you drive.

Mile for mile, and month for month, it costs less to operate an Overland. See the new models—with all-steel bodies by Budd. See how completely Overland lives up to its reputation as "the most automobile in the world for the money."

Bright Outlook for 1925 Sends Auto Plants Ahead

Steady Growth in Motor Pay Rolls Indicates Prosperity.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Another year of the automotive industry has become history. Manufacturers and dealers, both collectively and individually, are heading into the new year with the firm belief that they are at the threshold of a period of activity greater than ever before.

Plants that on account of inventories were closed for a few days, or weeks, have been reopened; workmen have consistently been added to the pay rolls and everything is ready for the coming season. Detroit's employment fluctuations may be traced directly to the automobile industry, which is the greatest employer of labor in this district. Last March set a record in both the number of men employed and the number of cars produced, the total number of passenger cars and trucks for that month being 342,494.

While the production figures for 1923 was not broken in 1924, the year just closed indicates that it was the second best the industry ever experienced, and when all figures are in, it will be shown that approximately 2,500,000 vehicles were produced and sold.

Just one year ago, dealers all over the country were burdened with an excess of stock, practically forced upon them by manufacturers who wrongly anticipated a buying stampede. The used car market was in a jam and general conditions were none too encouraging. It was a year in which a president was to be elected, and everybody watching their step.

All this is changed. Conditions are favorable, and manufacturers have not been working their plants overtime in an effort to overstock their dealers with surplus cars. To the contrary dealers have been advised that the number of cars produced will depend upon the orders received, and schedules have been arranged accordingly with every indication that 1925 will be one of the most, if in fact, not the most prosperous in the history of the colossal industry.

There may be fewer makes of atuomobiles on the market today from which the public may choose, but, on the other hand, attention is called to the fact that the fewer makers are making more models, especially of the closed types. During the last two or three years many plants have ceased to function, and the order of the day is fewer companies, more automobiles, and lower prices.

Present prices of cars would be practically impossible three years ago, but with the elimination of many of the smaller producers and the merging of others, indications from every direction point to 1925 as the ideal time for the man who is considering the purchase of an automobile.

There will be considerable competition among dealers, the strongest point being on closed models, especially in the medium priced, six cylinder models.

Tire manufacturers forecast a busy year, especially in the balloon type of tires, which have been tried and not found wanting. Improvements will, of course, be made, and more six plys will be marketed. The 1925 cars are more generally equipped with balloon tires that have been subjected to considerable modification, and there is offered now the semi-balloon tire, which is a compromise between the ordinary and the extremely large types. The balloons seem to have gained a definite place in motoring, and undoubtedly are here to stay.

Automobile plants in Flint have turned the corner and are now facing what is confidently believed to be an extended period of production.

Prior announcements of augmented production schedules for the Buick and Chevrolet Motor companies, with the Flint Motor company continuing its sustained activity, form the basis of the optimistic predictions. Thousands of former employés have been placed on the payrolls of the Chevrolet company within the past four weeks and the recent announcement of a new model car is expected to continue the employment demand.

Buick officials announce that the Flint factories will be on a capacity production before the first day of March.

Similar announcements come from Lansing and Pontiac, two other important automobile and truck manufacturing points.

Old Timer Climbs to High Place in Great Ford Plant

PETER E. MARTIN, a man who started near the bottom of the ladder in the great organization builded by Henry Ford, is now standing on one of the top rungs, as the result of the recent action of the board of directors of the Ford Motor company in the election of Martin first vice president.

For some years past Martin has been in charge of the production at the Highland Park plant, but as vice president will have charge of all manufacturing activities.

He was one of the first five men hired by Henry Ford in 1903 to work in the original "factory," which was a small shed. All five men are still in Ford's employ.

Replace Street Cars.

Emporia, Kas., with a population of 11,000, has authorized its city commissioners to substitute busses for the street railway. This decision was made after busses had been tried out for several months along the routes in operation and other lines will be established as soon as the type of bus is decided upon.

CRACKING SOUND.

A body resting unevenly on the frame will in most instances cause a cracking sound.

State Motorists Hear Rumblings of Gas Tax Fight

Advocates Claim Success; Motor Clubs Oppose Measure.

BY E. E. PIERSON.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — [Special Correspondence.]—Motor clubs of Illinois are organizing to put up an energetic fight against the proposed tax on gasoline, a bill for which is to be introduced in the coming session of the legislature. Many other states collect such a tax, the money derived being applied to the maintenance of the hard roads, constructed through the state bond issues, or otherwise. The gasoline tax supporters argue that the new roads must be safeguarded and that it would be false economy to neglect them.

A. C. Everyingham, member of the legislative committee of the Illinois Agricultural association, has been giving the subject considerable study.

"The Illinois Agricultural association advocates a tax upon gasoline, used for motor vehicles, providing that it is levied in lieu of some other tax that now affects motor cars," he declared. "The association is not asking a gasoline tax in lieu of the annual license fee which the motorist pays to the secretary of state, but prefers that the gasoline tax be substituted for the county tax now collected to take care of the state aid roads."

Of the thirty-six states of the Union that collect a gasoline tax, Illinois is one of the few in the middle west that has avoided this means of raising funds, and a strong effort will be made to force it into the band wagon. Of the amount collected in other states there is a range from 1 to 4 cents, but the average is 2 cents. The latter sum, if collected in Illinois, would yield $4,000,000 a year. Many residents of Indiana buy their gasoline across the line in Illinois, to avoid the tax in the Hoosier state. A filling station on the Illinois side near Terre Haute is doing an immense business for this reason.

Members of the Illinois legislature are already hearing from their constituents in relation to the gasoline tax proposition. The supporters have been conducting a quiet but effective campaign, and claim to have many votes already lined up. The motor clubs of the state and the automotive industry in general will likely stand united against the tax, arguing that motor vehicles are even now paying more than their share of the state and national tax burden.

WHAT ACCURACY MEANS TO MOTORISTS

Q. What has been the measure of accuracy used in automobile motor manufacture?

A. Until recently the basic fraction used for measuring the size and determining the fit of parts of automobile mechanism was one-thousandth of an inch.

Q. What basis is used in measuring Star Motor Parts?

A. Important parts of the new motor of the Star Car are fitted within "limits of tolerance" or, in other words, permissible variations of only two ten-thousandths of an inch in the case of parts subject to considerable expansion through heat, and in the case of other parts the "limit of tolerance" is reduced to one ten-thousandth of an inch.

Q. How small is one ten-thousandth of an inch?

A. A fine human hair measures about twenty ten-thousandths of an inch in thickness. Can you imagine a space one-twentieth as wide as the thickness of a hair?

Q. What do such fine measurements mean to Star owners?

A. Such refined engineering in the new Star motor means money saved to Star owners because it means perfect fit and complete interchangeability of similar parts, quiet, smooth operation, long life, high efficiency, minimized repair bills.

An Indian once traded Manhattan Island for

A STRING OF RED BEADS

AN Indian once swapped Manhattan Island for a string of red beads.

Not so long ago a fellow in Texas traded a great tract of now priceless oil land for a span of gray mules. And last year a lot of smart people paid $1000, $2000—even $3000, more for a closed car than an open car of the same make would have cost them.

These are historical facts.

As long as people knew very little about downtown New York real estate, or oil land, or Closed Cars—great unconscious economic losses were sustained.

Today, you couldn't get very far in New York on a string of red beads. The owners of the oil land probably aren't scanning the market pages for quotations on gray mules.

And after people see the New Marmon Standard Closed Cars—full-fledged, four-door closed cars, with all the customary comforts and luxuries—priced virtually the same as the open models—it's going to be a tough selling job to get anyone to pay a fictitious price for a closed car, or to accept as a closed car anything which falls short of time-proved closed car standards—regardless of the name or make.

People have begun to figure out how much more it really should cost to make a closed car. When people begin to figure, they ask questions. And when they begin to ask questions —something always happens!

The people's own common sense tells them that it shouldn't cost a great deal more to make a genuine closed car than it costs to make an open car—and they are ready to fight their case out to a finish on every Automobile Row.

As soon as people learn to count to "twelve"—all the scientific salesmanship in the world, advertising and midnight conferences, can never sell eleven eggs to the dozen. The people are awake now, and they are simply not going to pay any inflated difference for closed cars, or countenance makeshifts whose only excuse for existence lies in their ability to meet price competition.

In the fine car field, Marmon is probably not the first to recognize this situation

—but Marmon is unquestionably the first to meet it. Marmon has adhered rigidly to genuine closed car design with four [4] doors, and produced sumptuous Standard Sedans and Broughams—Marmon Sedans and Broughams—not just one closely confined, highly restricted closed model—but a variety of closed car styles, all selling at virtually open car prices—on the famous standard 136-inch wheelbase Marmon chassis —with the famous Marmon six-cylinder engine—at only $130 more than a Marmon open car; and Marmon open car values have always been recognized as sound and fair.

Such a feat in manufacturing alertness and skill bodes well for the New Marmon Program.

Uppermost in the minds of everyone is that relentless standard of value measurement—the never-changing diameter of a dollar—and the stubborn determination to get the most for the money.

It is a striking commentary on the native intelligence of the American people, and their sense of values, that today the Marmon factory is busier than at any time in its history—building in volume these new Standard Closed Cars at virtually open car price.

FIRM to Withstand the Storms of 40 Years!

Like the piers of a giant bridge, the foundations of this business were laid, strong and true—firm to withstand the storms of time. Today the staunch confidence of thousands of investors is the heritage of this wise investment policy.

TODAY we are celebrating the fortieth anniversary of George M. Forman & Company. For forty years—through two wars and seven business depressions—Forman First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds have paid interest and principal promptly and fully when due.

These forty years have not been years of calm and untroubled progress; they have been years of struggle, of uncertainty, years of quick and violent changes. That this organization has at all times during these forty years recommended investments which were absolutely safe, speaks volumes for the skilled judgment and absolute integrity of this house.

The same judgment, the same conservative, accurate methods which established this noteworthy record are at the service of the investor of today. Now you may secure investments which have unqualifiedly passed every test we have been able to devise in our forty years of investment experience. In Forman First Mortgage Bonds you will find an investment of the highest character combining absolute safety with a substantial income return.

It is a significant fact that many of the larger investors who formerly bought tax exempt bonds are today concentrating their funds into this very secure and highly profitable form of investment. In 1919 the investments in Real Estate Bonds totalled $60,000,000. During 1923 the sales of Real Estate Bonds amounted to $480,000,000—an eight fold increase in five years!

At the present time we have an exceptional list of high grade First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds yielding a splendid rate of interest—6½%. No matter what investments you have been making—no matter what investments you have in mind, we believe your impartial judgment, after a careful investigation, will endorse these choice issues for your January Funds. You will find them as strong and substantial as have been our securities for forty years.

Without obligation we will send you a complete description of these offerings, with a very interesting book, As Others Know Us, which was written by our old clients. Just mail the request blank for your personal copy.

Investment Suggestions for 1925

JANUARY INVESTORS
Should Have This Book

In this twenty-four-page book, Investment Suggestions for 1925, we describe in detail current Forman First Mortgage Real Estate Bond offerings yielding 6½%. It matters not whether you have hundreds or thousands to invest for safety and splendid income, this book will prove decidedly helpful to you. You may arrange to reserve these bonds for future delivery. And those who so wish, can arrange for payment of bonds selected by means of the Forman Partial Payment Plan.

Nature Lovers Out to Wither Roadside Signs

Tons of Tin Are Removed from Highways in First Drive.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—[Special Correspondence.]—Organized opposition to the roadside advertising abuse is developing in various parts of the United States, according to Old Spanish trail officials. That organization has a department of beautification with Mrs. Henry Drought at the head, and the advertising nuisance is one of its points of attack.

Sixteen truckloads of signs have been removed from the Old Spanish trail between San Antonio and Boerne, and that road now offers a welcome relief from the irritating medley of sniper's signs on fences and trees. The billboards on private property still offend the traveler, but, trail officials state, property owners are agreeing to keep billboards off their lands.

The highway officials helped in removing the roadway signs. The women built up sentiment, they personally called on numerous property owners and obtained signed authorizations to remove signs from private lands.

San Antonio officials fell in step and thousands of signs along the city streets were removed. San Antonio has an ordinance requiring a $15,000 bond and a license for erecting signs and this ordinance, it is stated, will hereafter be enforced. Helotes, a settlement of four buildings, seventeen miles from San Antonio, caught the spirit and organized a community club with about forty members from the surrounding country and cleared signs from six miles of road and are still busy at that and other improvements, for the spirit of improvement seems to follow naturally after clearing the roadsides of the advertising nuisance.

According to a bulletin from Old Spanish trail headquarters, nearly 2,000 signs have been removed this season from the Adirondack park, New York, thanks to a new law and active committees. In Massachusetts a constitutional amendment, carried by the largest majority given any of the proposals submitted, reads: "Advertising on public ways, in public places, and on private property within public view may be regulated and restricted by law." Massachusetts now licenses billboards from year to year. The billboard agents pay for preliminary examination and pay $50 annual license. The cities are authorized to pass local ordinances for further regulations not in conflict with state regulations. So effective is this proving, it is reported very few licenses are being taken out, and that billboard men have already allowed permits to elapse for some 3,000 billboards. The right to license or tax billboards has been held proper because the advertising derives its value from the travel on the roads. It is argued that building regulations, zoning regulations, and regulations against nuisances on private property are in force and that regulating billboards is no different in principle. Massachusetts bases her licensing of billboards on the established law that nuisances on private property may be corrected or abated.

In Minnesota signs valued at millions of dollars were torn down pursuant to a law of 1923, authorizing the highway commission to clear the roadways. It was stated 100 billboards were found on one section of ten miles—an average of ten to the mile. The committee of the Minnesota Federated Women's clubs made this significant statement to the legislature: "Signboards mar the state's beauty; they are a menace to public safety; their owners do not pay taxes commensurate with their incomes; they are state beneficiaries, because without state highways they would have to go out of business; they tend to lower neighboring property values; they shut out light and air from buildings in congested districts, and increase fire hazards."

It is said the Kansas City Merchants' association secured the coöperation of their own merchants to take billboards down. Ohio reports signs and even rural mail boxes largely removed from the roadways. Connecticut fixes a fine up to $50 and six months in jail for putting signs on private property without consent or on the public roads, and requires a license for signs of more than four square feet on private property.

Paris has recently invoked the ancient Code Napoleon to restrict electric signs in the Place de l'Opera, and cablegrams state French senators of the Basque and the Norman coast country had introduced bills modeled on the Massachusetts laws to protect their beauty spots. The municipalities control billboards within city limits in England, France, and also some South American countries, but it seems the highways and countryside of Europe so often commented on for their beauty are now threatened with desecration.

Burton Holmes is authority for the statement that Italian scenery is kept free from disfigurement by billboard advertising.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs representing 5,000,000 women have their national committees workers for the abolishment of the abuse. In Texas at the recent state federation meeting representing 50,000 women action was taken to actively proceed against the abuse.

The Question.

What is the most important step in the 1925 highway program for the United States?

Where Asked.

Congress hotel.

The Answers.

J. H. Cranford, Washington, D. C., president of the American Road Builders' association—I believe that the further development of maintenance will be the most important step in highway affairs during 1925. There is no road, no matter how well built, that does not need attention from the moment it is finished. The insistence of the United States bureau of public roads on maintenance of federal aid roads has done a great deal to impress the importance of this phase of highway work on the public mind, and I believe that 1925 will see a growing emphasis on the maintenance throughout the country.

Arthur H. Blanchard, Ann Arbor, Mich., professor of highway engineering—During 1925 the most important development in the highway program of the United States will be general recognition of the economic necessity of designing our highways to meet the volume and character of future traffic. The highway improvement program is lagging behind the demands of transportation.

Col. James G. Steese, president of Alaskan road commission, Juneau, Alaska—Aside from the need of more money, the standardization of the motor truck is the crying need of the day. This, in turn, will result in greater accomplishment with valuable funds A few oversized and overloaded motor trucks should no longer be permitted to control the design and consequent cost of highways, when more than 99 per cent or the use is by lighter vehicles.

James H. MacDonald, treasurer of the American Road Builders' association, New Haven, Conn.—The most important step in road building is still construction and extension, with deeper road foundations so as to take care of the fast increasing traffic on the highways. To take up the importance of second class roads, with the idea of making them trunk lines running into our large cities, also is a step forward that is about due in road building.

Lewis P. Campbell, assistant state highway engineer, Salem, Ore.—The two big questions — financing of highway construction and engineering reconstruction of the roads built in the early days of highway development—are the big problems before road builders. Maintenance has not developed with construction, and improvement of maintenance is another matter that needs considerable study.

FARM AND GARDEN

Illinois Farmers Want Truth About Federation Split

Showdown Expected at State Farm Bureau's Annual Meeting

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

PREVENTING the disintegration of the American Farm Bureau federation, which would likely follow the withdrawal of state farm bureaus, now threatened, has become a serious question among farmers who want to be loyal and support their national organization.

The proposal to have the Illinois Agricultural association withdraw from the national federation has become an intense issue in every section of the state. The strength of those for and against the proposal is expected to be put to the final test at the annual meeting of the state farm bureau, which opens next Thursday at Urbana.

There is a distinct disagreement over the question, which has been discussed at the various fall and winter meetings held over the state. So far only four counties have favored withdrawing.

Seek First Hand Information.

It was clearly indicated at the Woodford county farm bureau's annual meeting held at Eureka recently that the 600 farmers who attended did not agree with the action taken by the four counties asking the state association to withdraw from the federation. McLean county delegates to be sent to the annual meeting at Urbana were asked to work for harmony between the Illinois Agricultural association and the American Farm Bureau federation.

Reports from different parts of the state indicate that farmers are going to investigate the germ for the withdrawal proposal. The trouble centers around the fact that Illinois Agricultural association officials did not see fit to back the Grain Marketing company, the recent merger of big grain concerns, which was indorsed by all of the members of the executive committee of the American Farm Bureau federation except S. H. Thompson, president of the Illinois farm bureau.

Farmers are now taking steps to gather first hand information concerning the marketing company. A meeting was held at Bloomington yesterday, following invitations sent out by S. C. Moon, president of the McLean farm bureau. The following men were invited to take part in the discussion of the Grain Marketing company so the farmers in central Illinois might have an opportunity to hear both sides of the question: George A. Fox, secretary, and Mr. Thompson, president of the Illinois Agricultural association; C. V. Gregory, editor Prairie Farmer; O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Gray Silver, president of the Grain Marketing company.

To protect the organization from unfair propaganda, it is rumored that the Grain Marketing company expects to take advantage of section 27 of the coöperative marketing act passed in 1923 by the Illinois state legislature. Under the heading, "Misdemeanor to spread false reports about the finances or management thereof," the section reads: "Any person who maliciously and knowingly spreads false reports about the finances or management or activity of any association organized hereunder or organized under a similar statute of another state with similar restrictions, and operating in this state under due authority, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred ($100) dollars and not more than one thousand ($1,000) dollars for each such offense; and shall be liable to the association aggrieved in a civil suit in the penal sum of five hundred ($500) dollars for each such offense."

The marketing company is organized under the provisions of this act.

Disagree with State.

Some of the farmers who are preparing for the worst at the annual meeting are anxious to find out if they can still support the American Farm Bureau federation even if the state organization severs its connection. Kankakee county members declare they are going to send their annual dues direct to the federation, instead of contributing 50 cents a year through the Illinois Agricultural association, as they have been doing. The Kankakee farm bureau has withdrawn its support from the state farm bureau, and is expected to stay out at least five years.

Farm leaders point out that if the farm bureau in this state withdraws from the federation, it will not only establish a precedent for other states but may expect withdrawals of the county organizations, which would soon result in a disruption of the whole bureau organization, from the community and county units on up to the national organization.

Typical of the view of many is that expressed by W. E. Skinner, who says: "I have always felt that the American Farm Bureau federation typified the highest type of organized agriculture that had ever been perfected. Perhaps I should not say perfected, because there are undoubtedly many changes to be made before it can be a perfect machine, but beyond those things which enter into matters of this kind and the frailties of the human mind, it is a wonderful organization, and if men would think in terms of continuing the organization and of building it stronger as its weak spots develop, agriculture would reach the stage which it must reach to continue to prosper, and that is a perfected organization for its conduct. I, therefore, hope the thinking men in agriculture can be led to pause at least and hold to that which they have and try to grow stronger, rather than tear down with nothing to replace."

Poultrymen Suffer Under Heavy Loss by Embargoes

HEAVY losses among poultry producers are resulting from the embargoes that have been placed against the shipment of live poultry from the middle west into big market centers. Innocent bystanders in the poultry business have suffered almost as much as those in the areas where the disease has been found. The market for both dressed and live poultry is demoralized. Poultrymen who had healthy birds in their coops in fine condition for the Christmas trade lost thousands of dollars, and in some cases producers have been forced out of business since the Canadian flu outbreak.

The wide sweeping embargoes barred the receiving of poultry from the Dakotas to Oklahoma. Reports indicate that there are few or no diseased flocks in some of the midwestern states. The disease has apparently been found more prevalent in northern Iowa than in any of the other states, judging from the reports that reach Chicago.

Buying Shuts Down.

Many of the markets at local loading points have practically stopped the buying of poultry from farmers. Buyers at Sioux City, Ia., and various points in the midwest have shut down on the buying of live poultry from the local flock owners.

A report from THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent at Cherokee, Ia., says the movement of poultry, live or dressed, from northwestern Iowa to Chicago will probably be negligible for the remainder of the season. The poultry disease has appeared in epidemic form. Many coops of affected birds have been received by wholesale buyers. The disease has not been diagnosed in that part of Iowa, but guesses as to its nature range from flu to necrotic enteritis, says the report, giving the symptoms of the infected birds as weakness, lassitude, and loss of flesh. Respiratory organs appear to be affected and the diseased birds give off an offensive odor. At Cherokee the malady is regarded as necessarily fatal.

Iowa Denies Epidemic.

A report from the Iowa State college claims that there is no poultry epidemic in that state. The belief that the enormous loss of poultry through death during shipment is the result of some new, highly contageous disease, is erroneous, according to H. A. Bittenbender, chief in poultry husbandry at Ames. He adds that, although losses have been so heavy as to substantiate such a conclusion, the fact is that chickens generally are in a state of low vitality this year, due to unfavorable weather conditions and scant feeding. In their weakened condition fowls are unable to resist colds and other ordinary infections, and die in large numbers during shipment.

According to Mr. Bittenbender, overcrowding in poultry houses is one of the commonest causes of poor health in poultry. Poultrymen should cull their flocks, sell the birds which are marketable, and kill the sick ones. The remaining fowls should be adequately fed and cared for. Most fowls in good flesh may safely be used for food, as there is slight danger of such poultry being diseased, or of transmitting any form of avian disease to human beings, says the expert.

Culls to Blame.

Poultry producers are severely criticised for their careless, selfish system of culling flocks and marketing all of the culls regardless of their condition of health. Mr. Bittenbender advises farmers to cull their flocks and sell the birds that are marketable, but there's where too many farmers fall down.

The present practice is to sell all of the culls as soon as they are sorted out from the desirable birds in the flock. Experts have always advised that the culls be marketed. County agricultural agents and college poultry specialists who take part in culling demonstrations will do much to improve the marketing side of the poultry industry by emphasizing the necessity of selling only marketable birds. Sick, scrawny birds that are often found in the culls should be killed and buried on the farm and not allowed to get into the market channels to lower the price of other birds.

Made into Fertilizer.

Some idea of how many unmarketable birds get into the market may be found by checking over the enormous tonnage of fowls going to the fertilizer tank every year in Chicago. From 5,000 to 6,000 pounds of dead, sick, or injured poultry are condemned by the city inspectors and sent from the city's poultry markets to a fertilizer plant at the Union Stockyards every day. In a single year this amounts to approximately 2,000,000 pounds of poultry, made into fertilizer. The farmer probably stands most of this loss. It is an expensive way to get fertilizer. A much cheaper plan would be to kill the birds and bury them to avoid paying freight and a profit to the fertilizer maker.

Chicago's dead poultry tonnage is many times less than that of New York City. Less than 2,000 carloads of live poultry come to the Chicago market each year, while New York receives nearly 13,000 carloads. Losses on other poultry markets are, no doubt, fully as much as they are on the Chicago market. San Francisco bought 342 cars of live poultry last year; Philadelphia, 1,092; Boston, 456.

Washington Will Help.

If the poultry industry is to be put back on its feet, following the shock that came along with the mysterious diseases that have resulted in the embargoes, the farmers and [illegible] interested in the poultry business have to coöperate to the fullest with federal officials, who will [illegible] a thorough investigation with [illegible] $100,000 recently appropriated by congress.

Economy to Be Issue at I. A. A. Annual Meeting

Many changes will be brought [illegible] in the Illinois Agricultural association if the various proposals are [illegible] through that are to be presented at the annual meeting to be held at Urbana, Ill., next Thursday and Friday.

A reduction of salaries of officers and employés to salaries [illegible] paid elsewhere for similar service [illegible] among the specific proposals to [illegible] made by a group of farmers [illegible] by Carl Vrooman, former assistant secretary of agriculture.

The farmers also propose moving the association's headquarters away from Chicago—probably to some town in central Illinois. In order to [illegible] the membership of the state farm bureau the farmers will ask for a [illegible] reduction in the annual dues.

If their proposals are passed, farmers' elevators and live stock shipping organizations will pay for accounting and efficiency service rendered through their association. The farmers will insist on economy and efficiency in [illegible] limestone and phosphate supply department and all other departments of the organization.

They are determined to take the Illinois Agricultural association out of politics by doing away with the legislative committee and set up [illegible] sas voters' agricultural bloc in the counties.

HUPMOBILE EIGHT

NEVER BEFORE SUCH A WELCOME

The American public has never paralleled the eager welcome which it has given to the Hupmobile Eight.

Telegraphic advices from many points from coast to coast indicate an outpouring of close to half a million people to see this new creation during the first two days of its initial showing.

Here in Chicago, 7,200 people crowded into Hupmobile salesrooms to admire and buy the new Eight.

In New York, at the Automobile Show which closed last night, it was the one powerful magnet in the cream of the industry's latest offerings.

Such is the power of a good name. Such is the attraction of a record which in 16 years has produced nothing but strong, dependable high-value cars.

Such is the belief of the American public in an institution which has kept faith year after year, without break or interruption.

Those whose experience has included the country's finest previous eights, found in this Hupmobile Eight a new thrill of acceleration, a new delight of smoothness, a fresh motoring enthusiasm.

Those who have been accustomed to lesser cars were without a measure for comparison.

Whatever your own experience has been, come to the Hupmobile with expectation of something far finer—and come prepared to realize your expectation.

All models of the new Eight, enclosed and open, are on exhibit, and demonstrations are being given to all who request them.

retary of agriculture.

The farmers also propose moving th association's headquarters away fro
Chicago—probably to some town central Illinois. In order to increa the membership of the state farm b reau the farmers will ask for a gradu reduction in the annual dues.

If their proposals are passed, far ers' elevators and live stock shipp organizations will pay for accounti and efficiency service rendered throu their association. The farmers will sist on economy and efficiency in t limestone and phosphate supply d partment and all other departments o the organization.

They are determined to take the Ill
nois Agricultural association out o politics by doing away with the legi lative committee and set up nonparti san voters' agricultural blocks in th counties.

PRICES OF GRAIN FIRM AT CLOSE; WHEAT ADVANCES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat gave a demonstration of strength, May advancing to $1.81⅛, a new high on the present movement and was within 2⅝c of the best price of the season, closing 1⅝c higher at $1.80⅝@1.80⅞. July was ⅛c higher at $1.54⅛@1.54¼, and September ⅛c lower at $1.46½@1.46⅝. Corn closed ⅛c higher to ¼c lower with May $1.28⅝; July, $1.29½@1.29⅝, and September $1.29¼. Oats were up ⅛@⅝c, and rye ⅛@1¼c.

There was a letup in liquidation in grain markets after a sharp break early the past week, and the close found values about the highest of the week with net gains of ⅞@3⅝c on wheat, while corn was ⅝@3½c higher with September leading. Oats were unchanged to 1⅝c higher and rye 3¼@3½c higher. Provisions broke badly early, but rallied sharply, lard closing 40@45c lower, ribs off 10@22½c and bellies 57½@75c higher.

Continent Buys Hard Winters.

There was a little selling of wheat early on a decline of ¼d in Liverpool, and the reduction of only 27,000,000 bu in the Free Press estimate on the crop in the three Canadian provinces with the total 265,000,000 bu, or 22,000,000 bu in excess of the official government returns. However, there was a good class of buying and the surplus in the pit was readily absorbed. An advance of ⅞@2¼c from the low point followed, with a local professional who has been a good buyer of late selling May around $1.81, only to take the buying side again on a reaction which followed. Toward the last reports that Greece had taken a cargo of hard winter wheat for nearby shipment, and that Italy and Bulgaria had also bought led to increasing buying and the closing bulge.

Buying May and selling of July by commission houses widened the difference to around 26⅝c at the last. The Pacific coast sent bullish messages regarding the cash and new crop situation there. Cash wheat demand was good with the basis here 2@3c higher on red winter, No. 2 selling up to $1.93, or 12c over May with 14c over bid for choice. At St. Louis No. 2 red brought $2.02½, a new high on the crop. Country loadings in the northwest were reported much larger. Foreigners were reported to have bought around 500,000 bu May here, presumably covering short sales.

Coarse Grains Firmer.

Strength in wheat continues to be the dominating influence in corn and oats. Many of the pit traders are bearish on corn but with wheat strong are afraid to operate freely despite the heaviness in the cash market. Basis on low grades was easier with No. 5 yellow 13@17c under the May. Foreigners bought oats futures here, while commission houses bought September and sold May, the former advancing to 59⅝c, a new high on the crop.

Norway Buyer of Rye.

Export sales of 300,000 bu rye were reported at the seaboard, including a cargo to Norway, and the United Kingdom asked for offers. Trade in futures was only fair with eastern houses on the buying side. Foreigners also took a moderate quantity of May.

Provisions were dull but firmer in sympathy with grains. Cash demand continues light and indications are for a continued liberal movement of hogs. Lard closed 5@10c higher, ribs 10c higher and bellies 2½@7½c higher. Packing hogs at Chicago for the season to date is 2,285,000 against 2,423,000 last year. Prices follow:

GRAIN RECEIPTS INCREASED

Primary receipts of grain last week were 18,162,000 bu, the largest in three weeks, 39 per cent more than the previous week, and 48 per cent above last year's. There were gains in all grains as compared with the previous week and last year, the most important being in corn and oats. Chicago received 5,387,000 bu of grain for the week, an increase of nearly 1,700,000 bu over the previous week and 2,270,000 bu over last year, but were 358,000 bu less than the five year average. CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of wheat in all positions were estimated by the seaboard at 500,000 bu, largely hard winters to the Mediterranean, and 300,000 bu rye, Norway taking the latter grain.

Chicago handlers sold 35,000 bu wheat, 42,000 bu corn, 20,000 bu oats, and 6,000 bu barley, with 100,000 bu rye and 200,000 bu oats sold to go to store. Deliveries on January contracts were 1,000 bu corn.

Red winter wheat was in good demand in all markets, with the basis here 2@3c higher with a sale of No 2 at 12c over the May and 14c over was bid for choice. No. 2 hard was 1c over to 2c under May. Receipts, 28 cars. At Kansas City red winter was 2@3c higher and hard 1c higher. St. Louis was 1@2c higher and Omaha was up a like amount. Premiums at Minneapolis were easier, with indications of larger receipts as country loadings were heavier.

Basis on low grade corn was easier, with No 5 mixed and white selling readily at 19c under May at the last, the widest discount on the crop. No. 4 grades were 8½@12c under and No 6 grades 19@23c under the future. Receipts, 273 cars. Outside markets were unchanged to 2c higher.

Demand for cash oats was fair at 1@1¼c under May for No 2 white and 3@3⅝c under for No 3 white. Receipts, 93 cars.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

With the close on May wheat the second highest of the season in the face of opposition from local professionals and commission houses who are bearish, the wheat market is giving a good account of itself. With the close above $1.80 for May, it is giving more confidence to those who advocate higher prices based on the domestic and foreign situation, and making it uncomfortable for those who can see nothing but lower prices.

Some of the local professionals who sold wheat at $1.81, or within 2⅝c of the highest of the season, bought their wheat back at a decline of ⅛c to ⅝c. Commission houses had liberal selling orders on the advance, but offerings were well absorbed.

Indications are for a large reduction in Chicago stocks of wheat and possibly a fair decrease in the visible supply. World's shipments will be somewhat smaller and a further reduction is expected on wheat on ocean passage.

Yesterday was Jan. 10, and the calendar day to sell wheat. The man who discovered that wheat was generally a sale around this period, died twenty-one years ago. His opinion was given out many years before his death. Comparatively few of the successful traders pay any attention to this calendar dope, especially as it has been wrong for a year or more.

A man who has been making a close study of European food and economic conditions during the last two years, says European bread grain crops are between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 tons less than last year. In a statement given to Russel's News at New York, there was no likelihood of importations being increased in sufficient proportion to the decrease in crops due to substitution, higher flour extraction and use of other foods. Conditions in southeastern Europe and Russia add to complications, and the question of new crop acreage in this section of the country on account of weather last fall was looming up as a serious possibility to next year's production.

Kansas City flour stocks are 105,000 brls. A message from there says this is surprising as it was thought that mills were heavily loaded. There is only a week's output and it is considered bullish. California bought wheat in Kansas City on Friday.

"There is very little snow left on the ground and country roads are rough," says a Des Moines, Ia., message. "Cash offers are improved, but are mostly over the market." Lincoln, Neb., reported business generally dull with road conditions bad and elevator stocks cleaned out.

Advices from the seaboard indicate that exporters, shippers, and Canadian and American millers are rapidly cleaning up eastern stocks of Manitoba wheat, with premiums 4c to 6c up on No. 4 and 1c to 2c up on No. 6.

A Buenos Ayres cable says, that arrivals of winter wheat are heavier at up river ports. Foreign crop reports excellent.

Pacific coast wheat markets are on a domestic basis with mills paying big premiums over European export basis, says a San Francisco report. "Mills have been buying Nebraska and Kansas hard winter the last few months. Today they are paying $2.05 for No. 2 hard winters and $2.14 for 13 per cent protein."

There were sales of new No. 4 white and mixed corn in Chicago yesterday at $1.10, or 19c under May. This is the lowest relative difference of the season.

Old timers on the Board of Trade, who were familiar with the voices of pit traders, have been able to distinguish them in the broadcasting of the pit noise over the W-G-N radio. Yesterday, John C. Ross, a veteran in the grain trade who retired some time ago and lives at Rochelle, Ill., distinguished the voice of C. D. Berry in the pit and wired 'Hello, there, Berry, I hear your voice in the pit." Rochelle is seventy-five miles from Chicago.

AUSTRALIAN CROP

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 10.—A government statistician estimates the wheat yield of New South Wales at 60,832,000 bu from 3,500,000 acres, an average of 17.4 bu per acre. The yield was exceeded only in 1916, when 66,000,000 bu were produced. Including estimates of other states, it is anticipated that the total Australian crop will reach 160,000,000 bu. It is expected that 120,000,000 bu will be exported.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Cotton cloth markets were steadier in the gray goods division today. Moderate sales of print cloths were reported. Cotton blankets will be opened Monday at reductions from last season, varying from 2½ to 10 per cent. Raw silk declined at Yokohama in keeping with the substantial declines in the local markets this week. The New Zealand wool auctions showed declines of 10 per cent in prices compared with November. This promises better business in fabrics for the fall season as it marks the end of the great rise in wool since the spring fabrics season opened six months ago. Burlaps were quiet. Linens are selling well in the local markets for spot shipment.

COFFEE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Coffee futures closed net 5 points higher to 15 points higher. Sales estimated at 27,000 bags. Fidelity Investment Assn. Cannot Sell Contracts in Illinois—Its Contracts Held Void by Appellate Court.

The Appellate court, Third district, has upheld the judgment of the Circuit court of Sangamon county, Illinois, in sustaining the order of the secretary of state prohibiting the Fidelity Investment association of Wheeling, W. Va., from selling its special income contracts in Illinois.

The association has been operating in this state for several years, during which time over 10,000 contracts were sold in Illinois. In March, 1924, its permission to sell any of its securities in this state was revoked by the secretary of state on the grounds that the further sale would work, or tend to work, a fraud on the purchaser. This order was upheld by the Circuit court of Sangamon county which, on Oct. 7, 1924, entered a temporary injunction order restraining the association, its fiscal agents, Irving and Sisson, and sub-agents from selling or offering for sale its special income contracts in Illinois. Explicitly they were restrained from soliciting or accepting applications for any such contract or security.

In affirming the judgment of that court the Appellate court held the association was exercising the functions of a bank and was violating the provisions of the general incorporation act of July 1, 1919.

In rendering his decision the court said that the association was accepting deposits from citizens of Illinois and sending them to another state, which act was illegal unless the association was licensed by the state or the federal law to conduct a banking business, which it was not. Although the institution had banking powers under the laws of West Virginia, it had not the right to exercise them in Illinois, the court held. He said:

"Citizens of Illinois, over 10,000 in number, have made deposits in Illinois to an amount in excess of $2,500,000, which sums have been sent to a foreign state for investment by an institution having full banking powers, as judged by the laws of our own state. The Illinois citizen and this state have no means or power of inspection, regulation, or limitation, and, while the funds and business may be adequately guarded by the laws and public officials of the sister state, nevertheless, the Illinois citizen, when depositing his moneys in a bank in Illinois, a business of a public character, is entitled to the protection of the statutory regulations of this state or of the United States to guard his funds. . . . We are convinced that appellant is exercising general banking powers in its business, of which the Illinois transactions form a part, and is violating provisions of the general incorporation act, passed and approved July 1, 1919. . . ."

"Appellant contends that the contracts in question are not subject to the securities act. Section two of the act defines securities as 'investment contracts,' among other definitions."

A case was cited in which it was held that a business or trading trust came under the act, and it made no difference whether it was a common law trust or partnership, and the court said:

"We think there can be no question but that the contracts in question are subject to the act."

Another case was cited which held that:

"Where the state has fixed the conditions under which a foreign corporation may transact business therein, and declared it unlawful for such a corporation to do business in the state, unless it has complied with the conditions prescribed by the act, a contract of the corporation is void and no action can be maintained by it thereon."

The court concluded as follows:

"The contracts issued by appellant (the association) being void, not only tended to but did work a fraud upon purchasers, and appellee (the secretary of state) in the exercise of his discretion under the administrative powers provided in the securities act, was fully warranted in cancelling the license of appellant. The judgment of the Circuit court of Sangamon county and the order of appellee are, therefore, affirmed."

It is evident that this decision gives to all citizens of Illinois who purchased contracts of the associaiton in this state subsequent to March 6, 1924, the right to demand the return of their money under the securities law.

Enjoy Our Happy New Year Anniversary Gift

THERE is a keen satisfaction as we enter upon 1925 and turn to look back over the 44 years during which we have given comfort and satisfaction to investors. We feel older because of the wealth of experience we have stored, and younger because of the constantly growing facilities which enable us to serve better than ever before the needs of our old and new investors and friends.

As a grateful acknowledgement to our old friends, and as a welcome to new ones, we take the occasion of our 44th Anniversary to present each purchaser of a Cochran & McCluer First Mortgage Gold Bond, with a beautiful Multi-lite Electric Lamp. An exclusive feature of this lamp is that by the operation of an inconspicuous switch it gives any degree of light, from a faint glow to full intensity.

This lamp, symbolical of the light of safety which has guided our investors for 44 years, is appropriate for living room, boudoir or library—and a most happy gift for a student.

Make Your Money Work Overtime

A large and highly successful subdivision company with a thoroughly trained sales organization of over 100 people, has purchased 160 acres of desirable property in the direct path of Chicago's natural growth, on main paved road adjacent to one of Chicago's most beautiful suburbs, now served by rapid transportation. This company offers a very limited number of investors with $1,000 or more the opportunity to participate in the profits of the syndicate now being formed to handle this transaction.

Title to the property is to be held by the Chicago Title & Trust Co. for the benefit of all syndicate participants, and monthly collections are to be made by a Chicago bank acting as collection agents. Certified public accountant's estimates show profits in excess of 50% per year.

This Is a Real Investment Opportunity and of the type that is seldom offered to the public. Because of its obvious desirability it will be open for a short time only, and those interested should reply immediately.

TENANTS REAP BENEFITS FROM BUILDING BOOM

BY SCRUTATOR.

THE TRIBUNE'S "Friend of the People" is not receiving nearly as many inquiries in regard to leases and the relations of landlord and tenant as a year ago.

Naturally not. We hear of thousands of vacant apartments in two or three square miles of city area, showing that the irritations of the housing situation have been largely relieved by the building boom inaugurated by economic law.

But at the same time we hear of an acute housing situation in Washington. President Coolidge is backing a regulatory law to control rents. Washington "enjoyed" rent regulation during the war and sometime after.

From Britain come reports of housing troubles on the heels of government construction ventures.

The same old story in the same old way.

A report by the National Industrial Conference board on the rental of houses of four or five rooms and bath, unheated, typical workingmens' homes, shows that such rents averaged for the whole country 84 per cent more than in the summer of 1914. Compared to the increase in wages and other prices, that is not out of line.

Fluctuations in the last year indicate that the situation is nearing stability. But this is no indication of a lessening of construction, because, while the actual shortage of shelter may be nearing an end, the demand for better accommodations and the removal of the masses to suburban areas probably will increase. From July to November, 1924, rents remained unchanged in eighty-five cities, decreased in sixty-one, and increased in thirty-one. Most of the increases were in the eastern states, the decreases in the midwest.

For the year, rents on a national average scored an increase of 2.2 per cent, but declined 1.1 per cent from the peak in July, 1924.

Cities which have had the greatest increase in rents since 1914 are those in which the most building has been done—exactly as would be expected. Chicago, Los Angeles, Detroit and other fast growing urban areas have had rent increases far above the national average, and these high rents have called forth fevered building activity in consequence, which has contributed to the comparative prosperity of these cities throughout periods of slackened business.

One of the most striking differences between American and European post war policies was in regard to housing. Nearly every European country "regulated" rents, many confiscated them in effect through restrictions accompanied by currency inflation.

The United States stuck to "laissez faire." The result was the building boom here, which was one of the principal reasons for the quick emergence of American prosperity while Europe remained in the dumps so long.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $731,400,000, an increase of $107,200,000 over the preceding week and also a gain of $115,100,000 over the corresponding week in 1924. Balances last week totaled $54,600,000, an increase of $10,500,000 over the preceding week and also a gain of $2,000,000 over the corresponding week last year. Weighty hogs during the week-end session showed little change compared with the low time Friday, while others ruled steady to 10c higher, elevating the day's general average cost to $10.30, within 10c of the high day of the week. Top at $10.85, stood 5c under early previous day and 25c lower than a week ago.

Range of prices narrowed further, with "spread" between yesterday's top and average prices amounting to only 55c about as small as any time of the season. Wednesday's top and average were 95c apart, due to the sensational break in light hogs, which forced the average down. Light hogs are still 35@50c under a week ago, with pigs off as much as 75c@$1.00 since previous Saturday.

Receipts Close to Record.

Hog receipts last week totaled 337,000, the second largest on record, being 40,200 greater than previous week, 50,300 larger than a year ago and 73,400 above the five year average. Estimated average weight of hogs at 225 lbs. equaled the previous week, which was lightest since 1921. Hogs averaged 3 lbs. lighter than a year ago, 12 lbs. lighter than two years ago and 5 lbs. under the five year average. General average price of hogs last week at $10.20, was 25c under previous week, but shows a gain of $3.05 compared with a year ago and stands 70c above the five year average.

Scarcity, rather than any broad demand, was responsible for the 25@50c advance in good weighty beef steers last week, which sold closer to yearling stock than at any time in several weeks. The latter were secured at 15@25c decline, with only short loads selling above the $12.00 mark. Seventeen 803 lb. averages brought $12.75, with 12 head of 850 pounders at $13.50. Load lots, averaging 1,003 lbs., brought $12.00, with 1,522 lb. steers as high as $11.85. The week's general average price lowered 5c at $9.20, with receipts at 78,200 largest since the middle of last month. Calves advanced $1.00@1.50 during the week. Stockers and feeders sold strong to 25c higher under fair demand.

Lamb Average High.

The substantial gain of $1.25@1.50 in lamb values early last week offset the slight break at the close enough to hold the week's general average price at $17.80, the highest since May, 1920. Closing quotations were 25@50c under the high time of the week, but showed fully $1.00 advance compared with a week ago. Sheep receipts at 65,200 were smallest since last July, barring holiday periods. Fat aged sheep and yearlings shared in the week's general fluctuations. Average price of aged sheep at $8.75 last week stands highest since last April, being 50c above previous week, and $1.50 higher than a year ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 28,000 cattle, 84,000 hogs, and 23,000 sheep, against 26,165 cattle, 87,617 hogs, and 11,279 sheep a week ago, and 33,414 cattle, 81,463 hogs, and 26,276 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 75,000 cattle, 310,000 hogs, and 80,000 sheep, against 75,711 cattle, 295,293 hogs, and 93,666 sheep a year ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company yesterday applied to the interstate commerce commission for authority to acquire the properties of the Sun Telephone and Telegraph company, the Southern Telephone and Telegraph company, and the Stantonville Telephone and Telegraph company, operating telephone exchanges in Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.

The New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' association has voted to reduce wages in local mills 10 per cent on Jan. 19. The Warren Manufacturing company of Warren, R. I., announces a reduction of 10 per cent in wages, effective tomorrow. The Amoskeag Manufacturing company will resume full time operations in its worsted division. The Cocheco woolen mills also expects to increase its working schedule to fifty-four hours weekly.

Pacific coast banks have purchased from the Pacific Steamship company $5,000,000 first mortgage bonds, the proceeds to be used to pay off all existing indebtedness, including $3,500,000 to the Pacific Coast company, New York.

Burns Bros. directors will not change dividend rates on either the A or B stock when they meet next Tuesday, the president of the company is quoted as saying. It is reported that the International Mercantile Marine company will not pay accumulated dividends except from earnings.

There were 552 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 445 in the preceding week and 543 during the corresponding week last year.

The American Beet Sugar company announced that its final figures on production were 998,153 bags, against 742,580 bags in the operations a year ago.

Less Iron Ore Mined Last Year than During 1923

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Iron ore mined in the United States in 1924 was estimated today by the interior department at 54,021,000 gross tons, a decrease of 22 per cent under 1923. Ore shipped from mines was 51,996,000 gross tons, valued at $151,385,000, a decrease of 26 per cent in quantity and 37 per cent in value as compared with 1923. The average value of the ore a ton at the mines was estimated at $2.91, as compared with $3.45 in 1923. About 83 per cent of the ore shipped in 1924 came from the Lake Superior district.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1925: Fairchild News Service.]

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—New Bedford, the last of New England's manufacturing centers to readjust wages, today fell in line with other cities and announcements were posted in all the cotton mills that wages would be cut 10 per cent, effective Jan. 19.

BOSTON, Mass.—Orders recently placed with mill machinery manufacturers disclose the fact that a very large number of New England cotton mills are going into the specialty field after generations of making staple cloths on a mass production basis. The purpose of this change is to overcome competition of southern mills and also to vary their product so a slump in the cotton good market will not be so disastrous to the mills' prosperity.

Moline Implement Co. Takes Over Moline Plow

Announcement was made yesterday that a new corporation, the Moline Implement company, with a capital of 30,000 shares of no par common stock, has purchased from the Moline Plow company the latter's plow factory, entire assets and business pertaining to tillage implements and kindred lines.

Control of the new company has been acquired by a group of the principal employés of the old Moline Plow company. The new company will start operations with assets of about $3,000,000 and practically no debt.

R. W. Lea is president and general manager, H. B. Dinneen, vice president in charge of production, and P. H. Noland, vice president in charge of sales. Alvin Brown is secretary and treasurer.

Fisher Body New Stock Pays $5 Annual Dividend

New York, Jan. 10.—Directors of the Fisher Body corporation today declared a quarterly dividend of $1.25 on the new stock which recently was exchanged on the basis of four shares of new for one of old. The old stock paid $10 a share annually. The new rate is equivalent to $5 quarterly on the old stock, or double the old rates.

President W. A. Fisher said no major capital expenditure, are contemplated in the near future, which will permit accumulation of surplus earnings in cash, and that so long as the stability of the corporation was in no way affected, the stockholders should share in the prosperity of the corporation.

Office Space in Tribune Tower is not Expensive

Prospective buyers of office space in Chicago's office buildings will discover, upon investigation, that rents in Tribune Tower are not high.

For instance, a very attractive office overlooking Lake Michigan may be rented for $90 per month. There are many small businesses for whom this space would provide ideal quarters away from the noise and confusion of the Loop.

Considering the quality of the building, the incomparable service to tenants and the cost to the owners, Tribune Tower is reasonably priced—even cheap.

New York, Jan. 10.—[Special.]—Today's stock market did not resemble the market of the preceding Saturday, except in the large business done. As against the 1,474,000 shares dealt in on the two hour market of a week ago, 1,164,000 changed hands today, but even that left it the fourth largest of the ten Saturday markets since election day.

It was a day of moderately declining prices, in which a few 2 or 3 point advances hardly offset the general downward drift. What the movement clearly meant was sales by professional operators, so as not to leave an unwieldy speculative account outstanding.

Find Public More Wary.

It indicated recognition of the fact, which last Monday's market proved, that a violent rushing up of prices at the week-end is more apt to bring distrust than enthusiasm to the general public. On the other hand, today's transactions in bonds were the largest of any Saturday since election week, reflecting perhaps the influence of returning ease in money.

The chief financial news development of the day was the unexpectedly large increase of 784,787 tons in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel corporation. U. S. Steel common held relatively steady around 124 despite the heavy realizing in that issue. Bethlehem Steel 8 per cent preferred sold at the highest price in over a year.

Prices rallied briskly during the first hour of today's brief session and then fell back sharply on a large volume of profit taking. The early rally embraced a wide list with brokers reporting a demand for stocks from all sections of the country.

The limited floating supply of many issues resulted in some sharp advances of 2 to 4½ points, with nearly fifty issues selling at their best prices in a year or longer. The list included such widely diversified issues as General Motors, Famous Players, Sears-Roebuck, Certain-Teed Products, Tobacco Products "A," General American Tank, Standard Gas and Electric, Fidelity Phenix Insurance and American Locomotive.

Low Priced Rails in Demand.

Chief interest in the railroad group centered in the demand for some of the low priced carriers, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, Western Pacific common and preferred and a few others touching new highs on the movement. Denver and Rio Grande Western preferred added 3 points to its recent gain by touching 57, a new high, and about 15 points above the price a week ago.

Profit taking, however, forced moderate recessions in Rock Island, Chicago Great Western preferred, Chesapeake and Ohio and several other issues which had shown signs of strength in the early dealings.

Some of the outstanding strong spots were American Brake Shoe, American Radiator, American Republic, Associated Dry Goods, Century Ribbon, Continental Insurance, R. H. Macy, Nash Motors, Phillips-Jones, Simms Petroleum, Stewart-Warner and Worthington Pump, all up 2 points or more. S. S. Kresge crossed 500 for the first time.

Reactionary tendencies were noted in American Can, American Car and Foundry, Central Railroad of New Jersey, General Electric, Pacific Coast second preferred, Phillips Petroleum, Railway Steel Spring, United Railway Investment preferred and Wilson Packing, the losses ranging from 2 to 5 points.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

There was a greater demand for local bank stocks last week than at any time for a number of years, but actual transactions were rather limited due to a scarcity of offerings. Illinois Merchants Trust continued its upward movement with an additional 12 points added to the bid price of 452 with offerings at 455. The announcement of the proposed capital increase of Union Trust company improved the bid price for that stock some 10 points to 415. Continental and Commercial National was 2 points higher, closing at 312½ bid, offered at 314½.

First National sold between 459 and 461, but bids at the latter price at the close failed to bring out definite offerings. A small block of Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust was traded in between 425 and 430. National Bank of the Republic scored a gain of some 3 points at 183 bid, offered at 186. Bids of 409 for Foreman National failed to attract sellers. Central Trust of Illinois was steady at 233 bid, offered at 236 asked.

Trading in the miscellaneous group was very broad and active with a general advance in prices. Butler Brothers became exceptionally active in the late trading, advancing to high sales at 36¼ and closing at 36. Bucyrus common was strong throughout, the closing quotation of 119 bid, 124 asked reflecting an improvement of about 7 points. The preferred was quoted 1 point higher at 98 bid, 101 asked. Buyers were noted in Borden common at 139. La Salle Extension University advanced from 15 to sales at 20, and at the close was quoted 19 bid, 20 asked. Interstate Iron and Steel scored another 6 point improvement in closing at 90 bid, with limited offerings at 95. Kellogg company was strong, the bid price of 42 reflecting a 4 point advance.

Federal Electric common was a point better with sales around 7. Acme Steel Goods continued in demand at 100. American Seating common advanced 3 points to 55 without attracting sellers. Brennan Packing Class "A" was again quoted 51½ bid, with small lot offerings at 53. Chicago Mill and Lumber common was wanted at 72. Northwestern Yeast changed hands between 180 and 182. Standard Cap and Seal moved up to sales at 30, and at the close additional stock was wanted at this price with little interest on the selling side. Albert Pick preferred was wanted at 93 with offerings at 96. Chicago Mill and Lumber preferred was quoted 100 bid, none offered, while Fairbanks Morse preferred was traded in between 104 and 105.

Public utility securities sold off in the early trading, but rallied later and in the majority of instances closing prices reflected substantial gains. Adirondack Power sold off a point and a half to 35½, but rallied to a close of 37. American Gas and Electric sold down 4 points to 76¼, but in the late trading high sales were reported at 81. Transactions in American Power and Light common ranged between 65¼ and 59, with closing transactions between 63 and 64. American Super Power "B" rallied from 34 to high and last sales at 35½. Appalachian Power gained another 3½ points to its previous gain in closing at 79¾.

American Light and Traction common regained its early loss in closing at 140. Commonwealth Power improved over 6 points from the low of 120, but eased off somewhat and closed at 123. The warrants were traded in at 46; while the preferred ranged between 82 and 81½. National Power and Light continued reactionary, low sales at 218 showing a net loss of about 18 points. Sierra Pacific became active at advancing prices with sales around 29. Western Power moved fractionally to 38¾; while the preferred was a point and one-half better at 87½.

WALL STREET NOTES

A striking illustration of the absorptive power of the stock market was supplied yesterday by a broker who reported that he had just completed the liquidation of 90,000 shares of a single stock for a large client, but the market price was now higher than when he started to dispose of his line a few weeks ago.

Several large blocks of Kennecott Copper stock changed hands, 5,900 shares selling at 56⅞ and another of 1,100 shares soon after at 57. Net earnings last year are estimated at $7.50 a share. As the company is paying only $3 a share annually, much interest is attached to the next dividend meeting the last week in February.

Wall street's keen interest in radio stocks, of which more than twenty listed and unlisted issues have been added in the last year, has emphasized the fast growth of the industry, which has developed in three years from about twelve manufacturers to more than 3,000. In addition, about 335 firms do a large export business of radios and accessories. Sales of radio sets in 1920 were less than $2,000,000. Last year sales reached $400,000,000. More than 300,000 persons are now employed in the industry.

Dealings in railroad bonds were stimulated yesterday by the agitation at Washington to reduce interest rates on government loans to the carriers. This factor was not overlooked as a speculative possibility in the case of St. Paul, New Haven, and other issues. High grade liens, such as New York Central Consolidated 4s, Louisville and Nashville 4s, and Baltimore and Ohio 4s were in good demand, advancing a point or so.

Standard Gas 6½s led the public utility list in activity, establishing a new high at 119⅝ and closing at a 2 point advance, or a net gain of almost 12 points for the week. Fisk, Goodyear, and other tire company bonds strengthened on reports of increased business resulting from the automobile show.

The weekly statement of the New York clearing house showed the following changes: Loans, discounts and investments decreased $33,343,000; net demand deposits decreased $67,102,000; time deposits decreased $6,705,000, and the deficit in reserves increased $20,406,160 to a total of $23,511,670.

The annual report of the Missouri Pacific for 1924, it is expected in the financial district, will be one of the best in the road's history, to which has been attributed recent buying of both preferred and common shares. Some estimates place probable earnings on the common stock as high as $11 a share.

The largest export total for gold for any one week since the first part of last December was reached in the week ended yesterday. Shipments totaled $21,450,000, bringing the total for the month to date to $24,950,000 and raising the total, since the gold flow started from America in December to about $68,000,000. Shipments to India, amounting to $8,850,000, were the largest for any one country. Then came Germany with $5,000,000; England, $4,000,000—of which half was presumably destined for Russia; Holland, $1,100,000; Switzerland, $500,000, and miscellaneous, $2,000,000.

Chicago stocks were active and higher in yesterday's week-end session. Stewart-Warner led in activity and advanced 2¾ points on reports of steadily increasing orders for automobile accessories and prospects for its new radio business. Great Lakes Dredge and Dock came to life with a jump of 6 points on reports that an extra dividend will be declared next month and that business already booked will cover this year's dividend. Montgomery Ward, Swift International, Libby-McNeill, and Hupp Motor made fractional gains. Bendex, Continental Motors, Midland Steel, Union Carbide, and Standard Gas were about steady.

500,000 People Have Read This Book

YEARS ago we wrote a primer on sound investments, the most instructive, and deservedly the most popular piece of literature this House has ever issued. Half a million people have read it. For many it has meant the turning point towards success.

Thousands upon thousands have found in it this truth: that he who trusts his accumulations to hazard, lays by only chance of loss and resulting worry; while he who selects and cultivates one safe, sound form of investment, not only secures for himself and family a competence but adds that comfortable feeling of safety and satisfaction which can only come when wisdom and judgment dictate the investment. It tells you—

—How to select safe securities;

—How to secure the best interest rate consistent with safety;

—How—and how carefully—Straus Bond issues are underwritten and guarded throughout the life of the loan.

One man told us that to pay $10 for the information this book contains would be to buy it cheaply, but it needs only your simple request to assure your having a copy. If you are interested, not merely in earning, but in safely investing what you have earned; if you look forward to the time when income on your investments will save work itself, then write today for your copy of this book. REO STABILITY

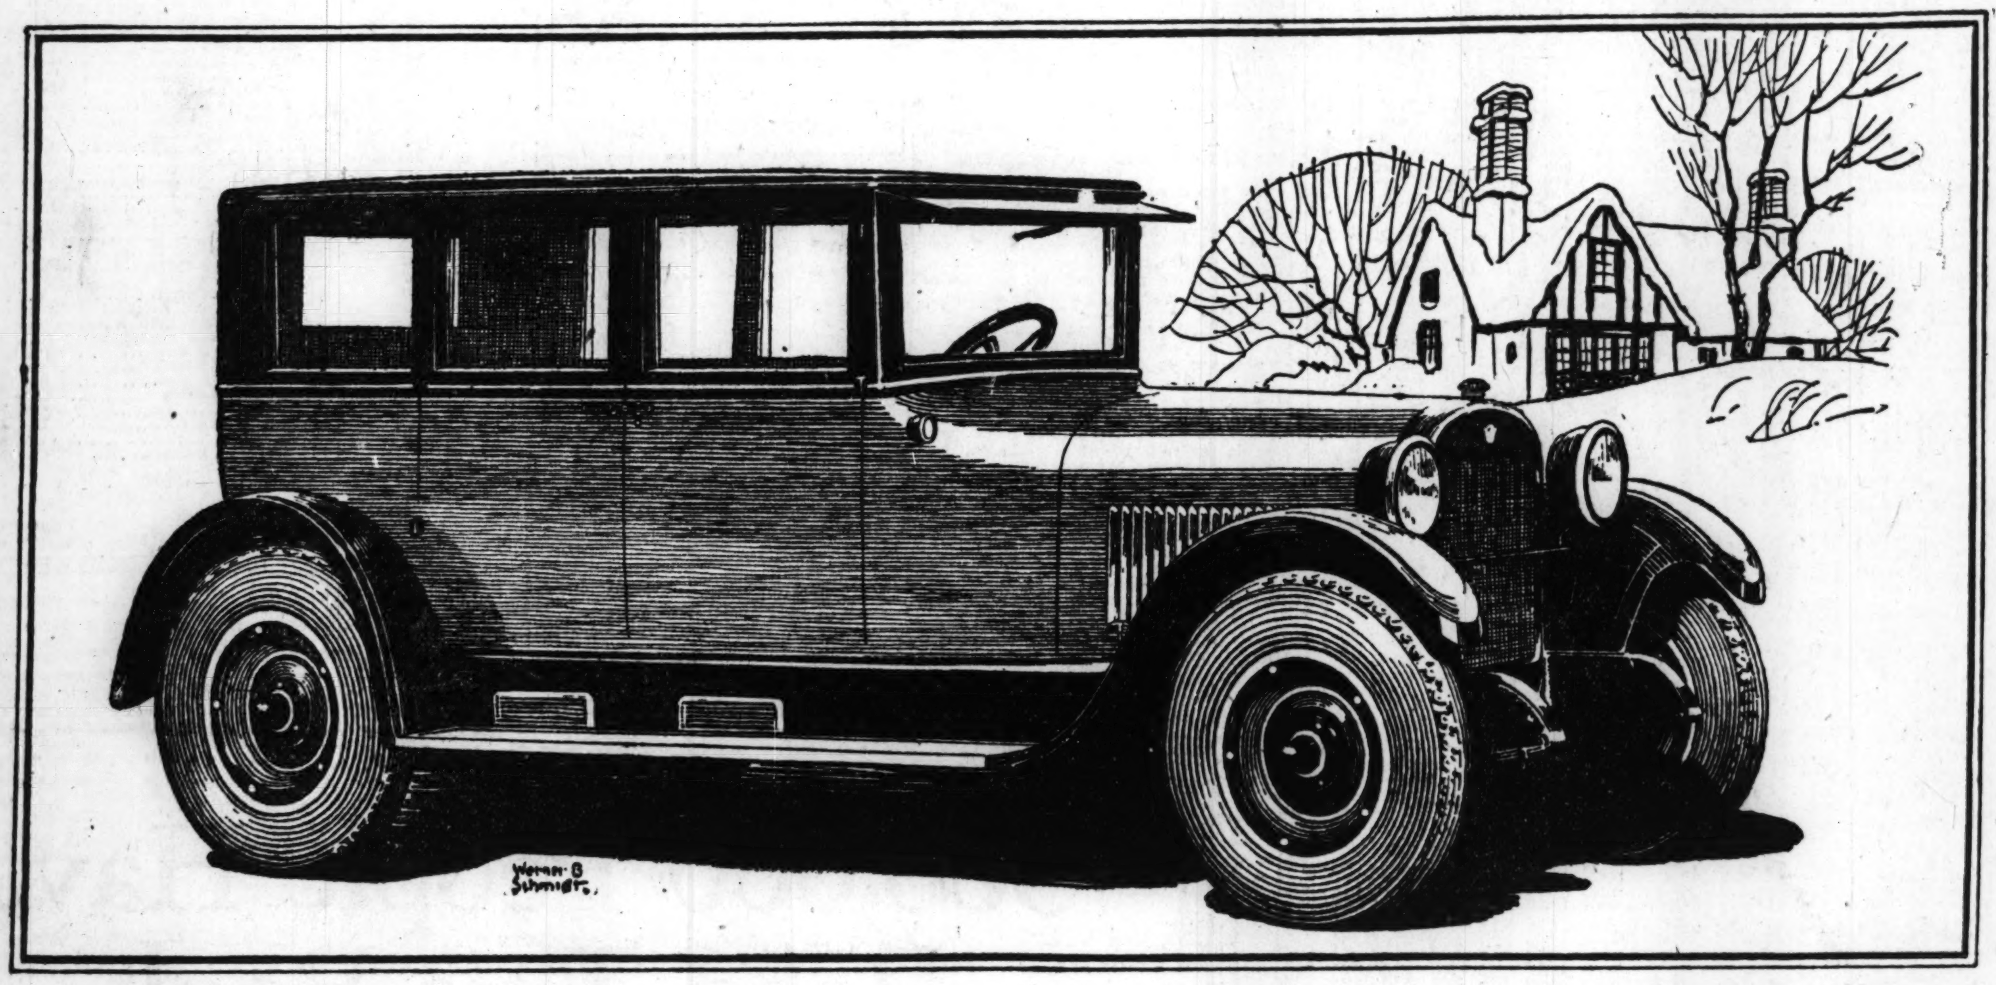
—and the Chicago Motorist



A Dollars-and-Cents Discussion of Institutional Soundness in Its Relation to Motor Car Buyers

It is one thing to talk of the financial rating of a manufacturer to stockholders in the company—and another thing to show the consumer where his bank roll benefits when he buys from the organization noted for its solidity.

Dividends speak volumes to the stockholder—but the dividends paid to the consumer are not labelled.

* * * * * *

The institutional stability of the Reo Motor Car Company is known all over the United States. Not only one of the strongest manufacturers in the automotive industry, Reo is also one of the soundest corporations of any description in the world.

That is merely a statement of fact. Every student of economics in America is acquainted with it.

* * * * * *

But what does that net the motor car buyer in the city of Chicago—or Waukegan or Elgin or any other city outside of Lansing, Michigan, where the name Reo implies steady jobs and ready pay as well as quality motor cars and the Mighty Speed Wagon?

* * * * * *

The owner of a Reo knows three things, every one of which means money in his pocket just the same as the first day in every quarter means a dividend check for Reo stockholders. It is in making these three things true that Reo stability pays dividends to owners of Reo cars.

* * * * * *

First, the Reo owner knows that he will never have an "orphan car" on his hands. To the owner of a car whose manufacturer closes his doors, the net loss is anywhere from 20 to 75 per cent of the cost of his car on the day the shops are shut up—and more every day until the car is salvaged.

* * * * * *

In the second place, the Reo Motor Car Company is in a position to pay cash for every dollars worth of material purchased, thus earning a discount that, in a product costing as much as a motor car, is worthy of consideration. Now there is lots of competition in the automobile business and it must be assumed that every manufacturer is selling his cars at the lowest price consistent with his building policies and good business.

It is reasonable to believe that the company earning a cash discount on every bit of raw material purchased can give the most quality at a fixed price. More dividends to the Reo owner.

* * * * * *

In the third place, the company that is sound financially never has to resort to any schemes for turning over finished products or raw material in a hurry in order to raise cash. When a manufacturer permits his branches or dealers to slash prices for the sake of obtaining ready money, or when he arbitrarily creates new models to stimulate sales and move raw material, he is passing his losses to the owners of his car by depreciating them prematurely.

No Reo owner has ever suffered this loss and none ever will. Reo is sound financially and has never entertained the thought of using such methods. An organization that has been successful throughout a period of two decades could not have been built on shaky foundations.

* * * * * *

In recent months the number of Reo owners in Chicago and Cook County has increased far beyond the proportion of car registrations.

Back of this increase stand Reo's mechanical excellence and dependability, its attractive appearance and complete appointments—and its institutional soundness.

For some time shrewd motor car buyers in Chicago have been making this same analysis and have decided in buying cars to invest their money, not spend it.

> "Reo continues as one of the industry's outstanding examples of consistent performance in two ways. Its product is consistent and enduring, and its reputation everlasting; the profits of the concern are also consistent and unflagging"—
> Automobile Topics, December 27, 1924 page 597.

Jane Couldn't Very Well Marry Both of Them; Hence a Unique Wager About an Evening Gown

THE breeze came directly from off the shore, and was freshening. The heavy Indian waters were beginning to heave somewhat lazily, and each time that the wrecked plane rose with the swell and dropped downward into another oily trough, it slid slightly farther from the land. To the east there were occasional suggestions of whitecaps, and no sign of navigation—not even smoke.

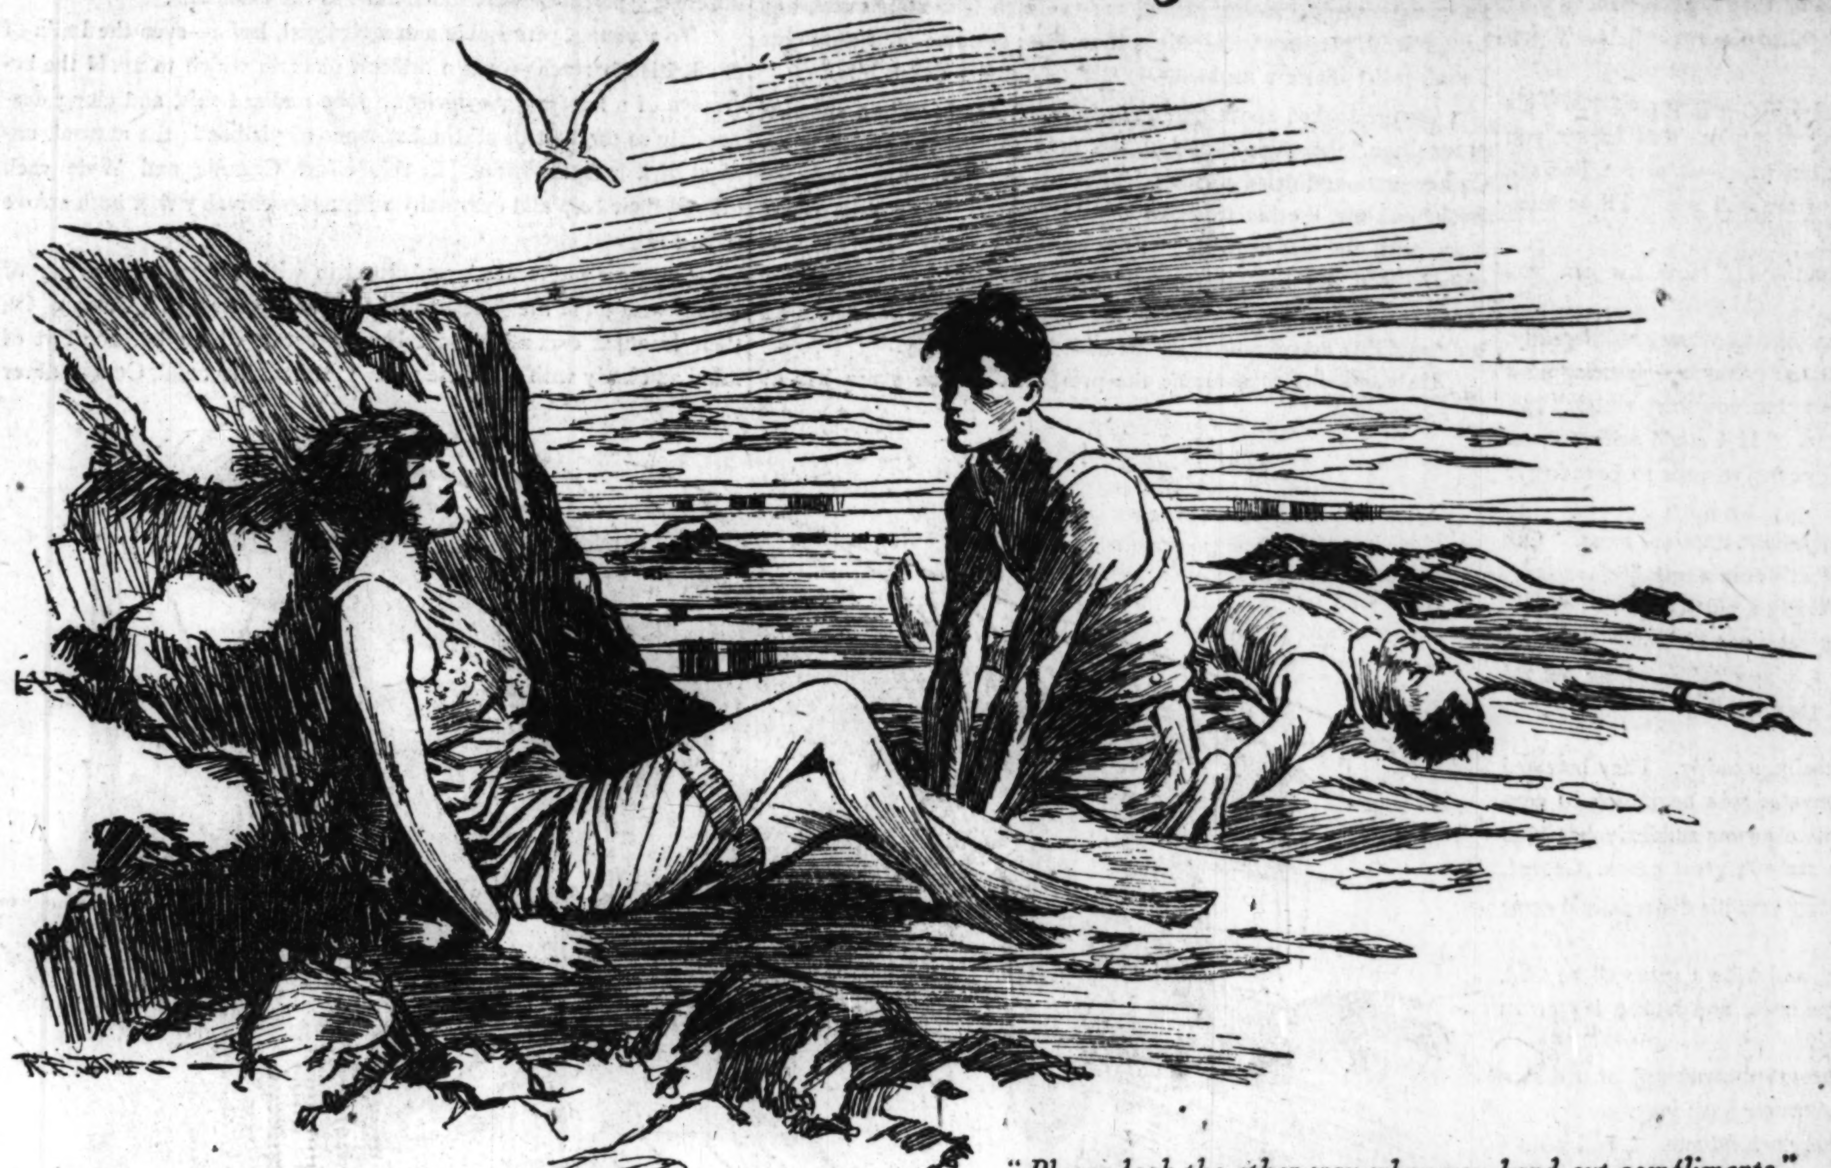
It wasn't altogether a pleasant situation for the plane's three occupants; especially since one of them was a woman. But unusual situations were not new to any of them. Each had been bred in—and reared of—a school where things happened; and each was the product of an environment where, in times of difficulty, the natural human emotions were carefully locked away in the family closet.

George Crumlie and Converse Wyle were Englishmen. They had been schoolhouse and Sandhurst mates, and had one trait in common with most Englishmen of the better class that is frequently misunderstood by their racial cousin across the Atlantic. He supposes them to be taciturn animals; and so they are, except where any crisis is concerned that invites a display of their real feelings. In that case they can, when necessary, hide behind a conversational camouflage that is as voluable as any Latin's. The real difference lies in the fact that the Latin bares, while the Englishman conceals.

The woman, Jane Morton, was an American. The companion of a father whose life had been spent among the best of the dwellers of the "out of the way" places, and with the versatility of her race she had made the best of their qualities hers. So she was really a Cosmopolite, with a background of inherited character.

Crumlie found a precarious footing at the highest point of the inclined wing, and examined the radius of the landscape within his vision. Then he worked his way back to the motor, and again went over every part of it. When he finally stood erect and scratched his head, he was covered with grime and perspiration.

"I assume you are ready to announce you have now fixed this thing, and we will arise and soar upon our way," said Converse, gently.



"Please look the other way when you hand out compliments."

George smiled ruefully. "In the words of the Evening Post," he said, "'we think the time has come when a committee should be appointed to take drastic action.' And when I say 'we' I don't speak editorially. Converse, you have a drawing room reputation as a rough and ready wit. Can't you suggest something to relieve this painful pause? I have never heard of your being at a loss before."

But Converse was engaged in drying some damp cigarets, which he had spread, like soldiers, in orderly array along the lower canvas, and he seemed entirely concerned with restoring his line as the motion of the plane caused them to roll about.

"I offered my suggestion this morning," he said, indifferently, "but you were too busy parking the eats, and the cold wets, to pay any attention. When we tuned up at Calcutta your motor was sputtering like some old angry tabby cat. Now it's stopped sputtering, but that hasn't helped the peace and quiet. You've taken up the job right where it left off."

GEORGE grinned again, sheepishly. "I don't understand," he said. Those spark plugs are as clean as a hound's tooth. Everything is in place, and perfectly hooked up, and the petrol has been tested. Have either of you any idea how far we are from the line of the Chittagong boats? No other shipping would come anywhere near this far inland."

"Did you say boats?" asked Jane. "Why flatter it with a plural? My experience with the Chittagong boat doesn't lead me to feel that this 'island of unrest' is any good place on which to wait for it. I've starved, and perished from exhaustion while waiting for it in a perfectly good waiting room. Has it occurred to you two amateur aviators that we are rapidly becoming old seadogs? While you are settling your private differences we are bound oceanward, and neither of you has remembered to reserve me the proper accommodations. I can't even go steerage. I believe that if we adjourned this stormy meeting and started right now, I for one might be able to swim ashore. That may be a bleak and barren coast yonder, but it is beginning to look to me like a picture of 'The Cotter's Saturday Night.'"

George considered the distance to the shore narrowly. Then he looked out to sea, where the whitecaps were becoming increasingly active.

"All right," he said, "suppose we start now." Then he turned to Jane quietly. "It's a good bit of a swim," he added, "and I'm going to peel off well down to my skin. I suggest you do the same."

Their preparations were made in as much seclusion as possible, which was probably why they didn't realize that Converse continued to sit quietly in his place, fooling with his precious cigarets. It was not until they were ready to start that they noticed him.

"What's the matter with you?" asked George. "Aren't you coming?"

"No," he replied, calmly, "this isn't my hour for a bath. This is my usual lunch time, and I'm going to explore that basket you were so fussy about. I won't go now; but when you arrive, just ask anybody you find about to come out for me, will you? I'll be waiting around."

George suddenly sensed the situation. "How far can you swim?" he asked.

"The question isn't relevant," returned Converse, indifferently. "If it were I should answer it; but I'm not going in swimming now. I'm comfortable where I am. I suggest that you start without further loss of time." He grinned at Jane. "If I could achieve your national nasal twang, I should say, 'Give my regards to Broadway.' As it is——"

George interrupted him with an impatient, upraised hand. "Can you swim half way?" he demanded. "It's only a mile."

"I never have, but I probably could in a pinch."

"All right, this is a pinch. You may not be going in swimming, but you are going to be thrown in swimming. Now get off your clothes if you don't want to feel very wet."

THE first half mile was achieved easily, steadily. They breasted the swells side by side, and Converse was beginning to congratulate himself when all of his motive power suddenly left him. His face became gray, and his breath came in great gasps. George, swimming just a little ahead, immediately saw his distress, and came alongside.

"Put your hand on my shoulder, and take a catnap," he said, matter of factly. "Just keep one eye open, and kick a leg or an arm occasionally."

For the next quarter mile their progress continued, at a slower pace but steadily. Then George's endurance gave way.

"Jane," he called, "hold Converse up a minute. I will relieve you then."

Converse looked at them both appraisingly. "No you don't," he said, and sank suddenly. George anxiously watched the surface until he had, perforce, reappeared. Then he grabbed him by the hair and pounded his head.

"You fool," he yelled, "I know how to rest in the water." He beat him until his face was black from exhaustion, and Converse finally became docile—uninterested; and when George guided his hand to Jane's shoulder he let it rest there naturally.

George turned over on his back and practically floated, and as his stentorian breathing ceased he gradually regained his strength. When he swam over and relieved Jane, who had forced her will to take her far beyond her ordinary physical endurance, Converse was completely water logged and unconscious.

The last quarter mile was a nightmare, but they made it because they were what they were, and it was a half dead pair that hauled Converse up onto the bleak, untenanted beach.

"ANOTHER giddy triangle with all the frills gone," gasped Jane, as she leaned, panting, against a big bare rock, with the sunlight flooding it. Her one pitiful little bit of body covering, a silken undergarment, was dripping wet, and clung to her, and glistened in the brilliant light rays. The picture she made bore no cubist earmarks.

George Crumlie, clothed in B. V. D.'s, quite as exhausted, looked up at her from the warm sand with distinct approval. Converse—party of the third part—was still lying full length, eyes closed, and with no more apparent motion than if dead.

It occurred to George that it was much like Jane to make the first gamey attack on the situation. "What a wonder you are," he muttered, half to himself, with admiration growing, and glowing in his eyes. Her blush emphasized the sunlight.

"Please look the other way when you hand out compliments," she returned. Then added, sharply. "And keep on looking the other way, even when you don't."

She was beginning to feel weepy and was trying hard to deny that indulgence. She almost never wept, except when attending a matinee for that blissful, specific purpose. She sought control through persiflage.

"I hadn't supposed I could ever wish to be blasted with the curse of Esau," she complained. "I recall that in my Sunday school days it seemed a much more dreadful punishment than being swallowed by whales; or acquiring a well nourished set of boils. Now I believe I should positively welcome it. It is going to require all of my philosophy to look you in the eye when mufti and fine linen are back in style."

She went over and knelt beside Converse, trying to find the pulse in his temple. "He's still warm," she said. "I'm sure he'll be all right. Don't they roll them on a barrel, or something, when they get this way? I don't see any barrels around, but perhaps you'll do. George. I've heard unprejudiced observers call you a human tank."

She looked at Converse fondly. "Wasn't he a dear, when he wanted us to throw him overboard? He was tremendously keen about it, too. Thought we could never make it otherwise."

George was trying hard to play up to her studied effort, but in spite of himself he was growing a bit sulky. She had likened him to a barrel. Something to roll Converse on. It seemed to him that she was busy pinning medals on that unconscious form.

"Rather silly, though," he said shortly. "Your same unprejudiced observer would have noticed that he was already overboard."

Jane smiled. "Perhaps in these barren wastes it may be my good fortune to discover an illiteral Englishman. Then I shall occupy a proper place in the halls of fame—next door to Columbus. Have you noticed that Converse still has his glasses. We might use the lenses to start a fire—like in 'Wings of the Morning.'"

But George was still unappeased. "I'll bet they wouldn't work," he said. "They'll be too mild. Everything about him is too mild. Mildness is Converse's distinct, outstanding, all pervading feature. He oozes mildness."

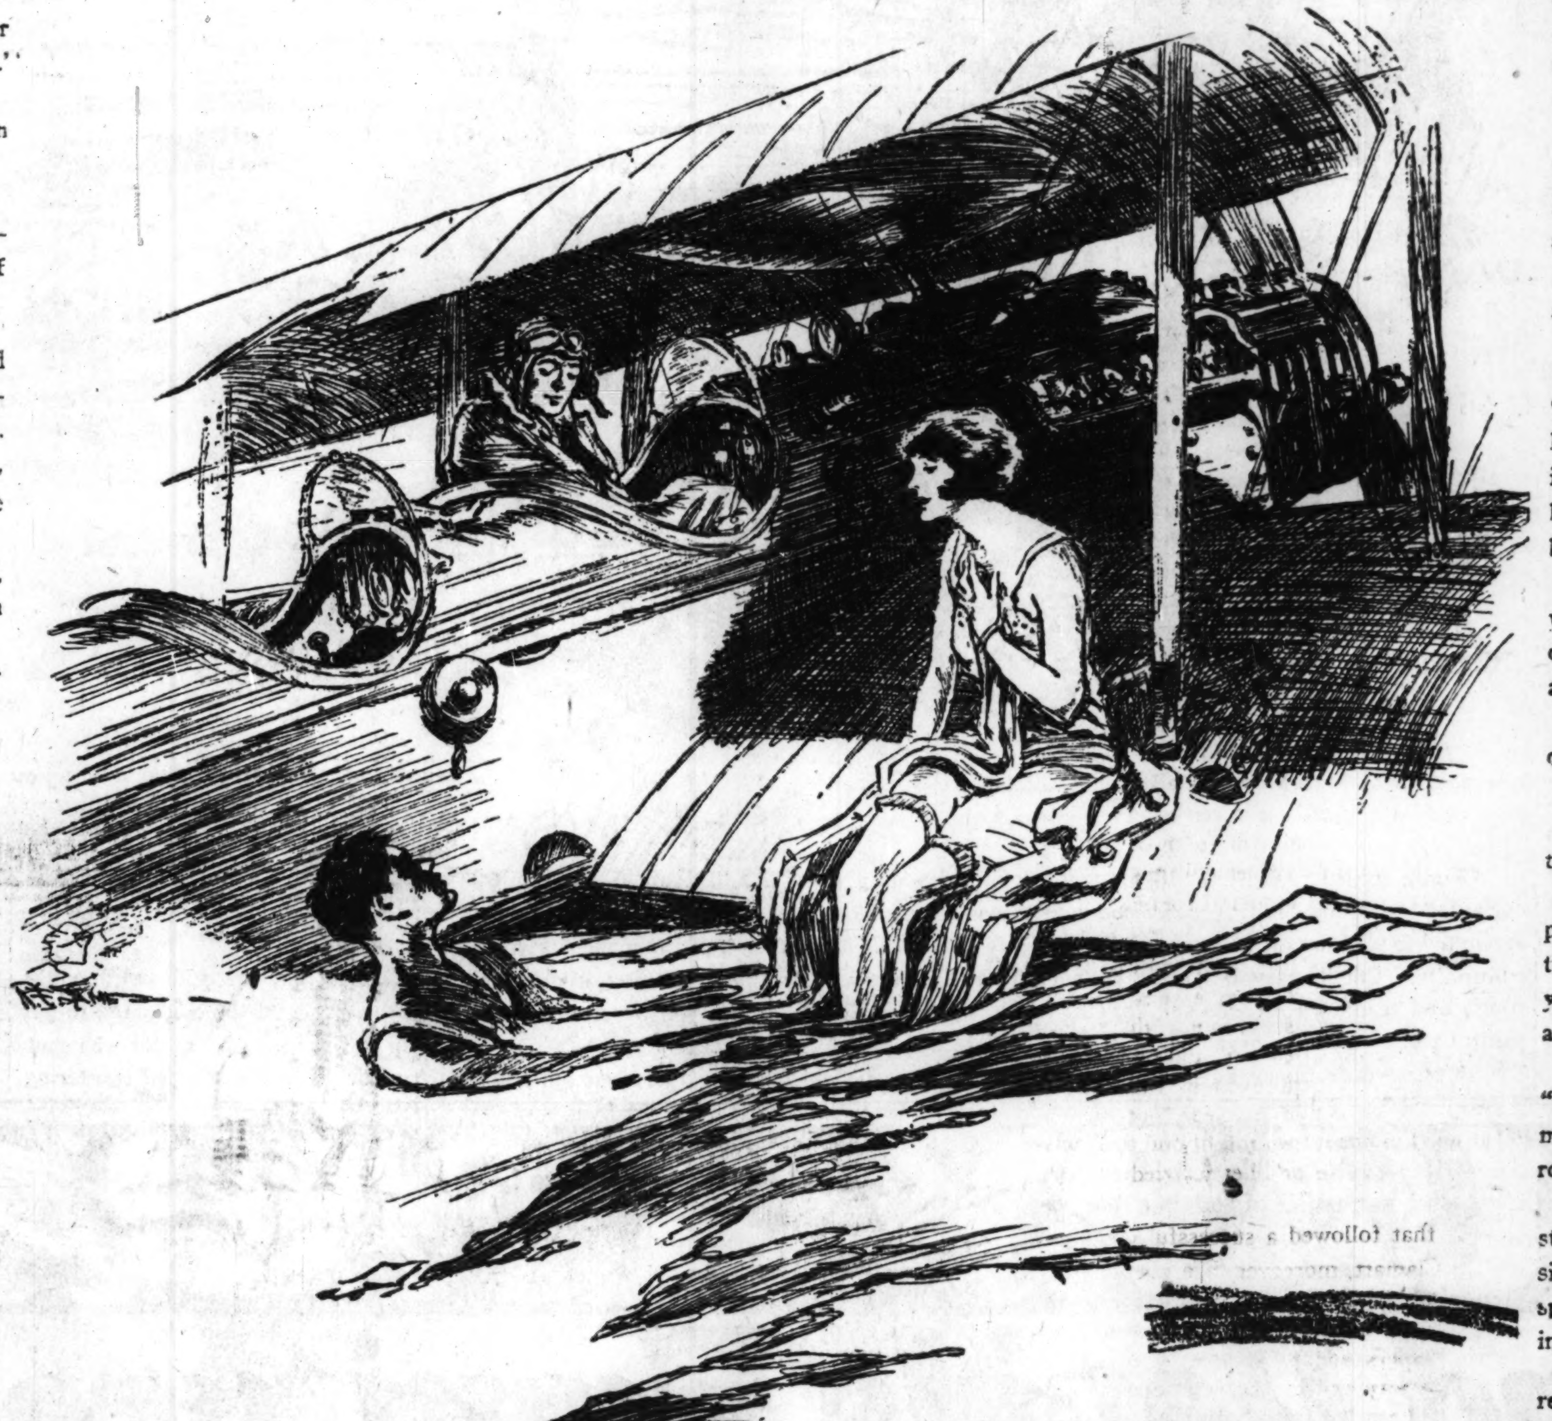
"YOU'RE a big liar," came startlingly from the still form on the sands. "You're a big, ugly, wooden headed, barrel shaped, hairy liar."

Converse's eyes were opened now; but he remained entirely motionless. "I've never claimed to be a deep sea animal," he went on calmly. "I don't even eat fish. But if you'll give me an hour to get my breath, I'll bet you my last pound I can beat you doing anything you name—here on shore."

Jane took him up promptly. "You're on," she said. "I will arrange a match. I want an evening gown. I'm not coming to your party without an evening gown; and the man who makes one, and brings it in, gets my vote. More than that; at some far future date I shall insist that my husband—and my children—thank him."

George looked about him doubtfully. "That's quite a sporting proposition," he said. "About the only things in evidence are Cashew nuts and dried sticklac. They eat the nuts—when they are fresh, and use the lac to make canned music. Those little round discs, with the red centers, you know, that register 'His master's voice.' You buy the accessories in Regent street for ten shillings down and two shillings six pence per week as long as you live. I'll bet you didn't even know that," he added, belligerently.

He continued to examine the prospecst. "The green has all died out of the foliage," he mused. "It's so brittle it crumbles in your hand." Then he turned to Jane. "I'm sorry I let you in for this mess. I have evidently been careless somewhere along the line. If that other sample of inadequacy would just lay off of me for a few moments I could offer a more gracious apology."



"What's the matter with you?", asked George. "Aren't you coming?".

Then he pointed abruptly at Converse.

"I'll take you on," he said, almost harshly. "Jane's vote will be a sufficient stake. But I'm going to start now—for obvious reasons; and I want you to hurry and get your silly little breath back into your one cylinder lungs; and take your carcass out of this—this ladies' boudoir. We won't either of us come back until we have brought something that will justify Jane's pulling your skinny frame up to a landing." He stalked off viciously among the bare tree trunks.

Converse grinned as he disappeared from sight. "If that primeval monster meets up with some other primeval monster back there in the wilderness," he said, "I shall be sorry for the native article. I'll bet George comes back with its petticoat and jacket, even though he has to leave it dead upon the field. Anyway, I outsat him this time, and that's some stunt, wherever you are concerned."

Jane sighed. "It's been a rather unusual experience," she said. "I think I'll write a story about it, and use other names."

"Don't do it," advised Converse promptly. "It's the finest way I know about to pulverize backbone. If there's any other disease more malignant than printer's ink, I haven't observed it; and certainly no other is as weakening. I've met up with lots of chaps who try to tell tales, and most of them were strong, healthy minded specimens in their salad days. They are elated and exhalted throughout the period of construction. Then they stuff their manuscript into a self-addressed envelope bearing an uncanceled, ill afforded stamp, send it to some hard boiled editor, and settle down into mere, hopeful atoms, feverishly watching the mails. When are you going to fall in love with me, Jane?"

"When India has annexed the Fiji islands, and the Irish have lost their love of fighting," she returned promptly. "Besides. I recall that you proposed a wager—and were accepted. I think that you should at least go to the post, even though you stop to bite the fence in the home stretch."

Converse got to his feet. "All right," he said, still good naturedly. "I suppose you understand I am still somewhat wind broken, and to that extent, somewhat handicapped. But I don't crib, and when I come through the stretch I shall have my ears pinned back, and lard in my hair." He smiled somewhat ruefully. "I shall be glorious, even in defeat, Jane," he said, and struck off inland.

JANE, buried—unostrich like—all but her head in the sand, was thinking of the two men who had gone their separate ways; each on the same mission. It occurred to her that while they were utterly different types, they were much alike in the essentials.

To a young, personable unmarried girl, India—even the India of the British barracks—was a difficult place in which to avoid the accession of a hardening cynicism. Jane realized this, and clung desperately to the best of all the heritages of girlhood; the natural, unlived girlish enthusiasms. In this effort Crumlie and Wyle each offered their help and sympathy with a shy chivalry that both strove to conceal.

Converse understood, and fitted in with her infinite variety of moods with all of the delicacy and clean mindedness of a woman. On their frequent excursions together, he arranged for her comfort of mind and body with exquisite tact. On the other hand, George never seemed to sense the necessity for anticipating inconveniences. So far as he was concerned personally, he wouldn't have recognized even a lively hardship as something to be side stepped. He took things as he found them, without the slightest whine of complaint. But she recalled that on a certain occasion she had found herself in an embarrassing, uncomfortable situation and for reasons that she was unable to explain even to herself, she had not gone to her father, or to Converse, but had taken her perplexity to George; and he had tackled that condition with everything he had. Bluntly perhaps; but effectively, and with no thought of self; and when he had finished, he had put people and things in their proper places, and had carved a road for her guidance that was straight, and white, and clear. Jane thought it might be rather exhilarating to call a person of that sort "her man."

She smiled commiseratingly to herself. "I sometimes wonder if I have not somewhere acquired the instincts of a male Morman," she mused. "I should like to marry both of them."

Converse, with that sureness of instinct that actuated all his movements, immediately looked about for some height, from which to study the country roundabout. It occurred to him instantly that his first effort should be along the line of finding help, rather than attempting to carve comfort out of that wilderness.

He noted that the land sloped upward, to the north, and that some mile and a half away in that direction was a distinct eminence covered with a greener, more luxuriant growth. At this point the land swerved inward sharply, and then out again, forming a natural little harbor; and his keen perception indicated that if life was to be found in this immediate neighborhood, it would be here.

He worked his way wearily towards it. He was very tired, and each step was an effort. The sun blistered his arms and neck, and the heat held that quality of shimmering quiverness that was making him dizzy. And added to his physical discomfort was a keen sense of personal loss: the loss of hope in the only real desire that life had so far held out to him. It was nothing tangible. Nothing definable. It was simply the acute working of sub-consciousness, in a soul attuned.

He had proceeded probably a mile in the direction of this eminence, when he discovered a well defined path, and followed it eagerly. It led him semi-circularly, back toward the shore, still in a northerly direction, and presently into a bungaloo he knew quite well. It belonged to Col. Goodrich. Lucy Goodrich was asleep in a hammock, on the veranda; and he walked past her and into the hall, where he secured and covered himself with a raincoat. Then he came out and shook the hammock.

"Lucy," he said, "I'm man Friday and I want white folk's help. I want an evening gown, and all of the undertrimmings, from the time one steps out of her bath."

He held up his hand to check her astonished inquiries. "Please," he said. "I'll tell you all about it later, and you'll like the story, but I haven't a minute now. Carry on, Lucy dear, and throw in a necklace or something."

Mrs. Goodrich went into action. This was India; and in India those whose ears are attuned to the lyres of the socially elect have learned never to repeat an unanswered question. Converse didn't even wait to clothe himself beyond raincoat and shoes—and [illegible] slight moist attention to the inner man—but hurried back down the path with his bundle.

Half an hour later he appeared before Jane, and presented his spoils with a bow. "I believe the conditions of this contest called for the delivery of an evening gown to this particular point," he said. "I have fulfilled those conditions. I can, however, furnish a more suitable place in which to try it on. You will find in the bundle a wrap and some serviceable shoes. I suggest that you let them suffice for the moment, and come with me."

But Jane, after recovering from her astonishment, was perverse. "No," she said, a little difiantly, "I made a sporting proposition and I'm going through with it. I shall put on these things here, and await George's return."

Converse bowed again. "As you please," he said. "I shall go and dress, and bring you some refreshments."

JANE and Converse were seated near their landing place, by the shore, waiting for Crumlie. Jane was radiantly dressed, to the last detail, including silk stockings and slippers. Also she was wearing a pearl necklace. But she felt uncomfortable. A little guilty; a little selfish; and she was growing increasingly concerned at George's long absence.

"Converse," she said peevishly, "you say you don't care for the water, but you should really learn to fish. I'm sure you'd have wonderful luck, especially at that kind of fishing where one just sits still and waits for the fish to come around."

Converse smiles. "Shall I cast about and try to find that idiot of yours."

"No," said Jane primly. "I'm sure he doesn't require any help."

Time went by in a rather strained silence. Converse also was getting just a little bit worried.

"See here, lovely lady," he said, "that anthropoid may be in process of being boiled over a slow fire, to satisfy Canabalistic appetite. I'm not at all sure that these natives observe Friday. Don't you thing I'd better strike out through the wildnerness, and shout around for him?"

But Jane was still perverse. "No," she said, a little maliciously. "He probably wouldn't hear you, anyway. Your voice would be too mild." Converse decided for the moment that George might die, and rot back there, for all of him.

The sun was taking its last round, red, brazen, almost baleful stare at Bengal bay when George appeared He was an unlovely sight. His arms and shoulders were blistered and covered with perspiration and scratches. His feet were cut and swollen, and he looked indeed like some forest monster.

He was carrying an unusually bulky package that bore a crude resemblance to those square affairs that are placed around tender young trees, as a protection. It was made of bark, held together with strippings from green twigs, that were laced through jagged holes.

It had shoulder straps of the same twig material and was altogether quite complete, in its way. There was even an attempt at ornamentation, since the bottom was draped with a frisky frings of half dried seaweed.

George dropped his precious handiwork and stared at Jane's lovely vision. Of course, the whole affair was simply another of his dreams. This was not the first time her lovely radiance had burst upon him when she was not actually present.

He had wakened in his tent, back in the jungle, under the tropic stars and had seen her standing beside him. He had stopped his camel, under the moon, to hear the desert talk—and it had talked of her and he had visualized her against the pale background of the night.

Once, while rotten with fever in a Pathan village, with some hostile Kye Kheens taking pot shots at their position, day and night, it was her image, as she sat beside him in fancy, that had made him wish to continue living. At times it had seemed as though her cool hand was on his forehead, soothing his disordered brain. He ran his own hand through his moist hair and across his smarting eyes. This thing was becoming serious. This was the clearest, sharpest impression of all.

But, to Jane, it seemed the realest thing that life had thus far brought her. She ran to George—openly weepy now—and put her hands on his wet shoulders.

"O, my dear; my dear," she said, "this is the loveliest thing! I shall keep it all my life. I wish I had waited to put it on. I should like to put it on now."

Converse was smiling, and she turned to him defiantly, "I suppose you know George has my vote," she said. "I distinctly limited this contest to those men who would make me a gown. Snooping around another woman's dressing cabinet was not included."

Converse's smile changed to a grin. It wasn't easy. It required real effort to keep in countenance while he stood by and watched this melting process. The death of his hopes. The adjustment wouldn't be accomplished without some bad moments.

"Never mind," he finally said. "I think I've known who had your vote even longer than you have, Jane. I might remind you that I have not been an entirely disinterested party."

He turned frowningly to George. "You're a fine dressmaker," he said. "You look a lot more like some harassed blacksmith that they forgot to kill during the stone age. I acknowledge, but I don't pretend to understand her preference, you big, red, lacerated, turkey necked biped. I'm glad you're all scratched up. I wish some wild varmint had bitten you, but, of course, there wasn't a chance. They'd have taken one look and run, howling, to their lairs. That's what any creature in the world would do, except Jane."

Then he grinned again. "You scragged me horribly, didn't you? Well, I still claim the doubtful honor of being best man. I suppose I must continue to serve your ingratitude I know where to find everything we need—including Scotch and soda."

And thus did Converse Wyle, starting in the direction of his precious path, render unto Ceasar—and to God—his greatest earthly desire.

Jane and George followed most unhurriedly. They were walking hand in hand. George was wearing the tree-box,

A Chance for Novelists

By H. L. MENCKEN

I.

OF novels of Washington life there have been a-plenty since Pennsylvania avenue was paved, but I can recall only one, Harvey Fergusson's "Capitol Hill," of any value either as work of art or as social document. The badness of the others has not been due, in most cases, to the ignorance of their authors—that is, to ignorance of the people and the scene. Certainly Samuel G. Blythe knows Washington quite as well as the devil knows Paris; nevertheless, his tales of human existence there, when cast into the form of fiction, have all been dull. Why? Simply, I believe, because Blythe, like all of the other Washington novelists save Fergusson, has made the mistake of assuming that the essential conflict in Washington is between ideas. This is not true. The essential conflict there, as in Summit, N. J., and Vladivostock, is between desires.

In "Capitol Hill" there is no division of the dramatis personae between Democrats and Republicans, progressives and reactionaries, materialists and idealists, patriots and traitors; the only division is between men and women who have something, and men and women who want it. In that simple fact lies most of the book's curious reality. For the truth about Washington is that it is not a town of politics, in the ordinary sense; it is, if anything, a town almost devoid of politics. The people in the industrial cities and out on the farms take political ideas seriously; what they cherish in that department they refuse passionately to surrender. But so far as I know there are not a dozen men in Washington, high or low, who would not throw overboard, instantly and gladly, every political idea they are assumed to be devoted to, including especially every political idea that has helped them into public office, if throwing the outfit overboard would help them to higher, gaudier, and more lucrative office. I say high or low, and I mean it literally. There has not been a President of the United States for half a century who did not, at some time or other in his career, perform a complete volte face in order to further his career. There is scarcely a United States senator who does not flop at least three times within the limits of a single session.

II.

THE novelists who write about Washington are partly recruited from the ranks of the Washington newspaper correspondents, perhaps the most naive and unreflective body of literate men in Christendom, and for the rest from the ranks of those who read the dispatches of such correspondents, and take them seriously. The result is a grossly distorted and absurd picture of life in the capital city. One carries off the notion that the essential Washington drama is based on a struggle between a powerful and corrupt senator and a sterling young uplifter. The senator is about to sell out the republic to the steel trust, J. P. Morgan, or the Japs. The uplifter detects him, exposes him, drives him from public life, and inherits his job. The love interest is supplied by a fair stenographer who steals the damning papers from the senator's safe, or by an ambassador's wife who goes to the White House at 3 a. m., and, at the peril of her virtue, arouses the President and tells him what is afoot.

All this is poppycock. There are no senators in Washington powerful enough to carry on any such operations single handed, and few of them are corrupt: it is far too easy to bamboozle them to go to the expense of buying them. The most formidable bribe that the average senator receives from year's end to year's end is a bottle or two of very dubious Scotch, and that is just as likely to come from the agent of the South Central Watermelon Grower's association as from John D. Rockefeller or the Mikado of Japan. Nor are there any sterling young uplifters in the town. The last was chased out before the Mexican war. There are today only gentlemen looking for something for themselves—publicity, eminence, puissance, jobs—especially jobs. Some take one line and some another. Further than that, the difference between them is no greater than the difference between a prohibition agent and a bootlegger, or tweedledum and tweedledee.

Ideas count for nothing in Washington, whether they be political, economic, or moral. The question isn't what a man thinks, but what he has to give away that is worth having. Ten years ago a professional prohibitionist had no more standing in the town than a professional astrologer, Assyriologist or wart remover; today, having proved that his gang can make or break congressmen, he gets all the deference that belongs to the chief justice. If William Z. Foster were elected President tomorrow, the most fanatical Coolidge men of today would flock to the White House the day after, and try to catch his eye. Coolidge, with Harding living, was an obscure and impotent fellow, viewed with contempt by everyone. The instant he mounted the throne he became a master mind.

III.

FERGUSSON got all of this into "Capitol Hill," which is not the story of a combat between the true and the false in politics, but the simple tale of a typical Washingtonian's struggle to the front—a tale that should be an inspiration to every Rotarian in the land. He begins as a petty job holder in the capitol itself, mailing congressional speeches to constituents on the steppes; he ends at the head of a glittering banquet table, with a senator to one side of him and a member of the cabinet to the other—a man who has somehow got power into his hands, and can dispense jobs, and is thus an indubitable somebody. Everybody in Washington who has jobs to dispense is somebody. The Hon. James John Davis, supreme emperor of the Moose and secretary of labor, is somebody. So is the Hon. Wayne B. Wheeler. So is the superintendent of the Zoological garden. So, even, is Mr. Coolidge—now.

This eternal struggle for jobs is sordid but, as Fergusson has shown, it is also extremely amusing. It brings out, as the moralists say, the worst that is in human nature, which is always the most charming. It reduces all men to one common level of ignominy. and so rids them of their customary false faces. They take on a new humanity. Ceasing to be guardians of the constitution, foes to the interests, apostles of economy, prophets of world peace, and suchlike banshees, they become ordinary men, like John Doe and Richard Roe. One beholds them sweating, not liquid idealism, but genuine sweat. They hope, fear, aspire, suffer. They are preyed upon. not by J. P. Morgan, but by designing cuties. They go to the White House, not to argue for the world court, but to hog patronage. From end to end of the chronicle there is absolutely no mention of the tariff, or of the farmer and his woes, or of the budget system, or of the far eastern question.

I marvel that more novelists have not gone to this lush and delightful material. The supply is endless, and lies wide open. Six months in Washington is enough to load an ambitious novelist for all eternity. (Think what George Moore has made of one love affair, 'way back in 1877!) The Washington correspondents, of course, look at it without seeing it, and so do all of the Washington novelists save Fergusson. But that is saying nothing. A Washington correspondent is one with a special talent for failing to see what is before his eyes. I have seen a whole herd of them sit through a national convention without once laughing.

IV.

FERGUSSON, in "Capitol Hill," keeps mainly to that end of Pennsylvania avenue which gives his book its name. I believe the makings of a far better novel of Washington life are to be found at the other end, to wit, in and about the alabaster cage which houses the heir of Washington, Lincoln, and Chester A. Arthur. Why indeed, has no one ever put kaiserliche Majestat into fiction—save, of course, as a disembodied spirit, vaguely radiating idealism? The revelations in the Daugherty inquiry gave a hint of unworked riches—but there is enough dramatic and even melodramatic material without descending to scandal. A President is a man like the rest of us. He can laugh and he can groan. There are days when his breakfast agrees with him, and days when it doesn't. His eyes have the common optical properties: they can see a sweet one as far as thy can see a member of the interstate commerce commission. All the funnels of intrigue are aimed at him. He is the common butt of every loud speaker. No other man in this sad vale has so many jobs to give out, or one-half so many. Try to imagine a day in his life, from dawn to midnight. Do it, and you will have the best Washington novel ever heard of.

The Amazing Crime

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

THE STORY SO FAR.

JOHN OLIVANT of New York, a young war veteran, is witness to a strange bank robbery in broad daylight in Salt Springs. As confidential agent of a rich promoter, Julius Jedburgh, Olivant is in Salt Springs on business with

MR. POINDEXTER, the bank president, father of SHELBY POINDEXTER, who is with Olivant when the robbery occurs. Olivant attempts to stop the robbers, but one of them knocks him senseless. With Mr. Poindexter before the robbery was

COL. VAN DOORN of the Royal Army Engineers. Both Shelby and Olivant noted a queer looking airplane overhead previous to the robbery, with wings like a turkey buzzard's. In this machine the robbers escape, when all the witnesses succumb to an odd limpness of body which renders them incapable of vigorous thought or action, or of active pursuit. Returning to New York, Olivant confers with

FRANK CLAMART, once an international crook but now a shrewd sleuth. Clamart lays the bank robbery to one

HUMBOLDT, mystery man of the underworld, an arch-criminal and withal a super-scientist. Clamart believes Humboldt has found a way to poison the air so as to render his victims helpless while he and his confederates loot at their will. Clamart believes Humboldt is

M. DE SAXE, a mysterious Belgian, a wonder chemist. In Washington De Saxe becomes enamored of

COUNTESS LEONTINE, a beautiful adventuress, friend of Clamart in his criminal career. Olivant goes to Washington to investigate De Saxe. There he dines with

THOMAS JEFFERSON PAYNE, a coal baron, and Shelby Poindexter, who also is in Washington. Olivant recognizes a waiter as the bank robber of Salt Springs. The shock causes John to squeeze Shelby as they dance, and she is offended. The waiter disappears. Two men ambush Olivant as he returns to his hotel. He is winged by a mysterious silent bullet, but is saved by Clamart, who has laid low one of the assassins. Olivant accompanies Shelby and her father to Payne's home near his mines. Shelby and Olivant see a plane just like the bank robbers' land close by and learn De Saxe owns that property. Payne admits to Olivant that he loves Shelby. Olivant tells him of the attempt on his life and warns him Shelby, too, may be in danger. They decide to invite Clamart down to guard Shelby.

INSTALLMENT VI.

A Terrifying Plight.

IN response to Olivant's wire Clamart arrived the next afternoon. Olivant asked Shelby to drive with him to the main line station about four miles down the valley. He did not tell her that Clamart was the criminal expert whom he had already mentioned, saying merely that he was a consultant in a business affair that he was working up with Mr. Jedburgh, and since Tom had kindly extended his hospitality to him this would enable Olivant to prolong his visit without neglecting his work.

But although Shelby evidently suspected nothing of Clamart's real errand there, it soon became evident to Olivant that she was more than casually interested in this new guest. She seemed to feel instinctively the dominant force of this man who had not only redeemed himself but on several occasions rendered tremendous service to society.

Clamart was forty-two or three, but in his physical aspect appeared not over thirty-five. The stresses through which he had passed had not aged him, and he had never been self-indulgent even in the wild old days when most of his type, not knowing at what moment they might find themselves deprived of life or liberty. tried to crowd as much as possible of both into those periods that followed a successful coup.

Clamart, moreover, had always been a natural student. He was entirely self-taught, a constant reader of voluminous newspapers and of science popularized in such a way as to place it within the scope of the keen lay mind. He had also a gift for languages, colloquial rather than academic, and if speaking in the dark could have passed for a Paris apache, a Sidney larrikin, a Caribbean beachcomber of almost any nationality, or even a Levantine. Needless to say, he was a finished actor of any role, and, like the old fashioned type of finished crook, an adept in the matter of disguises, for which he still cherished a sort of shame-faced fondness.

Coming now as a guest to Payne, his role was the one which actually most fitted him, that of a quiet, clear headed business man who had made a profound study of the financial conditions of the day, not only as consultant but capitalist and perfectly legitimate promoter.

As they drove back to the house in a mountain buckboard drawn by two ambitious thoroughbreds of a stock that had been for generations developed by the Paynes and driven by an old time Negro coachman, Olivant, sitting half turned with his elbow over the front seat, could see that Shelby had conceived an immediate admiration for Clamart.

Perhaps the most magnetic quality of Clamart was the perfect unstudied ease with which he fitted into his surroundings. Actually of the best blood in the country, though as Olivant knew, with the baton sinister that had led him early into crime, he possessed the mental and physical attributes of the aristocrat. What moral ones might be contained in him not even Olivant knew. He believed Clamart now to be a good man according to his code, but Olivant could not help feeling a sort of dread of that problematic code. He knew of the utter fatality that it could be capable of under certain exigencies, and that human life, merely as such, held for this self-appointed arbiter no sanctity at all.

PERHAPS Shelby also felt instinctively something of this. Clamart seemed to excite and fascinate her, with of course no effort on his part. The ultra feminine nature was quick to respond to the tang of age old savagery in the man, and with all his self-effacement Clamart certainly had that.

She pointed out presently the picturesque little chateau on the top of the ridge. "There's the castle of the neighboring coal baron, Mr. Clamart."

He gave it a brief glance. "Effective, but out of period, Miss Poindexter. The battlemented Tudor tower of the east end might be permitted if it were a ruin. Who is the baron?"

"A new purchaser of an old and rather worked out mine, according to our host. His name is De Saxe. Belgian by descent."

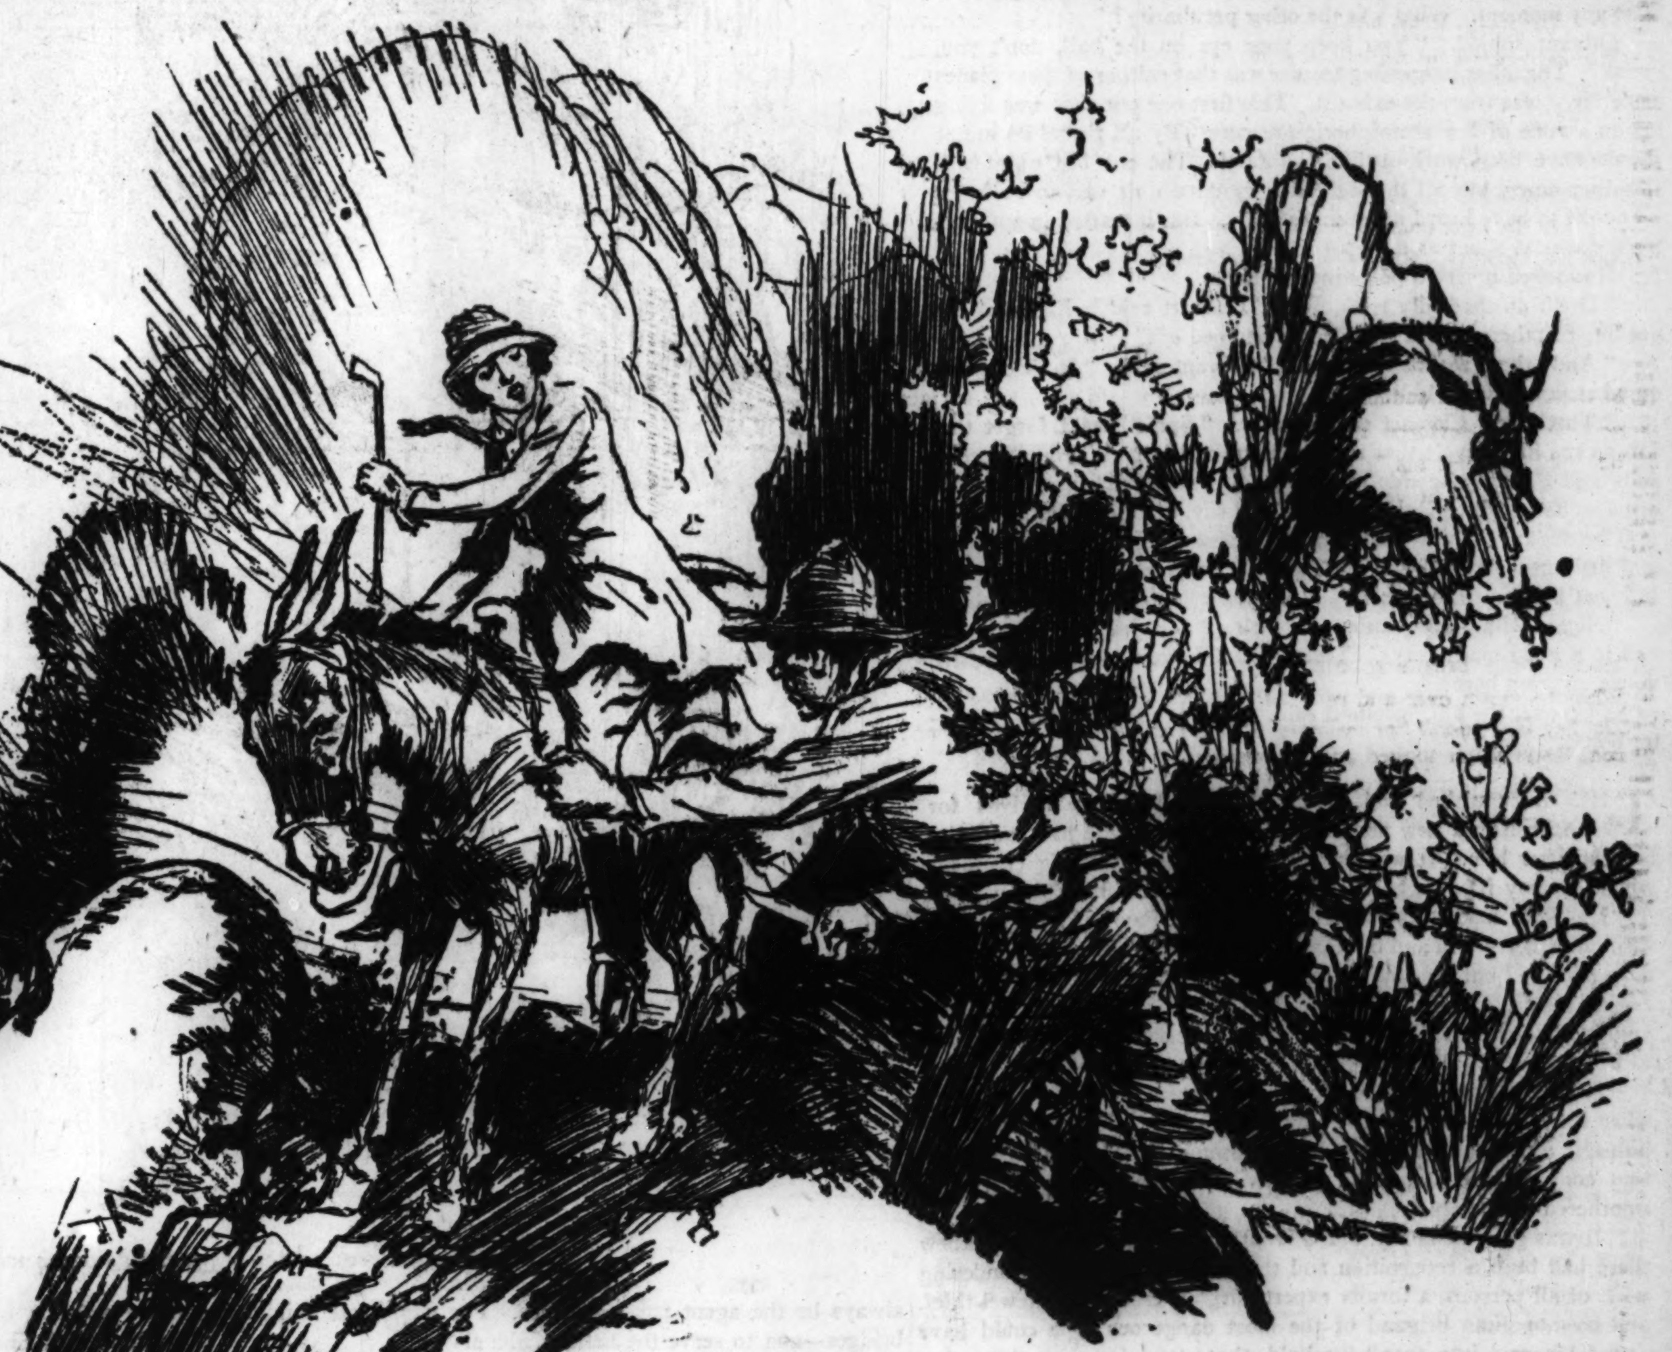
"I've heard of him. A creative chemist, and something of a philanthropist. Why do you suppose he wants a coal mine?"

"None of us can imagine. He's coming to luncheon tomorrow, and we can ask him."

"As I hear he was born in Russia and educated there, that might not get us far," Clamart said. "The Slav is near enough the oriental to hold his actual motives in reserve."

"He's uncommonly good looking," Shelby continued, "and we saw him dining the other night with a most wonderful woman, also Russian, John said."

"That may have been the Countess Leontine," Clamart observed. "Washington is rather interested in the pair."



Shelby gave a startled cry.

It struck Shelby that here evidently was a man of the world au courant with its gossip. She had expected a much less polished individual.

Chatting easily, they reached the house, to be greeted by Tom, a punctilious host. His guests never arrived or departed practically, and to the American idea shockingly, neglected in English fashion. Tom always greeted them warmly and sped them comfortably, usually with some thoughtful provision for the journey. In the meantime, during their sojourn, he merely made them a present of his premises and bade them help themselves.

And here again Olivant perceived that curious conquest of sympathy with which Clamart seemed vested. It was again apparent when, a few moments later, he was presented to that gracious silver birch who was Mrs. Payne. This lady was of the type to impress one as more virginal than most present day maidens, despite the fact that she had borne four stalwart sons and a daughter. Some mothers are like that, a quality of soul shining through. They seem to be mothers first, then to be the children of themselves with their children, the loving older sister.

WHAT was there about Clamart, Olivant wondered, that gave him this grip on such sweet folk? They seemed to accept him as of their own guild, the pure soul that his had not been. They offered him their friendship and confidence where the constabulary of the country, to whom his past was known, would not take him on as ally for the mainftenance of law and order.

Alone with Clamart in the quarters assigned him, a suite adjacent his own, Olivant asked, "What have you been up to, Frank?"

"I've talked to a couple of high lights of the Chemical foundation and another in the department of scientific research."

Olivant had hoped Clamart would first investigate the attack in Jackson park, and said so. Clamart shook his head.

"No, I've got past starting at the bottom and working up—reached the point where I'd rather start at the top and work down. That's better when you can manage it."

"All the same," Olivant said, "I'd like to be sure about that pair of thugs that laid for me."

"You are sure about one, John, because you saw him in the restaurant, and he saw you."

"He might not have been the same, at that. And how about the other?"

Clamart made a little gesture of impatience. "The other was not the bank thief who knocked you out, according to your description. This one I impersonated was a chunky beggar. Once I'd made sure what he was up to, I just gave him my fist as I went past, caught him on the angle of the jaw, and dropped him cold. Then I hoisted him on to the bench, and left him there. He must have come round by and by, as I didn't hear anything about a dead man being found there, but it was a proper wallop."

"What about your talk with the highbrows?" Olivant asked.

"Well, I asked the first point blank if he thought it would be possible to impregnate the outer air with an odorless intoxicant that would bewilder people. He smiled, and asked me if our late enemies hadn't done that thing. Then I asked if he thought it could be done from the tank of a single airplane, and he said not in the way I described because some of those present would probably be killed and others, who might have run out from houses, scarcely affected at all. He said that there were phosphogene poisons with a delayed action that would serve a military purpose but not an immediate one. I didn't get much satisfaction out of him."

"How about the other?"

"The other was a meteorologist. I asked him if he thought it was within the possibility of chemistry to do anything to the air constituents that might alter their proportions enough to interfere with the mental faculties of the people thereabouts, give them an oxygen jag, or anything like that."

"Did he guess what you were driving at?" Olivant interrupted.

"He was saved the trouble by my telling him. First he said it couldn't be done—that the diffusion of those gases was too rapid. Then he hedged by saying that perhaps it might be done, but only with an enormous amount of apparatus. He mentioned an instance of the great forest fire at Porcupine where the combustion sucked all the oxygen out of a mine in which a lot of people had taken refuge, so that they were asphyixated. I suggested then that it might be done chemically with a reagent tremendously avid for oxygen, but he said that nobody had discovered anything to do that on any such scale."

"Somebody might have, though," Olivant muttered.

"That's just it. Somebody might discover almost anything nowadays—how to detonate explosives at a distance, or to crack the earth's crust by combusting the oil pools under it, or degravitate ponderous objects, or sear us with rays or jar us apart with vibrations. I'm beginning to believe that the prelates of Holy Church were right in the dark ages when they burned anybody suspected of having got the formula to some of God's great natural forces."

"WELL, I'm beginning to think Brother Humboldt has, and that De Saxe is Humboldt. What does he want of this mine?"

"I don't know, unless to store his magic in. Nowadays you can't protect a factory or warehouse or laboratory from investigation. But if you had anything to hide or even to make, you might do it in the galleries of a mine."

"Have you seen Leontine?"

Clamart frowned. "No," he answered shortly. "But I've seen De Saxe."

"Just what do you mean by that cryptic statement, Frank?"

"He's a superman. I think possibly the superman. Leontine is the ultra feminine woman, the most absolutely feminine creature you can imagine, the essence of feminine substance, like Isis in Egyptology and Frigga in Norse legend. I watched those two in the Elysee, and while I don't want to be disloyal to my good pal, I'll tell you, John, that it made me feel—well—well, as I've felt before once or twice about running the trail alone."

"I get you, Frank."

"In one way, I was glad," Clamart said, "because it cut both ways. No man is immune from such a woman as Leontine while he's still a man, and I should say this De Saxe or Humboldt is that. Leontine may be playing with him, and then again she may not. Some few women are like electro magnets, so that they have only to throw the switch to give the man a tug, while others are constant magnets always attracting but less strongly. Leontine is the former Very few full powered men could resist being her armature when she chooses to throw the current through. De Saxe has probably told her a good deal, but how much she may see fit to tell me is another story."

"Then you feel pretty sure De Saxe is Humboldt?" Olivant asked.

"No, but I would if I could get hold of something to associate De Saxe with these two robberies."

"There's the waiter," Olivant said.

"That's just what puts me off. If this waiter was De Saxe's man, why should he have rammed in there as a waiter and bribed the real one to let him get access to De Saxe? He needn't have gone to that trouble. It looks more as if he were an ememy to De Saxe, especially as De Saxe poured the iced coffee into the palm tub. There seems nothing to associate De Saxe with your episode, either out in Missouri or Jackson park."

"There is, though," Olivant said.

"What?"

"Shelby and I both noticed one peculiarity about the airplane that went over us, and I noticed two. Perhaps she did—that young lady does not tell everything she knows."

"I felt that even in our brief acquaintance," Clamart agreed. "What about it?"

Olivant told about their exchange of observation, written, that there be no question of accuracy. "It had wings like a buzzard—the primary pinnates curving upward at their extremities. The evening of our arrival Shelby and I saw a plane with the same sort of wings circling down over that chateau on the hill. Later that night, when Tom and I were playing billiards, he told me De Saxe had arrived by airplane and that he was going to ask him to luncheon. That's why I told him about you and asked for your invitation here."

"You're a good scout, John. It looks to me as if we might have such a big dragon by the tail that it's apt to turn and gobble us at any moment. What was the other peculiarity?"

Olivant smiled. "You keep your eye on the ball, don't you, Frank? The other interesting feature was that neither of these planes made any noise from the exhaust. This first one out west was flying low in a zone of low atmospheric pressure. By all rights its motor should have been working like the devil. The one last night was spiraling down, but all the same this mountain air was so still that we ought to have heard it ten miles away. But it wafted in and fluttered down as silent as a maple seed."

He looked up from polishing his nails.

"Don't do that silly trick, John," Clamart said irritably. "It's got lots of otherwise sensible people bumped off."

"And others zealously guarded," Olivant said. "It all depends on what you have to hide."

"That's so," Clamart said wearily. "Sometimes I forget that I'm on the high level; that the technique of being in wrong successfully and the obverse side of the medal are so much alike that one often wonders which is which. I should say, though, that this pretty well settles it. You are an acute and observing young man, John, and Jedburgh showed his sense when he swore that he'd seen you kill that bum in self-defense."

Olivant's limp pose stiffened a little. "Mr. Jedburgh has qualified in a good many ways, Frank. What I want to know is, where do we go from here?"

"Up over the hill," Clamart said. "Over the hill to the—slaughter house."

THE distinguished and mysterious Mr. De Saxe arrived for luncheon in a new and costly limousine that he had caused to be sent after him. It was driven by a French speaking chauffeur whose dreamy face suggested a poet rather than a mechanic

De Saxe made his salutations to Mrs. Payne in the courtly fashion of her youth and his eastern European breeding, bowing low over her hand but not kissing it. He was more modern in acknowledging his presentation to Shelby and to Tom's sister, Mrs. Williams, who had that day arrived, but without her husband, whose leave was to be taken later.

De Saxe also greeted Olivant in courteous, friendly fashion. But when his eye fell on Clamart, although too self-contained to betray himself, there flashed across his handsome features an expression that contained, as it seemed to Olivant, covertly studying him, a smothered animosity.

It was gone instantly, but Olivant, and of course Clamart, knew there had been a recognition and that De Saxe must be wondering why, of all persons, a former expert burglar, cracksman, jewel thief, and cosmopolitan brigand of the most dangerous type could have found his way into that household, that stood for everything that was solidly and simply aristocratic, the best traditions that the country had to offer. It might be, Olivant thought, that De Saxe recognized in Clamart the fearful renegade of thieves who had smashed a strong criminal organization of the European upper underworld and that both Clamart's name, a well known one in Paris, and his former lawless operations were known to him. In such a case De Saxe, believing Clamart to be there under a false assumption, would be apt to tell Tom about him at the earliest opportunity. Even a stranger, a foreigner, would feel under such obligation on being offered hospitality.

But these clashing emotions did not prevent the luncheon from being a delightful event, or De Saxe from playing his part with perfect poise and grace. He proved himself a direct and simple conversationalist who was never for a moment banal or at a loss. His information on every topic discussed appeared to be that of a man who had made a particular study of it, and he came presently of his own accord to the query that was in the minds of all of them.

"I suppose you must wonder why an emigre to your great country should buy a coal mine," he said. "The reason is simple. I have need of a great deal of coal of just this sort for a venture that has to do with its byproducts when roasted at low temperature. Part of it is in the experimental stage, but there is enough assured to protect me from loss."

"Then you don't intend to mine and market it?" Tom said

"Not as coal." De Saxe smiled. "I don't want to alarm you for the future, Mr. Payne, even if such a thing were possible, but I should say that the reign of coal, merely as coal, is approaching its decline."

"I've heard quite a lot about that," Tom said. "One of our richest Americans, who has big holdings out here, is tackling a project of the same sort."

"Yes," De Saxe assented. "He promises us six cent gasoline. But I hope soon to promise you a one cent fuel that will not be gasoline. I say one cent because it is the coin of smallest denomination. I confess to being one of those dreamers who have visions of the emancipation of mankind from the problems of toil that retard his development and take the joy from life."

"Do you think that would be good for us?" Mr. Poindexter asked.

"That depends on whom you mean by 'us.' I am not referring to folk like our fortunate selves, but to the tired toiler."

Olivant struck in with the pleasant voice he knew so well how to make sound inconsequential.

I suspect you of having used some of that new power in your plane, Mr. De Saxe. Miss Poindexter and I happened to be watching your arrival." He glanced at Shelby.

"Is it a glider?" she asked. "Because we saw you zoom without any noise."

Olivant could have chuckled. He glanced across at Clamart. Shelby was fibbing about the "zoom," this word taken in its airplane sense. De Saxe looked mildly surprised.

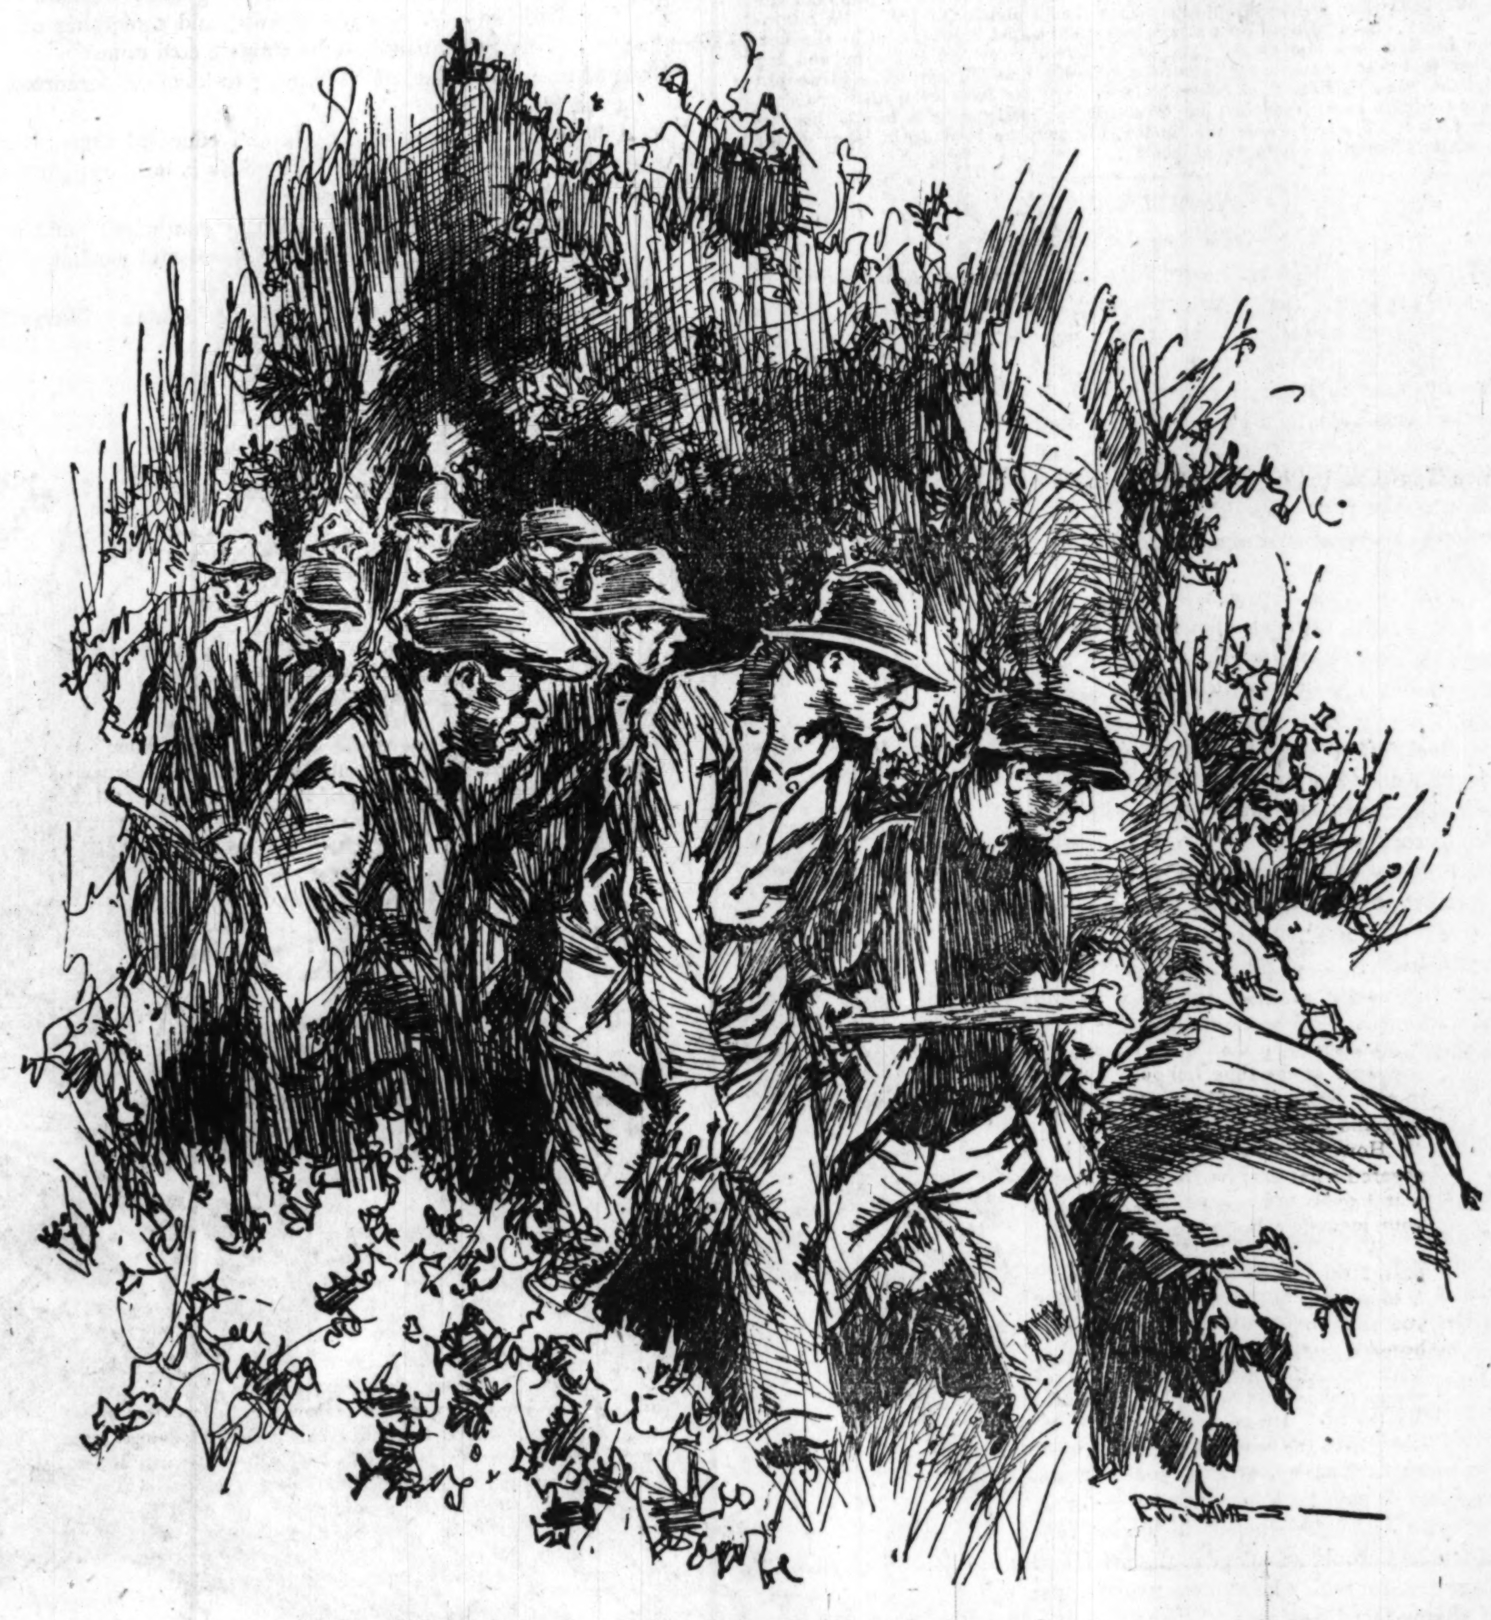
"Zoom, Miss Poindexter? I thought we'd kept a level, even course. But sometimes an air current sends up a light craft like mine, that is really something of a glider, though equipped with motor power. Some of us have discovered the advantage to be gained from the elasticity of bird feathers; the upward spring at their tips supplies a forward thrust."

"Are others doing that?" drawled Olivant.

"I believe so," De Saxe answered carelessly. He looked across at Clamart with a slight narrowing and hardening of his rusty iron eyes. "Are you also a coal man, Mr. Clamart?"

"Steel has been more my specialty in the past, Mr. De Saxe. My errand here has more to do with that. I hope you will not tell me that steel also is doomed as an industrial necessity."

"No," said De Saxe, and there was a slightly different timbre in his resonant voice. "I should say that for certain uses steel will always be the agent par excellence. For ships and buildings and bridges—and to serve the hand of the slayer."



These underground toilers were savages when wrought up.

"The primitive slayer," Clamart amended.

"Well, yes"—De Saxe sipped a little of the old Burgundy that Tom's grandfather had bought—"if some more enlightened method is not found for his suppression."

"I am glad to hear you say that, Mr. De Saxe," Mrs. Payne remarked. "It seems as if the first duty of science should be the abolition of war."

"It would be, madam, if higher science could always be vested in the higher type of man. Unfortunately those lower in evolution also have access to it. Intelligence and peace are inseparable. But the trouble is that men's minds may be intellectual without being intelligent. A great intellect might make itself the master of matter. But if it had not also intelligence, the danger must be very great." He glanced across again at Clamart, and only that discerning individual and Olivant felt the surcharge of an animosity that was there. "Are you also a chemist, Mr. Clamart?"

"Only a student," Clamart said quietly, "but I have enough imagination to appreciate the limitless possibilities of which you speak."

De Saxe raised his eyebrows. "Did I speak of them?"

"Perhaps I should have said imply. I quite agree with you that advanced knowledge in custody of the wrong person might be a serious menace. But there is one consoling feature. The alchemist cannot make himself immune from suppression. A stick or a stone in the hands of a primitive can always reduce him to the least common denominator of cold clay."

DESPITE the quiet casual tone in which this statement was made Olivant sensed the little thrill that went round the table. He glanced at Shelby diagonally across from him and also from Clamart. And Olivant was disturbed at the burning intensity of her eyes as they rested on Clamart.

De Saxe broke the momentary silence. "Then you do not believe in wizardry, Mr. Clamart?"

"Most emphatically not. I do not believe in any sort of spiritism at all. But I believe in luck without being able to explain it Whenever the world becomes at the mercy of any sort of evil genius, somebody has the luck to suppress him."

Here it seemed to Olivant was a defiance, a challenge of the boldest sort thrown down. It struck him that any man utterly without fear, to whom that emotion was unknown, did not need to have either armies back of him, or science or spirits or anything but that same cold, dauntless courage that was as empervious to fear as a polar bear to cold feet. He felt now that Clamart believed De Saxe to be Humboldt, and that he was giving him the same sort of a dare that Columbus gave the Unknown. The rim of the world, the dropping off place might be a little ahead of him, but he purposed to look over it. Clamart, Olivant decided, would not have done this if he had not perceived himself to be known to De Saxe. But since that was the case, he did not intend to be intimidated by him. Clamart went farther than that. He was telling this man of mystery and hidden might that he was no more immune from a club or a rock than anybody else.

Olivant wondered then how much Shelby might suspect of what was going on. It did not go on any longer because De Saxe and Clamart, as if by tacit consent, had after baring their teeth at each other apparently decided to postpone their event. And Olivant had grasped at a different conception of De Saxe or Humboldt. He began to believe that the man in his arbitrary way was not the arch devil that he had supposed, but merely a sort of proud Lucifer—before the fall. He might even mean well by the world once he'd got it where he wanted it.

The luncheon finished pleasantly. Tom took his guest to look about a little and to offer modestly enough the benefit of a vast and intimate knowledge of coal conditions general and local.

Clamart disappeared. Mrs. Payne and her daughter drifted off for a doting on the so far only grandchild. Olivant found himself alone with Shelby.

"He's wonderful," Shelby murmured as they went out on to the veranda.

Olivant made pretense of misunderstanding. "Well, maybe so——"

"Well, he is. He practically told that man that for al' his science he was no better than a bank robber if it came to misusing his powers."

"A bank robber——"

Shelby gave him a level look. "Don't stall, John. You're thinking of that turkey buzzard plane, too—and the way everybody seemed to be mixed up in their ideas. There's something phony about all this. Now suppose you tell me the truth about your friend Mr. Clamart."

"But he's just what he appears, Shelby—a business consultant."

"What sort of business? I think you're holding out on me"

"O, just some business we were associated in with Mr. Jedburgh about a year ago."

"Well, it's odd he should have put it just that way to this man De Saxe."

"But why—what's the matter with De Saxe?"

"There you go again," Shelby said impatiently. "If you want me to spell it out, then here you are. First we notice the two curious facts about that airplane that pretended to be trying to skywrite. Then come these two robberies, pulled off so easily as to start a lot of talk in the papers about there being some atmospheric phenomenon that made everybody sort of nutty just then. A little later we see this mysterious Mr. De Saxe dining with a wonderful beauty, and while we're dancing around you think you see the bandit who came out of the bank hovering, as one might say, about this same De Saxe, who the next evening we see hovering over that hill in a noiseless airplane with turkey buzzard wings like the one back home. It strikes me, John, that even if he hadn't the nerve to sit there and tell us blandly that all things were possible to science and that he had the answer to a lot of the riddles of the universe, the man you thought you saw in the restaurant makes the connecting link between out there and here."

OLIVANT was softly polishing his nails. "Don't you think that a little far fetched, Shelby?"

"No, I don't, any more than you do. It looks to me as if the charming Mr. De Saxe was a sort of wizard who was sore with this country and felt that it owed Europe a lot and had come over to use his advanced science to collect. What's more, I think that you suspect the same and that you brought your fascinating friend Mr. Clamart up here to give him the once over. He is the super-criminologist you spoke of."

"You are a most imaginative young person," Olivant said

"I'm nothing of the sort. But I happen to have been reading a lot of popular science announcements in the press and current magazines, which is hypothetical but advanced by sound investigators, and it all lines up with this."

"Well," asked Olivant, smilingly, "what do you propose to do about it?"

"I'm going for a ride. Tom's got a pair of lovely little mountain mules that glide along as if they were on rollers. Do you want to come? Once Tom starts to show somebody over the works he loses track of the flight of time."

"I'm on," Olivant said, cheerfully.

"Then see how quick you can change. It takes me about as long as it does to harness a fire engine horse."

Nobody appeared to be about as they mounted and rode away. Olivant, who did not take their expedition seriously, reflected that there were a lot worse ways to make a reconnaissance than mounted on a docile but spirited little mule, with a pretty girl beside him, a most uncommonly pretty girl, whose boyishly adventurous spirit detracted in no way from her femininity. He sighed a little inwardly and envied Tom, who, it seemed to him, was precisely the proper mate for Shelby and the type of man that must appeal to her the most. Olivant had always been a good deal of a ladies' man himself, but for a quite different sort of lady—the dancing, racketing species.

They took the trail up the valley, turning off presently on a footpath that promised to lead directly over the ridge and into the one beyond. It was a perfect day, the mountain air balmy and fine and sweet with the odors of balsam and fern. Their sleek little mules seemed to drift oup the steep slope with about as much difficulty as a pair of toy balloons. The only feature of the ascent to which Olivant found objection was that in crossing some of the open spaces they must have been distinctly visible from most parts to Payne below and above from the chateau, directly to the premises of which the rough trail appeared to lead.

"I don't know what De Saxe may think of our going up to look over his eyrie before being formally invited," he said.

"I don't care what he thinks," Shelby answered. "We might be riding up to get a bird's-eye view of the smiling dirty face of Payne."

On a rocky shelf nearly to the top they paused to breathe the mules and take the view. The chateau was a little way above them and to the right, its lower part hidden by scrub pines. From this angle it presented a really picturesque and feudal appearance, though in an incongruous way when one turned to look at the settlement it dominated.

"Wonderful air," Olivant said. "Too bad one can't extract the earth's treasures without making such a mess."

They proceeded on their way, coming presently to a fork in the trail. To the right it seemed to lead directly to the chateau, and to the left entered a growth of pine and fir sprinkled with hardwood trees, beech and maple, and scrub oak and mountain ash. Not desiring to seem unduly inquisitive, they decided to turn that way. Entering presently a dense growth of birch, they heard the cool, refreshing trickle of water and came to a little spring, of which the basin had been hollowed out. A gourd lay on a flat stone beside it.

"I'd like a drink," Shelby said.

Olivant slipped off his mule, went to the little fount, and stooped to rinse the drinking cup. He was about to rise with it filled when Shelby gave a startled cry.

AT the same moment the growth of mountain laurel and hazel and other bushes began to rustle all about, as if wild hogs or sheep taking a siesta there had been disturbed and were moving uneasily. Then Olivant caught sight of a crouching figure, barely visible through the quadrangle formed by the legs and belly of his mule and the ground on which it stood.

He sprang up, and as he did so this prowler broke cover and attempted to seize the bridle of an animal docile enough if honestly approached. But whether it was startled or its sagacious instinct warned it of hostility, it took immediate defensive action. Pivoting on its forelegs, it wheeled like a flash and lashed out with both hind hoofs spaced well apart. There came a thudding impact and a smothered bleat. The mule squealed shrilly as if in pain, and began to buck. Olivant sprang to seize the bridle, then barely saved himself as the little beast did another headspin and let drive consecutive blows that would have caved in the ribs or skull of a gorilla if squarely landed. The usually gentle animal seemed crazed with pain, and now, as it whirled about, Olivant discovered the reason. A knife slash, aimed at the girth with no consideration for the flesh beneath, gaped low under the mule's ribs.

At the same moment Olivant caught a glimpse of two small figures in khaki and with the straight brimmed, conical crowned felt hats of Boy Scouts. He knew that no real Boy Scouts would be engaged in such a vicious attempt, and even in his fears for Shelby as her pain maddened mule bucked and squealed and lashed out with its hoofs, the idea struck Olivant that these must be pit boys or breaker boys who had banded themselves together on msichief bent and managed to acquire Boy Scout uniforms.

There was no time to consider such a possibility. Shelby, despite her splendid riding, was nearly shot off at each successive pitch. Then, as if determined to scrape her from the saddle, the frantic little mule bolted suddenly straight up the steep hillside, plunging through the tangle of scrub and second growth.

Olivant rushed after them, not noticing whether the young devils who had made the ferocious attack were following or not. His own mule, taking alarm at the distress of its mate, had scampered back down the trail. Then, just as Olivant was getting to the end of his breath, Shelby's mount made a final effort that burst the girth partly sliced through by the knife cut. Olivant caught a glimpse of her, still in the saddle, flung off into the bushes. The mule wheeled and scampered diagonally down the slope.

Olivant lurched ahead, panting, to where Shelby had fallen. He found her sitting up with a dazed look, partly stunned. Just as he reached her she sprang to her feet and pointed down at the underbrush below them.

"Look . . . here they come after us."

It struck Olivant that here was a really murderous attack, its object the plunder of what might be on their persons. He thought of the ferocious killings at Herrin. These underground toilers were savages when wrought up, and their young the worst of all, like the Paris apaches. From the glimpse he had got of them they seemed to be about fourteen or fifteen, squat, swarthy, of tough, wiry, and no doubt precocious strength from early toil. He could now hear them rustling through the bushes, swarming up to finish their attempt, perhaps animated as much by fear of the consequences as by ferocity and greed.

And for the second time Olivant found himself in the position of a cornered rabbit with rats or stoats slipping in to fasten on its throat. Again he had neglected Frank Clamart's insistence that he go armed. But now it was infinitely more awful, because Shelby was there.

The Poor Little Rich Man

by GEORGE M. COHAN

A FEW weeks ago, during one of those wintry windy afternoons, a man's hat blew off his head at the corner of Broadway and Forty-second street.

It sailed along in the air for fully half a block before landing, and then rolled another hundred yards before being caught up with and trapped by a good natured bystander who, after recapturing the truant skypiece, hurried back to the corner and returned it to its owner.

"Thanks, very much," said the bareheaded man, as he dusted off the fedora with the sleeve of his coat.

"O, that's all right; don't mention it," laughed the good natured but rather winded hat chaser.

"But I most certainly will mention it," retorted the grateful hat owner, and he quickly dug into his trousers pocket and brought forth a twenty-five cent piece.

"Here you are, sir; that's for your trouble, and again thank you very much, indeed." He handed the other man the coin, and walked away without further ado.

The fellow, upon receiving the quarter, made no reply, merely smiled to himself, pocketed the reward, stepped into a big limousine car which was parked near the corner, gave the chauffer some instructions and was driven away, much to the amusement of several lookers-on along the gay white way.

The following morning the New York papers carried a story of a well known, well to do New Yorker who had earned a quarter chasing flyaway hats.

It was a big laugh to the reading public, and created no end of comment for the following twenty-four hours.

"Why did he take the quarter?" some folks asked.

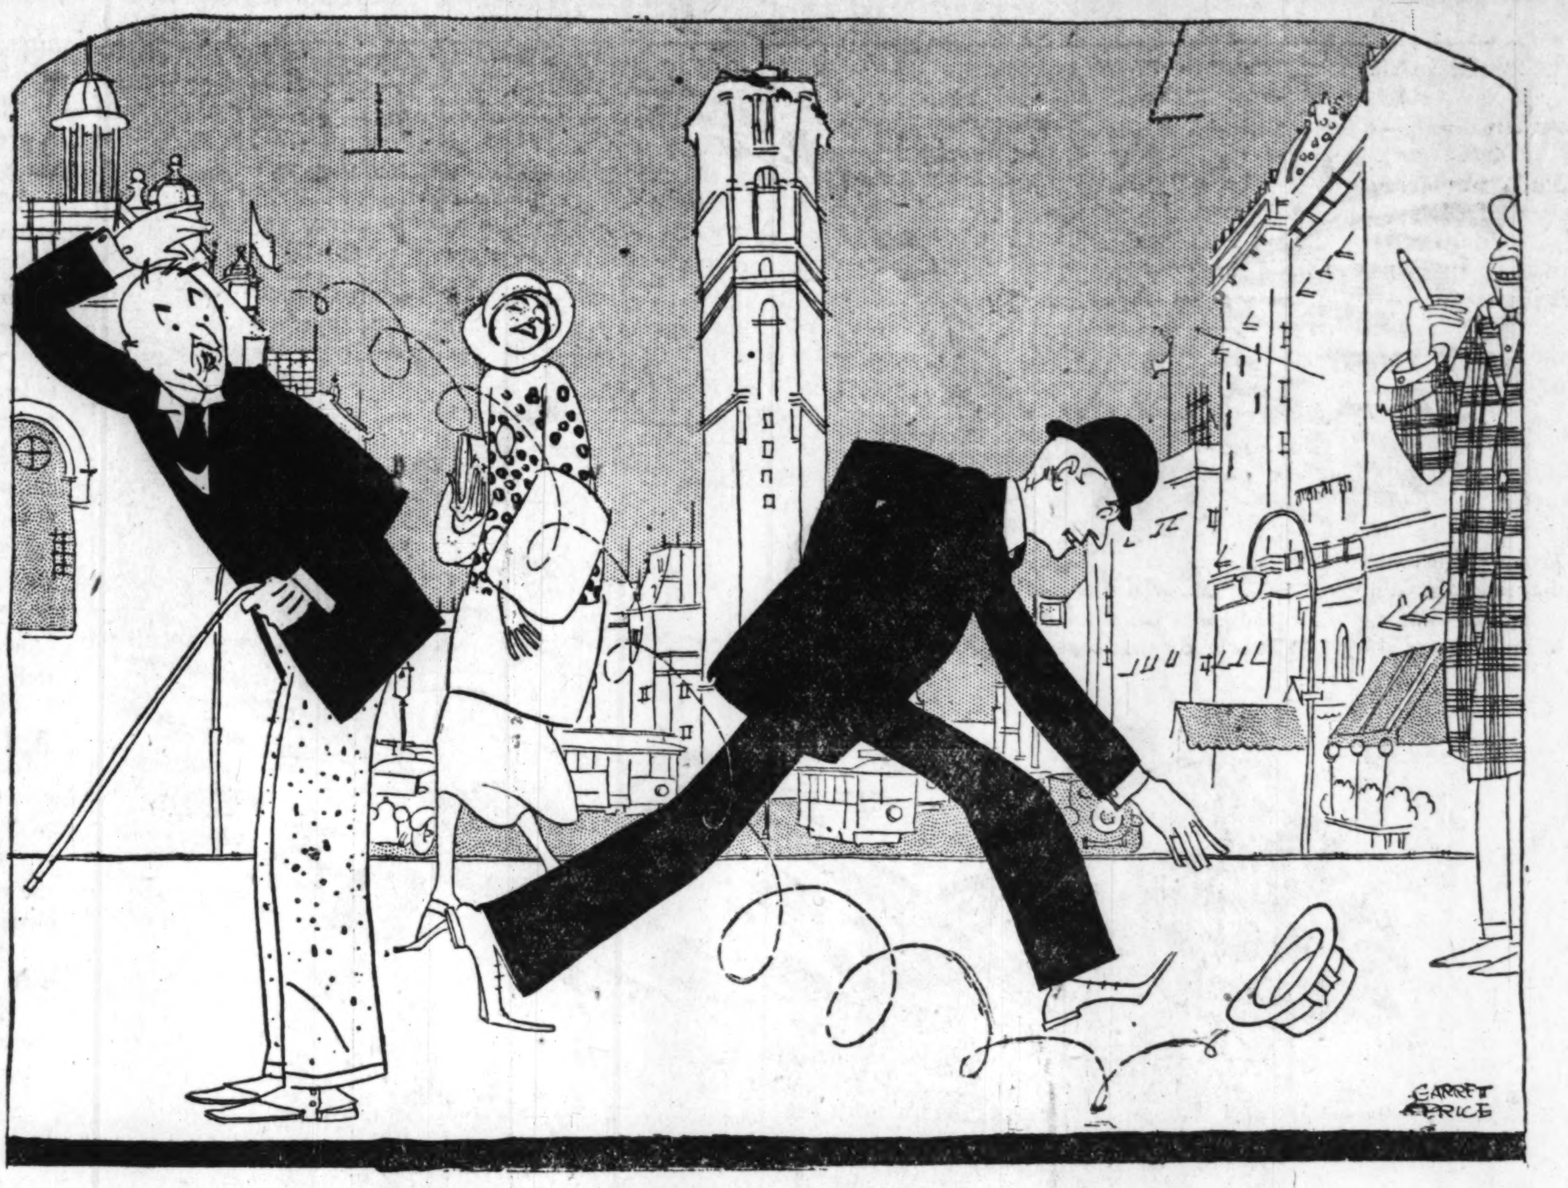
"Why shouldn't he have taken it?" others argued.

The thing resolved itself into a controversy as to whether or not the rich man should have accepted the twenty-five cents.

It seemed to me, upon reading the story, that this man had done the sensible thing.

He couldn't very well have refused the reward gracefully, if you'll stop to consider his position for the moment.

He had just had a long sprint—was all "het" up—out of breath—probably perspiring—just about tuckered out and consequently in no condition to stand there making a long speech of explanation as to who he was and all about his great affluence and wealth, and how perfectly ridiculous it was for any one to offer him a paltry quarter of a dollar as a reward.



The papers carried a story of a well known, well-to-do New Yorker who had earned a quarter chasing fly-away hats.

SUPPOSING, for instance, he'd been fool enough to say, "How dare you insult me, sir? I don't need your filthy quarter—I'm a rich man, I am. I have millions. I'm a famous personage. I don't make a business of chasing hats. I don't even know why I chased after yours. I'm damned sorry I did, now, and, what's more, I've a good mind to prove my utter contempt for you by smashing you on the nose, sir."

Of course, I don't mean he would have said just exactly that, but, nevertheless, if he had, in the slightest way, attempted to explain to the hat loser, who he was, and why he shouldn't or couldn't accept the reward, it would have amounted to the same thing.

In the first place, he would have embarrassed the man who offered the reward and at the same time given the impression that he, himself, was either a cad or a braggart.

No, siree, sir! That baby did the right thing. He was a fast thinker and thought it out correctly and wisely, believe me.

And make no mistake, he got a real kick out of the thing, too. Yes, sir! If he possessed the tiniest bit of a sense of humor, he must have laughed for the balance of the day.

It's almost a cinch that the quarter was made into a good luck pocket piece right there and then.

Anyway you look at it, there must have been a real thrill in it for the rich man, and I'll wager right now that he wouldn't have missed the experience for anything in the world.

At least, that's how the incident hit me after reading it in the papers and, later in the day, listening to various arguments on the matter. I found myself sort of dramatizing the thing in my own mind.

You know what I mean—trying to figure out reasons and wherefores just why the rich man should and should not have taken the quarter of a dollar reward.

Suddenly an idea struck me; I decided to try an experiment. I wanted to prove to myself that he was not the hard hearted dollar and cent sort of man some persons were prone to think him, even though he had accepted the puny reward.

I sat down and wrote the following letter and sent it to the well known and well to do New Yorker who had created so much amusement and discussion by performing the ordinary act of running after another man's hat when the wind had blown it away:

> DEAR SIR: Through the news columns of the morning papers I have just learned that you are the man who so kindly retrieved my wind blown hat yesterday afternoon at the corner of Broadway and Forty-second street. I can assure you that had I the slightest inkling as to who you were at the time I should never have made so bold as to offer you a reward for your act of genuine good fellowship and courtesy.
> However, now that the truth is out, and I have discovered what a grave mistake I made, I think it's only fair that I explain who I am and what effect the disclosure of your identity has had upon me.
> Without going into any particular details as to my past, I should like to say to you, sir, that not so long ago, I, too, was a well known, well to do New Yorker, just as you are today. Through a combination of circumstances, however, over which I had no control, my business, and business associates went to the bad and the crash came at the moment I had begun to imagine myself on a solid footing for life. I managed to hold my head up and hide the truth from the world for several months until my creditors hounded me to such a degree that I was eventually forced to step down from my make-believe pedestal and publicly advertise myself as a ruined man. For the last eighteen months I have managed to eke out a bare existence as a sort of assistant clerk at a salary of fourteen dollars a week in the offices of my former attorney and counselor. It is what might be termed a charity job, created at my own suggestion to keep the proverbial wolf from the door. Being a highly nervous, temperamental person, the strain and worry became too much, and ten days ago, rather than suffer further humiliation at the hands of those about me (men who a short time ago would bow and kowtow whenever I visited the offices as one of the important clients), I threw up the position and since then have done little else than walk the streets wondering what my next move on the great checkerboard of life was going to be.
> Yesterday I actually found myself at the end of my resources. When I crossed Broadway and Forty-second street corner to the west side I was on my way to a little lunch room on Eighth avenue—one of the cheapest but cleanest eating places in town—I had decided to spend the last twenty-five cents I possessed in the world for a plate of baked beans, an order of rolls, and a cup of coffee. I was not only hungry, but sick at heart; nevertheless, I was doing my utmost to pluck up courage enough to sidestep a terribly morbid state of mind when, all of a sudden, my hat blew off and I saw you immediately dash in pursuit of the thing.
> I stood there in a sort of dazed condition, wondering why on earth any one should take all that trouble for such a down-and-outer as I felt myself to be. I watched you as you edged your way so skillfully through the traffic and trembled with fear as one big automobile truck swerved to one side to avoid running you down.
> You, more than likely, were unconscious of what a narrow escape you had in your mad desire to retrieve the hat. When you returned and restored it to me after your long gallop to where I stood I can assure you, dear sir, that I was no less grateful than I should have been under any circumstances, but unfortunately my pride (of which I have always had an over abundance) got the better of my common sense, and I deliberately handed over to you the one and only thing that stood between me and absolute hunger. I refer, of course, to the twenty-five cent piece. The last penny on earth I had to my name.
> I don't know, even now, what prompted the action, but I suppose it was just one of those tragically brave moments that most of us experience at some time or other in life when we impulsively do a thing without figuring the consequences. Needless to say, sir, I went without the beans and coffee and it is only through sheer desperation and hunger right now that I am sending this note to you with the hope that in the goodness of your heart you may be interested enough to find some means of helping me over the rough road of adversity until the fates lead me to a place of safety again. I am not signing my own name to this letter for the simple reason that my pride (that accursed thing of which I have already spoken) will not permit of that.
> The address I give below is not my place of abode, but if a reply is sent there I have arranged to receive it directly it is delivered.
> Anything you care to do for me, sir, will be a Godsend and a genuine act of charity.
> I am a drowning man, grasping at a straw. Whether you decide to assist me or dismiss the matter entirely from your mind, believe me, sir, I will still be grateful for the return of my hat and proud to have met you, even under the peculiar and pathetic circumstances of yesterday.
> I live in hopes.
> God bless you.

That was the letter I wrote.

It sounded to me like a pretty good stab at the thing and, anyway, the experiment was well worth trying.

After signing a fictitious name and giving as an address a small hotel in the upper forties, I mailed it and awaited the reply.

The following afternoon I called at the office desk of the aforesaid hotel and, upon inquiry, the clerk handed me a note which he said had been delivered by hand less than an hour before.

It was from the hat chaser, the rich man himself.

Yes, sir! It read as follows:

> DEAR SIR:
> I read your letter with a great deal of amusement.
> Yours is but one of thirty-odd letters of the same character received by me during the last twenty-four hours.
> Each of the writers tells a hard luck story, and each claims to be the owner of the hat I chased from Forty-second to Forty-third street yesterday afternoon on Broadway.
> However, I will now make you the same proposition I have already made the others.
>
> (This is a circular letter.)
> If your pride forbids your coming here in person to identify yourself, send the hat.
>
> I remember it well. I even made note of the manufacturer's number under the inside leather band.
> Upon receipt of same and after satisfying myself that you are the owner of the hat, I will do all in my power to assist you without further inquiry into your personal life or affairs.
> Until then, however, I shall consider you in the same class with the thirty-odd others—an imposter and a bunk.
> Respectfully yours,

And then he signed his name in full.

I turned red in the face, tore up the note, and immediately made up my mind that the poor little rich man is the most imposed upon and abused person in the whole wide world.

All the "con" men in town had tried to take advantage of an advertised act of kindness on the part of a well known, well to do New Yorker.

Of course, I was only experimenting, but those other birds were out to graft.

One thing I'm sure of now—all grafters are dramatists at heart.

They all claimed to own the hat.

They all hollered poor mouth.

The chances are right now, however, that the fellow who really owned the hat that blew away is twice as rich as the rich guy who caused such a sensation by running after the blamed old kelly.

Then, again, maybe the darned thing never happened at all.

But, even so, it was a good newspaper yarn at that.

I know I got a lot of fun out of it anyway.

See you next Sunday.

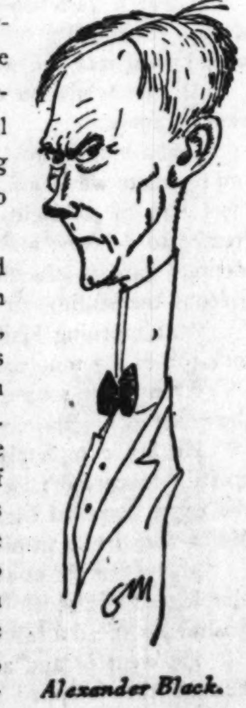
BOOKS and BOOKMEN - - - -

By GENE MARKEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.

AMONG the bright array of books we read each week there is always one that stands out like a vivid personality—like a soft shoe dancer in a home for cripples. And this week's high score goes to Alexander Black whose "Stacey" (Bobbs-Merrill) is one of the noteworthy novels of the year. We confess with regret that this is the first book of Mr. Black's that we have read, but we found vast enjoyment in the reading of it. Stacey is a great character—whose greatness lies in the fact that he is not great at all. He is an average—a terribly average—young American from a small town, seeking fame and fortune in the big city. And what a merry chase fame—not to say fortune—leads him!



Alexander Black.

There is an entrancing mixture of boob and wise guy, of Babbitt and Don Quixote in Stacey's nature; and you will, we believe, follow with inordinate interest his chivalrous exploits in New York. Two women occur in his life: Mino, the well fed daughter of Mrs. Hoffbein, whose rooming house is the castle of Stacey's adventures; and Alida, a lady of the evening. Not to mention the Princess Moritzo. But it is not until Stacey loses one job, and becomes a sort of super major-domo of a rich lady's household, that things begin to happen at Mrs. Hoffbein's boarding house—rip-roaring adventures, crooks, shootings, etc. That is this novel's remarkable quality—it tells a brisk, thrilling tale, and tells it extremely well.

There is great gusto and a fine ironic touch to Mr. Black's writing. We'd rather like to have the pleasure of reading "Stacey" all over again.

"Francis Wilson's Life of Himself" (Houghton-Mifflin) ranks favorably among the new biographies. In a manner of speaking, all actor's lives of themselves are much alike, and there are cynics who hold that they should be published by Armour and Swift; but we profess a prodigious interest in the theater, and we believe we shall even go so far as to read topthsome Frank Tinney's biography, "Doing My Bit." However, to get on with the veteran Francis Wilson, his history is exceptionally entertaining, and he has told it in a forthright fashion. It might well have been called "The High Career of a Low Comic," for it carries Francis from a burnt cork boy in the music halls—down to the actor's strike, wherein this venerable comedian led a multitude of murmurs to victory. Francis Wilson is the youngest old man we have ever met. Not long ago we lunched with him at the Coffee house, New York's gayest club, and it was his seventieth or eightieth birthday—and he had just become a father a few days before: A father, mind you—not a grandfather. Great fellows, these comedians. Really, we enjoyed Francis Wilson in this book more than we ever did upon the stage; to us, it seems his happiest role.

Joseph Anthony's "The Golden Village" (Bobbs-Merrill) is a pleasant little novel. It tells a tale of a band of Hungarians that set out for America to found a colony, and of their leader, clapped into prison as the ship is about to sail, who eighteen years later comes to America to seek their Golden Village. He is an old man, but with his little grandson he valiantly carries on the quest of his own people, and it is this quest that makes the story. There is adventure and drama in it, and a certain charm to Joseph Anthony's writing.

There has been, not infrequently, through the world's history, fortunate combinations of brothers: brother acts, so to speak. For example, the James boys—not Frank and Jesse, but William and Henry James. And now we have the Reeds, Charles and Earl, collaborating on a healthy, outdoor book, "Four Way Lodge." There are eleven stories in it—tales of the north country around Lake Superior, and of Indians and trappers in the great woods. There is some good writing to them, and they are forthright yarns. The ten etchings by Earl H. Reed have the misty charm that distinguishes so much of that talented artist's work.

That loquacious and often delightful essayist, E. V. Lucas, who is apt to pop up with a "Wanderer" book about Singapore or Saugatuck, now brings forth "A Wanderer among Pictures" (Doran). It is a jolly book, in its chat about the great paintings of the great galleries of London, Paris, Italy, Germany, Spain, Belgium, and Holland, and there are some six dozen splendid reproductions. Now this is a worthy book for everybody—for the millionaire manufacturer, who has old masters hanging in every room in his house; as well as for the citizen who wouldn't know whether Botticelli was a painter or an opera singer.

So long as Vicente Blasco Ibanez kept to the writing of tuppenny novels, he annoyed the world little, but now that he has taken upon himself the job of hooting at the King of Spain, he has become a painfully grotesque spectacle. In his new book, "Alfonso XII. Unmasked: The Military Terror in Spain" (Dutton), poor old Ibanez calls names with all the backstairs bravado of a tipsy charwoman. And in his red rage, he is as pathetically futile as a cockney urchin thumbing his nose at Buckingham palace. A soap box sensationalist, Ibanez, suffering from delusions that he is a protector of the proletariat. But if it is true, as we hear, that his books are all prohibited in Spain, then Spain cannot be such an unfortunate country after all.

Psychology, in our youth was a severe, though fascinating science, made known through the severe, though fascinating works of McDougall, William James, et al. Now comes a nimble fellow, David Seabury, who lifts the curse. His book is called "Unmasking Our Minds" (Boni and Liveright), and it is as human and as striking in its incidents as a lively novel. Professor Seabury conjures up no bogus magic around the brain: He tells you about yourself in a chatty conversational tone that is apt to concern Freud or Babe Ruth—Dr. Jung or Dempsey. You will find "Unmasking the Mind" exceptionally entertaining.

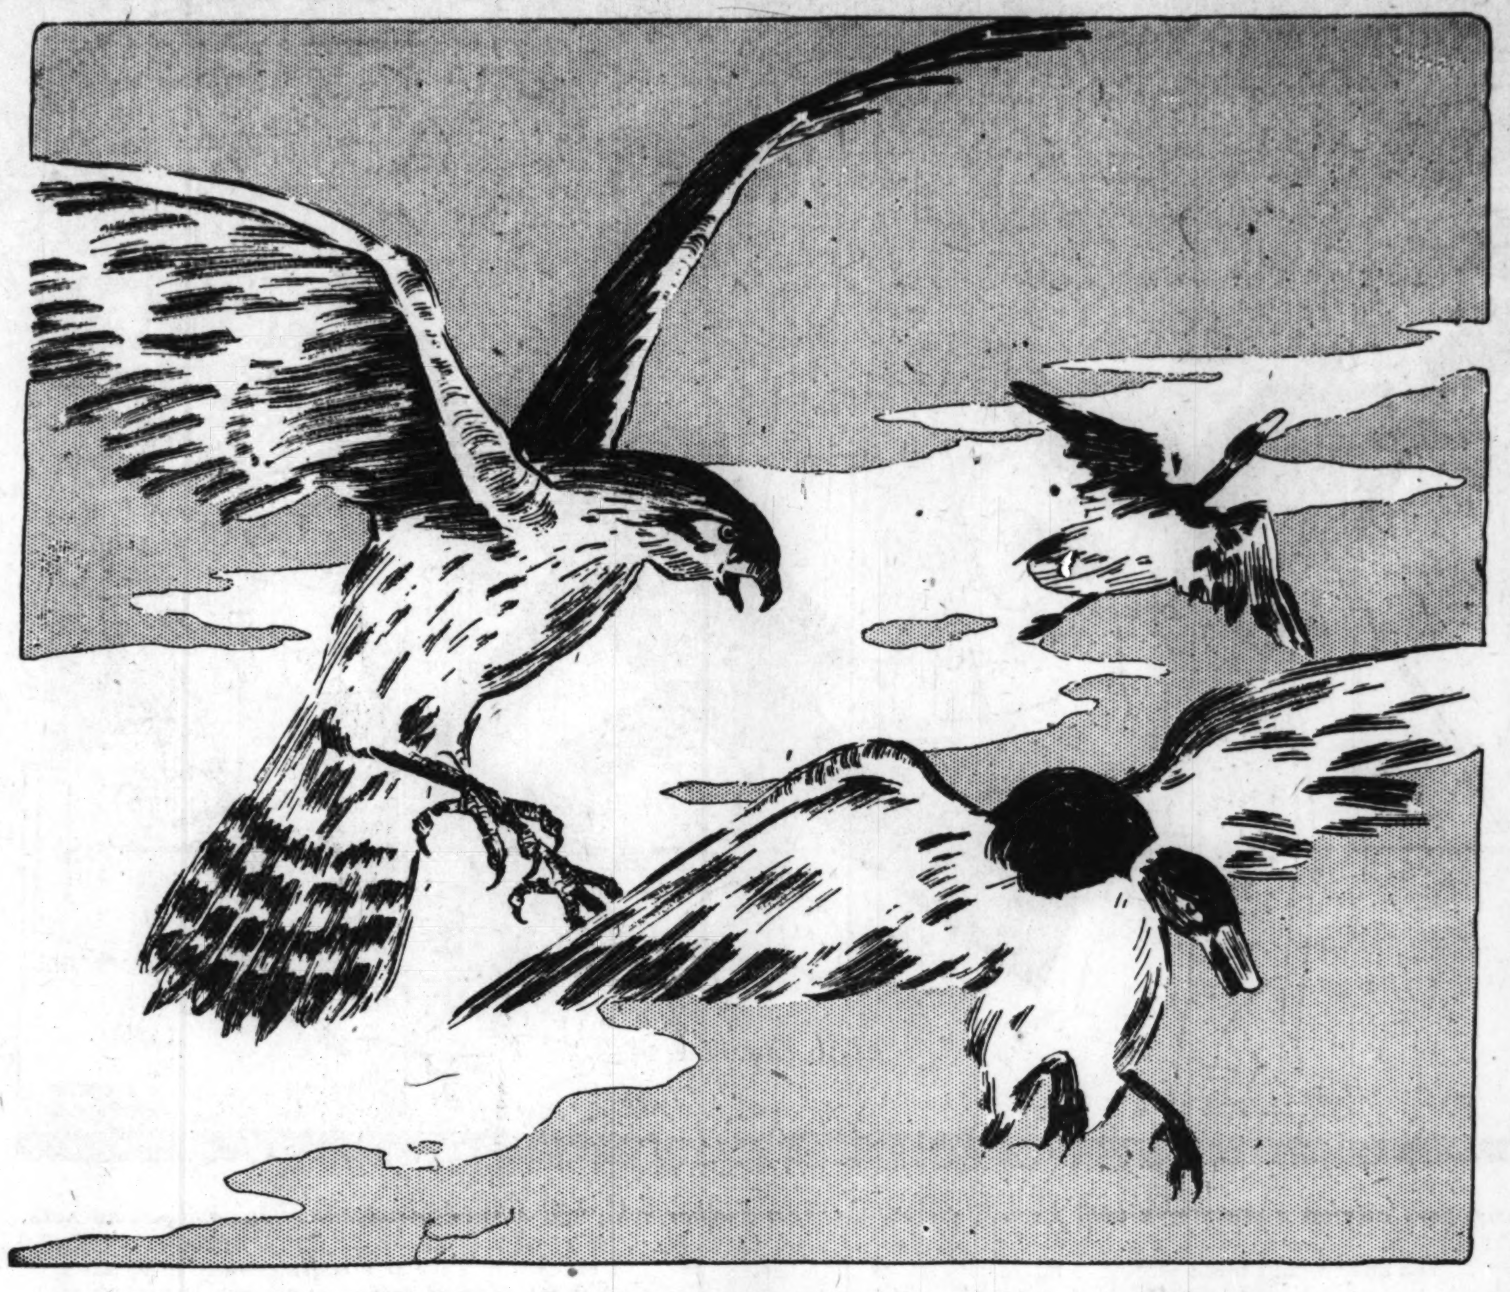
Alice Gerstenberg's books of one act plays are frequent—and frequently amusing. There is a new volume "Four Plays for Four Women" (Brentano's): Sprightly pieces, and bravely executed. They make a complete evening's bill, and may be played by four or sixteen ladies—in Evanston, New Rochelle, or Hongkong.

Winged Disaster

by Guy H.B. Dent

Love Comes to Msiba, the Terror of the Myriads and Myriads of Birds That Swarm the Airy Lanes Above the Burning Wilds



The raptore was on them. One he hit squarely, beheading the luckless thing by sheer tearing virtue of driven flesh and blood.

IT was a land of no horizons, of frightful skin withering heat by day and razor like cold when the sun had gone.

It was a land to avoid. There spread out the desert, mile upon aching mile, pitiless under the blinding sunshine and infinitely menacing by night.

Ever and forever the mirage danced at the limit of vision and lured to a dreadful doom any that turned to follow.

Yet in spite of what might have appeared drawbacks enough and to spare, the district was amove with life.

Let there be no mistake in this matter; it was packed, crowded and overflowing with birds.

As each evening the sun flamed up across the sky in a splendid dying spasm of palpitating crimson, violet, amethyst, and orange, so surely there appeared from the great vague distances what resembled dusky clouds.

From afar the noise of those rushing shadow shapes beat upon the ears as if a cohort of the damned raced from the pit to a more awful habitation.

Upon a moment they were mere murmurous somethings in the dusk they themselves created; upon another they were winged marvels.

Millions on millions of wheeling, revolving, palpitating atoms to each cloud bank; and bank on bank to the furthermost edge of night. They were weaver finches, and where they came from no man knows, but why they came in these incredible numbers is explained in the one word—water.

Don't let your imagination picture a broad, slow flowing crystal river, on the banks of which these voyagers shall settle like a carpet and drink in ordered care.

On the contrary, imagine pools, small bush surrounded shallow blots of liquid scattered at enormous intervals in the bed of what in the rainy season is the Dinder river. Further, know these precious places to be the resort of all life.

Know the water to be so fouled, mired, and generally bederilled as to be utterly unfit for human consumption, even after the operation of boiling and filtering has been thrice performed.

Then you may begin to realize faintly that water was somewhat scarce in that country and its presence a potent attraction.

Yet when after a voyage of heaven alone knows how many hours' duration, these tiny travelers at length arrived at their destination, there waited for them, with dreadful calculation of their daily habits, destruction as grim as varied, as certain as swift.

Legion upon legion the thirsting finches swooped upon the thick, muddy surface of their chosen drinking place. Myriad by packed myriad they alighted for a fraction of a split second, then whirled instantly aloft in mighty flutteration, too nervous to drink.

The sheer weight of numbers, you might have thought, would have sufficed to suffocate, blot out, and overwhelm all opposition.

Not so. It is true that birds of prey as a rule avoid contact with mass formations such as these; but nature, ever thoughtful, had devised a simple method of exploiting the opportunity in favor of her more favored children.

For in awful attendance sped multitudes of carnivora, and chief of these for numbers and beauty was he called by scientists Melierax polyzonus, or goshawk, but more fitly surnamed msiba, the winged disaster.

NOW, Msiba was a gray colored destroyer and built accordingly—short rounded wings, long tail, and long red legs—there was no mistaking that his mission in life was to take life.

As the finches swept by overhead on their first banked descent, msiba was wont to take wing; and his ringing cry, almost musical in its falling cadence, struck the first fear into the pilgrims' hearts.

For up in the viewless vaults msiba united with others of his ilk, falcons, to-wit, and together in rapacious joy they flung themselves in hundreds upon the wealth of flying food.

And as they swooped from above alarm spread through all the ranks of their victims, the flight dipped, and by thousands upon thousands the lowermost were forced into the mire they had come so far to seek.

Then msiba and his friends coolly helped themselves to a right and left, next spiraled up and up, came over in a slashing side slip, and repeated the performance till hunger was appeased.

Whole battalions, it might appear, perished aimlessly. Yet nothing was wasted. The crocodiles and hordes of predatory fish saw to that.

Long after nightfall the finches were still arriving, and these later arrivals enjoyed a comparative immunity, for msiba and his kin retired early to rest on some favored palm tree. But they were as early on the wing next morning, urged by a furious hunger and an insatiable lust to kill.

At first faint flush of light msiba hurled himself from his perch and before the human eye could have noted aught but the mere fact that he had moved, the hawk had struck a striped rat this time and was flashing low over the heaped bowlders, heading for his daytime hunting grounds.

He was a mere ash gray streak as he sped. Time and time again, as he rocketed from side to side in search of food, it seemed as if he must die, as if no living mechanism could deflect his hurtling body from the thorn tree or the palm directly in his path.

But his disproportionate tail was a powerful lever, and always at the ultimate instant msiba used it with consummate skill and only grazed the thing that should have caused his end.

At length msiba was where he would be. His ringing call echoed and re-echoed through the dawn, and a guinea fowl, treading delicately the intricacies of a forest glade, nearly died of sheer fright.

Him Msiba did not see, though had he done so he would most certainly not have hesitated, though the guinea was twice his weight and bulk, but he did notice a something which stirred in the shade of the long grass close by.

WITHOUT in the slightest slackening his hurricane advance, Msiba lay over on his side, threaded the close growing trunks as a man walks a broad highway, and arrived.

Followed sounds of something annoyed. The sheer lightning impetus of msiba's attack ripped his prey from its concealment and dragged it a score of yards through the dew drenched grass. Then msiba realized that his curved talons were fast at the base of a flat, spectacled skull, the skull, to be accurate, of a six foot cobra, and the same was dead. The breath had gone out of that one with the preparatory hiss of battle. There is no time to prepare with goshawks; if you are not ready you die.

Since everything came alike to Msiba, he made a scanty meal off this latest capture, flicking his handsome head from side to side the while for possible interruptions and, having made an end, was on wing before the guinea fowl had decided whether it was safe to abandon his impersonation of a block of wood.

It was a glorious day, and Msiba felt certain longings stirring within him, but what they indicated he was not sure. This being the case, he decided that his usual exercise was overdue, as if a flight of some fifty miles in minutes under the hour had not been enough.

Therefore he winnowed up towards the mounting sun until he was a mere speck in the glare, then deliberately shut his wings and fell like a meteorite. Down and down he came at as many miles per minute as you dare to think. Down and down as the forest leaped to meet him and great trees grew from mushrooms to eighty foot monarchs.

Down, still down, the air screaming about him until a scanty ten feet of space was between him and the merciless earth and he a hurtling thunderbolt.

Now, many a goshawk has committed suicide in this manner, but Msiba was not one of them.

Out flashed the rounded wings at the last split second of time, the long tail straightened and flirted a trifle. O, but a trifle, yet the effect was magical.

Instead of a headlong descent, Msiba was on an even keel; he threaded half a mile of forest, a bare five feet up, in a flash

Whick. Whick. Which. The air of his passing fanned each tree, and came back with a noise of whips. No woodcock could have done it and lived. Nothing else that has wings could have done that trick at that speed.

Msiba thought nothing of it. Calling again and again, he flashed down a glade, took a rat snake in his stride, so to speak, came sharp up and repeated the show.

Hour after hour he kept at it, till the eye grew dizzy with trying to guess at what point of the wood he might emerge this time, and every time was wrong.

He seemed definitely dissatisfied, his cry held strange, uncertain notes, and once in midfall another gray devil, as if attracted by that music, rose to meet him, and Msiba only saved a resultant miscalculation by extraordinary acrobatics as he skimmed inches high over the grass.

When he had recovered himself and rose to investigate, the intruder was not. Evidently he, too, had miscalculated and was away for fear of trouble.

THIS encounter seemed to strike some chord in Msiba's memory. On an instant he abandoned his exercises and rose in effortless spirals to giddy heights.

He put all his lean strength into the effort, and the air grew keen and thin, so vast his altitude.

But he was never alone. Down those uncharted roads was a great trafficking. At each level as Msiba passed through them sped birds of various species. Each to its own level and each in number. Cranes (common, crowned, and demoiselle) flew heavily in one layer, so to speak.

Higher yet Msiba cut across the track of pintail in scores of thousands, widgeon, teal, and shovel.

Up, yet up, and he came to the righway of the garganey, swiftest of all their tribe, and rather above that pathway he settled down to fly west by south and a trifle west.

For four long hours Msiba kept his course, and he was moving like an airplane, and as he went the levels became more and more crowded. It was the season of mating, and the urge was on all that flew. Not everyone was on the same course as Msiba, but by far the greater majority were, and them he overtook with effortless ease.

Abruptly a group of specks ahead took on the characteristic silhouette of garganey, and Msiba slid after them unperceived.

Suddenly he was sighted, and the duck exchanged their previous modest amble of forty miles an hour for an honest mile a minute.

Msiba followed as if tied by a thread to the hindermost and that thread shortening. The duck streaked across the sky on a downward course at ninety, and Msiba came up like a car after a bicycle.

The far horizon, sixty miles in front, flashed silver, and as if that were their goal the duck swooped down and—well, they covered the distance in a trifle over thirty minutes.

But the goshawk? He, too, had been inspired by that distant gleam. Never to his knowledge had he seen it before, but the buried memories of a thousand generations of ancestors had led him, and he knew what he would find.

He was the incarnation of speed and grace as he swept along his chosen route. Not yet did he deign to come down, but when he did he came like his cousin, the lanner falcon.

The duck abandoned all reserve at that sinister whistling from above; they split up their V shaped formation and spread out like quicksilver, hoping against hope for the marshes, now directly beneath.

Msiba stooped and strove after his prey and aimed truly.

As the formation scattered the raptore was on them. One duck he hit squarely, beheading the luckless thing by sheer tearing virtue of driven flesh and blood. So great was the impact, so awful the rending shock, that the lifeless body dropped earthward, ripped at the hundred foot level through a great mixed company of sedge warbler, blackcap, chiffchaff, redstart, swallow, and hooper, struck water at an angle and rebounded high into the calm air like a football, to fall again on the bosom of Father Nile and be immediately engulfed by some subaquatic monster as Msiba flashed down eighteen thousand feet in fifteen seconds, passing so close above the converging ripples that his plumes were wetted by the spray.

WAS he annoyed by this failure? Not he. Duck hunting was but a pastime for the moment; he was here on far more serious business.

The urge of his descent took him clear across the broad river to the thin papyrus fringed edge, and there a replica of himself, though somewhat larger, fled at his advance as if startled out of mind.

As a fact she, for it was a hen of his own species, had been watching the whole affair. Probably that last magnificent gesture, made in sheer bravado, had captured her maiden heart; otherwise there was no need for her to disclose herself.

Among that busy throng, multiplying moment by moment, as million on million dropped down from all heights, one goshawk hen might easily have escaped notice, especially as Msiba was doing something over a mile and a half in sixty seconds in strange surroundings.

But she did choose to show up at the precise instant that Msiba topped the twenty foot reeds and went off with the male in hot pursuit.

Possibly the quarry did not put her best wing forward, because if she had been really trying, I doubt if Msiba would have caught her as he did and flung circles over and about her, calling the while a high, savage, bell-like call, the spirit of those distant places epitomized in sound.

Remains the fact that the female shortly gave up what seemed a hopeless game and allowed herself to be chivied on to a dead tree, already overcrowded with black shouldered kites, who moved uneasily at her coming, and there brought to bay.

The matter was settled there and then, and the twain flung themselves simultaneously into space and darted up in the air, Msiba no whit fatigued by his exertions, and wheeled about each other, keening, and swayed out in two hundred foot circles on motionless wings, rejoicing in their strength, their perfection, and their love.

But the day was waning by now, and a home had yet to be found. So down they came and coursed to and fro like English swallows after groundkeeping flies, with fierce heads snapping from side to side as they went, and at last my lady espied a fitting spot.

It was probably the only piece of rock within two days' flight. A great, cruel fang upflung by some long ago convulsion of nature, many creviced and proper to hold a royal brood.

The two drew near and peeped coyly at the gorgeous golden yellow blossoms of the ambatch bush which hid the base.

Then they set themselves down on a nearby tree, draped to its summit with lianas magnificent in bright hued blooms, and considered the matter.

They were correct, the rock was already occupied. As Msiba twisted his head over his shoulder to inspect his tail feathers, a perfect torrent of blasphemy was poured upon the couple.

Msiba looked round astounded. He was not used to being insulted. A crowd of pied crows emerging from secret recesses flung at him anew the dregs of their bitter philosophy.

He looked at his bride, then back at the clamorous villains on his selected home, and together they came in against the enemy.

Mark you, they had no least justification for their action. The crows were in possession, and there is a saying that possession—O, well, it doesn't go out there, anyway.

MSIBA singled out one who seemed to be leader and he died in mid-caw. Then, followed by the hen bird, the goshawk towered to an eye eluding height and hovered, as if expecting the others to draw off at first sight of his prowess.

But the crows were otherwise minded. They looked up and saw the piebald body of their chief clutched contemptuously in bitter, sharp talons, dangling grotesquely.

In vociferous numbers they left their stronghold and, talking each to each to keep up their courage, climbed in a mob.

The hawks were nonplussed. Msiba remembered far pools and the undisputed kingdom which was his. He climbed higher and the crows followed and were about him and his spouse.

Emboldened by misconceived ideas, the pack came close; they even dared to set beak to my lady's neat feathers.

Then Msiba showed what he could do.

By now the combatants had reached an elevation of some three thousand feet. Msiba abruptly shot up out of the babel like a bullet newly fired.

Still holding his kill, he made eight hundred feet or so; released the dead crow, came back like a messenger of fate, and blasted one of the crew about his wife to an instant death; turned about marvelously in mid-career, and caught again the whirling corpse of his first destroying, then slid gracefully into position by my lady before the attackers fully knew he had left them.

For absolute accuracy of execution, for brain stupefying speed and brilliancy of finish, it was a masterpiece.

Also it was enough.

The crows made haste to be away. Better, thought they, the already overburdened trees than the rock of the goshawk's desiring. Again, what was a rock anyhow: a silly sort of place So they departed and our two bravos reigned there in their stead.

Followed hectic days of nest building and feeding. And, my word, the feeding at any rate was good.

Msiba remembered the daily incursions of finches to the scattered pools and knew those uncounted numbers which came but once every twenty-four hours to be a handful to the billions of birds of all species which were here from morn to night and then again till morn.

A country as large as France, a long, narrow strip not more than one mile in width each side of the river, was fairly crammed with them. Space forbids the mentioning of their kinds, so varied were they.

Then were seen numerous instances of misapplied discretion. As when a flight of weaver finches swept down to drink near a motionless white egret, all unsuspecting, and were made to pay for their trust.

And when the egret himself forbore to bolt his prey immediately, and every heron, stork, and ibis in the neighborhood fell screaming on him and stole it from his beak.

Again, when a pair of purple crowned coucals, perhaps the most retiring of all birds, dived headlong under a tangle of elephant smashed canes and lay peering up sideways in terror.

A KITE was passing over. But they failed to distinguish between Milvus, which is harmless, and Circus, which is pre-eminently dangerous.

But the goshawks made no such mistakes. They distrusted everybody, and everybody mistrusted them, thoroughly.

They lived high, and so did all the other birds of rapine; so did also the fish eaters, for the muddy waters of the Nile were literally stiff with fish.

Great cumbersome pelicans flying in fleets above the surface would swoop down with unsuspecting agility, pouch their meal before their bodies had yet reached the surface, and flop heavily off with hardly a break in their forward movement.

It was a paradise—for some folk! Even the kites, who dare not use their awful talons for sheer cowardice, but hustle their intended meal into the water, whence they may retrieve it at leisure.

All the while on either hand the serious business of nesting went on apace.

Msiba slew almost unnoticed. He slew and slew until even he and his mate were fain to cry a halt. They were gorged, and found the hours of daylight almost an embarrassment. For they were created to destroy, and destroy they did, but their efforts made no obvious gaps in the flocks which darkened the sunrise and made hideous the stifling air with incessant noisy bickerings.

On a morning Msiba fell from his cranny, as was his wont, and took toll of a somnolent flock of plover at his usual breakneck speed.

Even as he swung up in a great arc with his trophy he heard the voice of his mate, portending news.

He lay completely over on one wing tip and raced for the craftily concealed nest. He was prepared to fight anything Even the eagle, head of his own royal house, would have fared ill had Msiba found him in his way that morning.

Msiba arrived at the mouth of the cavity and went in. It sounds simple, but the width of the entrance was just eleven inches and the goshawk's speed a full ten and a quarter, and he didn't wait to knock.

He went in and at his approach the lady stood up and shook herself, then stepped softly to one side, waiting proudly for her meed of applause.

Msiba stared a moment, uncomprehending. Then he perceived on the shapeless jumble of twigs and bones a something half seen in the gloom. A something precious.

He made an awkward step and pecked his spouse sharply and clumsily. No love token, you may say. But her fierce heart knew better.

Msiba withdrew once more, and his heart was glad. For sheer joy the winged disaster slew fourfold that bright and happy day. He had seen his first egg, and knew that life was good.

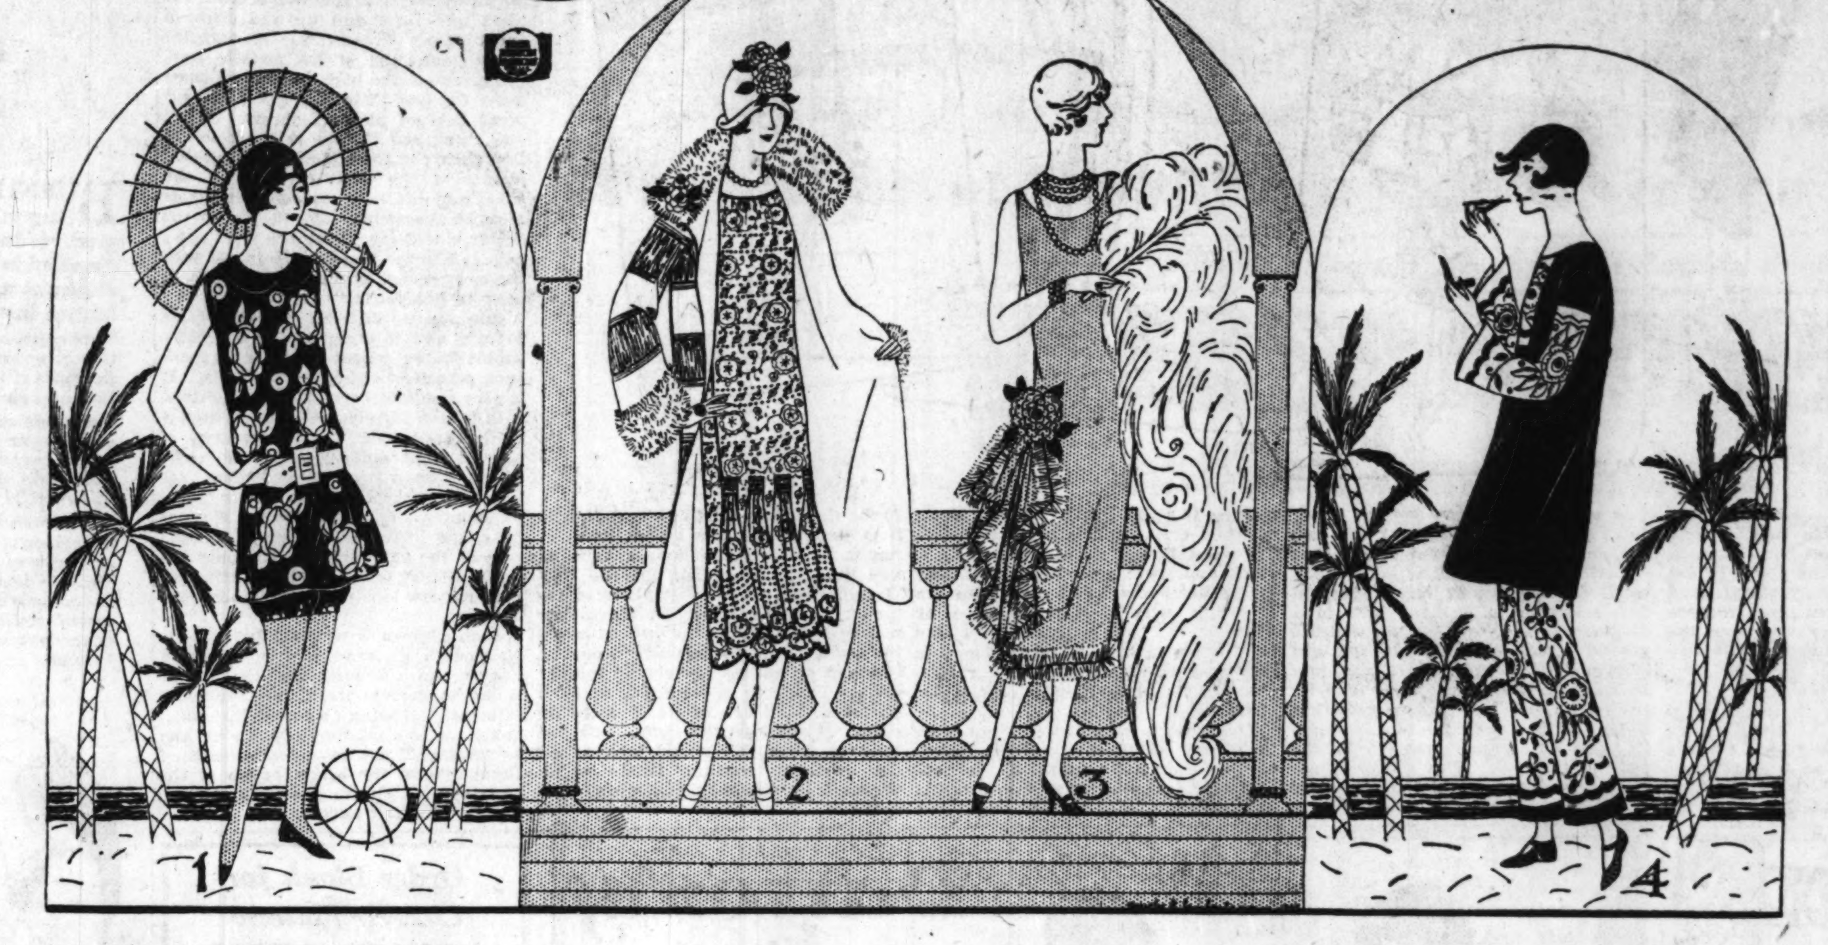
THE PALM GOES TO FULL SKIRTS, PRINTS AND THE ENSEMBLE COSTUME

by Corinne Lowe



NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—That skirts are never too full for utterance—one comes to this profound conllusion after looking over the various costumes designed for the Palm Beach season. And what is this unfailing articulation? It's a monosyllable and it is called "slim." The inverted plait down the front, the tier, the flounce, the draperies attached to hem line—all the fullness that we introduce does not interfere with the effect of the slender silhouette. Only by one instance—that of the period gown—is this fact denied.

Now about these skirts. First of all, many of them are so short that the skirt becomes a mere skit. However, one does not have to indorse these extremely short affairs that Paris has devised. One may produce a real three act play in skirts without forfeiting any claim to fashion. Next, there is the inverted plait. This method of delivering us from the Geisha girl hop is a salient feature in both sports frocks and tailored models. It is especially stressed in the two piece models which, following the famous creation of Chanel, display a narrow panel extending halfway down the front of jumper from the neck line. Often there is only one of such inverted plaits, which is introduced straight down the front of the skirt and which, as is the case with all types of fullness, is contrasted with a severely straight back.

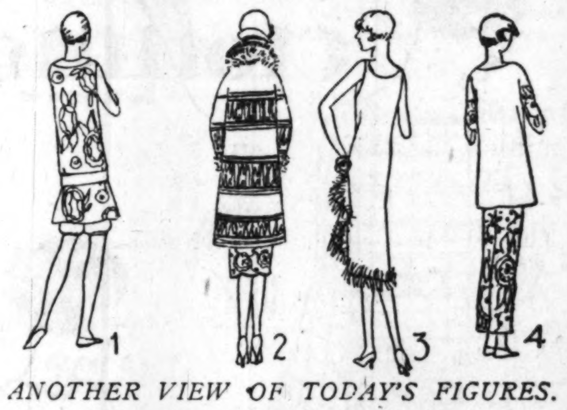
When it comes to the afternoon and evening frocks for southern resort wear, infinite variety is displayed in the application of flounces and of separate sections flaring at the hem line. This trend is illustrated in the frock second from the left by a decidedly ingenious play on the flounce. At the top the extra section is slit in three places and the shirring focuses, therefore, at four points. Further celebrity comes to this flounce as the result of another new detail—the insertion of a wide band of white organdy in the printed crepe that composes the model. The organdy is treated to a prodigal use of tiny red glass beads, and these come as a refortification of the bands of plain red crepe finishing the scallops of both flounce and skirt hem.

Scallops, of course! We simply can't resist them any more than can the lambrequin of the kitchen shelf They appear constantly in all types of frocks from the sports model to the excessively evening gown.

This dress is of printed crepe—a white background against which appears a design in red, blue, and yellow. Every design is encircled with the same tiny red beads starring on the white organdy insertion, and then, lest there be any mistake concerning the firm intent of this frock to be decorative, all the figures are centered with more beads—in this latter case a mingling of the various colors appearing in the print.

It's all very gay and colorful, and so is the coat that accompanies it. This is of white crepe crossed by many bands of rich yellow embroidery and set off by clipped ostrich that resembles fur. It's smart and it's typical. For this year color has as much say as the modern child. White, of course! But so often these white coats and frocks are so overrun by a thicket of color that you forget snowiness is there. Among these colors that sway Palm Beach are various tones of red, from pale rose to flame; blues that range from the pastel tints to the rich Chinese and stained glass tints; greens roaming from lettuce to seafoam; and all the clans of yellow. Special mention must be made of sulphur green and pervenche blue—also of a range of pinkish tans and mauves.

There are cases where white will brook no argument with color. The most conspicuous of these are the charming coats of white ribbed silk made on tailored lines and set off with a touch of immaculate fur. Quite a few of the cloth coats for daytime wear also resent any intrusion of color. But it certainly may be mentioned as characteristic of the season that the rainbow is taken off its leash. Deep bands of wool embroidery, such as we show on the crepe coat just described, are perhaps the most insistent manifestation of our desire to vivify the white coat.



ANOTHER VIEW OF TODAY'S FIGURES.

The most important message of the crepe frock sketched concerns neither accompanying wrap nor line. It is here to tell you that fashion again opens at the printed page. Designs, both the conventional floral and the exotic, thrive on our lovely chiffon dancing frocks, and give added interest to the crepes and silks of daytime apparel. And in this breath let me hasten to add that the designs are not all printed. Sometimes they are painted on by hand. To this latter more exclusive treatment Madam Yteb, the celebrated Parisian designer, gave a decided impetus by her collections shown in this country. For Madam Yteb revels as much in painting her frocks and wraps as did our mothers in painting their fish plates. A Russian herself, she has employed her countrywomen to confer on numerous fabrics patterns distinguished by the boldness of line and color that has brought the Slavic touch into such sartorial prominence.

But, of course, the most of us can't afford these hand painted chiffons and velvets and things. And one strikes a more universal note by proceeding to the striped tub silks that for some seasons fashionable women have chosen as part of their resort wardrobes. These striped silk frocks for morning wear are now much in the picture, and they show a wide range of color effect. Both pastel colors and the "high" shades appear in these simple frocks which, by the way, often follow the guidance of the two piece or jumper suggestion.

Stripes form, in fact, an integral part of this year's thesis on printed fabrics. Another striking example is provided by numerous frocks of ribbed silk, into which are introduced broad satin stripes. These silks are extremely smart, and especially so when they form part of the ensemble costume.

Certainly old Neptune is not going to be deprived of his printed matter, for there are hundreds of new volumes ready for his perusal. Gaily printed taffetas, satins, and velvets are all here awaiting his leisure hours. Also we find many simulations of silk in the appliqued patterns that enliven so many black backgrounds. Thus the model illustrated at the left may occur either in a vividly printed silk or in black satin or crepe, to which is appliqued cretonne designs. Incidentally, let me say that the skirts of the new bathing suits are often docile pupils of more formal attire. They are apt to have fullness only at the sides or in front, and sometimes they make use of the inverted plait down the front.

Another point at which they prove their susceptibility to good advice is in the constant appearance of the ensemble bathing suit. So often suits are accompanied by coat or cape made or else lined with their printed fabrics. The beach pajamas to which I referred feelingly last week are a fragrant example of the way the ensemble is crowding the beach. Thus the jaunty model shown at the right is mated with a seven-eighths coat of the printed crepe composing sleeves and trousers.

As to the ensemble in general, it would require the dogged patience of a German scientist to unearth all its various ramifications. Here, however, are some of the more usual phenomena: For sports wear the tailored flannel or kasha coat, topping a matching frock or else a cloth coat allied with a simple crepe dress; tailored editions, in which a cloth coat betrays its sympathies by a lining of the same printed crepe or silk, achieving the gown and a thousand and one developments of the ribbed silk theme.

Accessories present, as usual, an interesting and exhaustive field of separate inquiry. Thus in evening slippers we find our loyalty to the familiar gold and silver kid disturbed by the most charming bits of satin and velvet dyed to match the color of the frock. Evening stockings, too, sometimes carry out the scheme of the costume. When, however, we retain the light stockings, it is an interesting development of the season to find them deepening in tint. This is by no means universal, but it does represent the latest word from Paris.

GRAY HAIR

Quickly Goes Before the Touch of This Clean, Colorless Liquid

Proved by Thousands! Results in a Week! Original Color Perfectly Restored!

Are you gray or are the strands of white just beginning to appear? Has the time come when people can speak of you as "showing your age?" If so, there is good news for you.

That grayness can quickly be banished—you can see your hair return to its original color so perfectly that no one would suspect that it had ever changed. Hundreds of thousands of people have quickly taken years from their appearances through the remarkable power of the clean, colorless liquid known as Kolor-Bak, which is a true substitute for the natural pigmentation. It makes no difference whether your hair was brown, blark, blonde or red, Kolor-Bak will restore the original color, and the color will be perfectly uniform throughout. No faded, streaked or "dyed" appearance. Kolor-Bak also gives the hair a wonderful natural gloss, renewed life, softness, and luxuriant appearance. Not only does Kolor-Bak restore the vanished color—it banishes dandruff, stops itching and falling hair and gives a delightful sense of cleanliness.

We sell Kolor-Bak with the positive money-back guarantee if a full treatment does not bring the desired results.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

NOTES FROM THE BOOK OF THE MODE.

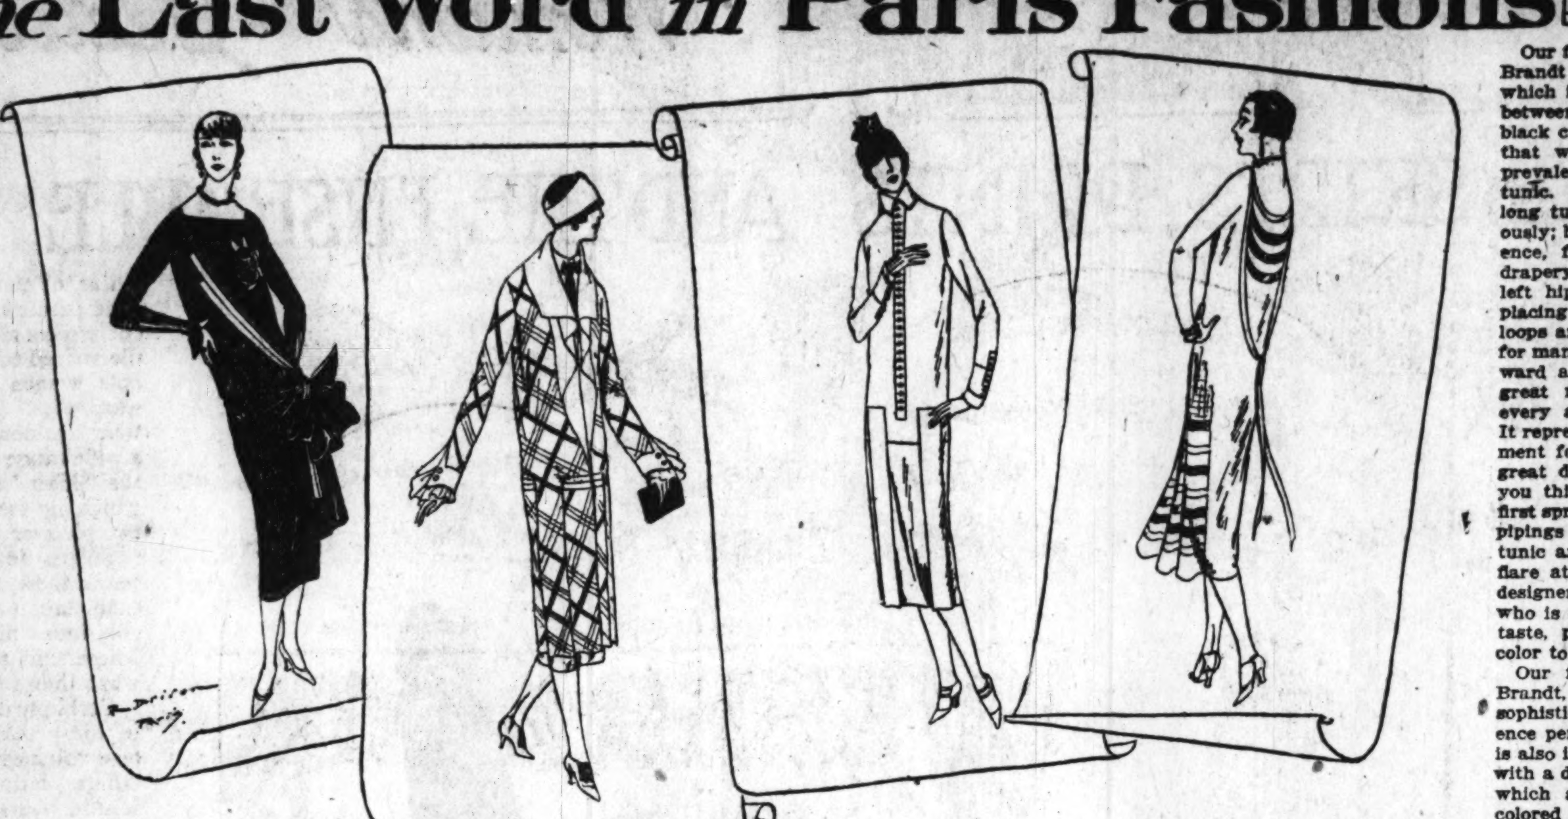
By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—We're supposed to be resting between seasons in Paris during the few weeks allotted to preparations for Christmas. The answer to that "suppose" is, of course, that we're busier than all the rest of the year put together, for, like the motto of the Greek restaurant keeper, "We never sleep," the slogan of the well dressed is one of eternal vigilance. Naturally, too, when fashion sets out to give us a short vacation she makes herself so interesting we simply cannot turn out backs on her. One day there is the show of sports clothes at the Palais de Glace, where one sees all the smart world, both French and American; another the Bal des Contes de Fees at the opera, with everybody who is anybody in Paris frolicking in some gorgeous or fantastic costume out of the Fairy Tales of the World, and so on. If there isn't anything more important to do, you go to the Ritz to hear American English, or to Colombin's to hear Parisian French, and, incidentally, to see the Parisian fashions as worn by the smartest folks from this and the other side of the Atlantic.

And right in the middle of all this rush of going to something important you get the whisper that there are a few really new spring clothes to be seen in some of the grandes maisons. Nobody knows where this rumor comes from, but it appeals to an irresistible feminine instinct—ask any man—curiosity, and we're off in search of those new fashions. We have difficulty in finding them, and some delectable garments are whisked out of the salon just as we come in, with an air of mystery, which deepens as we demand of the vendeuse, "Something new—for advanced spring."

There is a general reluctance to accede to any such a request in the middle of December, which does nothing but sharpen the feminine determination to see these models, despite any barrier less formidable than a solid wall of military guard with guns in good working order and a will to use them. Of course, we see them. And they are, after all, what the couturiers call "demi-ete." They are none the less interesting and important straws which suggest which way the wind of the spring mode will blow.



I succeeded in cajoling two of these newest models from M. Doeuillet, and if you will observe our second offering you can get a good look at an advance agent of fashion, which is a spring coat created by Doeuillet. First of all, it is made from a new species of alpaca, softer than any shown last season, and with a wonderful surface that is both dull and lustrous as the material is draped. It has a pattern that resembles a broken plaid, in a darker tone of gray than the delicate ground of the silk, and this pattern is so arranged as to make a variation in the lines of the garment. For instance, on the box plait panels that widen the coat from the hips, the motif runs at another angle from the body of the coat. This gives enough interest and novelty to the simplicity of the garment without marring it or making it at all fussy. The collar is of white crêpe, and falls in ripples to the waist line in front, suggesting a jabot, and there are black ribbon ties at the neck line. The cuffs also are of white with a rippling piece of white at the back attached to a bias band trimmed with buttons. There is only just enough trimming to give it character, and nothing to make its character too obvious.

This coat is designed to wear with the dress, which is our third model, another beautiful example of the non-complexity of real chic. The dress is also of gray, the lighter tone that forms the background of the coat, and it is made of the new alpaca, too. It might be called the jumper type, if you wanted to label it, but the way Doeuillet has allowed the plaits to encroach on the territory of the blouse makes it both original and interesting and separates it instantly from the common or garden variety of jumper dress. The little man's collar and the buttoned band are of white crêpe de chine, as are also the cuffs. It's the kind of dress you would look at all day without getting tired, which means it is decidedly smart and correct.

Our first model is a little thesis from Brandt on the informal dinner gown, which is going to see a lot of service between now and April. It is made of black crêpe satin, a material and color that will without doubt be smartly prevalent in spring styles. It has a tunic. You can't get away from these long tunics, if you consider chic seriously; but this is a tunic with a difference, for it has its own individual drapery from the right shoulder to the left hip, ending in a big bow. The placing of that bow—a mere couple of loops and ends—occupied the designer for many hours, and it was shifted forward and back and up and down a great many times until it satisfied every aspiration of his artistic soul. It represents the high point of achievement for this little dress, and adds a great deal of piquant charm. Don't you think so? There is the color of first spring in the embroidery, and tiny pipings of the same colors edge the tunic and the long sleeves, with their flare at the wrist. The dress, so the designer told me, is for the debutante, who is allowed black satin in all good taste, provided there is a tribute of color to her youth.

Our fourth offering is also from Brandt, and is designed for the more sophisticated, whose years and experience permit carrying it gracefully. It is also in black, crêpe Mogol this time, with a deep décolletage in back, across which are strung half necklaces of colored bead embroidery. The sash, which is hung from the shoulders, ties below the waist at the center back. In front there is a circular flounce from the knees to the hem, to take care of the exigencies of stepping out in the dance, and this also is trimmed with narrow bands of colored bead embroidery.

Such a gown is necessarily more restricted in its service than one with sleeves and a smaller décolletage, but it can be worn appropriately for many informal evening affairs—the small dance at the club, the little dinner, and so forth. There is a real breath of Roumania in the bright colors of the embroidery, which are red, yellow, vivid green, and purple.

WINTER'S FAT FOODS.

THE fats and the starches are human fuels. The human body must be stoked constantly with foods that are just fuels, because its chief and constant need is for the power these yield—energy and heat. We are incessantly active and must have the energy to promote that activity. We continually need to keep up our body temperature, and if we do not supply fuel we burn out, using up our own built-up tissues or the most expensive fuels in the world.

The fuel need which the fats supply we might speak of as our gross need for just plain stuff to burn. Fats also give other service. These, and the starches as well, are called "protein sparers." If we keep up an adequate supply of these fuel foods we need eat less of the proteins, which food we get mainly from meat.

Chemically, proteins are a less stable and more risky food than are the fuel foods. It is more risky to take too much protein than it is to take too much fat, but fortunately appetite for the latter affords a constant restraint, or it is more correct to say lack of appetite, for much fat affords this restraint. Perhaps more diners need to be coaxed by good cooking to take enough of this particular fuel for their great need than need to be coaxed in the same way to take any other of the foods.

Difference in Fat Yield.

Pure fat yields 4,000 calories per pound. Pure starches and their cousins, or nieces—the sugars of commerce—yield from 1,600 to 1,800 calories per pound. The oils are pure fats, but butter contains a considerable per cent of water and so does fat pork, therefore, the number of calories in them is lessened to about 3,400 per pound or to only 3,600 calories.

Note, then, how much difference there is in the volume of a piece of fat yielding, say, 100 calories, and a starch yielding the same number. The volume of the starchy food is all the greater because when it is cooked a great deal of water is cooked with it. Bread has less water than a porridge, or what we call cereal, but it has enough in it so that a pound of bread yields only 1,200 calories. Therefore, it happens that a slice of bread—ordinary slice—from a pound loaf, and the small pat of butter served with it yield exactly the same number of calories apiece, or 100.

Waste Through Cooking.

Fat may contribute enormously to the agreeableness of food when correctly used in the cooking. It may make food satisfactory in ways of which we are not conscious when it is rightly or nicely used but when used in the other ways we are all too conscious of the disagreeableness of the results. Even butter and cream in poor cooking will hardly be agreeable, while in nice cooking pork fat, suet, and even lamb or mutton fat—one of the most disagreeable things in poor cookery—may be made nice and exceedingly palatable.

Of all the common food waste, probably that of fat is the greatest. It is almost as though every person who got a piece of gold money threw it away and hoarded or used only the silver. Butchers daily pare off enough fat from meat, fat paid for, to feed all the poor folk in the region. Housewives cook out half the fat in bacon, and do not utilize it for food. If it is burned, it is not suitable food; nor is the bacon. Both have become harsh and dangerous things to eat.

Starchy Modifications of Fat.

Pie crust and puff pastry are starchy modifications of fat, and do we like them? Certainly we do, and these things when well made rank nigh among the delicacies. Practically all the meat sauces—and even white sauce—are a starchy modification of fat with a liquid which the starch thickens while it extends the fat and gives its own cooked agreeableness of flavor to the fat.

A sauce made of just milk and butter would not be agreeable, because the butter would show as a melted layer on the milk, not blending with it. By thickening the milk with the flour and then adding butter, the butter entirely disappears from sight. The combination may be made in three different ways, but in any case the butter or whatever fat might be used disappears.

The oils would be much more used in cookery if they combined better with starchy foods, or if better ways than any yet discovered were found for making them do this. To speak of starches modifying fats is to seem to put the cart before the horse, because the fats are so commonly used for flavoring. But if considered from the calorie standpoint, we can see how the fat in a white sauce can appropriately be said to modify the starch, because from the calorie standpoint it is the larger thing. Fats are generally called supplements in cooking, but if we consider them from the calorie standpoint they are often the food that is supplemented, and in bread and butter the butter is as truly supplemented by the bread as the other way around.

Amount of Fat Food a Day.

Look at a quarter of pound of butter. That is the amount of fat food that an adult needs in winter; at any rate, it is estimated that an average man needs that, while a woman or child may take less, although today they are feeding fat to babies—in the shape of bacon—long before they are a year old and, of course, babies have always got some in milk, whole milk.

A man has to like fats rather well to get four ounces a day, though he gets some in cream for his coffee and some when he eats the best meats, even though he discards the fat parts, as he would not if these were cooked to perfection. When there is no fat food in the diet, as in times of famine or when people suffer from fat starvation in war times, children are stunted in growth, every one is likely to have eye troubles and others which are called deficiency diseases.

Bacon Fat Modified by Rice.

One-half cup of rice dry will yield 400 calories. Cooked, it will yield the same number, unless cooked in water which is thrown away with a loss of up to one-third of the calories—I think this is the estimate. One-fourth of a cup of bacon fat or more could be used with this amount of rice, and if more we can certainly say the bacon 2268—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 44 inch material.

2190—Girl's dress. Sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards of 40 inch material, with ⅜ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

KASHA, plaided in contrasting colors—tan with blue and green, or blue with red and tan—would make up beautifully by pattern No. 2210. The pattern is cut in front and back pieces and with long or sleeves would be more appropriate, and the dress just right for general afternoon wear at home, or on the street under a coat.

The neck is cut V shaped in the front, and below this the dress is slashed for an opening, which will make it easy to get into and out of. This slash should be bound. Satin, choosing one of the colors that form the plaid, would be pretty for binding the neck or front slash, the pocket openings, and the slashes through which the sash is slipped.

If the neck of the dress is finished with binding or narrow facing, the collar and cuffs may be made of organdy, linen, satin, or any other material that one chooses, and made detachable.

The long sleeves are gathered into narrow wristbands. In measuring to see about the length around of the wristband, it must be remembered that the gathered sleeve edge takes up some room, and in order not to have the band uncomfortably tight fitting, it will be wise to allow a half inch or even a little more than the close wrist measure. And in basting and stitching the band to the sleeve, watch out so that the band is not fulled even a little.

Perforations and notches show just how to fasten sleeve and band together.

Make the narrow sash of the dress material, and line it with satin. At the bottom finish with a deep hem, put in by hand, taking care not to have the sewing show from the right side.

For size 36, the dress measures around the bottom about 1⅝ yards. Of course, this is a good design for wash materials; and with short sleeves having the detachable, turned back cuffs, and matching collar there could be nothing much prettier.

Printed wash materials make up charmingly in these simple dresses for small girls. Pattern No. 2190 is cut with a round yoke, in two pieces and to this the dress is attached. Instead of the usual gathers, the fullness is disposed of in clusters of tucks—put in each side of the middle, front and back.

HOW TO ORDER YOUR CLOTILDE PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of each pattern you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Full length, one piece sleeves are set into narrow wristbands, and the dress is slashed down the middle of the back for an opening. There are two piece bloomers, finished with a casing and elastic at the top, and at the bottom set into narrow leg bands. The design would be fine to use for something dressy—organdy, for instance — with the yoke covered with rows of narrow Valenciennes edging, set on slightly fulled; little sleeve caps treated in the same way; also the leg bands and bottom of the skirt. Half inch edging would be best for the yoke, leg bands, and sleeve caps, and inch wide edging for the bottom of the skirt. In putting it on the yoke, start at the bottom, and baste on so that the lower edge of the yoke is hidden. Full the lace on slightly and have each succeeding row just cover the sewing on of the one below.

Bengaline would be just the thing for pattern No. 2268. The design is a smart one, the long lines being becoming alike to slight or full figures. The dress is cut entirely in one piece, and even to the woman who has not done much sewing this pattern should be easy to use and the dress a success.

As can be seen from the diagram accompanying the picture, the pattern extends beyond the under arm seams at a low waist line, and this fullness is laid in plaits, which give room for walking, yet do not break the straight line effect. A belt could be worn with this dress, starting and ending each side of the front from where the plaits begin, or there could be one going entirely around, or the dress could be worn without any belt, depending on which of the three ways would be the most becoming.

The full length kimono sleeves are finished with hanging cuffs, and the pattern is perforated for short sleeves.

THOUSANDS OF E. BURNHAM GRADUATES ARE SUCCESSFULLY OPERATING BEAUTY SHOPS THE WORLD OVER

The
E. Burnham School of Beauty Culture and Artistic Hairdressing

BURNHAM'S—the world's largest beauty establishment—is known the world over. Founded in 1871 it has ranked always as one of Chicago's best known institutions.

Since originating the teaching of Beauty Culture we have trained thousands and thousands of women. And our reward has been a glorious one.

The preservation of woman's beauty—now more than ever before—has come to be considered one of the world's great works, and with it has come the CREATION OF BEAUTY.

Our course in Beauty Culture will solve the problem of an independent living for any intelligent woman who is willing to try. The demand for Dainty Beauty Shops is growing and the field will never become crowded. Women of refinement cannot do without the care of the Beauty Culturist.

YOUTHFUL beauty may now be preserved until late years and plain women may be made lovely, not by any magic, but by the skillful touch of BURNHAM'S trained Beauty Specialists.

And the world has justly acknowledged the supremacy of the E. BURNHAM SCHOOLS OF BEAUTY CULTURE in Chicago and in New York. Women know that to get the most scientific treatments they need only seek the nearest E. BURNHAM GRADUATE. Her diploma from BURNHAM'S is always proudly displayed.

Our Beautiful New School

is now in full operation. There is no school in the world to compare with it. It is flooded with air, light and sunshine.

Our Instructors are women of broad experience, each one specializing in one subject.

Each has been selected because of her thorough knowledge of her particular field and for her peculiar fitness to impart knowledge to others.

Hair Dressing

This course includes Shampooing, Glinting, Bleaching, Dyeing, Scalp Massage for the beauty of the hair, Clipping, Singeing, etc. Also lessons in all the new fashions, as well as fancy Hairdressing.

Marcel Waving and Water Waving

The Eyes Have It by Antoinette Donnelly

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.

Be They Ever So Lovely, They Need Attention and Exercise.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Perhaps the most important factor in the makeup of the femme irresistible is a pair of wondrous, witching orbs. Many a wary lady has talked eloquently with her eyes when words failed her, and many a man has lost his heart because of the light that lies, even though his head warned him against the wiles of femininity.

Be they wickedly black or innocently blue, merrily brown, or pensively violet, the eyes have it! How often cold blooded jurymen are known to temper justice with mercy under the appealing glance of the lady defendant! How many susceptible husbands sacrifice cigars and cut down on lunches because they can't resist the charm of their wives' optics when asked for the price of a new hat!

Relieving the Strain.

Poets have sung of the sweet soul which shines through a woman's eyes, but whether they are true mirrors of the soul does not enter into the business of the beauty editor. It is enough to know that the possessor of beautiful eyes has an invaluable weapon with which to battle her way through a more or less practical world, and my aim today is to tell you how to care for the optics which have been allotted to your particular set of features.

If there is no strain felt other than the natural tire after the day's work, there is no need of an eye wash. I do advise, however, after the nightly wash applying a warm cloth to the closed lids, letting it remain there for a couple of minutes. This releases the eye muscles from the set position they have been in and rests them. Then in the morning, after the face ablution, repeat, using a cold water application to the closed lids. This is a tonic, and many actresses of the stage and screen who are noted for the beauty of their eyes testify to its beneficial effects.

These Washes Advised.

If the eyes are unusually tired or weak the following wash is recommended: Boric acid, 1 per cent; sodium biborate, one gram; water camphor, sixty drops; and three ounces of distilled water. Apply with an eye cup, which, as you know, fits right over the eye. Another excellent wash is boiled water to which a little salt—just enough to make the water taste salty—is added. The salt will allay the smarting which the plain water usually causes. It has the same effect as tears, the natural eye wash, which have a salty taste.

Oculists have informed me that eye exercises should not be recommended promiscuously. One who knows the strength of the eyes should be consulted, for few can judge their own eye strength. And if they take up a set of exercises too vigorous for their eyes they may do considerable harm.

Finding the Real Cause.

Flabby lids are due to a run down physical condition. Flabby cheeks or flabby skin on any part of the body may be attributed to this same cause. Naturally, the remedy is building up one's strength and toning up of the entire system.

The condition of one's system may be readily surmised by examining the eyes. The floating particles frequently complained of are usually the result of a disordered stomach and constipation or kidney trouble. A yellowishness of the eyeballs is often due to constipation, sluggish liver, and too rich blood.

Dark rings and circles and bags under the eyes are matters calling for medical correction except where the rings and circles are due to lack of sleep and anxiety of some kind. Bags under the eyes are indicative of kidney trouble and indican in the system, which is waste matter that should be eliminated.

Red lids are due to using the eyes in a poor light, long hours, late hours, which produce eye strain; reading in bed, reading in street cars, with the light away from the reader.

Distance Gazing Good.

An eye rest that should be practiced by everybody several times daily is long distance gazing. Go to the window, and look out toward the horizon for a minute or two every little while during the day.

The annoying crusts that accumulate on granulated lids can be soaked off with a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda.

Crossed eyes in the young may be straightened with glasses. Up to the age of 21, glasses and exercises may be used successfully, but after that an operation is necessary.

Eye strain is often overlooked in attempting to determine the cause of brain fag and nerve fag. A local symptom of eye strain is a sense of fatigue in the eyes, accompanied by pain in the back of the head. Another symptom is a feeling of discomfort in the eyes, accompanied by pain in the back of the head. A headache over the eyes is a frequent result of eye strain. The persistent occurrence of any of these symptoms indicate the need of examination by an oculist.

Brows and Lashes.

Now, a word about eyebrows and lashes. Train the eyebrows by brushing for a few seconds every night with a tiny eyebrow brush, shaping them toward a slight arch in the center. A little vaseline used on the brush will help to make them grow, too.

The following tonic is excellent for both lashes and brows: Yellow vaseline, 2 ounces; oil of lavender, 15 drops; oil of rosemary, 15 drops. Mix thoroughly. Particular pains must be taken if you apply this tonic to your eyelashes. It will inflame the eyes, as any oil will, if it gets into them.

BEAUTY ANSWERS by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

JACK: MOLES MAY BE REMOVED from the face, and successfully, too, if you will put yourself in the hands of a reputable skin specialist. You must be particular about this, Jack, as an inexperienced operator could cause permanent damage to the face.

V. R.: THERE IS NO WAY TO reduce the plumpness of the face, unless you reduce generally, and as you are not fat otherwise, you would not wish to reduce. I really don't think your face can be so fat as you picture it, dear. You are a bit sensitive about it, I fear. Better fat than painfully thin, don't you think?

ANNA B. M.: KEEPING THE tongue clean protects the teeth. It collects tartar and bacteria near the root. Cleanse the tongue with tooth brush and tooth powder. Fruit acids are cleansing to the tongue; also a weak solution of vinegar.

EDNA: YOU WISH TO KNOW the cause of pimples and how to get rid of them? In most cases they are due to disturbances of the digestive tract. It is necessary to keep the bowels open, drink water freely and eat plentifully of fruits and vegetables. For local treatment of pimples send stamped, addressed envelope for my booklet on the care of the complexion.

SALLY: EARACHE MAY BE RElieved by the application of a hot water bag, but if this is not effective the ear may be douched with warm water. On extremely cold days it would be well to insert a small piece of absorbent cotton in the ear before driving your car to protect it from the wind.

MRS. S. M. H.: EVEN THOUGH you do your own housework, you still may have nice looking hands, but you will have to exercise care when doing the rough work. It is well to keep a piece of lemon handy, and remove all stains at once. Then, several times a day massage the hands with equal parts of camphor and glycerine. This softens and whitens them.

PEARL V.: WITCH HAZEL AND ice are about the two best astringents known, but, as it takes time and patience to correct enlarged pores, be sure that you stick to it faithfully. Keep up the ice rub every night, even after the pores are normal, as it is most refreshing to the skin.

Bad Breath

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Stomach Disordered?

Take Haley's Magnesia-Oil—milk of magnesia and mineral oil combined

There is a cause for disordered stomach. And that cause will most often be found in the lower bowels, the seat of most so-called "stomach trouble." Acids from fermenting, accumulating waste matter must be neutralized and waste matter eliminated. Two things are necessary—both are done at one time with Haley's Magnesia-Oil (milk of magnesia combined with mineral oil).

Both oil and magnesia work together as they should. The oil carries the magnesia straight to the lower bowel where it is needed. Acids are neutralized, clogged tracts are lubricated. Action is prompt but devoid of griping or distress.

Get a bottle of Haley's Magnesia-Oil today. There is no oily taste. If your druggist can't supply you write us. We'll mail postpaid on receipt of price. Large family size, $1. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

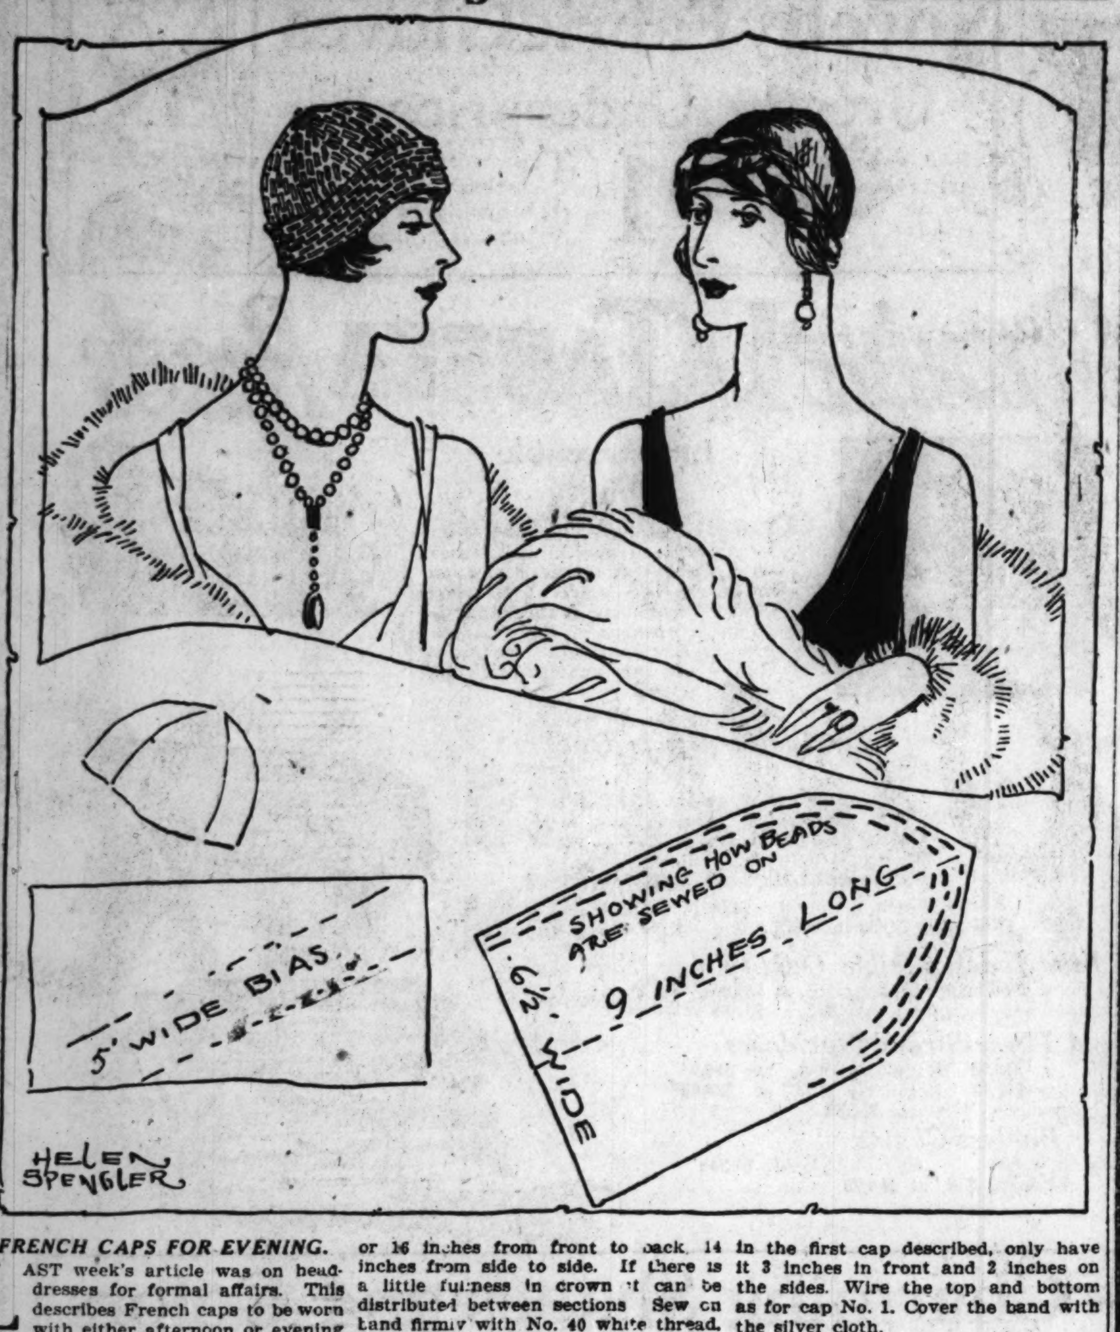
Practical and Fancy Needlework

By CLOTILDE



FRENCH CAPS FOR EVENING.

LAST week's article was on headdresses for formal affairs. This describes French caps to be worn with either afternoon or evening gowns. They add a smart touch to the toilet.

The first one shown may be made of gold or silver net. This material is wide—one-quarter of a yard will be sufficient for the crown, which is made in four sections, each measuring 6½ inches across the bottom, 9 inches from point to center bottom.

The ends slope from bottom to point. Seams are allowed on the pattern. Cut out the four sections and baste two together, making a seam of ⅜ of an inch. Baste the other two together the same way, and sew by machine. The four sections are now in two parts. Baste the two parts together, and stitch by machine. Make sure all the center seams are even. Press the seams flat. Sew yellow glass bugle beads first on the seams, and then fill in solidly on all the sections, using a heavy thread the color of the beads if possible. If an old buckram crown can be had, pull the sectional crown down over it, and hold over steaming kettle. Too heavy steam will soften the buckram too much to hold its shape. Fifteen minutes is long enough to leave on buckram crown. Remove and stuff with tissue paper.

For the head band, take a piece of willow or buckram 2⅛ inches wide. The uniform head size for bobbed hair is 22½ inches; for long hair, 24. Allow 1 inch for lapping in back. Wire the top and bottom with lace wire, using a buttonhole stitch. It is always wise to use narrow cotton bias tape to bind anything that has been wired.

Take the center of crown and pin to center of finished band. Do likewise with the back. To have a skull fitting crown, it must measure 15½ or 16 inches from front to back, 14 inches from side to side. If there is a little fullness in crown it can be distributed between sections. Sew on band firmly with No. 40 white thread.

Take one-eighth of a yard of burnt orange velvet, cut on the bias, pull around snugly on band, pin, cut off superfluous ends, remove, join on machine or sew with backstitch closely. Do not press the velvet with an iron, but press the thumb nail firmly down the seam on the wrong side. Fold in about one-half inch at top, blindstitch to where crown is joined on to the band.

Pull the velvet smooth on the band, sew the beads on the velvet using a design or solidly. Do not sew the beads in the head size so it will interfere with the hair.

Pull the rest of the velvet into the head size. Sew a narrow piece of silk in any color that will not clash too much with the color of the cap to finish the inside of the band. Have this on the bias, first pinning smoothly, then slipstitching top and bottom. Join either on straight or bias in back.

The second style of cap shown is easily made and unusually chic. It requires one-half yard of antique silver cloth, which does not tarnish so easily as other kinds. Use a stock crown of light weight material, which can be bought at millinery supply stores.

Pull the silver cloth over the crown, pin from front to back on the straight of the goods, then from side to side. The fullness may be pulled in small plaits between the front and side and back and sides.

Take one-half yard of black maline and pull it down over the silver cloth. Bring the fullness in the same place as the silver cloth.

Sew firmly to the bottom of the crown, which must measure 15½ or 16 inches from front to back and 14 inches side to side. Make a band as in the first cap described, only have it 3 inches in front and 2 inches on the sides. Wire the top and bottom as for cap No. 1. Cover the band with the silver cloth.

Cut the silver cloth left after cutting the crown from corner to corner to make as bias as possible. This strip should be about 5 inches wide. Machine the edges together and turn right side out. Cut a yard of maline in two, lengthwise. Braid together the two pieces of maline and the tube of silver cloth. Sew it firmly at the back to the band, bring around to front. Pull the braid slightly apart at the front to make it wider, bring it around to the back, tuck the ends under, and sew so all stitches will be hidden.

Finish off the inside of the band with a bias piece of black taffeta. First fit smoothly, then pin. Slipstitch all around, top and bottom.

Just a Few Drops Snuffed into Nose and Throat STOPS COLDS Right at the Start

ARZEN

Arzen also relieves Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Hay Fever—in fact, all irritated conditions of nose and throat.

A few applications end most colds—by getting right at the spot in nose and throat where the catarrhalis bacilli (cold germs) are causing inflammation. The pleasing oil clears the head at once, makes free breathing easy—soothes and heals. You will be astonished at the quick results. No medicine to take internally. Nothing to upset the stomach, or affect the heart action. No harmful drugs. Perfectly safe for the children, too.

Handy glass dropper comes with each package.

COLDS

Instant Relief! Break any Cold Right Up with "Pape's Cold Compound"

Don't stay stuffed-up! Take "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken. The first dose opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages of head; stops nose running; relieves headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing. The second and third doses usually break up the cold completely and end all grippe misery.

"Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only thirty-five cents at drug stores. Tastes nice. Contains no quinine. Insist upon Pape's.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous home-made remedy. The prompt relief is almost magical. It is easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Cuticura Clears The Skin Of Blemishes

If you have pimples or red, rough skin you can rely on Cuticura to help you. Gently smear the affected part with Cuticura Ointment; after five minutes, wash off with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Dry without irritation.

YOU CAN'T STARVE AND BE STRONG

The old theory of "diet" in treating DIABETES is like expecting an automobile to run without gasoline. My book, "Eat and Get Well," telling how to stop this useless starving and eat the food you need will be sent free, postpaid, to any sufferer of diabetes. Write M. Richartz, Dept. 49, 220 W. 42nd St., New York.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

fat is supplemented by the rice rather than the other way around.

When this amount only is to be cooked, wash and drain the rice well. Put to boil one cup and a half of water, and when it is boiling add the dry rice a little at a time so as not to stop the boiling. Let boil five minutes, with the small pan uncovered—not too violently, add the bacon fat, cover, and gently cook for fifteen minutes. Take off cover, and let cook ten minutes to dry out. A carrot sliced, an onion cut fine, and a green sweet pepper may be cooked for ten minutes in the water before the rice is put in, and will give a savory dish. Such vegetables and also some of the fruits cooked in fat make it savory.

By the way, when bacon needs clarifying, it is likely to be in a condition to throw away. It has burned particles in it and has been cooked to the danger point.

Other Palatable Modifications of Fat.

The more starchy materials, like barley or rice or a flour thickening, are used in a soup, the more fat can be disguised in it, with the result that a bowl of it is as substantial as a whole meal. Fatty meat liquids in which some starchy food is used, as cornmeal is used in a liquid in which pork is cooked to make scrapple, are inexpensive meat flavored products, with food values enhanced by proportion of the fat present. Gravies with their flour thickening and some addition, like a little meat, vegetables, or mushrooms, may be served over toast or boiled rice to make a substantial viand, which will be more substantial the more fat there is in the gravy.

Modifying Lamb Stew Fat.

The commonest direction in all lamb stew recipes is "to pare off the superfluous fat." Yet for real food, nutriment per inch, or calories, this fat yields two to one what the lean does in many cases—at any rate, in first grade lamb. It will keep and some of it may be used for a mock lamb stew, but if it is well seasoned with vegetables and modified with flour or some other starchy thing—dried beans sometimes—twice the amount of stew may be made, and all the food value in the meat purchased will be utilized.

Twice the water can be used in making the stew if the fat is left on and submerged, as it were, with flour. If the fat is not then agreeable to eat, it will be if the meat is chopped up fat and all for a hash, while the liquid is strained for a soup.

To prepare the meat remove skin, trim off any weathered parts, scrape or chop off any weathered ends of bones, wipe, and roll in seasoned flour, sear on all sides, and use a quart of liquid to a pound and about half a cup of flour, including what is on the meat and what is left from the rolling.

Mock Lamb Stew.

One of the most thrifty recipes that came out of a great prize contest was the following: Two cups potato, one onion, two tablespoons lamb fat, one teaspoon salt, one cup carrot, one small turnip, one level tablespoon of flour, water to cover. Slice and dice the vegetables and cook until tender with the lamb fat and covered with water. When done, drain off and save liquid and shake over fire for a minute. Brown flour in a little lamb fat and add the cooking liquid to make a medium thick gravy. Let the vegetables simmer in this a few minutes. Serve on a hot platter with a border of plain boiled rice.

In this case the fat is modified by two starchy substances—potato and flour—and served with a third, which modifies it somewhat, while it is made savory with the vegetables. Some lean lamb with the fat could be used in the recipe.

Will Radium at Last Open the Door of the Great Unknown?

If you are sick and want to Get Well and Keep Well, write for literature that tells How and Why this almost unknown and wonderful new element brings relief to so many sufferers from Constipation, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout, Neuritis, Neuralgia, Nervous Prostration, High Blood Pressure and diseases of the Stomach, Heart, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, and other ailments. You wear Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad day and night, receiving the Radio-Active Rays continuously into your system, causing a healthy circulation, overcoming sluggishness, throwing off impurities and restoring the tissues and nerves to a normal condition—and the next thing you know you are getting well.

Sold on a test proposition. You are thoroughly satisfied it is helping you before the appliance is yours. Nothing to do but wear it. No trouble or expense, and the most wonderful fact about the appliance is that it is sold so reasonable that it is within the reach of all, both rich and poor.

No matter how bad your ailment, or how long standing, we will be pleased to have you try it at our risk. For full information write today—not tomorrow. Radium Appliance Co., 373 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

Really Removes Roots of Superfluous Hair

To have the superfluous hairs come out, roots and all, before one's very eyes, sounds almost too good to be true. Yet many thousands of women have proved to their own satisfaction that this can be accomplished—easily, quickly, harmlessly—by means of the wonderful Phelactine process.

This method is not to be compared at all with any liquid, powder or paste, nor with electrolysis or anything else. Nothing like it ever originated. It causes the hairs to come out entire, roots included, leaving the skin smooth and hairless as a babe's. Phelactine is non-odorous, non-irritating, non-poisonous—a child could safely eat it. Get a stick of Phelactine from your druggist today, follow the simple instructions and you will have a most agreeable surprise.

Vapo-Chlorine Stops Your Cold or Costs You Nothing

Chlorine Gas Stopped Colds for 35 Congressmen and President Coolidge

Says Capt. G. F. Unmacht, Head of Chemical Warfare Dept., Sixth Army Corps.

Concerning the use of Chlorine Gas for Colds: "Capt. Unmacht says the War Department in its three years of use of the treatment has successfully cured 5,000 cases. He asserts he was an attendant in a clinic on a hill near the Capitol in Washington and that thirty-five Congressmen and President Coolidge were cured at the clinic."

Chlorine Gas Stops Colds

Says Brig. Gen. Fries, Chief of the Army Chemical Warfare Service, in an Address Before the American Society for the Advancement of Science.

Gen. Fries said his observation in the treatment of 931 cases of whooping cough, bronchitis, common colds and other respiratory affections had been "conclusive of the good effect of Chlorine."

Simple and Easy to Use

Vapo-Chlorine provides a way by which the famous Chlorine Gas treatment for colds, bronchitis, whooping cough and influenza may be taken easily and safely in any closed room in your home or office. Vapo-Chlorine provides a simple method for the release of genuine Chlorine Gas in the proper proportion for the destruction of the germs and bacteria which cause these diseases.

Vapo-Chlorine does away with the necessity of going to a hospital or clinic that is provided with a Chlorine Gas chamber, or with the annoyance or trouble which is necessary in procuring the use of a portable Chlorine Gas machine.

One person alone may take the treatment or as many as four can take the treatment at the same time and all secure the same beneficial results.

REMARKABLE OFFER

Vapo-Chlorine Stops Your Cold or Costs You Nothing

Deposit $1.00 NOW with any Good Druggist—Receive a Vapo-Chlorine Set—use it at once—and if it does not stop your cold return the set and your deposit will be refunded. Make certain you receive Vapo-Chlorine, the genuine chlorine gas chamber set.

This most unusual offer in the medical world can be made only because constant tests have proven the effectiveness of Vapo-Chlorine in the successful treatment of Colds.

Chlorine Gas Stops Colds

—Reports Dr. W. A. Evans, M. D., Liberty Magazine, Nov. 22, 1924.

"The next was to find a simple apparatus, one that could be carried from place to place When such a portable apparatus was devised it was used to treat ninety-three cases. Of these about 95 per cent were reported cured. Of the various people treated, about two-thirds took one treatment, the treatment lasting about one hour; about one-sixth took two treatments; a few took three treatments, and a few more took four.

"It is possible that sending all cases of acute head and chest colds to the gas chamber for an hour a day will prove successful in preventing pneumonia."

Chlorine Gas Stops Colds Absolutely in Single Hour

States Lieut.-Col. Gilchrist, U. S. Army Medical Head.

Lieut.-Col. Gilchrist, Chief of the Medical Division of the Chemical Warfare Service at Washington, D. C., states: "It would scarcely be too much to say that there is no excuse for a person to have a cold. A single hour in the CHLORINE CHAMBER at a time when the cold is felt coming on WILL CURE IT—ABSOLUTELY. In the matter of common colds, the treatment has proved itself beyond question."

Gray Hair Quickly Goes Before the Touch of This Clean, Colorless Liquid

Proved by Thousands! Results in a Week! The Original Color Perfectly Restored.

Are you gray or are the strands of white just beginning to appear? Has the time come when people can speak of you as "showing your age"?

If so, there is good news for you. That grayness can quickly be banished—you can see your hair return to its original color so perfectly that no one would suspect that it had ever changed. Hundreds of thousands of people have quickly taken years from their appearance through the remarkable power of the clean, colorless liquid known as Kolor-Bak, which is a true substitute for natural pigmentation. It makes no difference whether your hair was brown, black, blonde or red, Kolor-Bak will restore the original color, and the color will be perfectly uniform throughout. No faded, streaked or "dyed" appearance. Kolor-Bak also gives the hair a wonderful natural gloss, renewed life, softness, and luxuriant appearance. Not only does Kolor-Bak restore the vanished color, it banishes dandruff, stops itching and falling hair and gives a delightful sense of cleanliness.

We sell Kolor-Bak with the positive money-back guarantee if a full treatment does not bring the desired results.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Margaret had been doing something that her mother objected to, so she told her not to do it again and explained now that she had been told not to do it how naughty she would be to repeat it.

Margaret thought a minute and said, "Well, then, mother, don't you tell me any more that it is wrong and I can do it then without being naughty."

N. M. M.

One day while raking up the leaves in the back yard I found a penny. I called the little boy next door who was making a bonfire and asked him if he had lost the penny.

He answered, "Yes."

I said, "Tell me where in my yard you lost it."

"Right where you found it," was his reply.

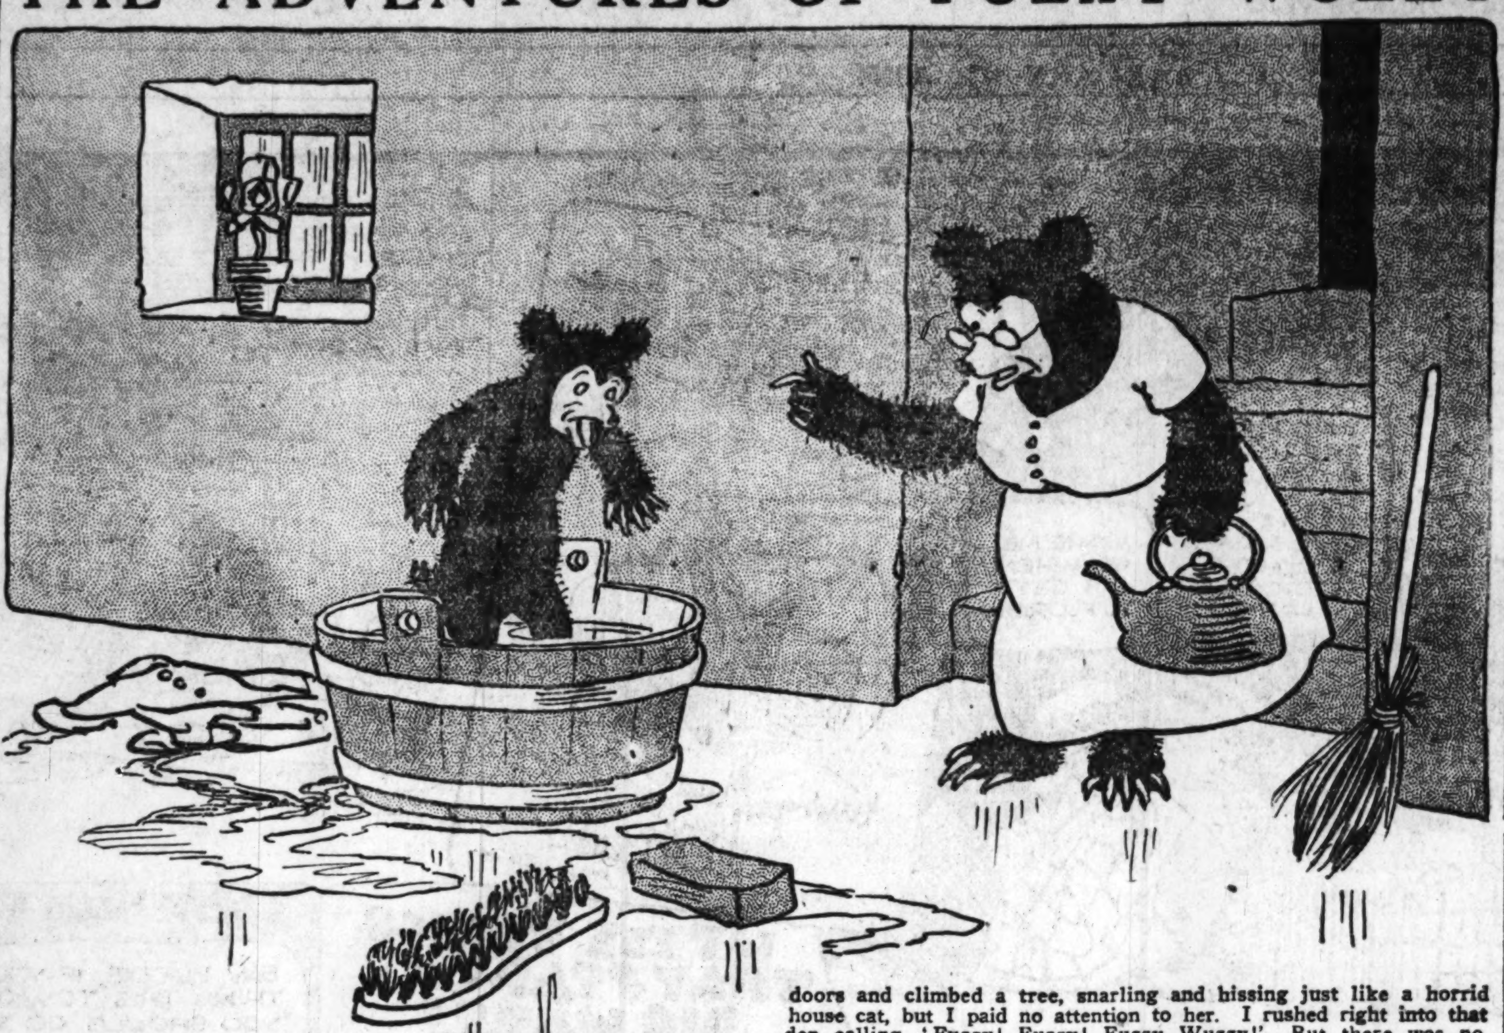
THE ADVENTURES OF FUZZY WUZZY



HOME AGAIN.

By Raymond Kelly.

SUPPER was over, and Grandma Grizzly was helping Mother Bear with her mending, while Father Bear was glancing over the pages of the Mountain Meadow News. Fuzzy Wuzzy was sitting before the fireplace, watching the sparks as they jumped from the hearth log and rushed up the chimney to dance for the fire fairy.

"Fuzzy ran away today," said Mother Bear. "He didn't come home for lunch, and I was terribly worried, because I don't trust that Mrs. Catamount a bit. She has such a hungry look in her eye and her manners are simply terrible. I don't know when I've been so insulted."

"How was that, and what has it to do with Fuzzy's running away?" asked Father Bear.

"Everything," answered Mother Bear, "when Fuzzy didn't come home for lunch why, of course, I was worried. So I hung my apron on the back of a kitchen chair and put on my shawl. Then I went outside the den and called and called, but no answer. So I began asking the neighbors. Some of them thought maybe they'd seen him go down the mountain. Some guessed he'd gone around the mountain. But that old bluejay in the hipplehock tree kept chattering, 'up, up, up the mountain,' and, right away, I thought of the catamount's den.

"I ran as fast as I could, and never stopped until I reached that den. Mrs. Catamount saw me coming, and she rushed out of doors and climbed a tree, snarling and hissing just like a horrid house cat, but I paid no attention to her. I rushed right into that den calling, 'Fuzzy! Fuzzy! Fuzzy Wuzzy!' But there was no answer. Perhaps I did scatter things around pretty badly. But I was looking for my baby, and Mrs. Catamount ought to have allowed for that, instead of screaming and squalling insults at the top of her voice."

"Where did you find Fuzzy?" asked Father Bear.

"At home, when I got here so tired out from running and so hoarse from calling that I couldn't growl above a whisper. And such a sight as he was, too, with his fur all matted with mud and simply soaking wet. I was so relieved, I wanted to spank him, but I didn't. I just whisked him out of his romper and gave him the bath of his life with water as hot as he could stand, and I wasn't stingy with soap, either. Then I combed and combed until I thought my claws would be worn off before I got the tangles and burrs out of his fur. But I finally got him presentable, and here he is."

"Where had you been, Fuzzy?" asked Father Bear.

"Treasure hunting," answered Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Where?"

"To the bottom of the sea on a raft that changed into a boat. There was Betsy Ann and Bobbie and Hawk Feather and me. And we met pirates and sailors and whales and fishes and sharks. I saw a black horse, too, with green fenders, and a dragon that wore skates and worked like a roller coaster, and I've got just heaps and heaps of treasure, and ——"

"Well, don't run away any more," said Father Bear. "Now give daddy a big hug and go to bed."

Mother Bear shook her head and said, "I'll never in this world understand that cub."

But Grandma Grizzly looked over her glasses and smiled at Father Bear as she murmured, "They don't change much."

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy.

ISN'T it odd that all the world should look upon the spider as an insect!

As a matter of fact, the spider is not an insect at all. It is no more an insect than a chicken is a mammal.

In all that vast array of small creatures that make up the largest number of living things in this world, the line is not often drawn to show just which are the insects and which are not. Few people ever keep in mind that simplest of definitions of an insect, the definition which describes it as an animal with six legs. Every living thing in this world with six legs is an insect. No living thing with more or less than six legs is an insect.

The spider has eight legs and is therefore, no more an insect than is the centipede which has scores of them.

The spider is, however, a cousin to the insects. So are the crawfishes and the lobsters cousins, though they also have eight legs.

These animals are like the insects in that they have jointed bodies and jointed legs and wear their skeletons on the outside. They are unlike them in the number of their legs and in the fact that there are but two divisions to their bodies while the insects have three.

In the spiders and the lobsters the head and the trunk is in one piece, while in the insect they are in two pieces. The insects are more like the higher animals.

The scientists call the insects hexapoda, which means, literally, six feet. They shut the gate and refuse to let animals with more or fewer feet into this classification.

They make a broader classification, the arthropoda, which means jointed legged, and they let the lobsters, the spiders, even the centipedes into this big group. They are alike in being animals with jointed legs and jointed bodies.

These animals all have crusts which come of the fact that they wear their bones on the outside. The muscles work on the inside of these sheathlike skeletons. They probably think that man, for instance, is silly to put his tender flesh on the outside to get scratched and his hard bones inside out of harm's way.

Here's the New Treatment for Constipation

So successful it is guaranteed to break habit in 5 days or money back

You needn't worry about constipation and its evil effects any more—there's an easy, safe way now to overcome it.

Just get a bottle of McKenzie's Antiseptic Mineral Oil from your druggist. It's guaranteed to break the constipation habit in 5 days or cost you nothing.

Thousands have tried this harmless internal purifier and lubricant, and are loud in its praises as a sure help for intestinal poisons, mucous colitis, auto-intoxication and similar ills.

There's nothing like McKenzie's for inducing regular habits and bringing back health. Just try it. Doctors recommend it especially for children and old folks.

Floor sample Furniture, 1/3 off

This is a sale of every piece of furniture in our furniture department—our own floor samples—and we have priced them one-third less than our regular prices. Original tags are on every article—you make the price reduction at the time of purchase. If you need furniture, now is the time to buy it and save one-third. Easy payments if you wish. Third floor.

Sale of Fringe

A manufacturer's accumulation of loom lengths of 5 to 20 yards of fringe at less than cost of material. Desirable for lamp shades, curtains, draperies, bed spreads, etc. Women who have taken note of the regular prices of fringe will marvel at the extremely low prices of the fringe in this sale. First floor.

Sale of Hosiery

We bought two special lots—7,800 pairs—of perfect quality hose from one of the largest wholesalers in the country. These two lots were a lost shipment, returned to the wholesaler just before inventory, and sold to us for spot cash at less than cost to manufacture. Two lots are women's cashmerette hose at 25c pair, and misses' lisle hose at 12½c pair. First floor.

Sale of Women's Wool Sweaters

A recent New York purchase of fine silk mohair and brushed wool sweaters in Chappie coat and Bobby coat styles. The low price is unusual, considering quality, variety and desirability of these sweaters. Special at 3.65. Second floor.

January Sale of sample blankets

We purchased these blankets from a large jobbing house at very low prices that enable us to mark them decidedly below regular. They are show room and traveling men's samples, some slightly soiled from display. If you need blankets this is an excellent opportunity to secure them at substantial money-saving prices. Third floor.

Washington Bootery sale of shoes

Not in many weeks has a shoe sale aroused such keen interest as this one. It is a spot cash purchase of the entire stocks of the Washington Bootery two stores. If you want to buy good shoes at a low price, here is your opportunity. We're selling these shoes, for all the family, at half and less than half price. First floor.

Reduced prices on women's Dresses

We have taken 1,200 smart dresses from our regular higher priced stocks and reduced them in order to effect an immediate clearaway. Smart, becoming styles for street, for afternoon and evening—made of the choicest materials and trimmings, in all the wanted shades. Three groups, in styles and sizes for misses, women and stouts. A splendid opportunity to buy a lovely dress at a very low price. Second floor.

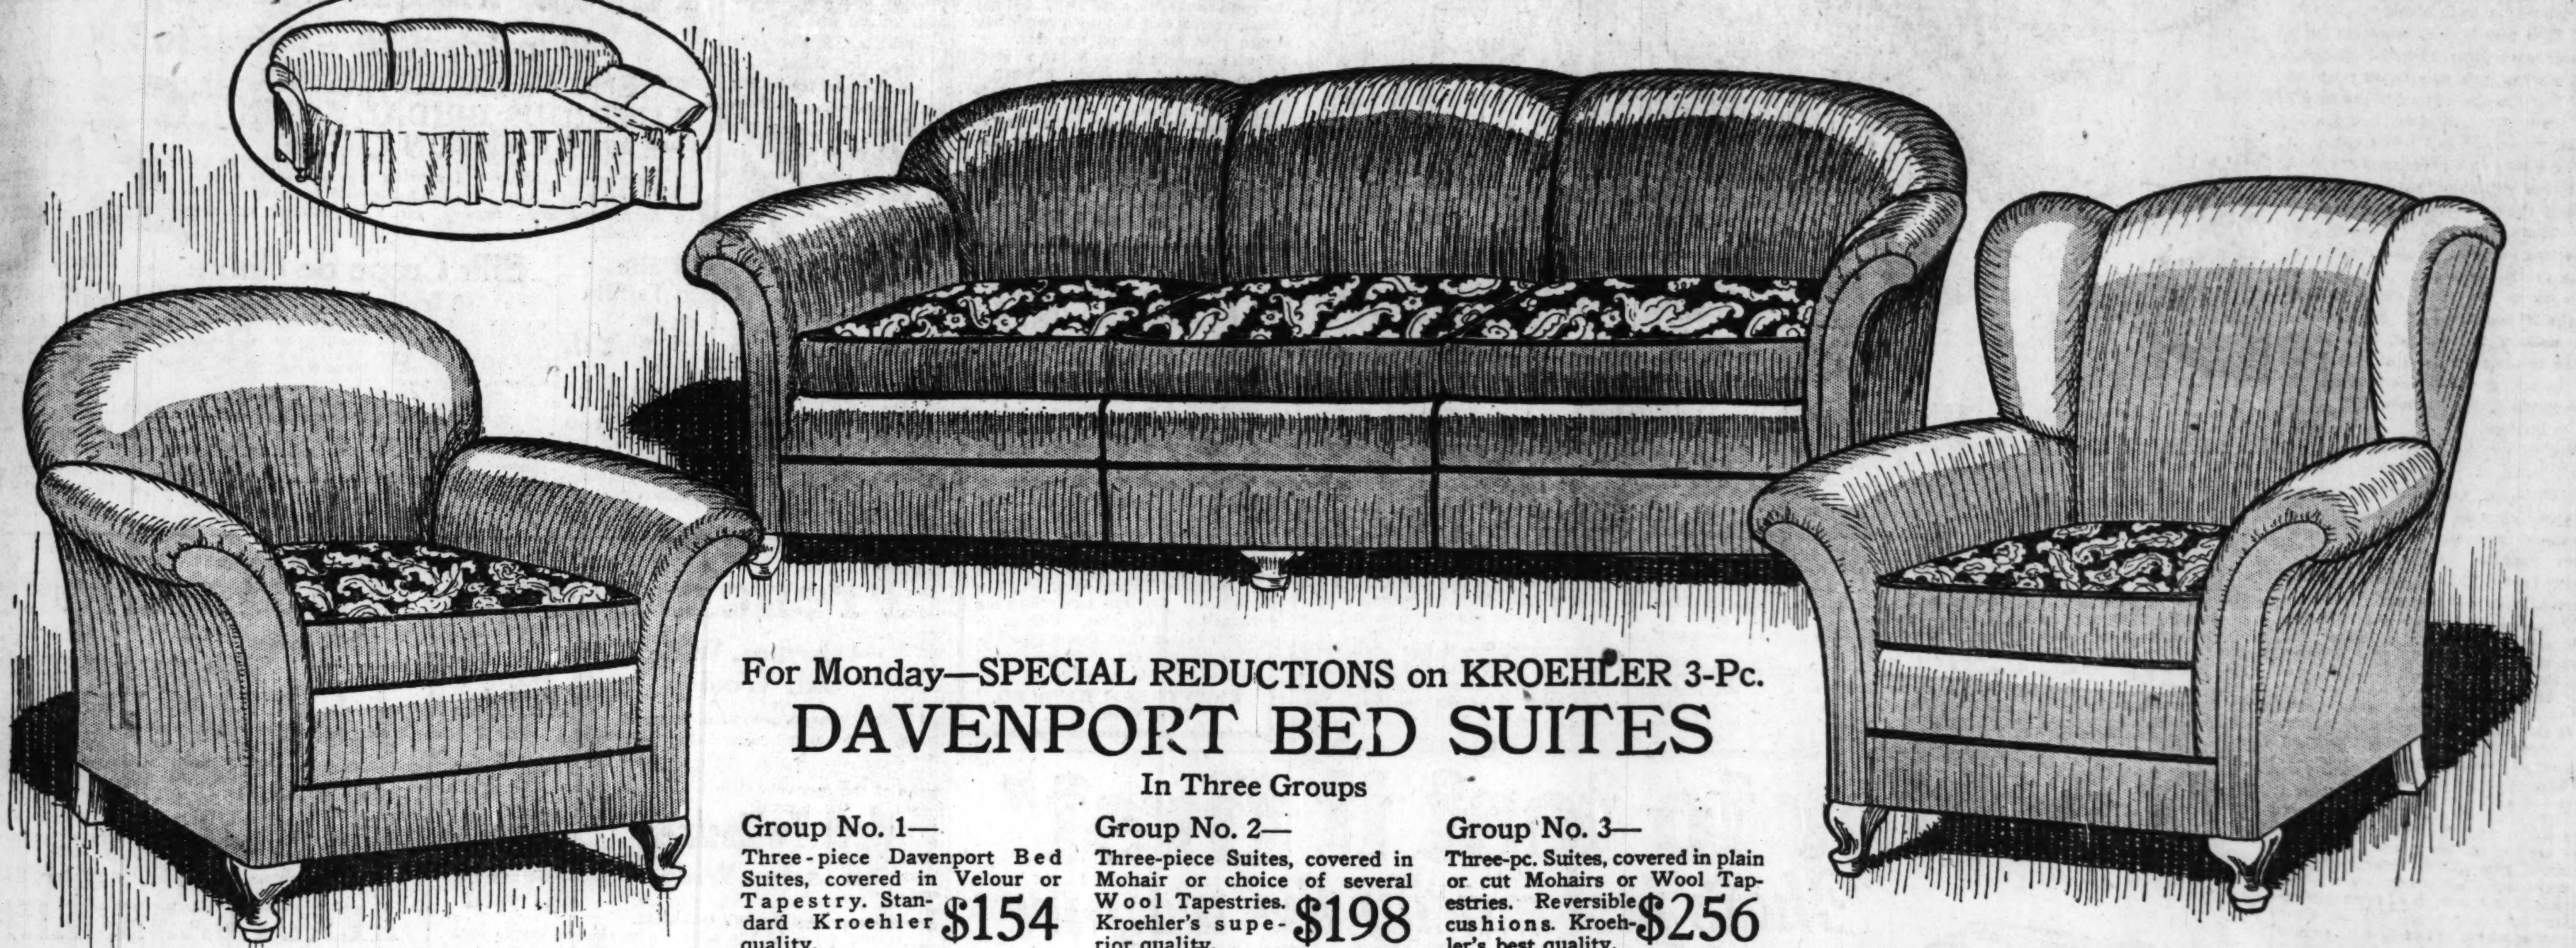
QUALITY--in Furniture is that element which endures—which gives long and satisfactory service.

Spiegel's furniture is quality furniture—carefully selected, by those who know good merchandise; it grades up to a definite standard—not "down" to a price. Quality is the first consideration, with an honestly low price to follow.

Spiegel's furniture is made to fit the needs of homes that are really "lived in"; to meet the requirements of those desiring to express good taste in their homes without extravagance.



For Monday—SPECIAL REDUCTIONS on KROEHLER 3-Pc.

DAVENPORT BED SUITES

In Three Groups

Group No. 1—
Three-piece Davenport Bed Suites, covered in Velour or Tapestry. Standard Kroehler quality. $154

Group No. 2—
Three-piece Suites, covered in Mohair or choice of several Wool Tapestries. Kroehler's superior quality. $198

Group No. 3—
Three-pc. Suites, covered in plain or cut Mohairs or Wool Tapestries. Reversible cushions. Kroehler's best quality. $256

Ludlow Royal Walnut 7-Pc. Suite

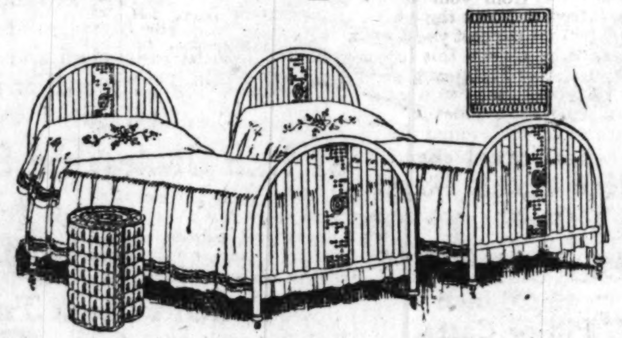
$94

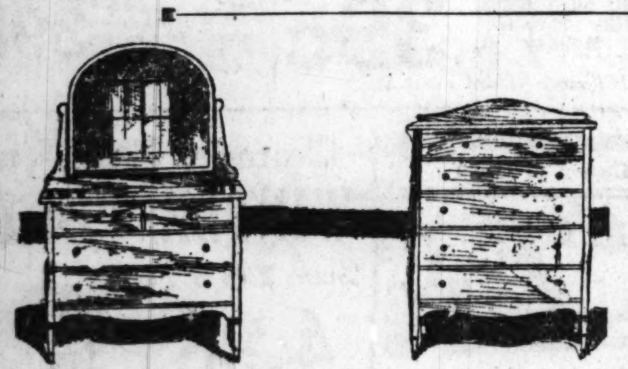
45x60-inch top table—10 leg design, finished in black and terra chrome, complete with five side chairs and one arm chair fitted with tapestry seats. A rare value.

Simmons Windsor Bed Outfit

$37

The Simmons Bed Co. acknowledge the Windsor design to be the most popular. Cane panel in head and foot ends—wood finishes—full or twin size—complete with Simmons steel spring and 45-lb. felt and cotton mattress.





Dresser and Chest

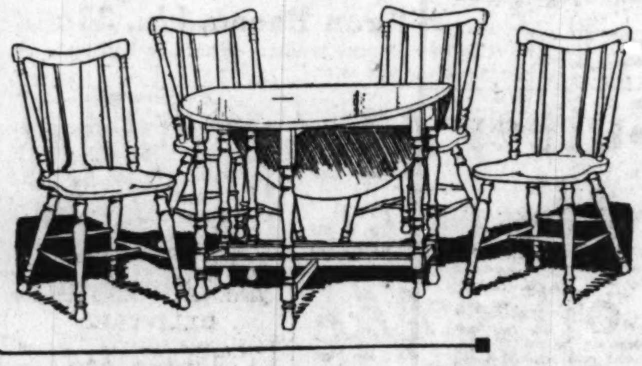
Dresser, $29.75
Chest, $19.85

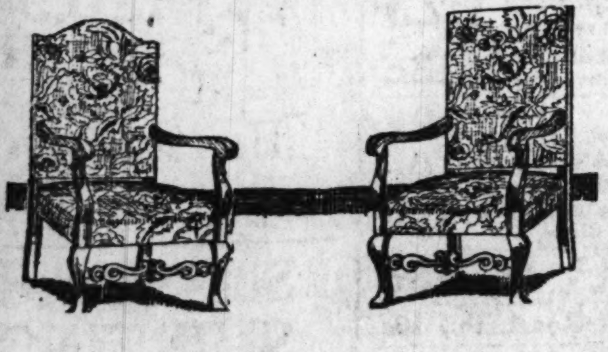
Walnut finish—plate glass mirror on dresser—durably built chest. A great bargain at a ridiculously low price.

Mahogany Finish Breakfast Set

$38

40x48 gate-leg table and 4 chairs, as illustrated. Table is so well finished that it can be used appropriately as an occasional table in the most beautifully furnished living room.





Your Choice of These Chairs at $39

Mahogany or walnut finished frames, carved stretcher, spring seat, covered with tapestry. These chairs are very decorative.

The Davenport Bed Suite Illustrated Is One of Group No. 2. Very Specially Priced at $198

Fronts, backs, arms and loose cushion seats are covered with Plainfield Mohair in a taupe shade and trimmed with plain velour to match. The loose cushions are spring filled.

The Davenport can be instantly converted into a full size bed, and is equipped with cable fabric steel springs which holds all bedding when closed.

Both the side and wing chairs are of liberal proportions.

This suite bears a double guarantee—Kroehler's and Spiegel's—and is indeed an unusual value at the sale price.

SMART TOGS FOR WINTER SPORTS.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—If you can dig up your old photograph album—the one you filled with pictures about twelve years back—and find that one where you and ma and Cousin Ella and Tom and Dabney went out on a winter party that included sleighing and skating, you may be surprised to find how hideously you and the family are clad. Big, colorless, bulky overcoats, velvet ear muffs that clamp on to the head like a photographer's vise, ugly caps with flaps that are supposed to keep the ears warm, and whatnot.

Compare this with the outfit you are going to invest in this year for that little Christmas vacation you plan to take up at the Lake Placid club or in the Michigan woods. It's all set—the madam has agreed, and you're going to try your hand at skiing and all the rest of the things that the college youth of the country indulges in in the winter.

And so you go with us to a great sport outfitter on Madison avenue, New York, and are mightily impressed by two things as you glance over, in a general way, the display of winter sport clothing. Color, color, color everywhere. That is the first. Absence of bulk is the second.

Of course, the heavy overcoats are still worn by the mere spectator, the man who observes from the sidelines, and the coonskin is still the most popular sport coat of that nature. But the man who takes part in the sport, be it skating, skiing, or bob sleighing, is dressed to give him the greatest amount of freedom as well as warmth.

The modern manufacturer of clothes knows it isn't the amount of clothing you pile on your back that will keep you warm, but the things you wear that keep in the body heat. Thus, for instance, you will be interested in a garment called a "windbreaker." You can get it in the form of flannel shirts in attractive colorings, such as white striped with blue or tan, or gray striped with blue or lavender. These windbreakers also come in suede leather with knit collars and cuffs in contrasting colors. These light garments do much to keep the body warm and snug. Lined with sateen, they come in silver gray, nut brown, lanvin green, navy pencil blue, praline brown, and cranberry.

You will find skating breeches that button half way down the leg and give you the greatest freedom of movement with the maximum of comfort. With these, you will doubtless select a skating sweater, with socks and cap to match, with perhaps gloves and muffler of the same design.

These matched sets are most popular this year. Most of them are in white backgrounds with some outstanding design in colors that is is repeated on every garment. You will also find you can purchase a skating sock that has a cuff attached to it, not only at the knee so as to form a neat juncture with the breeches, but also at the ankle to keep that member warm, coming down over the shoe top something in the manner of a spat.

The Fair Isle designs have spread to skating socks, and you can get them in bright blues and reds, reds and greens, bright blue and orange, and orange and purple, with mufflers and slipover sweaters to match if you so desire.

Too, you will doubtless be interested in the chamois underwear imported from Denmark, and one of the latest wrinkles in keeping warm in a cold country. This chamois, specially treated, is said to be warmer than wool, soft in its contact with the skin, easily washable, and will not get hard when wet.

Another winter mode that is spreading like wildfire is the lumberjack shirt. This I have seen in the following color combinations: Green and black, black and white, black and red, orange and black, all in checks or plaids, or solid reds or greens, some having knitted bottoms and cuffs for additional warmth.

It is, however, only modeled after the lumberjack shirts, as the real ones, sold in the north country, are extremely heavy. The fashionable lumberjack shirt of today is usually worn over another garment, a white shirt perhaps. No tie is worn with the overshirt.

You will also find on sale combination mackinaws and lumbermen's shirts, in all colors and plaids, and leather and flannel combinations, with perhaps flannel fronts and knitted bottoms and fronts; in short, everything possible to keep you warm, allow freedom of movement for whatever sport you are going to indulge in, and allow you a touch of color besides.

Ski jumpers will find close fitting two piece suits with full length trousers which are fastened at the bottom over their shoes with garters in two or more colors. This keeps in the heat and keeps out the snow, when the jumper spills into a bank. Leggings for ski runners are also available.

Gloves and hats of all colors and description are at your disposal. You can buy knitted gloves with soft, white fleece lining, or a fur lined kid glove that is really a two in one, as it has a mitt attachment. For skaters, tobogganers, and skiers, the long gauntlets are the most desirable, as the cuff coming well up the arm keeps out the snow. These are mostly in wool or leather fleece or wool lined to absorb the moisture.

Skating caps generally come to match socks or muffler, and are made in gay colors, either on the order of the regular stocking cap, with the gay tassel, or the cuff hat with some bold design running around the cuff.

I also saw for sale in this store Scotch tam o' shanters of bright Scotch plaids that will brighten up a winter outfit considerably.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

FAREWELL.

MY Dear Wife: Today I know my time is short, and I am writing my last message to you.

God has been good to give you to me, and, although three score years have passed since we were pronounced man and wife, never once have I been sorry. I smile when I think of our elders' saying we were too young—mere children—it would never last.

We were young, but you, my dear, were always sensible and older than your years. You were only 18 when our Jim was born and Jane came at 20. I must confess to a jealousy that they took so much of your time from me when babies, but, now that I must leave you for a while, I am glad to leave you with them.

It is God's will that I go. I am glad I have worked for him. Do not grieve, for I know we will meet in heaven. I must close now, as nurse says the exertion is too much. Death has parted us, my darling. Good-by.

JOHN.

SUFFERING FROM FEVERISH COLD?

If the children are feverish, fretful from a head cold or catarrh, with nostrils clogged and head all stuffed up, just apply a little pure, antiseptic cream into the nostril. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membrane and they obtain instant relief.

Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Nothing clears the head so quickly. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath will be gone. This is so much better than drugging children that every mother should use Ely's Cream Balm.

9 Outstanding Maytag Features

1.—Washes faster. The Gyrafoam Principle creates a more highly energized, turbulent and continuously effective water action. No idle water.

2.—Washes cleaner. The Gyrafoam Principle mixes the soap evenly through the water, and forces the super-cleansing, soapier washing solution through the meshes of the clothes. No idle suds.

3.—Largest hourly capacity in world—50 lbs. ordinary family wash per hour.

4.—Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.

5.—Cast aluminum tub—can't warp, rust, rot, swell, split nor corrode.

6.—Easily adjusted to your height, and height of tubs.

7.—Clothes can be put in or taken out while washer is running.

8.—Tub cleans itself in 30 seconds.

9.—Metal swinging wringer. Low. Swings into 7 positions. Adjusts itself automatically for handkerchiefs or blankets. Automatic drainboard. Instant tension release. All parts enclosed.

9 Reasons For World Leadership

For homes without electricity the Maytag Gyrafoam is available with Multi-Motor* attachment.

*The famous Maytag Gasoline Motor.

WE make strong claims for the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer. It's hard not to.

Still, when we hear what women say who are using the Maytag, we feel that our claims are decidedly conservative.

But, we don't ask you to buy the Maytag because of the good things that are said about it. Rather you wouldn't — we would prefer to have you appraise its advantages by testing the washer right in your own home.

Call the Maytag dealer. Have him bring you a Maytag. Wash with it.

Wash anything and everything from a filmy, sheer georgette to greasy, grit-impacted overalls—you'll find a revelation in washing principles—the discovery of the decade!

—the washer which in two short years has leaped into indisputable world leadership.

Don't delay trying it.

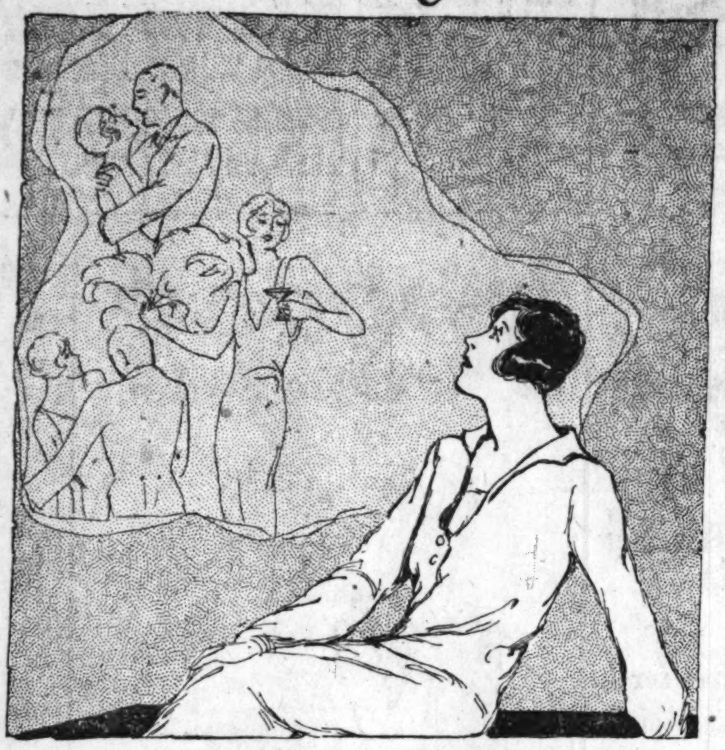
Ghosts of the Past

by DORIS BLAKE

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright: 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.

They Won't Haunt You if You Fill Your Life With Wholesome Work and Interests.



IT isn't often youth asks itself serious questions. Youth is too absorbed in the joy and the pain of experiencing. But a girl has written asking a real question, one which she has been asking herself for some time and which she doesn't seem to know how to answer.

"I am a girl, 24, engaged to be married I am deeply in love with the man There is no question in my mind as far as he is concerned He knows me and wants me, as I know him and want him.

"But there is something else. I have been pretty wild in my life, and I can't help wondering if, all things considered, I am fit to be a mother. My ideas about being a mother are old fashioned, but I have them just the same.

"Beginning in my college days, I did about as I wanted to. I flirted and smoked and even drank some. I was expelled from college in my third year. I didn't have any scruples in making a man think I cared a lot about him when all I wanted was a good time.

"After I left college I went into advertising. A married man left his family and was divorced on my account, but I didn't marry him. I didn't want to at any time. But it was my disgust with myself over that affair more than anything else which waked me up.

"This man I am engaged to I really love. I know it, for my feeling is so different from that which I have had for any other man. He hasn't money, nor can he give me what I have always expected from other men, but I'd marry him if I had to live in a hovel.

"Still there's that question: Am I fit to be a mother? To try to bring up sons and daughters to be the sort of men and women they should be? My fiancé says what we have been doesn't matter, it's what we are; that I can give my children a better chance than I ever had. I never knew a mother or father I was adopted by an aunt when I was 4. She had money, but that was al'. She never gave me any real love or attention.

"If there is one thing I want more than anything else it is a home and family. And there's nothing I would not do to wipe out the folly of what I have done. But how can I do that?"

You can do that by becoming just the sort of woman you want your children to be. Lay all the old ghosts and stop thinking about them. They won't haunt you if you fill up your life with wholesome work and ambitious effort. As long as the man you love understands, appreciates, and wants you most of the battle is won.

Above all things, don't brood over the past. You may become a wiser, saner mother because of an understanding dearly bought, but possessed, nevertheless. You can give your children all that you have never had—home and love and protection and training, and care.

It was Horace Greeley, I think, who said, "You're bound to make mistakes, but let them be new ones, not the same old ones!"

Yes, we all make mistakes, bad ones lots of times. But it is only fools who make the same mistakes twice. You know now the pitfalls and where they lead. And through your wisdom your children may never be forced to learn as you have, through the lane of painful experience.

Along this same line a man writes a self-revealing letter, only in his case the follies of his youth rose up and threw an insurmountable barrier between himself and the girl he most wanted.

"I never was taught to consider the future and the obligations I would naturally want to assume when I became a man and wanted to marry a girl I really loved.

"I did as I pleased. That's the whole thing in a nutshell. I thought what I did was no one's business but my own. And so I went ahead and so I lived.

"I met a girl I loved finally. There is no doubting the real thing especially after you have experienced a lot of imitation affairs. She was young and innocent and she had high standards. She had lived up to them and expected the same standard governed all other worth while people.

"After we had been engaged a few months—in fact, it was only a few weeks before the date of our wedding—a woman I had known a few years before appeared. She made a lot of things public I had thought were buried forever. She was after money, didn't care a thing about me, never had. But that didn't make any difference in the eyes of the girl I was engaged to.

"She was horrified and broken hearted. She broke our engagement, refused to marry me or have anything to do with me.

"She married later. So did I. But I don't think in either case we cared as overwhelmingly or as completely for the one we married. I have seen her only once in all the years since. And both of us realized that for our own sakes and for the sakes of our families we could never see each other again.

"That awakening changed the course of my life. But it was too late to win for me the woman I cared most about in all the world. I have growing boys now, and there is one lesson I shall try to implant deeply in their hearts: To live as decently as possible so that, when the one girl comes along—and there always is one girl above all the others in every man's life—there'll be no sordid past rising up to separate them—perhaps forever!

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

> I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me, and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.
> When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

FUN FOR POOR CHILDREN.

THE joy of winter is in winter sports. When we can skate and go coasting January and February change from months of cold and hardship into months of robust outdoor exercise that gives red cheeks, glowing health, and new vigor for everything.

This gives us our chance to do a world of good without trouble or expense. We know, of course, that poor children face winter without the means for enjoying it. To them it is a season of hardship and sickness only, to be lived through as best they can—unless we give them the means to take advantage of all its health giving sports. And we can do so easily if we'll only think of it!

Christmas has come and brought its harvest of new skates, new sleds, and new clothing for the children. And, meantime, the old articles are lying around—outgrown, discarded by our own little ones, but still able to provide a world of fun for poor children who need all the outdoor exercise they can get. Why not get these articles together, and give them an entire new life of usefulness, serving children who will have nothing except as we think of them?

Warm clothing in particular is needed—and certainly we have plenty of that. Mittens, mufflers, caps—these are discarded everywhere by growing children while there's still lots of wear left in them. The same is true of clothing and shoes. Almost every one of us can help. And we will, I know, when we realize how much good we can do!

In Great Need.

"We have so many wants that it seems hard not to ask for all of them and wrong to ask so many of them. Miss Brown, I wonder if some one has a baby bed or crib for my baby, 3 months old, who has the rickets? I should be glad to get one, and also some warm bedding and winter clothing for the other children, boys 7 and 2 years old, who need winter coats and everything to wear. MRS. M. F."

How much happiness a few of your discarded clothes or blankets would bring here! Send them to this woman if you can. And has some one the crib which is so badly needed for the baby?

Offers Cushion Shoe.

"I have, for a one legged man, one Dr. Reed cushion shoe (high laced), size 7½C, for the right foot. I will be glad to mail it to anyone in need of it. MRS. W. E. W."

Please write in to us at once if you are in need of this shoe for the right foot.

Needs Electric Massage.

"I am writing to you with the hope that I may find an electric massager no longer in use, for a crippled friend of mine. She was hurt by an automobile two years ago, and has been operated on twice. The doctors say she will walk again, but it will take a long time, and unless she receives proper care her legs will remain stiff. She is only 28, and it would be a terrible thing for her to be a total invalid all her life. The messager will help so much, if there is one given her.

"MRS. G. R."

Can some one provide the massager that woud restore the invalid's health? The writer is doing all she can for her friend, but cannot afford to buy one. They will be glad to return it later.

Wanted—a Pet.

"I wonder if there is a reader of your column who has a parrot or canary, which he or she is no longer able to keep? My wife has long wished for one, but there are so many necessities to provide that our income cannot possibly stretch far enough to buy any of the luxuries. We should be glad to call anywhere for the bird, should some one have one to give.

"MR. E. E."

Have you a canary or parrot to pass on.

The HOME HARMONIOUS

AFTER THE FRENCH CHATEAU STYLE.

THE problem of adapting a home to its environment, or of creating a design suitable for the lot on which the home is to be built, is often overlooked by home builders in their enthusiasm of planning, but is, however, given much study and thought by architects.

A house fashioned after a Swiss chalet, for instance, is appropriate only for certain wooded locations overlooking a ravine, and the small bungalows of California and houses designed after the old Spanish missions are distinctly out of place on a closely built up city street in New York or Chicago. A narrow city lot demands a house entirely inappropriate for a wide suburban lot.

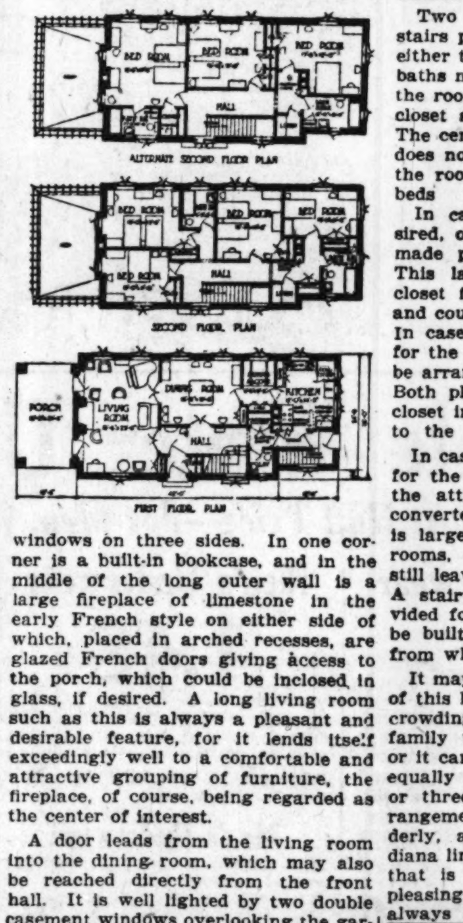
Here we have a house that is planned primarily for a shallow lot, preferably 100 feet wide, where it could be placed fairly close to the sidewalk without loss of privacy and could have an attractively laid out garden in the rear. Or it could easily be built on a narrower lot since it has a frontage, including the porch, of 67 feet. Or if desired, it could be placed lengthwise on a 50 foot lot in some of the more closely built-up residential sections of a city, but would, of course, not appear to such good advantage.

It is semi-formal in appearance, suitable for a suburban locality where houses of this character predominate. It is constructed of rough sawn Indiana limestone, preferably of the variegated variety, in which there is a delightful play of color tones, of soft grays and buffs, that give life and interest to the walls. This form of stone faced wall construction is coming into favor more and more for houses of this size, since it is not exorbitant in price for the average American family of moderate means and has many advantages over less durable materials.

The limestone blocks are of varying lengths but are laid up in courses of even height. The only cut stone work is that in the main entrance feature and the window sills and lintels. The cornice and molded pier caps are of wood. These, together with the window frames, sashes, and doors, should be painted a light gray, buff, or ivory to harmonize with the stone, and the roof would be effective of green slate, or red brown or dull green shingle tile. The French casement windows and the wrought iron baluster at the long transomed window in the front of the house are interesting features. There is no back porch, so the house has a good appearance from all angles.

It may be entered through the side or automobile, entrance, which opens into a narrow back hall leading to the front hall. The kitchen is to the left, and to the right are the stairs to the cellar, which extends under the entire house with the exception of the porch. The front entrance to the house leads through a small vestibule, with coat closet adjoining, into the front hall, which runs crosswise of the house. An open stair with the long French casement window at the landing rises against the outside wall and is an attractive feature of the hall. A short passageway connects the front and back halls, off which there is a good sized closet for coats or general utility purposes, on one side, and a lavatory on the other.

The large living room, which measures 15 feet 6 inches by 23 feet 6 inches, is at the opposite end of the hall from the side entrance. It extends the depth of the house, giving views both front and back, and is well lighted by windows on three sides. In one corner is a built-in bookcase, and in the middle of the long outer wall is a large fireplace of limestone in the early French style on either side of which, placed in arched recesses, are glazed French doors giving access to the porch, which could be inclosed in glass, if desired. A long living room such as this is always a pleasant and desirable feature, for it lends itself exceedingly well to a comfortable and attractive grouping of furniture, the fireplace, of course, being regarded as the center of interest.



ALTERNATE SECOND FLOOR PLAN

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

A door leads from the living room into the dining room, which may also be reached directly from the front hall. It is well lighted by two double casement windows overlooking the garden in the rear and has a china cabinet in one corner. If the house is lived in by a family with no servants this room would need to be used only for more formal occasions, for there is a small dining alcove between the dining room and kitchen, which the housewife who is unassisted would find more convenient for general use. In case there are servants this latter space could be utilized as a servants' dining room or as a butler's pantry, as it is fitted with a large case for dishes.

and arranged. It is open to the dining room through the dining alcove, is only a few steps from the side entrance and cellar stairs, and may be easily reached from the front hall and stairway. It is well lighted from two sides, there being windows beside the kitchen cabinet and over the sink, which latter is equipped with double drain boards. There is a cold closet in one corner, and space for a refrigerator, gas range, case for dishes, and an ironing board in a wall cabinet. Outside the kitchen door, in the rear hall, is a small broom closet and a clothes chute to the laundry.

Two alternative plans of the upstairs portion of the house show how either three or four bedrooms and two baths may be provided. In either case, the rooms are good sized, have ample closet space, and are light and airy. The center room is the only one which does not have two exposures. Two of the rooms are large enough for twin beds

In case only three rooms are desired, one of the bathrooms could be made private to the main bedroom. This latter has an unusually large closet fitted with a case of drawers, and could be used as a dressing room. In case a fourth bedroom is wanted, for the use of a maid, one bath could be arranged for this room exclusively. Both plans provide for a large linen closet in the hall and a clothes chute to the laundry.

In case all four bedrooms are needed for the use of the immediate family, the attic could be finished off and converted into servants' quarters. It is large enough to provide two bedrooms, or a bedroom and bath, and still leave space for storage purposes. A stairway to the attic is not provided for in the plans, but one could be built over the main stair starting from where the linen closet is shown.

It may easily be seen that the plans of this house can be adapted, without crowding, to the needs of a good sized family where servants are required, or it can, on the other hand, be made equally desirable for a family of two or three with no servants. The arrangement of its rooms is simple, orderly, and convenient. Built of Indiana limestone, it will provide a home that is substantial in structure and pleasing in appearance, and that will always have a high sales value.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Rub Chest Colds Away; Stop Pains

Pain and congestion is gone. Quickly?—Yes. Almost instant relief from chest colds, sore throat, backache, lumbago follows a gentle rubbing with St. Jacobs Oil.

Rub this soothing, penetrating oil right on your chest and like magic relief comes. St. Jacobs Oil is a harmless liniment which quickly breaks chest colds, soothes the inflammation of sore throat and breaks up the congestion that causes pain. It never disappoints and does not burn the skin.

Get a 35 cent bottle of St. Jacobs Oil at any drug store. It has been recommended for 65 years.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth Chemical Co., New York.

RED PEPPER HEAT ENDS CHEST COLD

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known. Always say "Rowles."

Stiff Joints Now Limbered Up By New Oil Formula

Remarkable New Discovery Gives Quick, Soothing Relief for Creaky, Swollen, Painful Joints

German chemistry that has given to the world aspirin for headache pain and novocaine for painless dentristry has now come forward with another discovery that makes enlarged, swollen, pain-racked joints a thing of the past.

A combination of certain oils, known as Buhler Oil, has been discovered, which is simply rubbed on and disappears in a few seconds, showing how quickly it penetrates and is absorbed by the tissues. Even in the most severe and stubborn cases, almost instant relief has been obtained.

Swollen, painful and distorted stiff joints, whether it be in the ankle, knee, thigh, shoulder, neck, wrist, elbow or fingers of your hand, are due to some infection which has involved the tissue lining of the joints. This, in most instances, can be traced to internal poisons, such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth or a diseased tonsil giving off poisons, which are carried in the blood to the joints thereby setting up an infection of the delicate membrane lining the joints and causing the joints to become enlarged, swollen, creaky and extremely painful. Buhler Oil, when applied to the affected joints, is readily absorbed by the tissues and penetrates quickly to the aching joint, neutralizing the pain-causing poisons in much the same way as Milk of Magnesia neutralizes an acid stomach, giving instant relief.

Get a bottle of Buhler Oil today and try a few applications in one evening. It gives quick results because it is instantly absorbed and contains a special ingredient which at once penetrates to the poison infected membrane in the pain-causing swollen joint. Your druggist has it and we guarantee it to help you or it costs you nothing.

GOOD morning!

Please bear in mind the fact that the above list does not by any means include all good pictures of 1924. No. The ones listed are merely those that made the deepest impression upon me; the ones that, considered from every viewpoint, seem most worthy to have blue ribbons pinned on them.

BETTY BRONSON in the title rôle of "Peter Pan."

PETER PAN was James M. Barrie's exquisite fantasy, exquisitely screened, with little Betty Bronson disporting like a breeze in the rôle of Maude Adams.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN was the engrossing life study, brought to the screen, of a great and simple man. Though a fascinating film drama, truth was never sacrificed to fiction nor to a director's love of effect. A big, beautiful, honest, gripping production.

* *

THE CLEAN HEART—the adaptation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel by the same name—was a surprise. The picture came practically unheralded, and there it was, one of the banner program productions of the year, with Percy Marmont, Otis Harlan, and Marguerite de la Motte doing work that will not be forgotten by those who witnessed it.

* *

CLASSMATES—Richard Barthelmess in one of the most sympathetic rôles he has ever had. The picture was made from the play, which was founded on certain incidents that occurred at West Point many years ago. A splendid, clean, virile photoplay.

* *

THE IRON HORSE you'll remember as long as you live, if you saw it. There you had the vivid, storied past of railroad building. "A great picture," I said, and I stick to it.

CAPTAIN BLOOD took you out on the bounding main—and didn't you just have the time of your life! It was from the story by Sabatini, and abounded in buccaneers, blood, politics, fair ladies—and LOTS of water.

* *

SECRETS was a lovely thing! Norma Talmadge played the lead, and you saw a real woman living a real life from the cradle to—the grave, almost. Here was romance, action, suspense, heart throbs, and beauty.

* *

MERTON OF THE MOVIES—the funny-sad tale of a movie mad lad who took himself, O, so seriously, and went

CUPID TAKES FRESH AIM AT HOLLYWOOD

By Grace Kingsley.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—A bunch of new engagements is rumored in good or at least pretty good—old Hollywood. Patsy Ruth Miller's name really ought to be Patsy Ruth Millionaire, for she simply must have one on her staff. She used to go about with young Mays, heir to the department store millions. But now she steps out almost nightly with Harry Crocker, son of the millionaire Crocker of San Francisco, and young Mays looks disconsolate.

PATSY RUTH MILLER, always in the company of young millionaires.

It seems Patsy saw young Crocker in "The Whole Town's Talking," at the Playhouse in Los Angeles, where the scion of wealth was making his debut on the stage, and she wanted to be introduced to him. Which does reverse the usual order of things, doesn't it? But, of course, Patsy went at it smoothly. Naturally, somebody took young Crocker to a café where Patsy was to shine that night, and naturally Crocker asked to be introduced to Patsy. Young Crocker seems much devoted, and Patsy looked lovely the other evening dressed in demure white. Neither will admit the engagement, but both blush and stammer when you ask about it.

Charlie Christie, of the Christie Comedies, is all devotion to Ida Stallings, an English dancer, and it is rumored that the two will marry soon. Christie has just bought a beautiful piece of ground in Beverly Hills, where he expects to build. However, he is devoted to his mother and sister, so it is possible his wedding may be postponed.

John Bowers and Marguerite de la Motte aren't denying to anybody that they are going to be married ere long.

I met Seena Owen at a New Year's-eve party, and she admitted with a radiant smile that she was engaged to somebody but wouldn't tell to whom. Inasmuch as Seena always has a bunch of beaux, it is hard to imagine which one she has favored. She looked radiantly lovely in a white evening gown of chiffon, trimmed with bands of ostrich, and carrying a white ostrich fan.

Staying Up to Greet 1925.

Marion Davies was a busy young woman on New Year's eve. She entertained a number of friends at her Ambassador apartments, including Charlie Chaplin. In fact, these two hailed the New Year together. Miss Davies was fair to see in a poudre blue chiffon over blue silk, with her blonde hair done simply without ornament.

Pola Negri spent the eve quietly and got a wireless message from Rod La Rocque. It is rumored Pola is going abroad. She has been saying she was going for the last six months, but I guess it is true this time. I don't think she will trust Rod alone in Paris. In the meantime, she has made Priscilla Dean's southern mansion over into an Italian villa—that is, as much as a southern mansion can be made over into an Italian villa, which is like saying that you have made a champagne cocktail out of root beer. However, she has managed to make the place look nice.

But to get back to the New Year party. The milkmen certainly met a lot of famous people on New Year's morning. Just everybody in the world was at the Ambassador

Stravinsky Comes for Busy Season

By Edward Moore.

IGOR STRAVINSKY has landed in New York, to engage in what looks like a stirring and industrious vacation. During the week just finished he has been the guest-conductor of the Philharmonic orchestra. The fact that Adolph Bolm will go to the Metropolitan in March to stage "Petrouchka" and dance the principal part therein will also interest him. But most importanct to Chicago is his coming here. He will be the visiting conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra Feb. 20 and 21.

LOUISE HOMER as Delilah in "Samson and and Delilah," tomorrow night.

The chances are that he will see a good part of America before he leaves, at least of that part of it which maintains symphony orchestras. For he is perhaps the most important figure in latter day music, and, while you will not find many who admit a whole hearted fondness for what he writes, he seldom fails to fascinate them and make them talk about it, one definite step in the direction of popularity.

They like their modernism served strong in New York. His first concert, played last Thursday, included his arrangement of the "Song of the Volga Boatmen," his "Scherzo Fantastique," and suites from "The Fire Bird," "Polcinella," and "Petrouchka." Last night's concert was announced to repeat the "Scherzo Fantastique" and add "Fireworks," "The Song of the Nightingale," and "The Rite of Spring."

Appearances Here Few and Far Between

Here in Chicago there has not been such an opportunity to hear his music at length. Mr. Stock first conducted "Fireworks" as much as ten years ago. Since then he has introduced the suite from "The Fire Bird," which he admits loses a little through being divorced from its ballet surroundings, and this season he conducted "The Rites of Spring" from a score that contained the penciled hints and suggestions of at least half a dozen other conductors.

There was a season, all too brief, some years ago, when Serge de Diaghileff's Ballet Russe came to the Auditorium and disclosed the glories of "The Fire Bird" and "Petrouchka" in all their gorgeous music and staging. Unfortunately that event does not seem likely to happen again. But only two weeks ago Mina Hager sang a group of his songs in the program of the Allied Arts, and they stimulated the ear with their sprightly if acid humor.

He's Different, at Least.

Undoubtedly his assignment here will be, like those with other orchestras, his own interprretations of his own works. He is far and away the most interesting of those who compound modern dissonances. It is by no means to the point to discuss whether he is greater than his predecessors in the art of composition, or only different. The other day a clipping came to this desk holding that Beethoven could in

HERE'S THE LATEST IN PROTEST PLAYS

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The newest of the protest plays that sound a little like propaganda for the young and growing generation is one called "Mrs. Partridge Presents," written by two young women, Mary Kennedy, who is an actress and likewise the wife of Deems Taylor, music critic of The World, and Ruth Hawthorne, who is, I assume, a friend of Mary's.

BLANCHE BATES Playing the mother in "Mrs. Partridge Presents." [White Photo.]

It is a bright little play and intelligently reasoned. Fathers and mothers are all right and mean well, the authors admit. But they should not be too dictatorial. What right, for instance, have they figuratively to force their growing children to sign a one sided contract before they are old enough to know what it is all about, and then work for eighteen or nineteen years to make them live up to it?

Mrs. Partridge, in this play, wanted a career when she was a girl. She wanted to express herself. She wanted to dream. But she married at 17, and was never happy again.

Her husband was good; he was prosperous, and heaven knows he was respectable—clear back to the revolution. But he was humdrum, and he did not know any more about the inner urge than he did about the Hindoos.

Mrs. Partridge bore him two children in six years, and then he accommodatingly died. For the first time in her life his widow was free, and she then and there swore that her children should be free, if she had to shackle them to something while she told them how.

Her girl should be an actress—not because she wanted to or had any talent, but because mother said so. Her boy should be an artist—when the only thing he wanted to draw was designs for bridges and things.

For nineteen years mother controlled the children absolutely. Then they struck and, after three acts of stage life, won their freedom and left her weepy and a little distraught.

A nice play for nice people. But not one that will command a wide popularity, I'm thinking. Blanche Bates is a convincing mother, Ruth Gordon scores as a dumb Dora, and Sylvia Field plays the heroine attractively.

Twenty-two Plays a Month.

There were, taking them as they came from last August to this January, 112 new plays produced in New York. I have mentioned that fact to several persons who take a casual if not a deep interest in the theater, and they have all suffered the same reaction.

"My gosh," they say, "how many of them are left?"

Which is human. Success is interesting, but also a little depressing. And never quite as exciting as failure. Play reviewers are the only men I know who, outside those personally and financially interested in the venture, really pray for success in the theater. And they pray because they get so terribly tired of writing about failures and half failures that they want a change. They hunger for a chance to scatter superlatives of praise.

But this interest in failure goes deeper that that. If I were

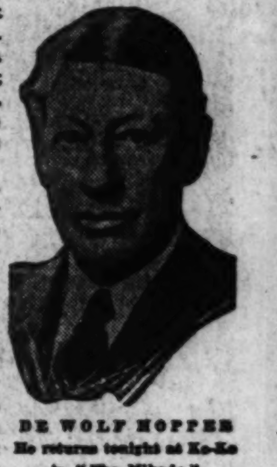
Lines Meant to Laud a Good Native Play

By Frederick Donaghey.

ASKED, as I am daily, if I think there is essential conflict between "The Show-Off" and "Applesauce," I reply that there isn't. There isn't. . . . That the author of the latter piece went to work on it as a reaction to George Kelly's good comedy is one of the season's tales among persons of the theater; and it may be true: only the author can say with certitude. And it really doesn't matter. Thanks mostly to Mr. Dinehart, "Applesauce" is a solvent and a successful emprise; while, thanks wholly to Mr. Kelly, "The Show-Off" seems to be "set" for a run in Cohan's Grand. . . .



DE WOLF HOPPER He returns tonight at Ko-Ko in "The Mikado"

Kelly's is, as I have said, a good comedy in kind: an apt, persuasive, warm translation into drama of everyday life in a commonplace, humble, decent household. It is more nearly on the level than any of the many others in recent seasons, and an uncommon emulsion of sincerity and shrewd showmanship. . . . Playgoing readers of my report on the piece in THE TRIBUNE of the 5th write in to tell me that I probably didn't know that "The Show-Off" was amplified from a little comedy acted in the two-a-day. Oddly, I did know; and I am unable to discern what that has to do with it. For all I care or that you need to care, the play might have been written on the basis of a comic ditty, a cross-word puzzle, or a phial of the deadly neutrodyne. All that matters is that "The Show-Off" is a play so much better than most plays that I am able to urge you to see it with less fear that you may not care for it than is usually the case when I write about something I like.

——— on This Picture and on That.

Aubrey Piper, in Mr. Kelly's piece, differs from the fellow in "Applesauce" in that he is a disintegrating and a deranging influence in a well-ordered, sane, and human little family: the other chap is a beneficent intruder in an untidy and a mean household, which he helps to laughter and a tolerant outlook by serving as a wholesome irritant. An audience in the La Salle laughs with and for him: in Cohan's, the laughter is at and against the Show-Off, a minor and a shallow Falstaff of the offices, the workshops, and the here-and-there of everyday existence. Not only is your reaction to him that of wishing to see him fail: it is also that you don't believe he could succeed with the best of chances. You are sorry for Mother Fisher and her brood when, as Mr. Kelly prepares to drop the curtain, Aubrey insinuates himself into undeserved ease and affluence; and your laughter for him when he is most absurd is the laughter of derision. You grow in sympathy with the Fishers and the Hylands as he flaunts each cheap and gaudy insolence, and wish that Amy, his loyal wife, would drop him. . .

And this is not at all to compare the plays, themselves: "The Show-Off" is pretty much what Mr. Kelly calls it, a transcript of life; and "Applesauce" is a piece put together

On September 17, 1919, ASHTON STEVENS wrote concerning ADA-MAY:

"I don't know when or where I have ever seen another girl in a music show who has so many ways of getting herself liked."

FIVE YEARS LATER ADA-MAY returned to Chicago and conquered the town, bearing out Mr. Stevens' thoughts. On this visit Mr. Stevens wrote:

"Ada-May sings like nobody else in the theatre. Her voice is as sweet as the product of the bee and as true as a lover's oath ought to be."

THE SHOW-OFF

by GEORGE KELLY

The Country's Most Celebrated Critics declare it is the Best of all American Comedies

"It is good; I beg of you to see 'The Show-Off.'" —Frederick Donaghey, Tribune

"I love it; it catches me in the funnybone and in the heart." —Ashton Stevens, Herald and Examiner

"It recalled the triumphs of immortals long dead. You laugh till you cry. Acting is superb." —C. J. Bulliet, Evening Post

"More laughter has not been heard all season." —Paul Martin, Journal of Commerce

"We stood up to cheer and applaud its last climax. A play America can be proud of." —Amy Leslie, News

"The play's a good laugh. The audience hated to leave." —Fred McQuigg, Evening American

"A play of quality. Night was noisy with prolonged demonstrations of approval. —O. L. Hall, Journal from this and from that, and made effective in the performing by Mr. Dinehart's knowledge of what to do and by his seasoned associates of the cast.

And, as I said in Monday's review, the acting of "The Show-Off" is about as good as acting may be in the terms of this ingratiating little play. The performance is a better one than I saw in New-York: better in every part, including Piper, although Louis John Bartels is now a celebrity because of his way in the rôle there, and I'm asked by hesitant ticket-buyers if Mr. Walburn, who has it in Chicago, is any good in it. He is. He is, for one thing, not preposterous; and Mr. Bartels is. For all of Mr. Kelly's keen observation and his fidelity to a well-known type in the writing, the New-York actor is excessive, and makes of Piper a thing of the stage. Piper, as I saw Mr. Walburn play the part, would be a recognizable and a credible pest in the local room of THE TRIBUNE, in a haberdashery, on a railway-train, in a theater box-office, or where you will. . . . What there is to say in fault-finding with his impersonation is that it is now-and-again too casual: the Awful Audreys and the Listen Lesters whom mistaken democracy compels us to tolerate do not falter, even when they vaguely feel that a foot is slipping. . . .

All the parts are played as they should be played. Where the cast betters the New-York showing is that the players go into and after the scenes, and put a vitality into their acting that is not in the performance by the original cast. The grim squirts of a righteous bile in Miss Blandick's impersonation of Mrs. Fisher are just what the part asks for; and this homely little mother of hers is perfect, like Miss Grey's in "The Goose Hangs High" and Miss Crummette's in "Applesauce." . . .

And, so, again I urge you to see "The Show-Off"!

There's Nothing Better in Kind.

"The Mikado," to be heard in Chicago after a decade (not counting some performances given in German), will be forty years old in March. I have nothing in the form of accurate data in the matter; but I feel safe in saying that no other stage-piece has been performed in this country so many times in that period as has this. I doubt that an acceptable calculation of the number of performances could be made; for authors' royalties have been paid in but a few instances by American users of the operatta, so that there is available none of the customary records. Our copyright-laws, which are to this day imperfect and dishonest, were a joke when "The Mikado" was new; and, although Gilbert and Sullivan had had previous experience with predatory American managers, they failed to observe the technical requirements, and were unable to collect their fees save from such managers as were willing to pay. . . .

Not only does the piece retain its extraordinary musical vitality: it is, in its text, as apposite and as topical and as first-pagey today as when it was written. Of course, some of the plot-fun has faded; and I fancy that Gilbert, if he had written the piece ten years later, would have made something less obvious of Katisha, who, however, has served through four decades as the model of all the battle-scarred spinsters of operetta and music-farce. . . . But Ko-Ko is eternal and everlasting; Pooh-Bah is universal as graft is universal; and the Mikado, himself, is the essential potentate of all time, caring nothing for right or for wrong so long as the formalities are observed. . . .

Some of my millions of adoring readers may recall an ante-bellum occasion when Japan, in one of her periodic swellings of self-importance, asked that performances of "The Mikado" in Great Britain be officially prohibited because the operetta was buffoonery at the expense of a proud and a sensitive nation. The British didn't tell Japan to go to Hell, but wangled out of the situation without making itself absurd by the efforts of the diplomatists to assuage the yellow man's wounds. (That Japan is lacking in a sense of humor is a good thing for Americans to keep in mind: not that we possess so much of that sense as we kid ourselves into believing.) . . . There isn't and there never has been anything Japanese about "The Mikado" save a few bars of music—those and the settings; and the latter have always been rococo. Ko-Ko, put into an office in which he may not function without self-destruction, is as Japanese as—well, as Mayor Dever, and as ingenuous as the latter when he talks of his exploits in New-York to the comic almoners of social reform. Ko-Ko is just the harmless, necessary goat of practical politics, and is indigenous to all lands that find profit in the gestures having to do with the rights of the multitude. . . .

A great little piece is "The Mikado"; and I trust Hopper is doing it at least as well as when he last was Ko-Ko in Chicago, in 1915.

New Things in New-York.

"Processional," by John Howard Lawson: to be staged by the Theater Guild with Miss June Walker, George Abbott, Miss Blanche Frederici, Donald MacDonald, and Charles Halton. . . . The author, who won some attention two years ago with an unsuccessful piece named "Roger Bloomer," calls the new one "a jazz symphony of American life."

"Isabel," by Arthur Richman from the German original of Kurt Goetz, and "Shall We Join the Ladies?" by J. M. Barrie, with Miss Margaret Lawrence as the star: the pieces are to be given as a single bill. . . . Barrie's is said to be the first act of a long play which he has not written beyond that section.

"Two Married Men," by Vincent Lawrence, with James Dale, Miss Frances Carson, Miss Ann Andrews, and George Gaul.

"The Valley of Content," made from her novel of like name by Miss Blanche Upright, with Miss Marjorie Rambeau.

"The Love-Song," the operetta with a score made up of Offenbach's music, with Miss Marguerite Namara, Miss Dorothy Francis, Miss Evelyn Herbert, Miss Odette Myrtil, Miss Zella Russell, Harry K. Morton, Allan Prior, and Harrison Brockbank. . . . The American libretto is by Harry B. Smith.

"The Piker," by Leon Gordon, with Lionel Barrymore, Miss Irene Fenwick, Allan Brooks, Frank Conroy, and Miss Adrienne Morrison. . . . This is the play heretofore mentioned in THE TRIBUNE as "Four Knaves and a Joker."

Also, New-York will have Balieff and the Chauve-Souris again, with a new program, and another revival of its pet play, "The Emperor Jones," with Paul Robeson, the fondest Negro actor it is now of, in the part acted here in 1921 by Charles Gilpin, who then was the fondest etcætera.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News.

George M. Cohan came to the city late Thursday, and at the time of sending this page to press was still among the visitors.

Miss Mary Newcomb, through with "The Lady of the Streets," says she expects to perform before long in "The Pelican," an English play that has been staged in London with Miss Josephine Victor in it: and Miss Newcomb's manager, Mr. Woods, now says he is not to do the piece until next season.

And Mr. Woods makes a like averment as to the dramatization of "The Green Hat," although he has announced the engagement of Miss Katherine Cornell for the uneasy lady who is Michael Arlen's heroine. . . . Miss Gladys Cooper, a London beauty who is on the stage, is named for the rôle there. She has been acting Peter Pan in a holiday-time revival of Barrie's piece, and has been described by the critics as not good in the part.

Miss Laurette Taylor, who is my idea of a gifted actress, is said to be planning to return to the audible stage in a new piece by J. Hartley Manners, her husband.

"Jack in the Pulpit," a new play in New-York last week, isn't a play anywhere now: it was thrown away after last night's performance. . . . Robert Ames headed the cast.

Booth Tarkington, sailing for Europe, asserts that he will write no more for the theater, wherein he has, on the whole, been successful.

An imported play first referred to here as "Collusion" and then by a new title, "Tame Cats," is now called "The Lounge-Lizard."

Frank Swinnerton's fine novel named "Nocturne" has been dramatized by Henry Stillman. . . . Miss Lula Vollmer, who wrote "Sun-Up" and "The Shame-Woman," both shown last year in Chicago, is ready with a third, called "The Dunce-Boy."

IMPORTED AND DOMESTIC COMEDIANS.

ERIC BLORE

MISS ELLIS BAKER

HE is from London, where he acts in the comic things, writes libretti, and turns out verses for the revues and other pieces with songs in them. He was off the stage and in the army while England was at war. . . . He's in this country for the first time, and is taking part with Miss Bordoni in "Little Miss Bluebeard," doing what he may to make different one of those usual silly-ass rôles.

And she belongs here, being the daughter of Mrs. Edith Ellis Baker. . . . Miss Baker may be observed in "The Show-Off" in the rôle of Amy—an assignment which places her vis-à-vis with Mr. Walburn, who has the title-part. Misinformation from the management of the play led to The Tribune's saying last Sunday that the rôle was Miss Myrtle Tannahill's.

IN THE PLOT

MISS ALINE M'GILL

She is the dancing actress of Winnie from Washington (and by that token one-third of the plot) in "No! No, Nanette!" which of all the shows in town is the best beloved. . . . And Miss McGill gets into the news-pages with publication of the banns for her and a gentleman who qualifies as a Chicagoan by virtue of residing in Beverly Hills.

New Playbills

OPENING TONIGHT:

De Wolf Hopper in "The Mikado" in the Great Northern.—The tall survivor of uncounted operettas starts an engagement in weekly-change répertoire, reappearing as Ko-Ko in the most popular of Gilbert and Sullivan's pieces. . . . With him are Herbert Waterous, Sudworth Frasier, George Shields, Henry Kelly, Miss Ethel Walker, Miss Ethel Clark, Miss Annette Hawley, and Miss Sarah Edwards.

Fiske O'Hara in "The Big Mogul."—The singing-actor of Irish rôles in something new by Dewitt Newing. . . . Miss Pat Cleary is in the company; and Miss Sara Ann McCabe, from the choir of St.-Patrick's Church, is to join with the star in incidental songs.

Lowell Sherman in "High Stakes" in the Adelphi.—Transfer from Jackson Boulevard to Clark Street of a hit suspected of being a success, as well. . . . Wilton Lackaye, Miss Phœbe Foster, Miss Sue MacManamy, and the others of the good cast make the trip with Mr. Sherman.

JANUARY 18:

Miss Francine Larrimore in "Parasites" in the Princess.—The actress who was popular in the Chicago performances of "Scandal" and "Nice People" in something new by Cosmo Hamilton, who wrote the former. "Parasites" has been on view in New-York.

JANUARY 25:

"Rose-Marie" in the Woods.—An operetta highly successful in New-York, where it has been running since the start of the season. . . . Miss Myrtle Schaaf is to head the cast here.

George White's Scandals [1924] in the Selwyn.—Sixth issue of this annual, which has been highly praised by the reviewers in New-York, where it was put on last summer. . . . Lester Allen, Miss Winnie Lightner, and Tom Patricola are again in the company.

JANUARY 26:

Miss Barrymore in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" in the Blackstone.—Pinero's most celebrated play in revival by the actress who was so good in his "Mid-Channel" and "Trelawny of the Wells."

FEBRUARY 1:

Charlot's Revue in the Garrick.—Belated engagement of an imported entertainment immensely popular last season in New-York. . . . Miss Joyce Barbour, Miss Beatrice Lillie, Herbert Mundin, and Sam B. Hardy will be in it.

FEBRUARY 2:

Miss Fay Bainter in "The Dream-Girl" in the Studebaker.—Victor Herbert's last score for operetta: the libretto is made from the once-popular play named "The Road to Yesterday." . . . Walter Woolf, here last season in "The Lady in Ermine," is with Miss Bainter to say to you, for example, "Think of it: there have been 112 plays produced on Broadway since August and every one a hit," it would irritate you because you would read into it a reproach. Why couldn't you have written at least one of them? Or the news would pain you because you would know immediately that you could not possibly enjoy 112 successful plays, even if you could afford them. Or you would put me quickly down as an awful liar and feel sorry for me.

Here's the Latest in Protest Plays

By Burns Mantle.

But if I say, "Imagine!" or I might say, "Fancy! There have been an average of twenty-two plays a month produced on Broadway for the last five months, and there are not over six real hits among them," you are immediately interested. And a little excited. The world isn't so unfair, after all. Other folks have their troubles, too.

Come and Gone.

Well, cheer up. The latter figure is nearer right than the former. There are more than six hits. Probably fifteen are playing to capacity or near it, out of a total of sixty dramatic and musical entertainments current. But that is being generous.

As to those that have come and gone: Ten started in August and only one, "Dancing Mothers," is still with us. A music piece, "Marjorie," and "The Best People," a drama with a Chicago indorsement, lasted until late December.

Of the thirty-two that came in in September only six have survived. These include "Rose Marie," the season's musical comedy favorite; "What Price Glory?" the biggest of the dramatic successes; "Pigs," a pleasant little johngoldener; "My Son," slipping through with a coöperative company and well organized theater party schemes; "Grounds for Divorce," which is ready to quit after the Ina Claire popularity has carried it this far, and "Minick," the Edna Ferber-George Kaufman domestic comedy that is so true to life it sorta saddens a lot of the folks.

There were twenty-three entries in October. Five of them are still with us and three, possibly four, of these will run the season through. The four being Ed Wynn's "The Grab Bag," "The Guardsman," "The Firebrand," and possibly "Artists and Models." The fifth, an English farce comedy called "The Farmers Wife," goes touring this week.

There were forty-seven November and December plays. But they, of course, are still in the testing room. They have to run three months before we begin to talk of them as successes. And even then some one who has a second cousin who knows a member of the theater treasurers' club is likely to produce an unfavorable box office report.

Burlesquers Hold Celebration.

The burlesquers are having a celebration at the Columbia theater this week. The occasion is properly inspired by the fact that they have maintained the standards of their branch of amusements for fifteen years and are therefore entitled to an anniversary.

Among the things that are being written about them are that they have accomplished more in the last few years to dignify and clean up, if not absolutely to purify, the old time smut shows than was previously accomplished in all the years that have elapsed since Sam T. Jack was a round faced little Sunday school scholar, and Sam Scribner played postoffice with the girls.

Which I suspect is true. In fact, I am almost willing to wager the baby's college insurance that the burlesque shows at the Columbus theater are a lot less offensive than any one of a half dozen revues and such like that we accept as legitimate, and pass by with a shrug.

Their other claims to distinction, forwarded to me in a gold plated souvenir program, is that burlesque has cradled more geniuses than any other division of amusements.

Which also has a foundation in fact. Burlesque, in the days when it was giving a chance to the entertainers who have since become the stars you know, was the easiest place for any amateur to start, because the standards were low and the chances limitless. Those were the days when there was no Columbia wheel, and anything the police let pass was good enough to get in. True, many now famous performers played in burlesque. Their salaries were small, their hours long, and they furnished as much of their own stuff as they had the brains to invent. Gradually they distanced their competitors and finally they made their goal—which was the so-called legitimate theater.

Many of them, when they first came over, were pretty rough. Some of them still are. But if credit is to be applied where credit is due, the legitimate theaters and its contacts have done a lot more to make them what they are than the burlesque that boasts of them ever did.

The "Burlesque Roll of Honor," as the Columbia organization honors it, contains the following names: Will Rogers, Fred Stone, Al Jolson, Leon Errol, Gallagher and Shean, Sam Bernard, Weber and Fields, Grace La Rue, Billy B. Van, Alex Carr, Bobby Clark, the Howard brothers, Eddie Cantor, Fannie Brice, Harry Von Tilzer, Dorothy Jardon, George Beban, Emma Carus, Belle Baker, Charlotte Greenwood, Mack Sennett, Sophie Tucker, George Sidney, Paul McCullough.

I am glad burlesque can boast of them. But it makes me a bit weary to have burlesque boast also of having made them all what they are today.

MISCELLANY OF THE WEEK:

Tony Sarg's marionettes will be taken through a version of "Treasure Island" Tuesday and Thursday afternoon and Saturday morning, in the Studebaker.

Burton Holmes will have "Round About Rome" as the second Travelogue in his new series Wednesday and Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, in Orchestra Hall. This lecture is in sequence to last week's, called "Immortal Rome."

ANTIPODEAN

MISS ETHEL WALKER

She is a soprano from Australia, and is in Chicago as diva of De Wolf Hopper's company in its répertoire of operetta. Miss Walker, in that capacity, will have much good and much popular music to sing; for she will be Yum-Yum tonight in "The Mikado," Maid Marian next week in "Robin Hood," Miss Josephine Porter the week after in "Pinafore," and so through the list, with the considerable rôle of Mabel (and the lovely waltz called "Take Mine!") in "The Pirates of Penzance."

to Hollywood, where he was the only one who DID. Plenty of humor and pathos here, with Glenn Hunter placing himself in the front rank of cinema players by his portrayal of Merton. Harry Leon Wilson wrote the original story.

MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE. Reckon we're never going to forget our Mr. Valentino as he appeared in that. Wasn't he the heartbreaker as Booth Tarkington's hero—that gallant gentleman who fought, adventured, and loved fair ladies in the time of Louis XV.? And the picture was beautiful from the standpoint of production. The photography was so perfect that you felt the spray of fountains and saw the jewels glisten.

AMERICA! Griffith again walking the heights! This picture was the powerfully illustrated story of momentous events in our country's history. The great director's best production since "The Birth of a Nation."

THE BLIZZARD. I wonder if you remember it? It made the greatest sort of impression on me. It was adapted from the Nobel prize winning novel by Dr. Selma Lagerlof. The story is of a dreamy youth with a passion for the violin. His hard mother does not in the least understand him, compels him to give up his study, and sends him out in the world. He accumulates a herd of reindeer, and while driving them encounters the blizzard. This was directed for a Swedish company by a man who knew how to bind power and beauty with exquisite simplicity.

* *

NAME THE MAN was a human thing taken from Hall Caine's novel, "Master of Men." Mae Busch and Conrad Nagel were great in the leading rôles. The scenes were laid on the Isle of Man.

Voice of the Fan

Who'll Play Lightnin' Bill?

Dear Miss Tinee: You ask who would make a good Lightnin' Bill for the screen. I think Theodore Roberts would be ideal, or George Fawcett.

I. R.

Dear Miss Tinee: John Golden asks for suggestions for an act to make a good Lightnin' Bill on the screen—for production of "Lightnin'." How about Frank Keenan? Please look at his wonderful work in "The Dixie Handicap." Not a dry eye in the house. He looks the part and can act and is loved by all.

W. C.

Dear Miss Tinee: I think the man who played the father in the "Good Bad Boy" would be most ideal. I saw Frank Bacon in the part on the stage and I am a veteran picture fan. I know of no one in pictures who would be truer to the portrayal of this beloved character than he.

I hope you can help me out by attaching his name to this letter, if it is published or forwarded to the William Fox people.

ROBERT.

[Editor's Note.—Forrest Robinson was the "father" you mention.]

* *

Dear Miss Tinee: I should like to suggest that Josef Swickard be given that rôle. He gave a most wonderful performance at Julio's father in "The Four Horsemen." I think he is highly qualified, as an actor as well as by his interesting and attractive features.

A. C.

Cheers for Gloria.

Dear Miss Tinee: Florence is going to get an answer from others beside E. D. J.

Listen, Florence, how did you get the idea that Gloria was one of Miss Tinee's favorites? In every picture, except, perhaps, "Wages of Virtue," Miss Swanson has been panned by Mae.

Now, dear critic, have mercy.

In the second place, Charles Jones is all bosh.

Miss Swanson is one of the best actresses on the screen, and nobody cares who knocks her.

Maybe this won't be in print, but I surely hope so.

Also, Florence, you act like a 5 year old when you say, "Because Charles Jones is not one of your favorites, I guess you won't print this." You havent been reading Kick Korner long, I'll wager. Don't you know Mae prints all kinds of letters, even those insulting her?

Even if this letter is too long, I must say something to our critic in defense of Gloria Swanson. Mae, you may knock every picture of her, but the boxoffice tells a different story. You say she doesn't ring the bell, that she can't act, or you otherwise give her the tin can. I say, "Hooray for Gloria!" She has been fine in every picture.

Now, Mae, speak up and join in the praise.

I guess you are tired of reading my chatter, so I'll say that you're a darn fine critic otherwise!

A SAINTED DEVIL.

Cupid Takes Fresh Aim at Hollywood

coconaut grove, which was made over into a pink fairyland.

Harold Lloyd gave a party for Mildred Davis, his wife, and some of her friends, including Helen Ferguson and Carmelita Geraghty. I think Helen Ferguson and Billy Russell must have been having one of their tiffs, for I didn't see them together. Mildred Davis looked distinguished and prettier than I have ever seen her, clad in a black velvet gown, plain bodice with fairly tight waist, and full skirt. She wore a diamond necklace with diamond pendant, presented to her by her husband at Christmas time, she told me proudly. It is beautiful, delicately set in platinum, and must have cost a fortune. The necklace was most effective on the black velvet. I suppose that's really the reason Mildred wore the velvet.

I can tell Mary Hay that Richard Barthelmess wandered around by himself, looking quite lonely, despite the appealing feminine glances sent his way.

Claire Windsor and Bert Lytell were in a party, and Bert must be most awfully devoted, for while Claire danced with other men of the party occasionally, I didn't see Bert dancing once except with his fiancée. Claire is perfectly radiant these days in that delicate way of hers. She wore a chiffon and taffeta gown of that shade known as old blue embroidered in large wistaria design of orchid and blue tints—a daring gown on anybody except the dainty Claire. Her bodice was partially filled at the waist with the new modish flaring effect to the skirt.

Height of Devotion.

Blanche Sweet looked cute in white with the boyish bob to her hair. We met Mickey Neilan, her husband, coming out of the Grove just after Blanche had gone in.

"We just met Blanche going in," we told him.

"Well timed that, eh?" chuckled Mickey.

Blanche and Mickey are always together these days. They even lunch together frequently, and if that isn't devotion in the case of these busy people I don't know what is.

Constance Talmadge and Buster Collier were at Buster and Natalie Keaton's table, and held hands under the table as usual.

Alice Terry in a black chiffon evening dress danced often with Henry King; and Lewis Stone, idol of millions, dared the jealous glances of dozens of women by appearing with his wife, Florence Oakley, who, by the way, told me she expected to go to New York shortly to appear on the stage.

Dorothy Mackaill was present dressed in a yellow gown, and danced a great deal with Irving Thalberg, who, it is said, is expecting to sign her up for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Jetta Goudal wouldn't look natural without Paul Bern's escort and the two were dining quietly together, Jetta in an odd but becoming sort of garden party afternoon dress of pink with a pink poke hat to match. She didn't dance because she said that when she danced she liked lots of room.

Writes from Berlin.

I have just received a letter from Jane Novak, who is in Berlin at the Hotel Adlon. She is making a picture called "The Blackguard," a Russian story, which an English director is producing. The director's name is Graham Cutts.

"My leading man," writes Jane, "is Walther Rilla. He is German and an excellent actor. He is dark, a sort of combination of Ramon Novarro and Harrison Ford, and I think he would do well in America.

"Julanne Johnson is here in the hotel, too. I am having one glorious time. I've been wined and dined, toasted, etc. Of course, I love it."

Stravinsky Comes for Busy Season

By Edward Moore.

no way be considered superior to Bach, or Bach to Palestrina. Neither is that to the point. The point is that one hears too much Beethoven and Bach and not enough Stravinsky. The only way for him to take his own proper place in music is to hear more of him. At present he stands out as a person who does warmly what too many other modern composers do in cold blood.

Some Events of the Week.

At first glance it would seem a bit difficult to point the difference between the Chicago Symphony orchestra's popular program of Thursday night and the subscription pair of Friday afternoon and Saturday night. Possibly the presence of a soloist may make the point, but the soloist happens to be billed for the "pop." This program contains the overture to Wolf-Ferrari's "The Secret of Suzanne," Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, Tschaikowsky's "Nut Cracker" Suite, Strauss' Waltz, "Roses from the South," and the solo, Guilmant's Concerto for organ, which will be played by Edward Eigenschenck, winner of the contest for organists held last month.

The subscription programs will consist of Goldmark's "Country Wedding" Symphony, some selections from Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust," the overture to Cornelius' "The Barber of Bagdad," Malapiero's "Impressions of Nature," and Gliere's "The Sirens." There may be a moral in all this, but at present it is a little difficult to see what it is.

Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff," an early repeated item in last season's Civic Opera company activities, is deferred until close to the end this year. It will be sung on Friday night—most of the new performances come on extra nights this season—with Feodor Chaliapin taking time off amid the legal assignments of himself and the company to sing the name part. Others in the cast will be Cyrena Van Gordon, Angelo Cortis, and Alexander Kipnis. Giorgio Polacco will conduct.

The other new piece will be Flotows "Martha," billed for Wednesday night. Here the quartet of singers, a good one, will be made up of Edith Mason, Flora Perini, Tito Schipa, and Virgilio Lazzari, and Roberto Moranzoni will conduct. Elsewhere in the week there are repetitions, a rather persuasive list of them.

Moriz Rosenthal, the famous pianist, will assist this afternoon in the reopening of the F. Wight Neumann recitals which have been taking a holiday layoff. Among his scheduled major numbers are the Schumann Fantasia, the Paganini-Brahms Variations, a Hungarian Rhapsody, and the Chopin Barcarolle. The last, he says, is the only one of its type that deals with the ocean. "Other barcarolles," he explains, "are concerned merely with lakes." He will also include two of his own arrangements made for the confounding of technicians less able than he, the one, his dealings with the Chopin Waltz in D flat, the other, his dealings with some Strauss waltzes, and which he calls "Papillons." He will be at the Studebaker.

At the same hour the Flonzaley quartet, next door at the Playhouse, will conclude a series of three fine chamber music concerts. Haydn's opus 76, No. 2, and Brahms' opus 51, No. 1—one of the greatest needs of music is some less technical names for string quartets—will comprise the classical standards of the program. The other, a modern and highly charming piece, is Waldo Warner's "The Pixy Ring."

For attractions of the evening John McCormack will have the field to himself at the Auditorium. Not that it would make any difference if he had an indefinite amount of competition, for whenever he announces himself he is sure of a capacity audience, in which the aforesaid audience shows unexceptionable taste. He is a singer to the whole world.

The Marionettes.

Long John Silver and his parrot, Jim, Davey, and all the pirate crew of "Treasure Island" will invite children from 6 to 60 to share their adventures next week when Tony Sarg's marionettes present their miniature stage version of Robert Louis Stevenson's romance at the Studebaker theater.

These puppet performances are scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and for Saturday morning, with a show at the Evanston Woman's club on Wednesday.

The production represents three years of study and research on the part of Mr. Sarg, together with the elaboration of intricate scenic and lighting effects. Particular attention has been devoted to the incidental music of the piece, with the restoration of many of the blood curdling old buccaneer songs. The "Yo, ho, ho and a bottle of rum" chorus, it is promised, will be rendered in a manner to make cold chills run down the spine.

Scenes at the inn before the adventure gets under way will be followed by scenes at the dock, aboard ship, and on the island. A cat and dog fight, a storm at sea, and a free for all buccaneer fight in which marlin spikes, bludgeons, and blunderbusses play a part, lend action to the piece.

Here and There in Music.

The final contest of young artists, promoted by the American Society of Musicians with the coöperation of the Orchestral association, will take place on Tuesday evening at Orchestra hall. Three cellists, four violinists, four men singers, three women singers, and three pianists will compete for an opportunity to appear with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in its popular concerts. The contest will begin at 7:30 o'clock, and will be open to the public.

Capt. George L. King, 11th infantry, U. S. A., has composed a military mass which was recently given at the infantry school of Fort Benning, Ga. The choir was of thirty-two voices, and the orchestral accompaniment was provided by musicians from the school.

The Roman Choir and Grand Opera singers will appear for the first time in Chicago at Orchestra hall on Jan. 20. It is composed of singers from the patriarchal Roman basilicas and the Sistine chapel, and advance word from the organization tells that each member bears with him documentary evidence to prove that fact. Ruggero Ferri, boy soprano, is featured as soloist.

Joseph Stransky, conductor of the State Symphony orchestra of New York since its founding in March, 1923, has resigned his post, and Ignaz Waghalter has been appointed his successor.

The London String quartet has returned to this country for another season of chamber music concerts. On the same boat was Lionel Tertis, the viola player, who plans a tour of the country with the quartet of which Harold Bauer, Bronislaw Huberman, and Felix Salmond are the other members.

Giorgio Polacco is in receipt of a cablegram from Arturo Toscanini, saying that he himself will undertake the task of completing Toscanini's opera, "Turandot," from the late composer's notes, and that because of the length of the process the performance of the work has been postponed for one year.

"Don Quixote," the new Spanish ballet based upon Cervantes' romance of the same name, has been selected to inaugurate Anna Pavlowa's fortnight's season at the Auditorium beginning Monday, Jan. 26. This spectacle was used by the Russian danseuse to open her London and New York engagements, and was received with unusual favor. A cast of 125 people is called for, comprising, besides the star, MM. Alexandre Volinine and Laurent Novikoff, Pavlowa's premier danseurs, all foremost artists, the entire corps de ballet, and a half hundred extras. Splendid scenic, costuming, and luminous effects are said to characterize the production.

The opening performance of the Ballet Russe at the Auditorium will be for the benefit of the Pasteur-Charlotte Cushman movement. Another new creation of Pavlowa's is the "Coquetterie de Colombine," with music by Drigo, done by herself and both premiers.

TSAR OF RUSSIA.

FEODOR CHALIAPIN.

Late in the season though it may be, Chaliapin still holds in reserve his performance of Boris Godunoff in Moussorgsky's opera of the same name. He will display it next Friday night at the Auditorium, a magnificent figure of history portrayed by a magnificent figure of the stage.

IN BENEFIT

STORING VITAMINS
The average healthy person stores up within the body several days' supply of essential vitamins. This explains why a well-nourished person of any age is less susceptible to germ-infection than those who are malnourished.
Scott's Emulsion
is a safety-factor that helps keep you well-nourished. A very little used daily to complement the regular diet, activates with essential vitamins and helps build resistance.
Store up a reserve of essential vitamins—take Scott's regularly.

A PIMPLY SKIN NEEDS SULPHUR
Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickly by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist
Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

There are also Tricks to the Housewife's Trade and here is one worth knowing
THOUSANDS of housewives now know how to select the very juiciest and most delicious oranges and grapefruit—and the most economical, too. Here is how it's done!
Completely disregard both color and shape. Be sure they are heavy for their size. For weight means juice!
Moreover, "rusty" or unshapely oranges and grapefruit are very often much sweeter and juicier than those which merely please your eye. In fact, all these shades and shapes frequently come from the selfsame orange or grapefruit tree.
Such knowledge as this has led increasing thousands of housewives to demand Sealdsweet Oranges and Grapefruit every time. They have learned that, compared size for size with ordinary oranges and grapefruit, they cost less, because Sealdheart Grapefruit (In Tins)
Whenever you are unable to obtain fresh Sealdsweet Grapefruit or prefer the fruit in tins, ask your grocer for Sealdheart Grapefruit. It is the inner meat and juice, separated from the membranes and outer rind, of the delicious Sealdsweet Florida Grapefruit. Merely chill Sealdheart Grapefruit and it is ready to serve.

FLEWELLING IN TRY FOR EUROPE WITH 50 WATTS

Results of Phone Test Awaited with Interest.

BY STEPHEN GILCHRIST.
[Radio Editor.]

E. T. FLEWELLING.

E. T. Flewelling, Chicago engineer, used his low power, short wave station Friday night in an attempt to reach Europe with phone, and the radio world of the middle west is awaiting with unusual interest the reports from the thirty-six observers stationed throughout the British isles.

Broadcasting was on a wave length of 65 meters, and was participated in by a number of well known artists, who gladly lent their assistance in this important experiment.

The test, which opened at 10:30 o'clock, and continued until 11:30, was made at Mr. Flewelling's experimental station, 9XBG, which played the stellar rôle in the opening of the radio show at the Coliseum last fall, as well as broadcasting from the show the different programs put on for the benefit of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's radio fund for the blind.

Tests of Great Import.

Tests that have been conducted by Mr. Flewelling with his short wave outfit already have lent themselves to formulation of data valuable to the advancement of the science of radio. The consistent long distance transmitting power of this station has focused upon it the attention of the entire technical world interested in short wave experimentation, and won for Mr. Flewelling a silver loving cup, awarded by the management of the Radio World's fair.

As an aid to his researches Mr. Flewelling appeals to all amateurs who hear this station to send reports, as detailed as possible, to him at 836 South St. Johns avenue, Highland Park, Ill. His telephone number is Highland Park 1796.

Dead Spot Nearby.

Certain sections of the United States have been unable to hear this station, although its signals already have been reported from several points in Europe. One of these "dead spots" is situated only two and one-half miles from 9XBG, although the observer at the particular point constantly works stations on both coasts.

Much interesting information regarding short wave transmission and reception already has been accumulated by Mr. Flewelling, and his work is expected to reach a climax in the test of Friday night.

TEACHERS FIND MUSIC LEADING IN POPULARITY

Results of a questionnaire sent to broadcasting stations throughout the country by W. A. Fisher of Boston were revealed at the annual meeting of the Music Teachers' National association at St. Louis.

Answers show that music ranks first as a broadcast feature. Twice as many program directors reported jazz popularity as waning to those who saw an increase. The predominance of jazz seems to be attributed to the many hotels and dance halls clamoring to be heard "on the air" as a means of publicity. It was pointed out that there has been little systematic broadcasting of regular symphony concerts, KSD, St. Louis; WEAF, New York, and WLW, being notable exceptions.

While paying tribute to the more discriminating program managers discussion at the music teachers' meeting dwelt at length on the fact that the shortcomings in the present conduct of radio are due to the fundamental error of wanting something for nothing.

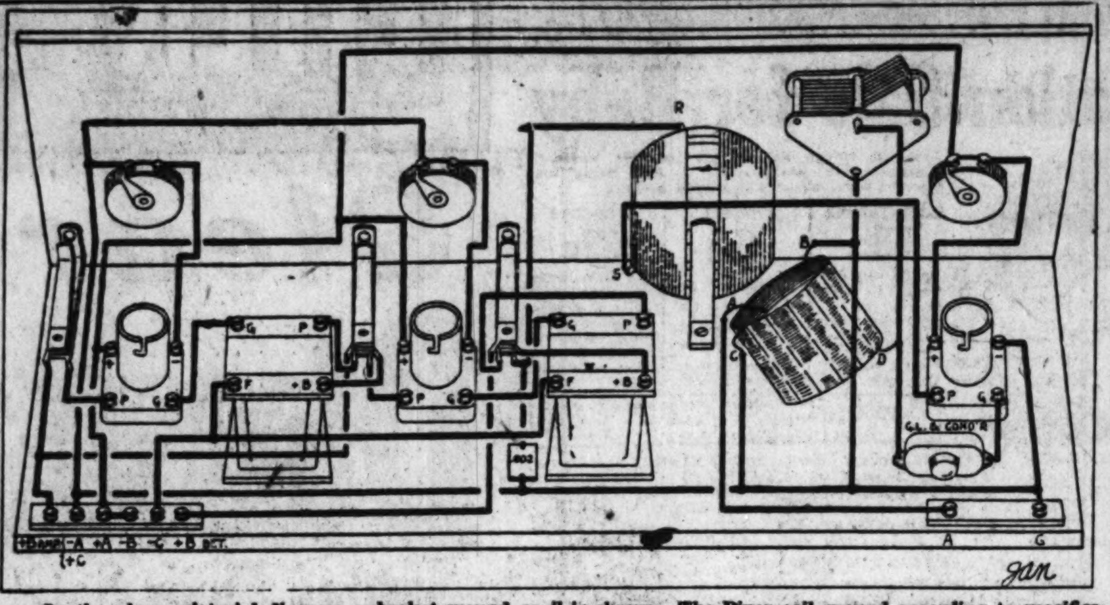
CONCERT STARS TO GIVE SECOND RADIO PROGRAM

New York, Jan. 10.—[Special.]—The second concert by opera stars will be broadcast Thursday from 8 to 9 p. m., central standard time when Frances Alda, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera company, sings before WEAF's microphone.

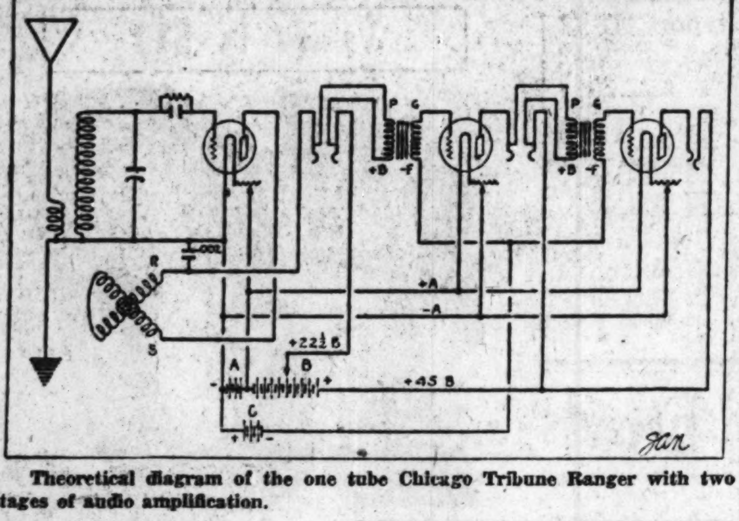
Others on the program will be Frank La Forge, pianist, the Victor concert orchestra, and Florentine instrumental quartet. The Broadway station will be linked by telephone wires with the transmitters of WCAP, Washington; WFI, Philadelphia; WGR, Buffalo; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WJAR, Providence; WEEI, Boston, and WDBH, Worcester.

The popularity of the first concert by John McCormack and Lucrezia Bori was shown by the flood of 20,000 letters of appreciation which reached WEAF. Thousands of letters reached the seven other stations linked with WEAF.

One-Tube Ranger With Two Stages Audio



In the above pictorial diagram a basket wound co il is shown. The Piper coil, wound according to specifications outlined and illustrated by page 10 of this section, m ay be substituted. A indicate antenna terminal of primary, or pickup coil; B, the ground terminal; C, the filament or l ow potential terminal of the main coil, and D, the grid terminal.



Theoretical diagram of the one tube Chicago Tribune Ranger with two stages of audio amplification.

LITTLE THINGS BEAR STUDY IN RANGER CIRCUIT

BY EXPERIMENTER.

While the number of letters received by this department dealing with The Chicago Tribune Ranger continues on the increase, the number of correspondents striking troubles still are relatively few.

For the benefit of those who construct the circuit and are unable to trace troubles, these pointers are given:

A variable grid leak of reliable make is advised, because of the fact that the operation of the leak has a very decided effect on the range and smoothness of the variometer action. If the leak resistance is too low, the variometer range is greatly curtailed, and its action becomes critical, sometimes in the extreme. Moreover, it tends to make the tube critical.

Separate Primary Best.

Tests made with both the one tube and two indicate that a separate primary excels winding the pickup coil on the main coil. This is due to the fact that a separate primary may be coupled to suit antenna conditions. This should consist of eight turns of No. 18 or 20 DCC wire, and may be wound on a former the same size as that used for the main coil or on a former of one-quarter inch less diameter. For best results this should be placed close to the low potential, or filament, side of the main coil, and varied in coupling until best results are obtained.

In the two tube set, those who follow today's instructions for winding the special coils devised by Dr. Ralph S. Piper, the physical construction of the secondary of which has been revised by Dr. Piper at the suggestion of the radio editor of THE TRIBUNE, should find a fertile field for study and experiment.

Much is yet to be done in determining coefficient of coupling, but already these coils have proved their worth in a tone quality that combines with tremendous volume—a rare combination, indeed. In tests made Thursday night, one stage of amplification supplied all the volume that the horn conveniently could handle from WBZ, Springfield, Mass.

Basket Windings Efficient.

It must not be understood that the basket wound coils are being abandoned or forgotten. Those who find the basket winding easiest to follow are assured of quality and distance and have no reason to feel that they are missing anything.

It is advised that those who do wind the coils for what Dr. Piper has been pleased to designate the IXL Chicago Tribune Ranger, for the sake of avoiding confusion, tap the space wound section of the coil at the eighteenth turn and neutralize the first tube. This will insure near neighbors against radiation in event of poor adjustment of the r. f. coil and at the same time greatly assist tuning.

MORE ON COILS

The more that is printed in this department about coil winding, the more questions are fired in. Goodness knows, every effort has been made to cover this feature clearly, but the majority of letters state that "the writer did not read the articles on coils," or "I lost the radio section telling about how to wind coils." Still others—and there have been many such letters—ask for coil winding information, saying that they had heard from friends about the Ranger.

Once again—and for the last time, except in The Chicago Tribune Radio Booklet soon to be published—coil winding instructions are given:

For One-Tube Set.

For use with a .00035 variable condenser: 14 pegs are set in a circle 3⅛ inches in diameter, the pegs to be spaced evenly. Use No. 18 DCC wire—or better still, if easily obtainable, No. 18 SCC enameled wire. Eighty-four turns are taken in this manner:

Secure lead to an anchor nail, then pass the wire behind two pins, then in front of one pin, then behind two pins, then in front of one pin, and so on until the eighty-four turns have been made. When the coil is finished bind it with waxed silk thread—bead silk is good—the binding turns to be made in the groove between each pair of pins.

For a .0005 variable condenser sixty-eight turns are taken.

Primary Turns Needed.

The primary may be made separately on a former 2⅞ inches in diameter, thirteen pins being placed in a circle. This kind of primary should consist of seven to ten turns, seven for a long antenna and ten for an antenna of less than sixty feet. If located where sharpness of tuning is essential, not more than seven turns should be made.

This primary is placed just within the filament end of the main coil.

Another method of primary winding may consist of seven turns wound over the main coil, on the filament end.

Winding R. F. Coil.

In event of going to the two-tube set, the coil for the one-tube set is moved to the pickup and grid coil position of the first tube, and eighty-six turns of No. 18 DCC is wound for the main coil of the radio frequency transformer on the former 3⅛ inches in diameter, the method of winding being the same as that on the first main coil. This is for a condenser of .00035 or .00025 capacity.

In the two-tube set, if the neutrodyne method of control is desired, the primary for the radio frequency transformer may consist either of fifteen turns of No. 18 DCC, wound on thirteen pegs set in a circle 2⅞ inches in diameter, the method being the same as outlined previously; that is, behind one peg, in front of one peg, and so on; or twenty-four turns of No. 30 DCC, wound in the same manner. In the case of the No. 30, the primary should be tied in the center of the main coil at the filament end, while a primary of No. 18 should be just outside the filament end of the main coil.

All primaries should be wound in the direction opposite to the main coil, and all main coils should be wound in the direction opposite to the stator windings of the variometer. In other words, if the variometer is wound clockwise—and most variometers are—the main coils should be wound counter clockwise, and the primary coils clockwise.

Two Strike Woes.

A letter from a fan in Springfield, Ill., recites that he has built the one tube Ranger, but can't hear over it. His description indicates an incomplete B battery circuit.

Another up in Wisconsin complains of weak signals. His case seems to be, from his rather indefinite description, one of a short circuited turn in his main coil. There is one thing that requires attention in all cases. Be careful in winding coils to see that turns do not get out of place, as overlapping virtually ruins an otherwise good coil.

B. L. A. STARTS NEW YEAR WITH LARGE MEETING

The Broadcast Listeners' Association of America held its first open meeting of the year Wednesday at Hamilton park field house. The attendance was large.

The technical program consisted of a thorough explanation of the subjects — PERFECT RECEPTION, ELIMINATING OF INTERFERENCE, and SELECTIVITY. This program was under the management of M. H. Romberg, electrical engineer of the University of Chicago, a member of the technical board, and W. A. Hitchcock. The fans were given every opportunity to ask questions, all of which were satisfactorily answered. The program was opened by the Misses Carpenter and Ingram—the original "Harmony Girls." The artists' review included the Cambridge Sisters (Ruby, Jeannette, Hazel, and Olive); Jessie and Nan Muir, "Scotch vocalists"; J. Harvey Arnold, "The Gabby Trixter," and many others. Frank H. McDonald, president, gave a talk on membership and the BLA affiliation with other like organizations for the general good of radio. A number of new members were enrolled.

Open meetings will be continued to be held the first and third Wednesdays of each month, to which all radio fans are welcome. The BLA "Members' Service," under M. H. Romberg's supervision, is proving most satisfactory. The members are visited at their homes, their sets inspected, and they are shown how to overcome radio troubles.

AMATEURS GET REVISED BUNCH OF REGULATIONS

Supervisors Receive Government List.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 4.—[Special.]—The following revised amateur regulations have been sent to supervisors of radio and owners of amateur radio stations:

WAVE LENGTHS.

150 to 200 meters, 75 to 85.7 meters, 37.5 to 42.8 meters, 18.7 to 21.4 meters, and 4.69 to 5.35 meters are allocated to amateur stations.

SPAR KTRANSMITTERS.

Amateur spark transmitters produce considerable interference and consequently are responsible for many complaints. Amateur owners of such transmitters should abandon their use as early as possible and adopt a system producing less interference. Until such change is made they will be permitted in the wave length band between 170 and 180 meters and should have a decrement not exceeding .1.

PHONE AND ICW TRANSMITTERS.

Phone and ICW (interrupted continuous wave transmitters) will be permitted in the band from 170 to 180 meters. ICW shall be defined as the type of wave produced by mechanically interrupting one or more of the radio frequency circuits or the type of wave produced by any transmitting set which produces an equivalent effect.

CW TRANSMITTERS.

CW (continuous wave) transmitters will be permitted in all of the bands allocated for amateur use.

COUPLED CIRCUITS.

Amateur stations must use circuits loosely coupled to the radiating system or devices that will produce equivalent effects to minimize key impacts, harmonics, and plate supply modulations, except in cases where loops are used as radiators. Conductive coupling, even though loose, will not be permitted.

POWER SUPPLY.

No restrictions will be imposed relative to the character of power supply, provided the emitted wave is sharply defined.

QUIET HOURS.

Amateur stations when using wave lengths between 150 and 200 meters are required to observe a silent period from 8 to 10:30 p. m. daily, standard time, and on Sundays while church services are being broadcast. Such stations, when using wave lengths below 85 meters and having a pure continuous wave or where a full wave rectification is employed, are not required to observe a silent period, provided no interference is caused other services.

STATION LICENSES.

Licenses issued for amateur stations will authorize the use of any or all of the wave lengths allocated for amateur use, provided the transmitter meets the requirements of the above regulations. No alteration in the apparatus will be permitted which results in changing the character of the emitted wave except under authority granted by the supervisor of radio.

INTERCOMMUNICATION.

Amateur stations are not permitted to communicate with commercial or government stations unless authorized by the secretary of commerce, except in an emergency or for testing purposes. This restriction does not apply to communication with small pleasure craft such as yachts and motor boats which may have difficulty in establishing communication with commercial or government stations.

SPECIAL AMATEUR STATION LICENSES.

There being no further need for special amateur station licenses, owners of stations holding such licenses will be permitted to continue the use of their "Z" calls under regular amateur station licenses. No new "Z" calls will be issued.

The privilege of using the wave lengths from 105 to 110 meters is withdrawn

(Signed.) A. J. TYREL,
Acting Commissioner.
Approved: S. B. DAVIS JR.,
Acting Secretary of Commerce.

Credit Men to Present Program from WGN

The Chicago Association of Credit Men will present a musical program from W-G-N between 8 and 9 p. m. Tuesday. The artists taking part are the Chicago Association of Credit Men's quartet, composed of members of the organization; Miss Helen Fabbri, pianist; Evelyn Simmons and Florence Clifford, Harmony singers, and Mrs. Charles Hamburger, soprano. The program is given under the direction of James S. Cox, chairman of the public relations committee.

FOUR STATIONS TO AID STUDY OF ECLIPSE EFFECTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—Effects of the eclipse of Jan. 24 on the transmission of radio signals in and near the zone traversed by the moon's shadow are to be made subjects of a thorough investigation, the bureau of standards, department of commerce, has announced. About fifteen laboratories have signified their intention of collecting data and others are expected to join before the eclipse occurs.

The general investigation is being organized by Prof. G. W. Pickard, a prominent radio engineer of Boston. The bureau of standards is coöperating with Prof. Pickard by collecting data from laboratories, while the Scientific American has undertaken to collect data from amateurs, in accordance with a special program it has outlined.

WGR at Buffalo, N. Y., WGY at Schenectady, WBZ at Springfield, Mass., and WEAF in New York City are to send the signals on which measurements are to be made. The first of these stations is in the center of the shadow path, the second and third are on its northern edge, and the fourth is on its southern edge.

Laboratories having necessary equipment are to make measurements on the carrier wave, recording the actual strength of the wave. It is expected that this will vary as the shadow passes, showing effects similar to those observed with change from day to night. Possible reflections from the shadow wall and other changes in direction also are anticipated. It is expected that the effects will be most pronounced with short waves and perhaps not noticeable with long waves.

Balkite Battery Charger. Charges 6 volt "A" storage batteries. Price $19.50
Balkite "B"—replaces "B" batteries and dry cells. Operates from light socket. Price $35

No more weak batteries

You need never again be caught with run-down radio batteries. Balkite Radio Power Units furnish constant uniform voltage to both "A" and "B" circuits, and give your set greater clarity, power and range. The Balkite Battery Charger keeps your "A" storage battery charged. Balkite "B" replaces "B" batteries entirely and supplies plate current from the electric lighting circuit. Both are based on the same principle and are entirely noiseless. Both are simple and unfailing, have no vibrators, bulbs or moving parts, and can be put in operation at any time by merely connecting to the light socket. Both are guaranteed to give satisfaction. Sold by leading radio dealers everywhere.

Announcing The New Stromberg-Carlson No. 2-A Loud Speaker

A Triumph of Radio Engineering

Sensitive to the highest degree, this superb new Loud Speaker reproduces programs with naturalness of tone while in volume of sound it is sufficient to fill the largest room on distant station reception.

Graceful in design, with soft, oxidized silver finish, it is unobtrusive; so light it may be readily carried from place to place.

Requires neither extra batteries nor extra stages of amplification; simple and economical to operate.

Made by a company with 30 years' manufacturing experience and a world-wide reputation for superior telephone and radio apparatus.

Powerful Magnets are essential to sensitiveness, volume, and pure tone quality. The massive construction and power of Stromberg-Carlson Loud Speaker magnets insure these qualities permanently.

Laboratory tests of the magnets used in the new No. 2-A Loud Speaker show a "pick-up" of 2½ pounds.

Reliable operation is further assured by use of Layer Wound and Layer Insulated Coils. This means that the coils are wound a layer at a time with insulating material between each layer—a construction which ensures that the coils will stand up under the highest plate voltages.

SOCIETIES JOIN TO SWELL FUND FOR SIGHTLESS

Many Eastern Star Chapters on List.

BY CHARLES D. WARNER.

Among the contributors who have sent checks for THE TRIBUNE fund for the blind frequently appear the names of fraternal and church organizations. The Order of the Eastern Star has taken the lead among the societies of the city in this enterprise. It has been said that if a display could be made of the letters that have come to THE TRIBUNE on this subject from the families of blind persons practically every reader of this newspaper would give something to add to the fund.

It appears that the daily life of the ordinary blind person, especially the needy, is merely a cheerless, uneventful existence, with nothing to break the monotony of perpetual night. Most of the blind are alone during the daytime when other members of the family are away or at work.

A radio set will mean actually a new world to these sightless people and bring into their present cheerless lives all that is best in music and all of the informative talks that fill the air every day.

Announcement will soon be made of the plan to be followed in the placing of sets. Contributions yesterday were Garfield chapter No. 711, O. E. S., and Emanuel Ladies' Aid society, $10 each; Mrs. Jane Taylor, $3; Mrs. N. L. Anderson, $2; Rose Golbus, Mrs. M. Golbus, O. L. Rosenkrans Jr., Rockford Swedish W. C. T. U., and Emanuel Lutheran church primary department, $1 each. Total $30. Previously acknowledged, $5,411.48. Grand total, $5,441.48.

KFI at Los Angeles Using Higher Power

KFI, Los Angeles, is using higher power. A new 5,000 watt transmitter has been installed. The station is licensed under the present law to operate at 1,000 watts. An experimental license has been furnished it, which permits broadcasting on 1,500 watt power, and the station will have the reserve supply up to 5,000 watts if no interference results. This follows the suggestion of the recent radio conference at Washington that high power stations be permitted to broadcast on power higher than 1,000 watts, provided they do not interfere with local reception.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

Sunday, Jan. 11 — Standard Time Throughout

"The Y's Trail," a musical sketch of a boy's life, is to be broadcast by the Y. M. C. A. of Chicago this afternoon from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, beginning at 2:30 p. m., immediately following the regular classic program by E. Stanley Seder from the organ studio of Lyon & Healy which starts at 2 o'clock.

The playlet will be given the services of a large boys' chorus and an imposing cast of adult singers and is offered as a variation from the usual Master Artists' concert series.

At 3:30 o'clock, the Chicago Musical college program will begin, broadcast by W-G-N from the Central theater. Appearing at this time will be:

Evelyn Kaufman, Helen Garrett, Gladys Horn, Virginia Cooper, and Mildred Warner, all of Chicago; Henrietta Blackwell, Boston, Mass.; James Elliott, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Anatole Rappaport, Berwyn, Ill.; Evelyn Mearns, Albuquerque, N. M., and Violet Bradley, Bushville, Ill.

Tonight at 9 o'clock, Musical Director Charles H. Gabriel Jr., will present the ninth of his "Evenings with the Composers." In compliance with a large number of requests, Mr. Gabriel will discuss the high lights of the lives and works of American composers. The great number of native musicians who have written worthy works forbids the consideration of more than Carpenter, Griffes, Sowerby, Herbert and Hadley on this occasion. Brief sketches will be given and Miss Ethel Wakefield, Mr. Gabriel and the Drake Concert Ensemble, under the direction of Henry Selinger, will present the compositions.

This morning Uncle Walt will be on hand, as usual, at 11 o'clock to read the comics for the children and at 11:45 the Chicago Theater Symphony orchestra will be heard in a concert featuring Eugene Du Bois, concert master, as soloist. The program follows:

Auspices Balaban & Katz Chicago Theater.
1. Oberon overture .... Weber
2. [a] Largo, from New World symphony .... Dvorak
[b] Finale, from New World symphony .... Dvorak
3. Blue Danube .... Strauss
4. Bacchanale from Samson and Delila .... Saint Saens

RADIO ARTISTS WILL HAVE BIG BENEFIT SHOW

A benefit performance made up of the leading artists of the air from all the broadcasting stations of the city will be given at the Apollo theater, Sunday, Feb. 8.

A special surprise program in addition will be given. For more than two years these artists have been giving their talent to the public free, and often at great sacrifice to them.

The seating capacity of the house is limited, so write to any of the broadcasting stations at once for the number of tickets you wish. The price of each ticket is $2. Do not send currency. Check or money order. These tickets will be sent to you at once to be exchanged at the box office of the theater for the regular house ticket.

The program is in charge of Robert D. Boniel, director of WEBH, Edgewater Beach hotel. William M. Dewey is treasurer.

Davenports Enlarged Station Open Tomorrow

The formal opening of WOC's new station will take place Monday evening at 9 o'clock. The Tri-City symphony orchestra consisting of sixty pieces will be on the program with cello solos, Franz Wagner, Jeanette Brewbaker, soprano, and Robert Lynch, baritone.

W-G-N TO PUT ALL OF MIKADO ON THE ETHER

Listeners to Be Given a Unique Treat.

A new departure in theatrical broadcasting will be enacted Tuesday evening by W-G-N, when the entire performance of the revival of Gilbert & Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado," starring De Wolf Hopper and company, is to be put on the air direct from the Great Northern theater.

Station W-G-N will strive to broadcast the opera in a more complete and graphic manner than theatrical radio reproduction has been done heretofore. The station staff will employ the same tactics that have been used so successfully in broadcasting football games direct from the scene of the action.

Two microphones will be used, one in the footlights and another hidden somewhere in the theater, through which the announcer will describe the action of the play during the lulls and pantomine, with quotations from the libretto.

The correct answers to the third W-G-N old fashioned song contest, broadcast last Tuesday evening, are: "And the Green Grass Grew All Around," "Down Where the Cotton Blossoms Grow," "Take Me Back to New York Town," "Alexander," "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," "I'd Leave Ma Happy Home for You," "All Aboard for Blanket Bay," "What You Goin' to Do When the Rent Comes 'Round?" "The Cubanola Glide," and "Don't Take Me Home."

First prize, $10, Mrs. Mayme Sanz, 5110 School street; second prize, $5, B. Cullinan, 7905 Avalon avenue. Prizes of $1 each to: George E. Wilkinson, 11357 Forestville avenue; Ramon Meindl, 1723 Orchard street; Blanche Verhoomen, 1509 East 74th place.

Mrs. Sanz's winning letter was: "Rufus Rastus Johnson Brown" said "All Aboard for Blanket Bay" when he heard a voice saying "Won't You Open that Door and Let Me in?" It was his wife. She said, "Glide, Glide, Keep on a-Gliding." He said, "Let's Go Down Where the Cotton Blossoms Grow." She said, "Wait Till in the Good Old Summer Time."

Mohawk Radio
5 TUBES—JUST ONE DIAL TO TUNE

"Mother Machree" was one of the favorites sung for the radio by John McCormack New Year's night. With the dependable Mohawk, you can fully enjoy these fortnightly New York broadcasts of world-famous artists.

Did You Hear John McCormack New Year's Night?

Radio history was made last New Year's night in New York City. For the first time, John McCormack, Lucrezia Bori and other famous Victor artists rendered a radio concert more beautiful than words can describe. Owners of the Mohawk Radio throughout the country enjoyed this wonderful program exactly the same as radio listeners in New York.

From now on Victor broadcasting will be done fortnightly on Thursday evenings and Thursday, remember, is not Chicago's silent night. That is unfortunate for Chicagoans operating conventional radio sets. But for owners of the Mohawk it means nothing. The turn of just one dial will bring in New York on the Mohawk clear as a bell—on the loud speaker so all may hear and enjoy. Don't miss out on the best the air affords!

The Mohawk Radio cuts through local broadcasting and brings in distant stations easily and dependably. Best of all, the music and voices it brings you are true reproductions of the originals—unaltered, enchanting in their life-like exactness. Be assured there is a wide difference in radio tonal qualities. Comparison will win you lastingly to the Mohawk. See the Mohawk. Hear it. Compare it. Demonstrated at the best radio stores.

Mohawk Model VA operates on either "loop" or overhead aerial, is sealed and guaranteed for one year. 5 tubes—just one dial to tune. $150 without accessories.

PARIS STATION TO AIR A REAL YANK PROGRAM

American Colony Excited Over Novel Event.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Jan. 10.—The first American radio program in France, executed exclusively by American artists, will be broadcast here on Jan. 12 under auspices of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and New York Herald.

An unquestionably brilliant array of instrumental and vocal talent has been secured by the American committee for American radio night. To add further to the distinction of the event, the American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, has lent his patronage to the affair and it is expected that he will make a short address.

The program will be broadcast from the Petit Parisien's station on a wave length of 345 meters, and will include artists such as William Martin, Harvard Glee club singer, who scored such a great success in the Opera Comique; Miss Harriet J. McConnell, soprano; Mme. Stiles, and Miss Eleanor Spencer, pianist. The program will be followed by a jazz band concert.

Deloy Gets U. S. on Loop.

Leon Deloy, noted French amateur radio experimenter, reporting on his recent investigations of conditions between France and the United States, declares:

"We have made several attempts to receive American transmission on a loop thirty meters by ten and found reception is a trifle weaker than on an aerial. Reception of American messages on waves of 75 to 80 meters and of KDKA station was good. On Dec. 11, with one high frequency valve and one low frequency valve, we heard Pittsburgh signals and American amateurs calling so loudly they could be heard all over the house."

ROW OVER PLAYS

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 10.—A storm of protests is rising in London against a new project of broadcasting plays which are playing in the metropolitan theaters. Donald Calthrop, prominent producer, received a vigorous kick from the theatrical managers' association against the broadcasting of the popular musical hit, "Yoicks," from Kingsway theater.

If Mr. Calthrop puts "Yoicks" on the air he is warned that he will be barred from all the important towns of England. The producer declares that despite the association he will start broadcasting just the same. He says wireless listeners have the right to listen in and the theatrical men have no right to interfere or to try to intimidate him. The controversy promises to develop into an all around row.

During the recent international radio week an Aberdeen, Scotland, station succeeded in transmitting messages through to Bermuda, where the announcement and following piano solos were heard clearly.

GERMANS STUDY FADING

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Despite the hearty coöperation of radio fans in the Berlin sector to aid engineers in discovering fading causes, the experts state that they are no nearer a definite knowledge of the causes. More than 40,000 letters have been received giving data as to the time and duration of the fading effects.

Numerous methods have been tried out in a hope of finding that the fading occurs in certain sectors, but the data on hand repudiate that theory. Senders also cannot be blamed since numerous sets are broadcasting continually without fading breaks.

Experts believe the fading effects are largely due to crystal sensitiveness and shifting caused by slight jarring which is not perceptible to the human sense. The fact that tube sets report a greater percentage of undisturbed reception leads to this belief.

BERRIEN PLANS SPECIAL PROGRAM FOR 'LIGHTHOUSE'

In dedication of its new call letters, WEMC, the broadcasting station of the Emmanuel Missionary college, Berrien Springs, Mich., will give a special program from the rose room studio, featuring its "Radio Lighthouse Music Makers," together with the "Twin City Whispering Contest," in which the merchants of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, Mich., will give an elaborate list of prizes to the radio fans all over the United States, tomorrow, starting at 9 and ending at 11 o'clock, central standard time.

"The Radio Lighthouse," heretofore, has been known as station KFGZ, but recently has had its call letters changed to WEMC, significant of Emmanuel Missionary college.

Cleveland Station Sold to Goodyear Co.

WJAX, operated by the Union Trust company of Cleveland, O., has been sold to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O. The call of the station will be changed to WEAR, and the formal transfer made on the night of Jan. 15.

The Goodyear company will continue broadcasting a program practically under conditions that have prevailed from the beginning and the Union Trust company will send out financial and other reports through the station as at present.

We are making radio frequency loss tests of condensers, coils, etc., for radio manufacturers.

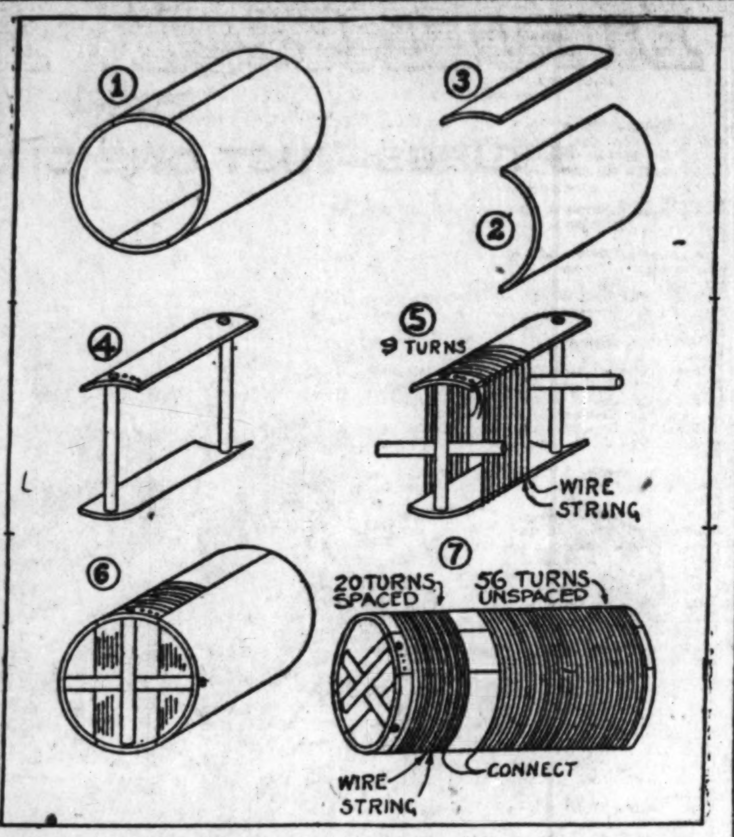
NEW RANGER COIL FORM



The preceding illustrations should give the inexperienced a clear idea of how to wind the IXL Chicago Tribune Ranger coil. This coil embraces the combination of loose and tight coupling between primary and secondy, protected by a patent held by Dr. Ralph S. Piper, who has designed the secondary, on suggestions made by the radio editor of The Tribune, to meet the requirements of the Ranger. Explanation of the above figures follows:

Figure 1 shows cardboard tubing, 3 inches inside diameter and 6 inches long. This is the initial tube for winding the IXL Tribune Ranger coil according to the design of Dr. Piper. The lines indicate cuts 1½ inches apart to be made on two sides of the tube, so that these two sections, 1½ inches wide, may be removed.

Figures 2 and 3 show two of the four segments of the tubing.

Figure 4 shows the two 1½ inch wide segments joined by hard rubber, bakelite, or cardboard tubes or strips. It is best to cement these to the cardboard tubing with collodion. Try to avoid use of screws.

SECOND RADIO WORLD'S FAIR TO OPEN SEPT. 14

Definite dates for the second radio world's fair, which is to take place in New York City next fall, have been announced by Directors James F. Kerr and U. J. Herrmann. Both are in Chicago completing arrangements for the fourth annual Chicago radio show, which is also one of their enterprises.

This year's international wireless exposition will open on Monday noon, Sept. 14, and continue until Saturday night, Sept. 19. It will be held in the 258th field artillery armory, the largest building of its kind in America.

The radio world's fair of 1925 will occupy 180,000 square feet of floor space. There will be elaborate displays by 235 radio manufacturers, including sixty of the best known wireless concerns of Europe, South America, and the orient, which is almost 100 more than participated in the 1924 fair. Fourteen different foreign countries will have exhibits.

Iowa University to Broadcast Recitations

WHAA, Iowa City, will broadcast direct from the classrooms of the University of Iowa, beginning Feb. 4.

AMATEURS WORK ON HARVARD'S BIG STADIUM TOP

High Antenna and Shack Built There.

New York, Jan. 10.—[Special.]—While broadcast listeners are in tune with music there are hundreds of amateurs sitting at home talking across the continent and across the Atlantic. Amateur stations total about 18,000 in the United States, and the average broadcast listener is not aware of the multitude of words radiated by amateur transmitters. Instructions for short wave transmission and the hours when some of the low waves can be heard have been issued by the American Radio Relay league.

Uses High Antenna.

Station 1-AF—1-XJ, Harvard Wireless club, Cambridge, is on the air, having erected two fifty-five foot poles and a shack on top of the stadium, which makes the antenna top 125 feet high. The operating staff consists of about twenty-five members and experts to keep watch at noon hour and about 6 to 2 every night, eastern standard time. Other stations are:

NKF [U. S. naval radio research laboratory "Bellevue"], Anacostia, D. C. [54.3 meters], Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, 8 to 8:10 and 9 to 9:10 p. m., eastern standard time; 72 to 82 meters Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, 8 to 8:30 and 9:30 to 9:40 p. m., eastern standard time. Exact wave length will be announced during each test. 54.3 and 32 meters, simultaneous transmission, daily except Sundays, beginning at 10 p. m., eastern standard time, working traffic with NPL.

Want Reports.

1-XAM [J. L. Reinartz, 371 Hartford road, South Manchester, Conn.]; 25 meters, daily from 6 to 7 p. m., eastern standard time; 55 meters, daily from 7 to 8 p. m., eastern standard time. Both transmissions by semi-automatic transmitters.

Observations and reports forwarded to the Radio Relay league headquarters, Hartford, Conn., should cover the date, hour and minute, wave length, audibility, steadiness, interference encountered, and the weather.

Walter Evans to Talk of Station Development

The next meeting of the radio section of the Electric Club of Chicago will be held in parlor F, Morrison hotel, on Tuesday, at 7 p. m. Walter C. Evans, chief engineer of station KYW, will give an illustrated talk on "The Broadcasting Station of Yesterday and Today."

Ranger Enthusiast Telegraphs for Coil Windings

One Ranger enthusiast telegraphs to The Tribune from Red Wing, Minn., urging that coil dimensions for the IXL type, to suit a seventeen plate condenser, be printed in the radio section this Sunday. For this correspondent's benefit, and for others with a similar problem, they are advised to subtract five turns from the secondary winding from the grid end of the coil, the spaced winding section being the filament end. The tap for neutralization is made, in this case, at the seventeenth turn of the spaced section.

For 23-plate condenser, the winding should have ten turns less than those given for the .00035, or 13-plate condenser.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[To the Radio Editor.]—I have read a number of articles on interference, power increase, hence this letter.

Every one who wishes has a right to request a license to operate a broadcasting station. That means there will be more broadcasters from time to time. The idea of a broadcasting station is without a doubt to advertise, to which they have a perfect right. The size of their advertisement depends on their ability to reach out, therefore we have requests for 5,000 watt stations. They want to advertise their wares and therefore want all the time on the air that they can get and all the power they can get. To my mind they are asking just twice as much as they are entitled to. A good solution at this time would be to split with them. That is, give them 2,000 watts, maximum limit, and cut their time limit on the air. For instance, our KYW station is on the air from 7 p. m. to 2:30 a. m. without interruption, which is outrageous. Three hours a night is all that any station should be on the air.

Now as to power. We cannot educate the blooper. We've been at it one year, and to my mind he's getting worse instead of better. You cannot make a manufacturer give up making regenerative receivers. More power will overcome this type of interference, and you cannot put up a better argument.

An article in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Dec. 28 says the radio supervisor has the power to stop this interference. Well, in answer to this I can show you a letter from the supervisor stating he has no power to stop this interference—what can you say to that?

I mentioned in the fore part of this letter an increase in power to 2,000 watts and will tell you why I am in favor of increased power. The demand of the listener, that is, the advanced listener, with reference to a receiver is one capable of good DX. It must possess good tone quality and operate a loud speaker on DX stations. As conditions are at present he can get loud speaker operation on west coast stations satisfactorily on an average of one night a week. Why? Because he is hampered by fading of a weak signal. If the signal was stronger he'd have better reception. If the signal is weak his receiver will go down to the "noise level" of the atmosphere and amplify the noise together with the signal. If the signal was stronger there would be no need to go down to the noise level, and the result would be very gratifying. I would call that ideal DX reception. Therefore if the broadcasters are given additional power (but reasonable, and I think 2,000 watts is reasonable) it certainly means better radio for every one. On top of my argument I might say I am using a "super."

In summing up the situation the answer for better radio is: Keep high power code off the broadcast band. Increase the power of the broadcast stations within reason. Make the listener get a more selective receiver. His opportunity for making one is published in all newspapers for his benefit. If he is incompetent he can have one made for a nominal sum. Increase in power will of course automatically solve this. He will complain for a while, but he will in time choose a selective outfit. Reduce the time limit for all stations to three hours a night. Why not? The amateur has limited time; why not the broadcaster? There will be plenty of DX stations for DX fan to fish for in all zones with less interference. He will get more kick when PWX comes in on the loud speaker oftener. Where two or more stations are operating at the same time, separate the wave sufficiently to prevent interference. If this is impossible, change their schedule, but give them all the same length of time. KYW is no better than W-G-N in this respect, or any other, but seems to have the preference as to time.

Well, I've had my lengthy say-so, hoping the majority agree with me. If not, here's hoping for better radio.

Congratulations on W-G-N's sharp tuning and to their operators; I'd like to say the same for your co-partner in wave length. W. A. M.

NOTED SPEAKER TO BE AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

MABEL SHARP HERDIEN.

Prof. D. J. Evans of the First Baptist church, Kansas City, Mo., will be the chief speaker at the Sunday Evening club tonight. His subject will be "The Irresistible Christ."

The program starts at 7 p. m. and is broadcast by Westinghouse station KYW. Besides Prof. Evans' talk, Clifford W. Barnes, president of the club, will also address the audience.

The program will commence with a preliminary solo by Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon. Organ recitals will be by Stanley Martin. "The Lost Chord" will be sung by a choir of one hundred under the leadership of Edgar Nelson, as well as other selections. Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdien will also sing a solo, "Great Peace Have They."

KDKA Experiments with Wave Lengths

KDKA, Pittsburgh, is now using the 316 meter wave length. The change is experimental and other wave lengths may be tested within the next few weeks. The official wave of KDKA is still considered 326 meters.

COAST to COAST on SILVER SETS
Coast to coast reception with loud speaker volume is not an unusual performance for SILVER SETS. It is what thousands of them are doing every day. We expect it. The fans who built these sets expect it. We promised coast to coast reception when we introduced the Silver Super and the Four Tube Knockout, and the letters we receive, the enthusiastic builders who come into our store furnish daily proof of the consistent fulfillment of our promise.
You too, can own one of them. You need no technical knowledge. Only three simple tools are required. Examine the SILVER SUPER and the KNOCKOUT SET in our store. See how easy they are to buy—to build—to operate.
THE SILVER SUPER
The set Capt. John Irwin, Pilot of Radio Broadcast's "Covered Wagon" used on his trip across the country. Arthur Lynch, Editor of Radio Broadcast, called it an "Electrical Masterpiece." Gerald M. Best and M. B. Sleeper have recommended Silver Super Parts. Iverson C. Wells will give a complete account of it in the January 17 issue of Everybody's Radio Weekly. You, too, can have the "Seven-tube Wonder Set" that is used by experts. Complete parts for the Silver Super $63.60
THE FOUR-TUBE KNOCKOUT
Does everything on a seventy-foot antenna that a Silver Super will do on a loop. One builder got KGO, KFI, KHJ, and KGW, through the locals, on the loud speaker. One logged twenty-seven stations in daylight, with loud speaker volume. Can be used with dry-cell or storage battery tubes. For the man who is less mechanically inclined, this is the set to build. It represents the very ultimate efficiency possible with four tubes.
Complete parts for the FOUR-TUBE KNOCKOUT $43.50
THE SILVER-MARSHALL TUBE-TESTING SERVICE
The Silver-Marshall tube testing service is absolutely free. Each tube sold is tested with a laboratory measurement set, that tells its mutual conductance and voltage amplification factor—the most important tube characteristics. Bring in your tubes and have them tested—by experts.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Foreign Missions Conference to Be Held in Washington

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

A FOREIGN missions conference, with at least 5,000 accredited delegates, representing 114 foreign missionary societies, thirty-one women's foreign missionary organizations, and fourteen missionary colleges, will be held in Washington, D. C., Jan. 28-Feb. 2. More communions will be represented in this gathering than in any other ever held in this country, it is stated by the convention officers. Speakers will be present from Europe, Canada, the United States, and the mission fields of the world. President Coolidge has promised, conditioned, of course, on affairs of state, to address the convention. J. H. Oldham, London, editor of the International Review of Missions and noted as an author and R. W. Rowell, K. C., of Toronto, will be among the visiting speakers.

The churches gave last year from $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 to foreign missions, and the convention leaders will discuss the best methods of making these gifts effective. The 25,000 missionaries representing the various Christian churches in all parts of the world are engaged not only in preaching but in healing, agriculture, athletics, education, and in many forms of social service. They represent many millions who will be interested in the Washington convention.

The First Church of the Brethren (Dunkards) will rededicate their finest church in Chicago, at South Central Park avenue and Congress street, with services today at 10:30 a. m., 4 and 7:30 p. m. The building is the one formerly owned by the First United Presbyterian church, which has moved to Oak Park and is erecting a new building. The property was given to the Church of the Brethren by Mrs. Mary Fahrney, 414 Forest avenue, Oak Park. The congregation added $25,000 in alterations, among other things putting in a new baptistry and new decorations. The pastor is the Rev. Forest F. Eisenbise. The Rev. C. D. Bonsack, secretary of the general mission board, Elgin, Ill., will speak today at 10:30, and Dr. C. C. Ellis of Juniata college, Huntington, Pa., will speak at 7:30. Several speakers, including former and visiting pastors, will speak at 4 p. m. Special services will be held every evening this week.

The world service commission of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held at the Chicago Beach hotel Jan. 20-22. Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Chicago, will preside. Bishop Frederick T. Keeney, Omaha; Bishop E. L. Waldorf, Kansas City; Bishop F. J. McConnell, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Bishop Herbert Welch, Japan-Corea, will be present. Representative ministers and laymen from all sections of the country, a total of seventy-five, will also participate in the work of the commission.

Dr. David Jones Evans, pastor First Baptist church and leader of a Bible class in Kansas City, Mo., of more than 2,000 members and who became nationally known when in an attendance contest with Pasadena he spoke through amplifiers to 52,000 men, will be the speaker this evening at 8 o'clock at the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall. His subject will be "The Irresistible Christ." At 7 o'clock Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston, recently selected in a national poll as one of the twenty-five most influential ministers in the United States, will speak on "The Younger Generation and the Bible." John Nuveen will assist in the opening service.

The Rev. Harold Francis Branch, pastor of the Albany Park Presbyterian church, North St. Louis avenue and Ainslie street, will begin this evening a series of sermons based on the world masterpieces of painting. A picture of the painting discussed will be given each attendant. This evening the subject is "Holman Hunt's 'The Light of the World.'"

BISHOP F. J. M'CONNELL, D. D., LL. D.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell is bishop of the Pittsburgh Pa., area of the Methodist Episcopal church. He will be one of the four leading representatives of his dennomination to speak at a banquet under the auspices of the Chicago Methodist Social union at the Drake hotel the evening of Jan. 19. At this banquet Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of the Chicago area will be toastmaster. The other speakers will be Bishop Herbert Welch, Seoul, Corea, and the Rev. E. Stanley Jones, D. D., special evangelist to educated Hindus and Mohammedans in India. Bishop McConnell is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university and the Boston University School of Theology. He was president of De Pauw university when elected a bishop in 1912. He is the author of at least eight books and noted for his interest in the industrial situation. Bishop Welch was president of Ohio Wesleyan when elected a bishop in 1916. He has been bishop in Seoul eight years. Dr. Jones is one of the few ministers who refused to be elected a bishop. He preferred, he said, to be evangelist rather than bishop in India. Clarence Brown is president of the social union.

The Rt. Rev. W. Blair Roberts, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of South Dakota, will preach today at Trinity church, Aurora, and this evening at Batavia. Other engagements will be: Tomorrow morning, St. Chrysostom's, Chicago; Tuesday, Church of the Atonement, Chicago, and St. Mark's, Geneva; Wednesday, Grace, Hinsdale, and St. Christopher's, Oak Park; Thursday, Rotary club, Elgin; next Sunday, Christ church, Waukegan.

At the meeting of the Episcopal clergy tomorrow morning at St. Chrysostom's, 1434 North Dearborn street, plans will be laid for raising the $200,000 still needed for the building of the Western Theological seminary at Evanston, Ill. The amount already raised is $400,000. It is hoped the seminary will open next fall. The Rt. Rev. S M. Griswold, suffragan bishop, will be in charge of the campaign plans.

The Chicago local of the Walther league of the Lutheran church will meet today at 3 o'clock in the First St. Paul's church, 1301 North La Salle street. New officers will be installed and preparations made for the annual convention next month.

The memory of the late Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church will be perpetuated by the institution of a new Bishop Fallows Memorial lodge of Good Templars on Jan. 26. A meeting and banquet will be held at the Morrison hotel.

The Gideons, Christian Commercial Travelers, will occupy twenty-five pulpits on the north side of Chicago today. Friday and yesterday the national cabinet of the Gideon association was in session at the La Salle hotel.

Noonday Bible classes for men will be held every day except Saturday and Sunday at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. The leaders will be Frank O. Beck, George L. Robinson, Robert Clements, C. R. Bearmore, and Charles R. Goff. More than 500 men have agreed to attend.

The Rev. Elmer L. Williams will speak today at 11 and the Rev. C. F. Kleihauer at 8 at the Waveland Avenue Congregational church, Waveland and Janssen avenues. The pastor, the Rev. E. L. Reiner, is in Indiana conducting an evangelistic campaign.

Dr. E. L. Dondanville will celebrate mass today for the first time as the pastor of the new St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic church at Washington boulevard and Le Claire street. The new church represents an expenditure of $360,000, and ranks among the finest in the archdiocese. Father Dondanville succeeds as pastor the late Rt. Rev. Mgr. Daniel Luttrell, who died recently after having erected the new church in which he hoped to celebrate the first mass on Christmas.

Father Dondanville has been for three and a half years pastor of Maternity church, B. V. M., at North and Monticello avenues. On June 4, 1923, Father Dondanville celebrated his silver jubilee as a priest by laying the corner stone of a $60,000 convent. Previous to this pastorate he was at St. John's, 18th and South Clark streets for seven years. He is a graduate of Niagara university, New York, and on his silver jubilee received from the university the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

He was ordained by the late Archbishop Quigley, then bishop of Buffalo. He is known as a student of books and of outdoor life, in which he has specialized.

An Eastern Star service, attended by women of that order, will be held this evening in the Avondale Methodist Episcopal church, George street and North Spaulding avenue. The pastor, the Rev. T. K. Griffith, will preach.

The Rev. James P. Cannell becomes pastor of Maternity Catholic church, B. V. M., as the successor of Dr. E. L. Dondanville, transferred to St. Thomas Aquinas. Father Cannell comes from the pastorate of St. Bernard's parish, Joliet, Ill. He was born in Rockford, Ill., and was ordained by Bishop Muldoon in 1901. He was educated at Dubuque college, the University of Notre Dame, and St. Mary's Theological seminary, Baltimore, Md.

The Rev. R. B. Favoright has become pastor of the First Baptist church, Maywood, after four years of service of First church, Jerseyville.

The Kiwanis clubs of Illinois and eastern Iowa have designated next Sunday as go-to-church Sunday when every member is expected to attend some church. The Chicago clubs have designated today as go-to-church Sunday. Many will observe both today and next Sunday.

The Berwyn Presbyterian church is expecting to dedicate its new building on Feb. 22. Dr. Edgar P. Hill, Philadelphia, formerly of Chicago, will preach the dedicatory sermon. The Rev. George D. Prentice is pastor. The old church building has been sold to the Concordia Evangelical Lutheran church of Berwyn.

Congregational state superintendents of the middle west will meet next Friday and Saturday in Chicago to discuss the program and the financing of the large promotion policy of the Chicago Theological seminary located near the campus of the University of Chicago. There will be a luncheon at the City club on Friday noon. On Saturday the meetings will be held at the Carleton-Cooper hotel. Questions relating to the right kind of men for the ministry and the kind of training they need will be among the questions discussed. Dr. Ozora S. Davis is president of the seminary.

"Keeping Pace with the Growth of Chicago"

THE NEW MORRISON HOTEL

To Be the Largest—and Most Economical—in the World

A "sky-lease" will enable the New Morrison to maintain on a far larger scale its present policy of renting rooms for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 elsewhere. Valuable store-subleases have made this possible to a certain degree for several years; but facilities will be greatly increased by the new Clark St. addition, which will contain 850 rooms—400 in the tower, practically without ground rent

The present capacity (1,054 outside rooms, each with bath) will eventually be 3,400, making the Morrison the largest hotel on earth

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, "Chicago's Wonder Restaurant," the famous "dance-and-dine" rendezvous. The artists engaged for the week beginning Monday, Jan. 12th, are as follows

EUNICE HARPER
Grand Opera Soprano
Offering Classical and Popular Solos
GEORGE and MAY LA FEVRE
In International Dance Creations
ROBERT K. HEEN
Famous Hawaiian Baritone

Dancing between the acts to the music of
FRED HAMM and HIS ORCHESTRA
(A Benson Organization)
Reserve your table by calling STATE 8700

Mardi Gras BY BOAT!

No trip, anywhere, combines so many interesting, delightful and unique features as this annual Steamer Cruise to and from the wonderful Mardi Gras festival at New Orleans.

Cruise in comfort and safety aboard the giant new steel steamer "CINCINNATI," (the most modern craft on western rivers) or the stately "QUEEN CITY," on the same picturesque waters that the early pioneers navigated with so much danger & hardship. Travel from the land of Winter to the land of Summer.

The Steamers are your floating hotels the three to four days stay at New Orleans during the Mardi Gras revels. No worry about hotel reservations or baggage; nothing but genuine pleasure. Meals—the best in cookery's kingdom. Social Hostess. Orchestra. Entertainment of all sorts. A novel house-party.

The "QUEEN CITY" starts from Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 13th, and both the "CINCINNATI" and "QUEEN CITY" leave Cincinnati O., Feb. 15th, making the cruise together from that point. Round trip rates, including all expense, $150.00 and up.

Prompt reservations suggested, as it probably will be impossible to accomodate all who wish to go. Ask for beautiful illustrated booklet with full particulars. No obligation.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Each Day Adds Weight to Our Cloak of Smoke

By Mme. X.

MISS GENEVIEVE CARPENTER.
[Moffett Photo.]

MISS THEODORA WINTERBOTHAM.
[Raymor Photo.]

MRS. JOHN VINCENT.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Three young society women who are known in and out of their own intimate circles as possessing intelligence and charm in a marked degree are Miss Genevieve Carpenter, daughter of the John Alden Carpenters of 700 Rush street; Miss Theodora Winterbotham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham of 67½ Rush street, and Mrs. John A. Vincent of 11 East Division street, who is the former Miss Josephine Myers.

Miss Carpenter is responsible for the designing of many of the costumes worn in the Junior league children's plays, the fourth of which—"The Sleeping Beauty"—opened yesterday morning at the Playhouse.

The engagement of "Dodo" Winterbotham to Shreve C. Badger was announced last month, and the wedding is to take place some time in the near future. Miss Winterbotham and Miss Carpenter, who are cousins (Mrs. Carpenter having been the former Rue Winterbotham), are to attend the wedding in Lexington, Ky., on Saturday of Miss Marjorie Cox of that city to Jay N. Whipple of Evanston.

Mrs. Vincent is of such enterprise that she spends half of her days serving in the capacity of saleswoman in one of the Michigan avenue women's clothing shops and besides finds time to assist in the work in connection with the production of "The Sleeping Beauty."

THESE are the days of all the 365 of the year which most emphatically emphasize one of the greatest drawbacks to living in Chicago, one of the most impelling considerations which make our well to do citizens abandon the city when the time comes that they can pick and choose a place of abode—namely: our stifling, filthy, unwholesome, costly, destructive, and utterly unendurable smoke nuisance.

Why have we more murders in this city than in any other in the world of a similar size? Answer: the smoke nuisance. Why have we so many automobile accidents here? Answer: the smoke nuisance. Why have we so many suicides here? Answer: the smoke nuisance. Why does it cost more to dress here than anywhere else in the land? Answer: the smoke nuisance. Why do housekeepers grow old and worn before their time? Answer: the smoke nuisance. Why did that entertaining British artist, Jack Elliott, who married Julia Ward Howe's daughter, Maude Howe, concoct his immortal story about the Chicagoite who died and went to the next world? Answer: the smoke nuisance.

What! You don't know the story? Well, here it is. A loyal son of Chicago after death looked about the scene in which his wandering spirit found itself.

"Dear me!" said the ghost. "This looks very pleasant and homelike. I used to think that there was no place quite so nice as Chicago, but I declare, heaven looks just as good to me."

Said a nearby wraith in angry tones, "You poor boob! This isn't heaven; this is hell."

Out of a Thousand Chimneys.

The Jack Elliotts faded away from Chicago years and years ago, but this little quip still is apropos of our poor slut of a town that is preparing such handsome garments for herself, quite oblivious of the fact that fine clothes on a dirty body are neither beautiful nor suitable. All the most magnificent architecture in the world will be as nothing if it is to be shrouded in an ever thickening mantle of unconsumed carbon. Michael Angelo's finest sculpture would soon look grotesque and out of place on our widest boulevards in the streaked black and gray coatings that would spread over it in a few years.

What should be one of the city's loveliest adornments, the foliage of Grant park, has long ago been destroyed and made ludicrous by the choking, strangling, scorbutic smoke.

Don't tell me that scorbutic is not the right word; onomatopoetically speaking, it is just the word I want to express what I mean.

Of what use will it be to erect, as is planned, in the outer stretches of Grant park what will be the most beautiful and superb fountain in the world if it is to be befouled, besmirched, and defaced by the city's black vomit?

Out of a thousand chimneys pours Chicago's greatest curse. Has the city halitosis? I should say it had, and all the manufactured disinfectants in St. Louis can't cure it. Only a rigid, unremitting enforcement of what smoke laws we have and the enactment of more efficient ones will avail us if we desire to be an attractive place of residence for people with decent standards of living. To this end the smoke abatement department of the city will have to be provided with a much larger budget and a much bigger working force than any that it has ever had.

Dry cleaners, house decorators, hair shampooers, throat specialists, soapmakers et al. may perhaps disagree with me on the necessity of this purification of the atmosphere. But what they might lose in income in a purified Chicago would be made up to them by the decrease in their own daily living expenses. So here's urging everybody to unite in a clamor against this infliction which shall rise to the top of the tallest chimney and descend to the furnace room of every factory and other offender until the engineers and stokers shall be just as interested as everybody else in ending the present condition.

Art in Chicago.

In spite of this harangue on Chicago's unesthetic qualities this p. p. p. must admit that the little old town goes on developing its art, music, and literature at as great a rate as if it had the vivid skies, the pure air, and classic environments of Athens. One of the most interesting examples of this interest in and knowledge of the rare and beautiful is the Chinese exhibit now going on at the Arts club and which was opened last Wednesday afternoon by a numerously attended reception of the members of the club.

The collection belongs to C. T. Loo of New York, and includes some of the most priceless and remarkable treasures that have ever been brought to Chicago. Rare bronzes, potteries, paintings, statues, fabrics, jewelry, and other objets d'art were arranged about the galleries with the utmost subtlety so that the visitor felt immediately the atmosphere of that most ancient, most intricate, and interesting of civilizations, the Chinese. Beside the Chinese we Americans seem half baked, crude, shallow, like a rollicking little stream beside a deep, dark still mountain tarn. Any one can see to the bottom of the little rivulet. No one can fathom the depths of the mountain tarn.

Some of the most exquisite and beautiful of the exhibits date back to over 3,000 years before Christ. All of them have that inscrutable, mysterious, strange, often grotesque charm which characterizes oriental art as we see it. It excites one's fancy to study such a collection. The mere names for the different periods of Chinese art intrigue the imagination. The Chou, Tang, Ming dynasties must have been wonderful eras of imagination and achievement, to judge from the things that bear their labels today.

The company that was gathered to inspect the exhibit last Wednesday was an unusually cosmopolitan one. Mr. Loo himself was there to show and explain his collection. He is a courteous, dignified, agreeable representative of his race. While I was talking with him, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Bolm, the well known Russian artists of the dance, joined us. Not far off was Prince Kojo Tovalou-Houenou, son of the king of Dahomey (or is he emperor of this African domain?), a tall, well built, interesting looking African, dusky, with a rather melancholy but extremely intelligent air. He speaks French exquisitely, is a French lawyer; a director of a French periodical called Les Continents. He is president of the "Ligue Universelle Pour La Defense de la Race Noire" (league for the protection of the black race); he is also one of the lecturers at the Sorbonne in Paris, and is one of the striking figures of the French African possessions. He gives illuminating talks on the customs, beliefs, and manner of thinking of his race.

To return for a moment to the Arts club exhibit, never did those charming new rooms look more attractive than they do as a setting for this exotic and remarkable collection. It is a real event in Chicago's art world.

Good Pictures in Schools.

Apropos of matters artistic is the loan portrait exhibit which Mrs. Walter Brewster is getting up for the Chicago Public School Art society. It will open on Jan. 23 in the Chester Johnson galleries, 700 South Michigan avenue, with a reception for which tickets will be sold at $5 per, which will make it a select and swell occasion. There will be a group of can-

The Latest French Style Notes are Evident in this Sale of Women's and Misses' New Spring Frocks
At Special Prices $35 $45 $55

The smartest of the Spring frocks are in this sale, portraying the smartest style tendencies. The Dark, Natural and Pastel colors are Fashion's last word, and the Satins, Kashmer, and Crepe Satins are the most fashionable of fabrics. Another distinctly smart note in fabrics is "prints" and they appear in many different guises. Other interesting new style features are the jabot, the godet, the Chanel pleats, the button down the front frock, a flower Boutonniere in the Paris manner, straight line with narrow pleated flounces at the hem, and scores of others too numerous to mention. The materials and prints in various patterns are Natural, Black, and White, besides the pastel colors. Sizes: 14 to 18, 36 to 44.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

vases by Glyn Philpots, including portraits of Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. R. R. McCormick, and Mrs. Waller Borden's daughter. Also a water color portrait of Mrs. William James by John Sargent, the superb Manet portrait of Antonin Proust, portraits by Augustus John, Zuloaga Lautrec, and others.

The committee in charge of the affair includes, besides Mrs. Brewster, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Mrs. Parmelee McFadden, Mrs. Russell Matthias, Mrs. John Winterbotham, Mrs. Theodore Tieken, and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Miss Alice Roullier and Robert Allerton, Arthur Heun, Martin Ryerson, William McKie, and George F. Porter.

The Public School Art society aims to introduce into our schools some knowledge of and love for art by arranging to have good pictures exhibited on the walls of the schools. The society has induced the board of education to provide in each new school building a special room for exhibiting collections of pictures and other works of art, and in many of the classrooms there will be made space adequate to having one or more pictures hung so as to give the children in their formative years something on which to rest their eyes.

The habit of looking at good works of art in time breeds an appreciation for this, in preference to inferior art. The society arranges for traveling exhibits of loan collections which go about from school to school and which have met with an unexpectedly enthusiastic welcome from the children in these schools. It is an interesting idea, and seems to be working out to the advantage of the youth of the city.

Of Matters French.

There are many in Chicago who still cherish the Franco-American entente which was so in the front of our minds a few years ago. Here in Chicago there is even more reason than elsewhere to emphasize our French affiliations. We were discovered by the French in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The first white folk that trod our streets were French missionaries and explorers. So the Alliance Française, the Cercle Français, and the other French societies here have a good reason for being.

It is in the interests of the first named of these societies that Henry Patten is giving a luncheon tomorrow at the Casino to about fifteen or twenty women who have always been interested in matters French. Mr. Patten is honorary president of the Alliance Française. Mrs. George W. Dixon is head of the board of directors, which includes many well known persons. The Alliance is an interesting and thriving enterprise.

E. S. U. Luncheon.

It isn't until you travel across the sea and visit London that you realize the large place the English Speaking union occupies in the minds and hearts of one-half of this great and important lingual union. The headquarters of the society in London at 1 Charing Cross are delightfully central and most attractive. They are a great rendezvous for visiting Americans who are often welcomed there by distinguished Britishers. The latter make it their business to give éclat to this fraternal organization. It was founded shortly after the world war.

That extremely attractive man, Maj. Evelyn Wrench of England, was as much a parent of the organization as any other individual, though Lord Balfour, who was its first president; Maj. George Haven Putnam of New York, William Howard Taft, later chief justice, and the then American ambassador to Great Britain, John W. Davis, were among those deeply interested in founding the enterprise. Chief Justice Taft was first president of the American branch of the E. S. U. Its present head is George W. Wickersham. President of the Chicago branch is Frank H. Scott.

The rapid development of the society is evidenced by the fact that its American membership has grown in two years from 2,500 to 9,000, a membership that is distributed among twenty-six branches, situated in all parts of the country, from Maine to Georgia, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The aim of this international organization is to establish a better understanding and to promote a good fellowship among the English speaking democracies that encircle the globe. This it undertakes to do in various ways: by social gatherings, by interesting addresses made by well equipped persons, by carefully organized headquarters in the principal communities in the two countries, and by a personal element which has, in the long run, more effect than anything else.

Visiting Americans in London, especially those who are members of the English Speaking union, have many more opportunities for seeing unusual and interesting places, monuments, and institutions in England than they would have if it weren't for the London headquarters of the union. In the same way, though to a lesser degree, visiting Britishers in this country have many a look in on our country and its customs and manners which they might otherwise lack if there were no American branch of this union.

MISS VIRGINIA SMITH.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Smith of 3314 Sheridan road of the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Margaret, to James Wright Martin, son of Mrs. James Martin of 106 Bellevue place.

All this is to preface the announcement that the Chicago branch of the union is soon to have the opportunity of meeting at luncheon and later hearing talk Miss Sarah Wambaugh, a remarkable fellow countrywoman of ours. She has had unusual opportunities to become acquainted with much inside international "dope." She was a member of the secretariat of the league of nations, where she served as expert adviser on questions regarding the administration of the Saar basin and the free city of Dantzig. She has met and talked with many of the great authorities on international politics, men like Lord Cecil, Dr. Benes of Czecho-Slovakia, Mr. Branting of Sweden, Dr. Nansen, Prof. Gilbert Murray, President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, Henri Jouvenel, and a lot of other wise and experienced men.

The picture of her presents an attractive personality, and she is said to be one of the most persuasive and agreeable speakers of today, so the members of the E. S. U. who can will probably flock to the luncheon which the Chicago branch is giving next Friday afternoon at 12 o'clock in the red room of the Hotel La Salle.

I forgot to say that Miss Wambaugh was the only woman asked to address the members of the Williamstown conference in the summer of 1923.

Visitors of Note.

Some more than usually notable visitors are landing on our shores just now. Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole, both ex-Chicagoites, arrived for a ten day visit with Mrs. Poole's mother, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, 6 Scott street. Mr. Poole is the well known author, and has made an international reputation from his novels, among the best known of which are "The Harbor," "His Family," and "The Avalanche." Mrs. Poole is a member of the well known Winterbotham family.

Many entertainments in their honor are filling each day's calendar. Mrs. Leverett Thompson and Miss Laura Thompson are giving a dinner at the Casino for them, before the Assembly ball next Friday evening. Miss Mary Waller is entertaining them at luncheon, also at the Casino, tomorrow.

Still other internationally well known folk who are here are the Count and Countess de Jumilhac, who arrived in Chicago yesterday. Countess de Jumilhac was Mrs. Ray Atherton ten years ago, when she and her former husband lived in Chicago and Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lasker now live in the house the Athertons built on the corner of Dearborn parkway and Burton place, while the Vaughan Spauldings own and dwell in the one the Athertons erected in Lake Forest overlooking Onwentsia's broad, green golf course.

Both as Mrs. Atherton and as the Countess de Jumilhac, the former Constance Coolidge is always one of the most striking figures and charming personalities of her environment. She radiates imagination, gentleness, originality. She does not seek notoriety, but she is always the central fact in any group of people. Just to meet her jogs the rest of this conventional, conservative, unenterprising old world of ours out of its slow pace.

Even in her manner of coming here she is unique, for, if report be true, she and her husband are on a continental motor tour. They came here by car, and are going on out to the Pacific coast in the same way, returning eastward also, if they keep their schedule, by automobile, to visit Florida en route to New York and thence back to France. The De Jumilhacs are the guests of Mrs. Waller Borden, and they, too, like the Pooles, have a calendar full of social dates.

Bolognesis Are Here.

Chicago's gay and cheerful world welcomed back two of its most popular members last week when Count and Countess Bolognesi returned from their place in northern Wisconsin to visit the countess' mother, Mrs. John Garibaldi of Astor street.

The Bolognesis are for the time retired from diplomatic life and are living in the region lying about Lake Superior, where the count and his brother, Emilio Bolognesi, are exponents of the latest methods of agriculture and raising fine cattle. They turn milk from their herds into all sorts of cheeses, some of them made from recipes that obtained among the Latins in the time of Tiberius and Cicero.

Brings Back Memories.

The news of Mrs. J. Lewis Cochran's marriage to Ellicott Evans last Tuesday in New York was of interest to all of Mrs. Cochran's friends, many of whom remembered Mr. Evans well when he lived in Chicago, several decades ago. He is a member of a well known Buffalo family, and with his brother, James Carey Evans, came here to be the Chicago representatives of the large lake shipping business which had belonged in the Evans family for one or two generations. Those were the days when lake traffic was an important part of the life of the city, before Chicago's industries had outgrown this form of locomotion so that today the passage up and down the river of its commerce has become an intolerable restraint on trade.

The Evans brothers were members of the gay young sporting set at that time. Jamie Evans, as the elder one was always called, married one of the most popular girls of that time, Miss Margaret Erskine, a sister of Albert Erskine of Chicago. Shortly after their marriage the Evanses went to live in Buffalo, where they have reared a family and are today proud grandparents of an increasing progeny. Ellicott Evans moved about the same time, on account of his health, to southern California, where he and Mrs. Ellicott Evans will live—in Pasadena—when they return from their European honeymoon.

Equity Ball Near.

Don't forget the Equity ball, which will be given on Jan. 24 (a Saturday evening) at the First Regiment armory in Michigan avenue at 16th street, and which is for the benefit of the Actors' Equity. There will be a meeting of the floor committee at the University club next Thursday afternoon, when Fletcher Durbin and Stephen Hord will get their cohorts ready for what promises to be the best of this series of annual balls. The actors are planning a program of stunts which will give a snap, a variety, and gayety to the evening not excelled in any other ball of the season. It will be a great show. Be sure to go.

It was too late for record by this p. p. p. when the Pagan ball lights went out yesterday morning, but the expectation was that it was to be the supreme effort in the ball line for some years. I heard many safe and sane business men making preparations to skip all serious financial affairs the day after the ball, trusting to Saturday and Sunday to return to them that clarity of mental faculties for which Chicago business men are renowned. Therefore it is safe to announce beforehand that an enjoyable time was had by all present on Friday night at the Pagan ball in the beautiful setting prepared for it at the Congress hotel.

MISS HAZEL HEDSTROM.

[Matzene Photo.]

The engagement of Miss Hazel Hedstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hedstrom of Oak Park, to Mourton D. Case, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Case of Cleveland, O., has been announced. The wedding is to take place on Feb. 7. Miss Hedstrom attended the University of Wisconsin and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Chase is a Dartmouth man and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

MRS. A. EUGENE WINEGARD.

[Koehne Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis A. Hanagan of Rogers Park announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy, to A. Eugene Winegard, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Winegard of New York, which took place on Saturday, Jan. 3, at St. Ignatius church. Miss Mary Elizabeth Hanagan was her sister's maid of honor, and Miss Lenore Wright and Miss Harriet O'Donnell were bridesmaids. Roberta Lynn was flower girl.

I myself love fancy dress parties after I get there, but there is a cold, bleak interlude between dressing at home before an admiring audience and getting to the ante-ball dinner, or whatever is the first stage of the ball. This is occupied with explaining to the blasé elevator man why you are decked out like a freak in the dime museum, after which you try to avoid the cool, appraising eye of the taximan. Once arrived at the ball, however, the fantastic becomes the real and everyday life drops out of sight for a few hours.

Looking to the Future.

All the time that balls and other festivities are going on here there is another side to life in Chicago. Do you know of the Association of Housekeeping Centers?

It is an organization that was founded in 1909 by Mrs. Edward Yeomans and Miss Adela Barrett, and its object is to teach the young of alien birth or parentage who have been thrown on our shores by fate and industrial migrations, everything to do with a woman's job: housework, laundry, cleaning, cooking, dietetics, budget making, and kindred matters. The students even include boys in one center, and several classes of grown women are on its roster. It is one of the most constructive philanthropies in Chicago. Given a clean, well ordered house and good, wholesome cooking and many a willful lad, many a restless husband, many a wayward girl would be absent from the list of domestic offenders.

This association has five centers where its splendid classes are carried on by trained teachers: a flat at 903 May street, another at 4850 Bishop street, a third at 1615 Augusta street, a fourth at Chicago Commons, Morgan and Grand avenue, and its fifth station is at Eli Bates house, 621 West Elm street. Its president is Mrs. James Baum; first and second vice presidents are Miss Adela Barrett and Mrs. Gustavus Swift; secretary, Mrs. Arthur Bissell; treasurer, Mrs. Leeds Mitchell; supervisor, Mrs. Paul Mitchell.

It is mentioned here and now because tomorrow, under the leadership of Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, the society is starting a drive for funds with which to carry on its work the coming year. It is all very well to support institutions to care for the wrecks of this complicated civilization of ours. They have to be taken care of. But the real work, the most sensible, logical, and appealing, are those enterprises which direct their energies towards preparing and equipping the young to step forward on the great highway.

This association is something constructive and of the greatest possible value to the future. And it is to the future that we owe allegiance, though the past must not be overlooked.

MRS. RAYMOND A. RAILTON.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. Walter E. Heller is president of the woman's auxiliary to the Jewish Peoples' institute, under the auspices of which a concert will be given next Sunday evening at the Drake, with John Charles Thomas as the soloist. The proceeds will go towards the maintenance of the institute's summer camp at Loon Lake, Ill.

The Oak Park center of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago has completed plans for the annual theatrical benefit, to be held on Wednesday evening at Cohan's Grand. Mrs. Hugh R. Adams, general chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. E. W. McCready, president, and other officers.

Mrs. George W. Plummer is to preside at a club institute to be held on Jan. 29 and 30 at the Morrison hotel, under the auspices of the Chicago Federation of Women's Organizations. A detailed account of the program and speakers is contained in another column.

The third anniversary luncheon and card party given by the women of the San Callisto Social Settlement auxiliary will take place on Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock at the Hotel La Salle. Mrs. Raymond A. Railton, honorary president, is a member of the committee in charge of reservations.

Chicago Women's Clubs Will Hold School of Methods

By Kate Webber.

THE Chicago Federation of Women's organizations, feeling there must be an amalgamation of interests in common, better coöperation, elimination of duplication of work, and the directing of civic problems, has completed arrangements for a school of methods, or a club institute, to use a familiar phrase, to be held on Jan. 29 and 30 at the Morrison hotel.

The farseeing women of this great organization are recognizing the fact that women have reached the climax in a situation long existent. It is the desire of those in charge to provide in the two days of intensive study and enlightenment a real way to make the work of women nonrepeating, as nearly nonfrictional as possible, and consequently more effective. Mrs. Edward S. Bailey, president, and Mrs. George W. Plummer, general chairman, are expecting a record attendance.

The first day will be given over to the subjects of club mechanics, club membership, club affiliations, finance, club programs, and objectives of the federation. The morning session of the second day will cover legislation, junior membership, clubhouses, and a general summing up, followed by a publicity luncheon.

Mrs. George T. Palmer, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak of the advantages and disadvantages of clubhouses. Mrs. John T. Mason will have charge of the subject of legislation, assisted by Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mrs. James W. Morrisson, Mrs. R. Maynard Read, Mrs. Samuel Slade, Mrs. William Harrison Cade, and other speakers.

Mrs. Charles J. Trainor will speak on the vital subject of junior membership, which is the real road to perpetuation of each club's life and work.

The subject of club programs will be presided over by Mrs. Charles S. Clark, with Mrs. Charles Conkey and Mrs. Joseph Mayer speaking from their experiences with paid and home talent and speakers' bureaus.

Club mechanics will be in charge of Miss Jessie Spafford, and Mrs L. Cass Brown and Mrs. Maurice H. Lieber will speak. Mrs. Frederick K. Dow will be assisted in expounding club affiliation problems by Mrs. E. O. Brooks, Mrs. C. L. Holtzman, Mrs. Ignace Reis, Mrs. W. J. Grotenhuis, and Mrs. A. E. Sykes. This subject has caused much controversy in club life and no doubt will come in for a large share of discussion.

Mrs. Jacob Baur will preside over the finance session, with Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. Samuel Horner, and Mrs. A. R. E. Wyant as assistant speakers.

Club membership, with Mrs. Henry W. Hardy presiding, will be covered by Mrs. J. Marc Fowler and Mrs. Joseph J. Worker, presidents, respectively, of the sixth and first districts, and Mrs. Alfred C. Tyler.

Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin, Mrs. John Buckingham, Mrs. H. W. Hartough, Mrs. N. C. McClean, and Mrs. C. O. Sethness will have charge of the subject of "Our Objective." Club luncheons and their places in the social side of club life will be taken care of by Mrs. Harry M. Boon.

Mrs. Thomas Philip Casey, first vice president and program chairman of the Chicago federation, will have charge of the publicity luncheon, at which several speakers of prominence will shed light upon the ways and means of publicity. Mrs. H. F. Walbaum is chairman of the publicity department which, in addition to providing the luncheon program, will have a discussion at the institute sessions.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"TALKING about club speakers," began the secretary.

"We weren't," teased the member of long standing.

"We are now," insisted the secretary. "It's certainly taking a chance when you let some of them select their own subjects. I heard the other day of one who was invited to talk about whatever she wished at a mothers' club in a poor district. She told the members all about oriental rugs, and advised them not to buy any just yet, while the prices were so high. There's not the least doubt but that her advice will be followed. Most of the women haven't even rag rugs on their floors."

"I know of one who spoke before a club of very wealthy women on 'How to Live on Twenty-eight Cents a Day,'" chuckled the committee chairman.

"I attended a farmers' institute out in the poor soil district last fall," reminisced the secretary, "and listened to a home economics chairman from some city club tell the farmers' wives how to set their tables properly.

"She told them just what plates should be used in serving each course, the various kinds of silver required, and how the different forks and knives and spoons should be placed upon the table. She waxed really eloquent over it.

"During the talk a little woman who looked overworked and worried sat next to me. Her clothes were shabby, and her hands were knotted and red. To tell the truth, most of the women present had the same general appearance.

"When the speaker had finished, my neighbor turned to me, with a bewildered look on her face.

"'I don't see what any one wants of all them knives and forks and plates to oncest,' she said. 'My folks gets along plenty well with just one plate and one knife.'"

ART AND ARTISTS

Japanese Art of Charm and Grace at the Institute

When morning pressed the finger tips
Of day and garlanded the sky
With brilliant streamers, red and gold,
I launched my ships the sea to ply.

I launched my ships upon the sea,
Three ships they were—so fair, so fair—
With all the best I knew in life
I freighted them, and love to spare.

To the warm winds I set their sails,
Their prows set to an unknown shore—
When dreams wipe out the stress of day
Pray God! I see my ships once more.
E. J.

By Eleanor Jewett,

THERE is an exhibition of paintings by contemporary Japanese artists, arranged under the auspices of the Pacific Art association, in one of the rooms of the east wing gallery of the Art institute. It is rather amusing to come upon it after the fresh, vigorous painting of Ufer, who fills his preceding gallery with the breath expanding ozone of our great southwest. The differences between New Mexico and Japan are bridged by no likenesses whatever. In architecture, vegetation, soil, mountains, people, the two are continents apart. For which it is amusing to stand at the door of Japan, or of Taos, and enjoy the other as illustrated on the walls of their respective rooms at the institute.

The Japanese art finds no kinship with the paintings by Leon Kroll. His work smothers it; Bellows art murders it. The nearest approach to linking the contemporary Japanese artists with the artists of the western hemisphere is to put them beside French art. Paul Gauguin and his Tahitian pastorals—I find that opposite the picture of "Sailing Boats" by Nanko Suzuki I have commented "Gauguin in Japanese," so the relationship is obvious even at a cursory first glance at the paintings.

Naturally, as was to be expected, the Japanese work is more or less delicate in nature, refined, exact, and beautiful in detail. The influence of the west has, however, not gone for nothing. Some of the most impressive paintings undoubtedly were done by men influenced by the broader methods, in both treatment and composition, found in European and American art. To cite one prolific Japanese artist, Hiroshi Yoshida, his pictures all have a breadth, depth, and scope utterly un-Japaneselike, if the idea of the early Japanese art is to be maintained as the standard of Japanese art today.

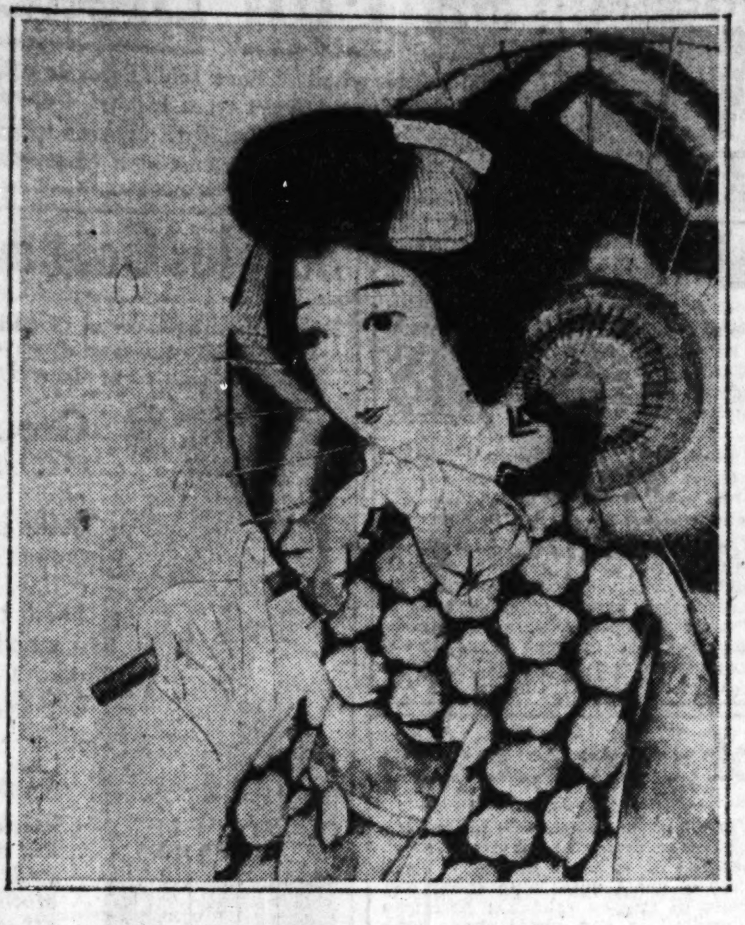
The closest approach found between Taos and Japan, by the way, is seen in a panel, not by Yoshida but by Shinija Watanabe, called "Two Sisters." Transplant the theme to Mexico, and Walter Ufer might very well have painted it. Against the background of a house wall stands a short, stout little girl, in the dress of her country, with a plump, jolly baby slung on her back. The coloring is brilliant but sane; the composition is simple but dramatic. It is one of the best paintings in the exhibit.

"Inland Sea," by Hiroshi Yoshida, to return to the artist whose contribution to the excellence of the exhibit is undeniable, is a poetic composition of boats on a placid water. So poetic is it in tendency that it gave rise to the few verses which head this column.

There are many more pictures by Yoshida to be enjoyed. Something of Troyon is found in his "Pasture," cattle fording a vanished stream. A humorous vein inspired "Chicken," a fascinating panel in which three young birds deplore the height of the brown jar in which, safe from their ravenous beaks, blooms on its stem a single rose of unmatched beauty. "Night after Rain" is a beautiful nocturne; "The Calm of the Night" brings us again in touch with the ships we launched at daybreak. To find spring in Japan is to find Japan in her happiest moment. "The Tenth of April" is one of Yoshida's loveliest landscapes. Still another is "Early Spring in Koshigaya."

Other painters must also meet with recognition. "A Gate of a Temple," by Saichi Udo, is quaint and attractive. For some obscure reason it reminds me immensely of the samplers worked a century or so ago by our great-great-grandmothers. Perhaps its air of neat completeness is responsible for this.

A landscape by Fusetsu Nakamare is delightful. An exquisite painting, a jar with chrysanthemums, by Eizo Okuse, makes an interesting study. To find action, and again a suggestion of the French, but this time the French war artist, look at "The Horse Fair," by Shinzo Kawai, and the other pictures by him along the same theme.



"Cherry Blossoms," by Asaji Yoshida, is in the exhibition of contemporary Japanese art at the Art institute. This exhibit is one of the most interesting to be found just now at the institute. It illustrates the passing of time, even in art manners. The Japanese prints, familiar to all of us, are being supplanted by a new painting, less oriental, more occidental, in nature.

Tatsumi Matsumura offers us a delightful moment with his "Chrysanthemums," in which a winsome child, very fat, in a very tight kimono, is picking flowers in a garden as charming as herself.

"Bamboo Wood," by Shinzo Kawai, is a brilliant green forest of slender lances. Mrs. Fuji Yoshida—there is a sign of modern times and western influence, to find a woman artist, and a married woman, too, featured in an exhibition—has several beautiful paintings hung. One is "The Gateway to Kasugo Shrine" and another bears the beloved title of "Chrysanthemums."

To conclude—and in concluding I acknowledge that I have left out many paintings and names that should have been included—there are also "Kyoto Oharame," by Takamura, and "Tea House in the Country," by Hachiro Nakagawa, that must not be overlooked when you go to enjoy this exhibit.

Before it is forgotten, the H. Amiard Oberteuffer whose exhibit was made mention of in last week's column inadvertently was referred to as Mr. Oberteuffer. It is far otherwise. He is Mrs. Henriette Amiard Oberteuffer and the wife of the George Oberteuffer whose paintings share the same gallery in this Art institute exhibition. Mr. Oberteuffer is a native of Philadelphia; Mrs. Oberteuffer was born in Le Havre, France. Mr. Oberteuffer is now, I am told, an instructor in painting at the Art institute.

Leon Kroll is an obvious painter on exhibit now at the Art institute. In fact, his exhibition is the first you see as you enter the east wing. He is an artist who has received much praise and public appreciation in the last few years. His work is never to be mistaken for that of any one else. He earmarks his canvases.

Here is a case of either heartily liking or disliking. Join the band wagon and rejoice in Leon Kroll, or stand aside austerely and condemn him.

Leon Kroll's paintings are decorative. Some of them tell stories; most of them are dramatic. As a colorist he is worth our closest attention. Take his "Portrait of Mrs. K." The pose is the extreme of awkwardness; the face is the face of a doll, with a twitch to the lip in commemoration of Mona Lisa's cynicism. The dress redeems it all: a gorgeous orange; thick folds from the waist, a lace collar; gray silk stockings and suede slippers; and again the wonders of the deep yellow, the orange dress.

"In New York" has a marvelous background. In finest detail the buildings of New York are visioned through a window beside which two little meaningless dolls play their trifling parts in the picture. In "Tulips" again there is opportunity for a burst of gorgeous color. Red and orange, an oasis in a sea of green leaves, the painter has taken advantage of his theme.

The landscapes are dramatic. A lavish use of paint makes them warm and impressive—sometimes they shade dangerously near to being oppressive—and their wealth of fruit and foliage belies the menacing storm that lurks in the clouded background of each canvas. Among the landscapes are "Shady Valley," "Woodstock, November," "Central Park" (the exception to the generality of color. This is as calm and gray and philosophic as a French etching), "Early June," and "The Mountain."

At the Arts club there opened last Wednesday an exhibition of archaic Chinese bronzes, potteries, and paintings from the collection of C. T. Lee of Paris and New York. It will close on Jan. 22.

The lectures given in Fullerton hall this month are as follows: On Tuesday of this week Miss Bessie Bennett, head of the department of decorative art at the institute, will speak on "Interiors and Their Composition"; Tuesday, Jan. 20, concert by members of the Chicago Symphony Quartet; Tuesday, Jan. 27, "The Enjoyment of Color" by Prof. Walter Sergent. The hour has been changed from 2:30 to 4 o'clock.

A number of new courses in various kinds of art instruction to the layman are being started this month at the Art institute. Two series of lectures have been arranged to be given by Hardinge Scholle and Dudley Crafts Watson on the subject of interior decoration. Mr. Scholle's lectures will be given on Mondays at 2:30 o'clock. The second one will be heard tomorrow. His series will be followed by the lectures given in February by Mr. Watson.

On Tuesdays at 12:45 o'clock Charles Fabens Kelley, curator of oriental art, will give a course of six lectures on "A Survey of Oriental Art." His talks started last Tuesday.

On Mondays at 2:30 o'clock Miss Claudia Upton will repeat her course of ten talks on "The Enjoyment of the Visual Arts."

On Tuesdays at 11 o'clock Miss Helen Parker is giving a course on "The Development of Portrait Painting." This will be followed by a series of talks on "The Development of Landscape Painting."

Miss Parker's course of six lectures on "Color" she is repeating by request. The lectures are given on Wednesdays at 11 o'clock.

Every other Friday at 2:30 o'clock, beginning last Friday, Miss Parker will repeat her course on "The Art Centers of Europe."

New Shampoo Keeps Blonde Hair From Darkening

Brings Back Rich Golden Beauty To Darkened Blonde Hair

A new Swedish light hair shampoo has been perfected, which not only keeps blonde hair from darkening—but which actually brings back the true, rich golden beauty to even the most faded, drab and lustreless blonde hair. This new shampoo called Blondex, is a natural product and brings its results in a natural gradual way. Ordinary shampoos often tend to make light hair appear dull, faded and unattractive looking. But Blondex is a special shampoo for light hair only. Blonde hair is always attractive—but when it becomes uncertain in color, dirty-looking, faded, it is far from pleasing. So shampoo your hair this new way, and see how much prettier, lighter, fluffier it is after the very first shampoo. Blondex is highly beneficial to both hair and scalp. Contains no injurious dyes or chemicals. Highly recommended for children's hair. Get Blondex today for small cost, and on positive money back guarantee, from all dealers, such as Buck & Rayner, Public Drug Co., Walgreen Co., Economical Drug Co., Davis Drug Co.

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

Edited by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson

MR. CYRIL BURT, psychologist to the London city council, measuring the speed of the thought of a child with a chronoscope to two-hundredths of a second.

THE NEW PSYCHOLOGY.

IT is something of a paradox that the most difficult thing the mind finds to master is the mind itself.

In recent years science has applied itself to the problem with a new keenness; much attention has been given to the special study of the mind of the child, and valuable results have been obtained from the study of animal behavior. In particular there have been many investigators at work on what has become known as the new psychology, which concerns itself largely with abnormal mental phenomena and subconscious operations — that [illegible] of mental activity which lies beyond the region of normal consciousness.

Practically all the recent work in psychology has gone to show that there are elements in our minds of which we are unconscious, and that these elements often take a greater share in shaping our behavior than do the elements of which we are directly aware. The conception of the human mind has, in fact, undergone a profound change; it is revealed as a larger and more complicated affair than we had supposed, and we now see that what we had taken to be the mind, is, in reality, a superficial although very valuable part of man's total mind.

It is not the province of psychology to explain what mind is; that belongs to the region of philosophy. Still, the great problem which holds an interest for us is concerned with the relation that exists between mind and body. Is mind independent and distinct from the body, or is it merely "an activity of the brain cells, a product of nerve stimulation"?

Mind and Matter.

Men have argued endlessly on the relation of mind and matter. To discuss, even briefly, the various theories —and there are many—would take a volume.

What the precise connection between mind and body is, no one, as yet, has been able to say with any degree of certainty. On the mechanistic view, as it may be called, the mind is a direct product of the brain, and has no separate independent existence. Every act of intelligence, every mental activity, is due to a physiological mechanism. Every thought is the result of chemical or mechanical changes in the brain; an "idea" is but an explosion or discharge of the brain cell, an emotion is an activity of the brain bursting into flame; every feeling of love, aspiration, or fear can be explained as due to purely physical changes which produce the vapor of thought, or the aroma of virtue.

Another view is that mind is a separate existence. The relation of the mind to body is, on this view, frequently held to be one of parallelism: the two series, mental and physical, are independent of each other, each runs its own course, "as two railway trains running side by side on a double track, or two rays of light projected toward the same infinitely distant point, run parallel with one another in time and space." There is no cross effect from one to the other; each is a closed system, with its own laws. When consistently held, this view does not carry us much farther than the first view; each point in the mental series must have its counterpart in the physical series; the laws that are established for the physical must also account for the psychical events.

A third view is Animism, the soul theory, the belief that there is an individual mind in each living animal body; that between the mind and its organism a vital relationship holds; that the life processes are both mental and physical; that the directing force in evolution is to be found in the minds of the individual organisms, the urge of feeling in the lower, the increasing strength of emotion and will, with the widening scope of interest and of thought, in the higher organisms. Many arguments can be brought forward both for and against this theory, but we cannot discuss these here.

Mental Processes.

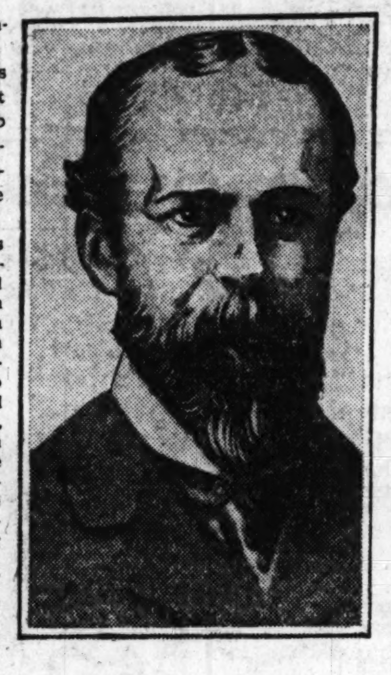
Psychology is the science of the mind, or more strictly, let us say, it is the science of the behavior of living things; it includes the study of consciousness.

In the sense that the brain receives all those nervous impulses that result in consciousness, it would be true to say that the brain is the seat of consciousness. But that does not provide a solution of the problem of the origin of consciousness.

No one doubts that consciousness has a material substratum, but the problem of the relation between the mental state and the molecular movements on nervous matter is as far from solution as in the days when little was known of the physiology of the nervous system. The old fashioned method was to assign to the mind certain so-called faculties — perception, conception, imagination, reason, will—to explain the operations which they denote. The mind has not its will here, its conscience there, and its reason somewhere else; it reasons, wills, and is conscientious as a whole. Thought, feeling and will do not lie side by side, as it were, like stones in a mosaic, any of which could be removed without destroying the rest; they rather resemble the functions of the body, none of which are possible without the cooperation of all the others.*

Another way to describe mental activity was to regard every idea as capable of existing in two conditions, or forms; on the one hand, it might be a conscious idea, or exist in consciousness; consciousness being spoken of as an illuminated chamber into which ideas enter in turn, to be lit up and active for a short period; and on the other hand, it might exist as an unconscious idea in the memory, a sort of Hades or dim underworld to which each idea, or its ghost, returns after its brief exposure to the light of consciousness; there to await and to seize any opportunity of emerging again into light and life. Within this underworld ideas remain linked together in complex groupings. The whole assembly of ideas, thus linked in the obscurity of memory, constitutes the structure of the mind; and mental activity consists in each idea dragging up after it into the light whatever ideas are linked or associated with it.†

When we come to the mind proper we may, using a purely pictorial analogy, regard it as consisting of three layers. The top layer we may call the region of the conscious life. It is, as it were, a vividly illuminated region, where everything that goes on is clearly seen. It is to this region that we normally refer when we seek the explanation of our conduct, and, as we shall see, the explanations we obtain in that way are often wrong. A little below this clear region is a semiconscious region, a region which can become accessible to us by effort. It is in this region, for instance, that the information which is not present to our minds, but which we can remember, may be considered to be stored. Sometimes the contents of this region can be exhumed only by considerable effort, sometimes a slight stimulus is sufficient. Beneath this layer, again, lies the region of the unconscious, and this region is, normally, quite inaccessible to our conscious mind. The description we have given is, of course, figurative, since we cannot suppose that the mind occupies space. But this division into layers is helpful in enabling us to understand the modern theories of the mind. The unconscious is the seat of the mental elements associated with the great primary instincts, and it is the great source of psychic energy.



THE LATE PROF. WILLIAM JAMES, professor of psychology at Harvard and investigator of psychic phenomena in America.
[L. E. A. Photo.]

Of the activities going on in it we have no direct knowledge; we can infer something, however, as we shall see later, from observation, and more especially, according to some authorities, from dreams. The unconscious is the very basis of the psychic life of the individual.

Importance of Complexes.

Mental phenomena never occur singly, but always in some complex combination or another. It will help us in understanding the nature of the mind to consider it as a network of mental elements. Every mental element, every idea as we say, which comes into the conscious mind, calls up others. There are associations of ideas, to use the language of the older psychologists. It is because ideas are associated that we are able to go about our daily lives. If no ideas suggested any others, or if others were suggested purely at haphazard, we should never be able even to cross the road. A number of mental elements associated together so as to form some more or less loosely knit system is called a complex. To some men, for instance, the sight or sound of a typewriter may always, or usually, suggest to them an office; the smell of a certain flower may always bring back some early experience, and so on. Associations of this kind—associations of ideas, as it were—are called complexes. We may think, if we like, of ideas forming groups, and the whole of the contents of the mind as made up of groups of ideas—complexes. Further, complexes vary enormously in the emotional energy associated with them. Besides the great number of minor complexes brought about by a man's education, the nature of his work, and so on, there are so-called universal complexes. These are the complexes which center round the three great primary instincts, or groups of instincts, and they are known as the sex complex, the ego complex, and the herd complex.

Complexes which directly center round a great primary instinct such as sex are associated with a great fund of emotional energy. The actual mental elements present in the sex complex of any particular man, besides depending on inherited characteristics, depend also on his personal history. The ego complex, associated with the primary instincts of nutrition and self-preservation, has most of its elements beneath the conscious level; and the same may be said of the herd complex, which depends upon the gregarious instinct in man, and which plays an enormously important part in his life, as we shall see.

Amongst the three great universal complexes the ego complex is the oldest and most profound. This is the complex with which is associated man's recognition of "his self." This powerful complex may give rise to all sorts of unpleasant manifestations, to various exhibitions of greed and of the desire of self-aggrandisement; but it also gives rise to some of the most beneficent of man's activities. Amongst these we may mention the desire for construction, for the making of something which is a personal achievement, whether it be a house, a poem, or a system of philosophy. The desire to construct has certainly been one of the most potent factors in human advancement.

The Herd Complex.

The second great universal complex is the herd complex, and this, as we have already said, depends upon the fact that man is gregarious. We do not know at what point in man's development he first developed the gregarious instinct. It must have been quite early, however, that man began to live in association with his fellows. The advantages bestowed by gregariousness are obvious. But the instinct of gregariousness brings with it certain consequences which are of the utmost importance in the psychic life of man This instinct brings with it great suggestibility. The individual, as a member of the herd, must be very suggestible to impulses coming from the herd, in order to act in harmony with it. He must be able to yield unquestioning obedience to the voice of the herd. In the case of man his rational faculty, combined with his suggestibility as a gregarious animal, leads to the most diversified manifestations. The great bulk of man's opinions are in reality strictly nonrational, and are products purely of herd-suggestion; but that does not prevent him rationalizing them. Many of them he does not trouble to rationalize. They appear to him "obvious"—as obvious as that good food is desirable; they come with instinctive force. The moral code in force in a community furnishes a set of beliefs of this kind. This set of beliefs changes from time to time and from country to country, but whatever set of beliefs may be in vogue in any particular community at any particular time is "obviously" right.

Two Main Types.

We cannot consider in detail the manifestations of the three great groups of primary instincts, but we may discuss, for a moment, two types, in one or other of which nearly every human being can be classed. These two types of human beings are called by Mr. Trotter the stable and unstable types.

The stable type is the type which is often described as forming the backbone of the country. A man of this kind is energetic, strong willed, and full of settled convictions. He is perfectly at home with the laws and traditions of the community of which he is a member. His aims are of the kind that the community as a whole can understand and approve, and he is steadfast in his pursuit of them. He has decided views on moral questions, and on political and any other subjects. He is never in doubt as to what is right and what is wrong.

The great drawback to this type is its insensitiveness to experience: it is incapable of surveying any question from an entirely fresh standpoint. Indeed, it is apt to regard the searching questioning of accepted and established things, such as a code of moralities or a system of politics, as either foolish or wicked or both. Great changes in current practice and ideas, however desirable such changes may be, cannot be effected by the class of people—and it predominates in numbers—which has the strong prevailing gregarious instinct—in other words, in which the herd-complex is strongly engrained.

The unstable type has qualities almost exactly opposite to those of the stable type. Thus, a man of this type has few settled convictions, although he may have plenty of enthusiasms. He can easily be won to a new cause, and he as easily falls away therefrom. He may undertake a number of projects, but it is unlikely he will persist with any one of them long enough to carry it to a successful conclusion. He has what is called a weak will, and he can by no means accept the ruling of the community on all questions. His great positive merit is his sensitiveness to experience, and, indeed, it is from this that all his trouble springs.

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

Edited by Prof. J. Arthur Thomson.

He is always changing his mind because he is always open to fresh impressions. He is, usually, the intellectual superior of the stable type, although the stable type often despises him. But each type has its great disadvantage, and neither represents the matter is forgotten simply because what a human being could and should be.

Conflicts.

The fact that different complexes may be incompatible with one another leads us to the important question of conflict. A perfectly healthy mind is a mind which has established complete harmony between its different complexes. But the perfectly healthy mind, in this sense, is rare; we usually find that several of a man's complexes are incompatible with one another, and on those occasions when more than one are aroused there is conflict between them. Thus it may often happen that a man's selfish desires, those springing perhaps from his ego complex or his sex complex, conflict with the moral code of the community, a code which has great weight with him because it is associated with his herd complex. Such conflicts are favorite themes for novelists: the father torn between patriotism and his love for his son; the intending monk torn between his religion and his love of his family; the man torn between an illicit love passion and his sense of morality. Conflict plays a prominent part in the psychic life of most people, and it leads to very important consequences. For the conflict must be settled, and there are two important ways of settling it. There is the method of rationalisation. One of the conflicting complexes is allowed to triumph, but not consciously. Reasons are invented for the resultant action which have nothing to do with its psychic causes, but which prevent the man from feeling "ashamed" as we say. Thus a primitive brutal desire for revenge may be disguised as justice. An exhibition of ruthless greed—as in some unscrupulous business deal, for instance—will be explained by pointing out that it is for the good of the community that its most efficient citizens should come to the top, and so with other conflicts.

Another important method of settling a painful conflict is by repression of one of its factors. It is this method which has been chiefly studied by Freud, and he has succeeded in showing how great its importance is. A man decides completely to ignore one of the conflicting complexes—he puts it out of his mind. But, as Freud has shown, the ignored complex is not thereby destroyed. It is repressed into the unconscious, but it is still energetic and may manifest its existence in a number of ways, ranging from certain phenomena of forgetfulness down to hysteria and insanity. It may happen for instance, that the repressed complex leads to a certain kind of forgetfulness, a forgetfulness of those things with which it is associated. A man may forget an appointment from which he anticipated something unpleasant he may foget the existence of unpaid bills. Such cases are cases of active forgetting, and are to be distinguished from cases of passive forgetting, where it made little impression on the mind. A slip in speaking or writing may sometimes testify to a repressed complex; the substituted word corresponding to a wish, but a repressed wish, of the speaker or writer, as when the president of the Austrian lower house announced that the sitting was closed when he should have said it was opened, the reason being that he privately expected no good from the sitting and would have liked it closed.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

Recent statistics show that there are more than 1,700 women preachers in the United States.

◆

More than 800 women are engaged in the exporting and importing business in the United States.

At the age of 77 Mrs. Annie Besant recently journeyed from London to Amsterdam by airplane.

There are thirty-eight national women's organizations in this country affiliated with the International Council of Women.

◆

At the age of 90, Mrs. Juliette Adams, frequently called the George Eliot of France, is still active with her pen.

Miss Inez M. Pugh of the United States veterans' bureau, is probably the most interviewed woman in Washington, D. C.

No woman in Tripoli is considered beautiful unless she is a heavyweight, weighing at least twice as much as the average American woman.

Miss Linnie Cooper, a sheepherder in Fresno county, Cal., recently purchased the jail at Firebaigh and will remodel it for a home.

Anna Held, daughter of the famous French actress, is one of the latest recruits among the stage folk to go into business. She operates a beauty parlor in New York City.

Alaska has eight women's clubs with a combined membership of 250.

Though she is only 16, Miss Helen Fillebrown of Plymouth, Mass., acted as cattle judge at the recent Marshfield fair.

The Portia Law school in Boston has the distinction of being the only law school maintained exclusively for women in the United States.

More than 250 women are practicing law in New York, being 10 per cent of the total number of women lawyers in the United States.

◆

Besides being accorded the distinction of being one of the most beautiful actresses on the French stage, Mlle. Gabrielle Dorsiat is also a successful dress designer.

Mrs. Walter White of Lancaster, O., claims to have baked 20,000 pies in the last twenty years, having served her husband with pie every day during that period.

◆

Mrs. Elizabeth Brooks of Bridgeton, N. J., who recently celebrated her ninety-first birthday, boasts of having read the Bible through every year during the last twenty-five.

◆

Lady Buckmaster, wife of the ex-Lord Chancellor of England, strongly supports a spread of general knowledge of home dressmaking and home cooking, even among the rich.

Columbia university has opened the door to another "trained walk in life for women under the outlined curriculum of "training course for labor inspectors."

Miss Mabel Green of London, who has been blind from birth, recently took down a 40,000 word book in Braille shorthand and then transcribed it.

◆

The title of "oldest telephone girl in New England" has been bestowed upon Mrs. Lois Dyer of Ashfield, Mass. Now past 80, she handles several hundred calls each day.

The National Association of German Housewives is demanding the enactment of a law making obligatory training in housekeeping for all girls finishing the common schools.

Mother Mary Dever has been a member of the Salvation Army in Philadelphia for a period of thirty-one years.

NEUTRODYNE—for Clearness
For realism in Radio
NEUTRODYNE
has set the standard
A 'CELLIST on the concert stage is a 'cellist in your living-room, when you have a Neutrodyne Radio Receiver. As vividly as though he were there before you in the flesh. You can feel him draw his bow across the strings, as Schubert's "Serenade" vibrates your very soul.
Without a word of exaggeration; without the slightest stretch of the imagination, the original rendition is brought to you with such fidelity of tone and feeling, you imagine you could reach out and touch the artist if you liked! Such is the marvelous Tonal Quality of Neutrodyne.
"Name your station"
Pick your program right out of the newspaper, and the Neutrodyne will pick it right out of the air. Such Selectivity! Neutrodyne cuts right through what you don't want, to get exactly what you want. Simply set the dials at predetermined numbers, and in floats the program—provided that station is on the air. And you can get that same station, night after night, at the same dial-setting.
If Distance lends enchantment, you need a Neutrodyne. For the Neutrodyne is unexcelled for long-distance reception, no matter how many powerful local stations stand between. Be assured, if anybody can tune-in anything, anywhere, you can with a Neutrodyne. Summing up, Neutrodyne has everything you want in radio and nothing you don't want—such as cat-calls and other "zoo noises." Uses either wet or dry batteries, and either outside or inside aerial.
Neutrodyne followed broadcasting
Neutrodyne was developed in 1922, after modern broadcasting was established. The three other major receiving systems were invented previous to broadcasting. They were made first for dot-and-dash code (radio telegraphy) and adapted later to broadcasting. Neutrodyne was specifically designed to receive the broadcasting of music and speeches. It did not have to be "adapted."
In order to protect the public from fraudulent Neutrodynes, the Hazeltine Corporation was formed, and Professor Hazeltine entrusted his great idea to just fourteen hand-picked, licensed manufacturers. These fourteen radio builders are grouped into one association, known as the Independent Radio Manufacturers, Incorporated. No other manufacturers may use the genuine Neutrodyne principle! Look for the Neutrodyne label on the set you buy.
If it hasn't this label, it isn't a Neutrodyne. It is there for your protection.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published, $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned. Address Best Jokes Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

No Wonder.

Traveler—I often wondered why the English were such tea hounds.

Friend—Yes?

Traveler—Yeah, but I know now. I had some of their coffee. H. L.

Approved.

The Scotsman, away on his annual vacation, was head over heels in love with a certain young girl he left behind him. At last he could stand the suspense no longer, and, going to the telegraph office, he at once sent off a telegram asking her if she would marry him. That happened in the morning, and he spent the entire day in the office waiting for a reply. Late in the evening a call came through accepting him.

"If I were you," said the operator, when at last he was leaving, "I should think twice before I'd marry a girl who kept me waiting all day for an answer."

"Na, na," retorted the Scot. "The girl who waits for the reduced night rates is the lass for me." J. W.

Told by an Orator.

"What's a orator, Rastus?"

"Don't you know?" replied Rastus in surprise. "Well, I'll tell you what a orator is. If you was to walk up to a ordinary pusson and ask him how much was two and two, he'd say 'four,' but if you was to ask one of us orators how much is two and two, he'd say, 'When in de co'se of human events it becomes necessary to take de numeral of de second denomination and add it to de figger 2, I says unto you, and I says it without fear of successful contradiction, dat de result will invari'bly be four. Dat's a orator." F. Y.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Pianos and Players.

Bissell-Weisert Co.

IMPORTANT for Bargain Hunters

Our decision to discontinue the sale of Upright Pianos offers an opportunity never before equaled to secure an Upright Piano of standing for the price ordinarily asked for the cheaper grades of Pianos. Commencing tomorrow [Monday] we will place on sale our entire stock of NEW Uprights, including such eminent makes as

CHICKERING,
KRAKAUER BROTHERS,
MILTON,

and others of recognized quality, at reductions ranging from 25% to 40% from usual prices.

At the same time we will place on sale a number of standard Grands and Uprights and Player Uprights taken in exchange during the holidays at very low prices. This lot comprises such makes as:

Steinway, Weber,
Mason & Hamlin,
Krakauer Brothers,
Knabe, Everett,
Chickering
and other prominent makes.

Also during this sale we will offer at a great reduction several Ampico Uprights and Grands which have been used for demonstrating purposes only—in the Chickering and Marshall & Wendell makes.

Prices on used Uprights from $75 upwards.

Prices on used Grands from $300 upwards.

During this sale we will allow unusually liberal installment terms.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A REAL SALESMAN TO MAKE BIG MONEY!

Only a Salesman who can meet and talk to Presidents of substantial Concerns on a basis of equality is invited to answer this advertisement.

We are an old established, large, highly rated CONCERN, the acknowledged leader in our line. You have seen our full page national advertising in Forbes', Nation's Business, Management, etc.

We belong to the most responsible National and Local Business Organizations.

We are a well known and reliable corporation that enjoys the patronage of Eastman Kodak, American Express, Statler Hotels, General Electric, Brunswick-Balke-Collender, Otis Elevator, Fairbanks-Morse, Parke-Davis, Timkin Roller Bearings, Dupont, Thos. Cusack, and 22,000 of the most conspicuous and best rated concerns in America.

Our Chicago offices occupy 12,000 square feet of floor space in a well known building, and we have similar Eastern Offices in the Fisk Building, 37th and Broadway, New York City.

We have a Permanent National Sales Organization of 90 men that covers this country. We have increased our Sales Volume over 900% since 1920 and over 100% again in 1924. We have no dull years, no dull months.

We are all salesmen over here. We have only the salesmen's viewpoint. As individuals we've been over every jump you've ever been over. We know your heart and your mind and we're with you all the way for a square deal. We've never had one minute's trouble with any salesman who ever worked for us. We pay what's due promptly.

We never cut commissions when the men prosper, and we never will.

Under no circumstances do we want to hire into this business a man who will fail.

Wolvin earned $1,500 his first 15 days in the field. Goodstein closed 35 orders in 28 working days. Mandelberg made $2,667 on One Sale last month. Cosgrave made $1,520 his first month with us. Myers made $720 in one week. These are all recent records and are fair Samples of what our men are earning.

The average Commission on One Sale is $100 in this business.

This is an individual proposition that is in a field by itself without real competition.

We will prove to your satisfaction that salesman after salesman made from $10,000 to $22,000 last year with us, and the year before, and the year before that. The PROOF of every statement we make here is worked out to the Nth degree and ready for your consideration in very understandable form.

The salesman who is hired will be given short, intensive, inside, individual training, and then will be accompanied into the field by an experienced salesman, who will demonstrate our kind of selling before him.

So write us in detail and tell us all about yourself, what you've sold in the past five years, and all necessary facts. Everything that will help you to secure this position should be told.

Please give phone number and address. We'll answer you promptly.
Address Y J 388, Tribune.

A PHENOMENAL OFFER

By this firm to distributors, with ordinary sales experience, to act as our jobber in a few Central, Southern, and Western States. Our 100% WINE Grape Juice is so pure, rich, and strong that we can show you how to reap a fortune, and the goods only to cost you 80c per gallon. One distributor has already started the year by ordering 3,600 cases from us. Actual figures and references furnished by Bradstreet's, Dun's, or our bank, the biggest in Chicago, to show that we are actually the oldest and largest firm selling the pure juice of wine grapes and home bottling supplies in Chicago. Our products advertised from coast to coast, with thousands of satisfied users.

NO CASH DEPOSIT REQUIRED ON MERCHANDISE.

Our only requirement is an investment of $60 for stock and literature.

EXCLUSIVE SALES RIGHTS GIVEN IN YOUR TERRITORY. Free catalogue on request showing the many articles manufactured by us. We are also giving the sales rights on our own make of 26 latest varieties of Cordials.

Wire or write us for full particulars today. JOE GREIN & J. PAHLS, 130 W. Randolph-st., at La Salle-st. [47 years at this corner], Chicago, Ill.

A REAL ORGANIZATION.

Well founded on definite principles of service and value to the customer has opening for a few who have sufficient vision to recognize the sales advantages of a clean policy and wishing to sell well located and properly priced property.

We have fulfilled every promise made to managers who have come with us and if you are one of the many clean, hustling, ambitious men who are tired of listening to extravagant promises and demand cash for your efforts, come in and learn our policy with our customers and our organization.

THIS IS OPPORTUNITY.

You can enjoy a large, steady yearly income in one of the positions now open. Apply SALES DIRECTOR, Rm. 815, 5 N. La Salle.

A CHANCE WITHOUT PARALLEL IN THE HISTORY OF CHICAGO.

You have been looking for a chance to put your brains along with sufficient capital furnished by some one else, and go into business for yourself.

Here is your chance!

We have merchandise amounting to millions of dollars. It is all live goods.

We furnish everything except what you have back of your eyes—when you are willing to bet on that, we will go the limit to help you win your bet on your own success.

When you want to find a place—a permanent place—in one of the most successful organizations in this country, come to the Fourth Floor, 936 North Michigan-av. and talk with the Director of Personnel.

KRENN & DATO,
Exclusive Agents for Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick Properties.

A Hard Job for a Big Man.

We have a very difficult local sales proposition to put over. Others have tried but have not been entirely successful. This is work for the master salesman with resourcefulness, courage and vision. It requires foot work, sweat and untiring effort. An intimate knowledge of advertising is necessary. Advertising agency experience would be helpful. Must be under forty, well educated and of good address. The position is permanent and is of a special nature with a company doing business in millions. The right man will want a commission arrangement. Success means ten thousand or more. If you are immediately available and can show proof positive of extraordinary sales ability, write giving full experience. Confidential, of course. Address C E 174, Tribune.

A DEFINITE FUTURE for 2 Real Salesmen.

Preferably 30 to 35 years, married men who can prove their past records and furnish references. Established concern needs 2 such men for city sales force. Good remuneration, with opportunity to constantly increase earnings through a vested interest in your accounts. Call MR. PARKS, State 8174, between 9 and 12 a. m., for appointment.

A SUCCESSFUL SALESMAN to sell products of General Motors Corp.; not automobiles; experience in high grade household equipment desirable but not essential. Phone Sales Manager, Superior 5531.

HOW TO SELL REAL ESTATE.

A CLASS CONDUCTED BY

WM. H. BRITIGAN PERSONALLY.

This to men who want to grow—who want to learn—who want to work.

An unusual opportunity is offered for you to learn salesmanship under the personal direction of Wm. H. Britigan, the most successful high grade subdivider in Chicago.

This is an opportunity for just eleven men—needed to complete our sales organization. They will receive an intensive course in salesmanship. A class conducted personally by Wm. H. Britigan, who has developed thousands of salesmen including many who are now salesmanagers and independent subdividers.

This organization has marketed over eighty subdivisions in Chicago and every one has increased substantially in value. 15,000 people have purchased from us a total of $25,000,000 worth of real estate—and every purchaser is a booster for the Britigan organization.

Our men make money because they can show a record of profit to investors that has never been equaled. Many of our men have been with us for ten years.

For eleven men this is an unusual opportunity. The course of training alone under Mr. Britigan will be worth thousands of dollars to those who get it.

Whether you have ever sold real estate before or not, this offers a connection that will bring good earnings. Apply between 10 a. m. and 5 p. m. and 8 p. m. and 9 p. m. to F. A. Wenke, 647 First National Bank Building.

THE WM. H. BRITIGAN REALTY ASSOCIATION.

INVESTMENT SALESMAN.

One of the largest investment houses which handles exclusively utility securities, some listed on the Chicago stock exchange, is enlarging its city sales force. The man we want must be accustomed to work and must be willing to start on a moderate income; investment experience desired but not essential; must have clean record. We offer an opportunity for a permanent connection with increasing earnings. Mr. Walker, Room 1116, 72 W. Monroe-st.

I WANT FOUR MEN WHO NEED $500.

Any real salesman should earn the above figure in 2 week's time. Our big campaign starts on the 15th. The men we select will start working immediately on leads only. E. O. Stone & Co., 326 Conway Bldg.

REAL ESTATE SALESMEN, WHAT ABOUT THIS?

Are you making the money you want to make? Are you satisfied with your possibilities for 1925? If not—investigate the Croissant Organization on Michigan-av. Our organization is big, successful, and our policies are broad and liberal in the extreme. Ask the men and women who are selling our Calumet City property—ask them about us—everything about us.

We need more men for work this year in selling our new subdivisions in the Calumet district where there is action every minute. We want loyal men and women—not drifters or contract jumpers, nor do we attempt to get any man dissatisfied with his present position. We appeal only to real estate salesmen who are looking for a change—who are conscientiously justified in doing so. Our property sells and sells fast. The property is advantageously located. Competition means little or nothing to us because our subdivisions in the Calumet district show up right and stand the strictest investigation.

We pay the maximum of commissions and we believe our men are the highest paid subdivision salesmen in Chicago. If you contemplate a change—if you are not satisfied—if you are anxious to make more money than you are now making, come and investigate the opportunity with the Croissant Organization.

G. FRANK CROISSANT,
11th floor Lake View Bldg.,
116 S. Michigan-av.

SALESMEN FOR BRANCH MANAGERS.

One of the oldest and most reputable manufacturers of warm air furnaces desires high grade salesmen to manage its branch offices in and around Chicago. This is an unusual opportunity for honest men of ability to make a connection that will prove profitable and permanent. The men we want must have a thorough knowledge of warm air furnace business, also specialty selling. When we find such a man we will virtually set him up in business, give him a drawing account, and at the end of the year give him a share of the retail profits.

This is an opportunity for a man who now is in an unprofitable job, who is not properly situated, and still not the commercial drifter type. The men we want are now probably employed and between 30 and 49 years of age.

In your reply outline your sales experience, your education, and any other qualifications. Correspondence will be held in strict confidence.

Monday.

Dear Peggy:

Did you say a dandy job? Position, I'd say.

Well, I went in to see Miss Becker the day after I got your letter and landed a position as telephone operator myself. You know I didn't think there were places where they took such an interest in their girls.

It's a regular "Doorway of Opportunity," for telephone operators can get a position anywhere in the United States. And just think, they pay while you are learning.

Do you know, Peggy, there are a lot of nice girls who would like this kind of work if they only knew about it. Can't we think of some way to tell them? They may think, as I did, that this new dial system would take their places, but you and I know it will not, so we will have to tell them that, too.

As ever, BETTY.

These Charming People

Those perfect hosts—with their lake shore apartments, their atmosphere of luxury and pleasing environment—don't always spend the huge sum for rent that you may imagine. Many own co-operative apartment homes, and in that way completely control the difficult rent situation that keeps so many people from living in the manner of their wishes.

The Show Off

always likes to brag about paying a fancy price for everything that he has; but smart people who are really are making every dollar count toward bringing them the worth-while things in life.

Sitting Pretty

Aldine Apt. Homes

are a truly charming setting for those of discriminating tastes – at the Yacht Harbor just off the Drive – the location is quiet and dignified. Five and six room units, two baths—on terms that you will like. You are invited to call today.

Of Course Many People

do not really fully understand what co-operative ownership really is. If they did they would not be so apt to be paying rent today. The co-operative idea in Chicago is really just getting a good start.

We Are Delighted to explain fully the many advantages and discuss all the details, pro and con, of this type of ownership.

The Devonshire

is a good example of what is known as the "Compromise Co-operative Plan."

Come to 6334 Sheridan-rd. and tell us what you think of it. Phone Sheldrake 3344.

$90 PER MONTH AND UP FOR SPACE IN TRIBUNE TOWER

At this nominal cost a limited number of representatives of publishers, manufacturers and financial interests can secure choice location in a building which has an international reputation before its completion.

It makes no difference where you select space on any of the floors [from 13 to 23 are available], you will have the same benefits of light, beauty and convenience on any side of this magnificent structure.

Remember, Tribune Tower was built up to an ideal and not down to a price, and the best architectural and engineering brains available were brought to this work.

Anywhere in the civilized world you can take pride in the statement: "My address is Tribune Tower, Chicago."

DEPARTMENT STORE OPPORTUNITY

A Milwaukee, Wis., merchandise man, who has had a successful established trade for the last 22 years, is constructing a department store building on the site of the old bldg., which consists of two floors and basement; all modern conveniences and located on one of Milwaukee's liveliest and best transfer corners.

Wonderful opportunity to a party who can visualize this proposition. Will give long lease, but would prefer to co-operate on a share basis, which would add real prestige to the business.

I am widely known, am highly rated, and will pledge my name to experienced, financially responsible party or parties.

This is a real proposition and an experienced merchandising man will do a $300,000 minimum business the first year with present established trade, which can be doubled in the near future. Address Y 379, Tribune.

FRANKLIN

PACKARD 7 PASS. TOURING. Taking into consideration condition, price and equipment, this is by far the best small 7 passenger Packard value in Chicago. It operates smoothly and quietly and will bear the most rigid examination and demonstration. Paint, top, upholstery, tires and equipment all first class. This high grade, luxurious Packard is priced to the point where all depreciation has been removed. $325 cash, bal. to suit.

CADILLAC TYPE 59 TOURING. This is the double letter large 7 passenger model. Owing to extreme care received is first class mechanically. Refinished by us in No. 4 Cadillac Blue and like a new car in every respect. Well equipped with tires and accessories. If you are looking for something exceptional in a high grade value do not delay seeing and riding in this one. We have it at a price that will move it quickly. $387.50 cash, bal. to suit.

FRANKLIN 1922 SEDAN, SERIES 9-B. This handsome 5 passenger car puts up the appearance of new throughout. Interior shows no signs of use and the paint, a battleship gray, is new. Has excellent cord tires, bumpers, automatic windshield cleaner, spotlight, cleaner, etc. Has been given a most thorough examination mechanically and condition guaranteed by us. A better investment in beauty, comfort and performance than anything you might buy new or used within $500 of this price. $725 cash, bal. to suit.

FRANKLIN SEDAN, 5 PASS. In elegant coach and mechanical condition and ready to give the next owner thousands of miles of high class service. Paint, upholstery and tires excellent. Fully equipped. With a small sum cash you can own and drive this economical, easy riding Franklin. $375 cash, bal. to suit.

JORDAN

JORDAN "BLUE-BOY," 1923—Snappiest and flashiest of 4 passenger sport cars. Specially painted; mechanically it will bear the most rigid examination and demonstration. Fully equipped; has excellent tires, and ready for any kind of service. Lowest price this style Jordan ever offered. Our first special for today. $850.

HUDSON TOURING SEDAN. The model with the railing on top of body and a type rarely found in the used car market. Refinished and truly beautiful. Has 5 almost new cord tires and other equipment. Compact, yet roomy. Has dividing glass partition. Considerable money spent on it recently and therefore in the pink of condition mechanically. See and drive it, then decide. Don't let the price influence you, as we have it way below market. $600.

WILLS STE. CLAIRE 1923 ROADSTER. Through a fortunate combination of circumstances we are able to offer this car at a low figure. It is very fast, dependable, and runs smoothly and quietly; mileage low. Had top notch care. Original finish, Burbank top, disc wheels, 5 almost new cord tires, and other extras. First person who sees it will buy it quickly. $1,200.

OLDSMOBILE SIX 1924 COUPE. The popular model with the L-head engine and other refinements. Driven conservatively but a short distance. Finish and upholstery very good. Has 2 bumpers, automatic windshield cleaner, clock, visor, and 5 excellent cord tires. See and ride in it today. $800.

JORDAN, 1924, 4-DOOR BROUGHAM. This car requires nothing in the way of repairs or refinishing and is offered in the same condition as received by us. Has not had a great deal of service. Original tires. Has most complete equipment. Don't judge this car by the low price we have placed on it, but come in and drive it and you will wonder how we can offer it so cheap. $1,600.

Who Is to Blame

If you pay twice as much for furniture as you can buy of us in sample suits sent to us direct from the exposition of Grand Rapids and Chicago, it is your own fault.

TAKE NOTICE.

We have now on hand exceptionally fine bedroom, dining room, and living room sets of the very latest, shown at the exposition in January.

DON'T YOU THINK

you ought to see what we have to offer? We guarantee it will be to your own benefit. We are open until 9 p. m. every day.

CHARLES E. FOX HEADS NEW CLUB OF ARCHITECTS

Organization Buys Old Kimball House.

BY AL CHASE.

Charles E. Fox has been elected president of the new Architects' Club of Chicago, a recently formed body of architects, engineers, contractors, builders, etc., which will have as its headquarters the imposing residence at the southeast corner of Prairie and 18th, known as the Kimball house, at one time one of the most attractive buildings in Chicago's gold coast of several decades ago. Mr. Fox is president of the Illinois Society of Architects.

CHARLES E. FOX.
[Moffett Photo.]

Alfred Granger, president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects, has been made first vice president in the new club, and Andrew Lanquist of Lanquist & Illsley, contractors, second vice president.

F. E. Davidson Made Treasurer.

F. E. Davidson, former president of the Illinois Society of Architects, was elected treasurer and Pierre Blouke, former head of the Chicago Architectural club, will be secretary of the new organization.

The election of officers was announced at a luncheon tendered the 100 proprietary members on Friday at the Auditorium hotel by the new club. This luncheon inaugurated a drive for active members whose initiation fee will be $100 and annual dues of $50.

Pay $82,500 for Kimball House.

The "proprietory members" each paid $1,000. The $100,000 thus raised was partly used to buy the Kimball house, which cost $82,500. The balance will be used to rehabilitate it into a modern clubhouse.

As was announced several weeks ago, J. J. Glessner agreed to give his residence, designed by the late Henry H. Richardson, at the southwest corner of Prairie and 18th, to the Chicago chapter, A. I. A., at his death or prior to it if he should give up using it as a residence. The gift was conditional on the acquirement of the Kimball house across the street.

Tunnel to Link Houses.

Whenever the Glessner house comes into possession of the architects a tunnel under Prairie avenue will be dug connecting the two. The Glessner house will be preserved as one of the best examples of the work of Richardson.

In a statement made yesterday President Fox predicted that the new Architects' club of Chicago would fill a long felt want in the civic life of Chicago by unifying the building industry. General contractors, brick manufacturers, lumber dealers, bankers, and various men affiliated with the building industry are expected to become members of the club.

To Be "Clearing House."

The organization is expected to wield an influence over building affairs in such a way that many labor disputes it is hoped can be ironed out without the usual delays and violence. Rentals, construction of buildings, city ordinances relating to building and other matters will be taken up by the new club.

Briefly, the organization is expected to become a clearing house for the building industry of Chicago. Its board of directors include: Richard E. Schmidt, George C. Nimmons, J. C. Llewellyn, Clarence W. Farrier, George M. Nedved, and the five officers of the club.

Plan Technical Library.

It expects to accumulate one of the most complete technical libraries in the country. It also intends to have an atelier to be rented to the Sketch club. The present garage of the Kimball house is to be remodeled into an assembly hall, where the Illinois society and the Chicago chapter, A. I. A., will hold their regular meetings. The Kimball house will have a billiard room, reading room, lounge, and other comforts and conveniences of the modern club.

Decorators are now busy, according to H. L. Palmer, financial secretary of the Illinois Society of Architects, and the club will be open for members about March 1.

Buys 82 Acres in Proviso for Subdivision Purposes

Here's Proviso again—but this time outside of the "mystery" section. Thomas H. Hulbert has bought eighty-two acres at the southwest corner of St. Charles and Mannheim roads, from Myrta C. Chapple of Ashland, Wis., for a reported $82,000, through Henry S. Merrill of Whiteside & Wentworth. It is understood this will be subdivided.

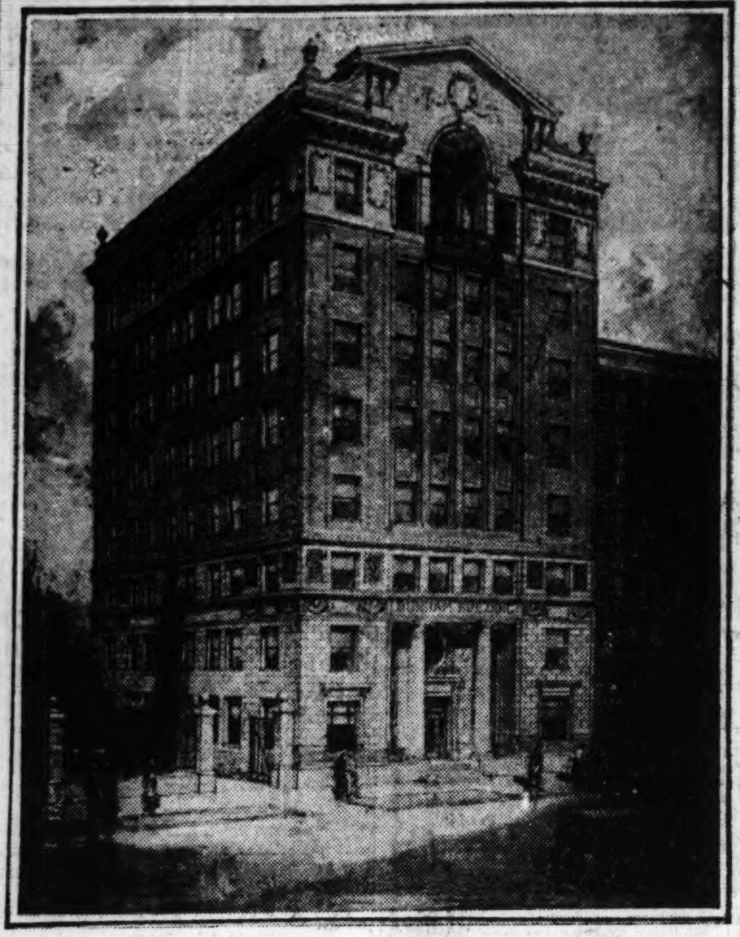
BUYS NEAR NORTH SIDE VACANT.

Frances Ryan and Harry Sehl have bought the vacant 100x109 at 331 East Ohio from Axel E. Swenson for a reported $70,000 for investment, through Hedberg & Bistor. Anderson & Anderson were attorneys.

Newest Near North Side Building

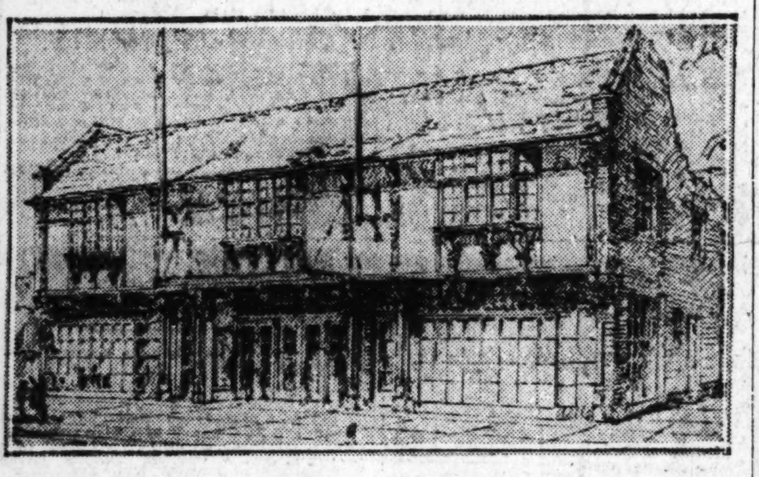


Above is one of the most attractive structures announced for the near north side, east of Boul Mich, in some time. It is the eight and one-half story Dunham building to be erected by the C. A. Dunham company, makers of heating apparatus, on the north side of Ohio, approximately 250 feet west of Lake Shore drive, from plans by D. H. Burnham & Co. Completion date is set for April, 1926.

The building will occupy part of a 100x109 foot lot, with a lawn and driveway on the west. It'll not be a "shirt front" structure, but will have the same architectural treatment on the three sides that are visible. The administrative offices of the Dunham company will occupy the entire eighth floor and the general offices the seventh. A large room on the top floor will be used by the company for its training classes in heating service and for recreational purposes. The balance of the building will be leased for long terms.

The structure will be of steel construction, with Bedford stone the first two floors, face brick for the next five, and gray terra cotta to match Bedford stone for the top story and attic pediment. The Dunham company, now at 230 East Ohio, has branch sales offices in thirty cities and local sales offices in thirty more. It also has offices in seven Canadian and ten European cities.

Here's Hint for Our Suburban Builders



Architect William D. Mann believes suburban business buildings should harmonize architecturally with their surroundings. Therefore when he was commissioned to design a film theater for Highland Park, instead of the usual boxlike structure, overloaded with gingerbread designs, he planned the above attractive piece of architecture along old English lines—a thing of beauty and an asset to the neighborhood.

It is being erected on the north side of Central avenue, east of and near Sheridan road. The owner now operates the Pearl theater in Highland Park. It'll not be called "The Capitol," or "The Panorama," or "The Orpheum"! A good old English name probably will be selected—a name in keeping with the architectural charm of the building.

According to Mr. Mann, it will have 1,400 seats, with a regulation stage. The interior decorations will be carried out on old English lines. Instead of a balcony there'll be a circle of boxes all the way around the auditorium. The building will have two stores, with studios on the second floor. The exterior will be plastered, with hand carved timbers and with slate roof. Completion date is set for July 1.

CLEARING DISTRICT ADDS TWELVE NEW INDUSTRIES IN '24

The United States Can company of Cincinnati, has bought 135,000 square feet on West 65th, in the Clearing industrial district, improved with a one story factory containing 26,000 square feet of floor space. It is so arranged that additional units can be added. The company will get into operation during April.

According to H. P. Phelps, vice president of the Chicago Transfer & Clearing company, the Clearing industrial district now has fifty companies operating, twelve new industries having been added during the last twelve months.

The district has just completed a one story building of 35,000 square feet at 5301 West 65th for leasing in units of 5,000 square feet and larger and has recently made a lease with the Star Interior Finish company for 12,000 square feet through Chandler & Montague.

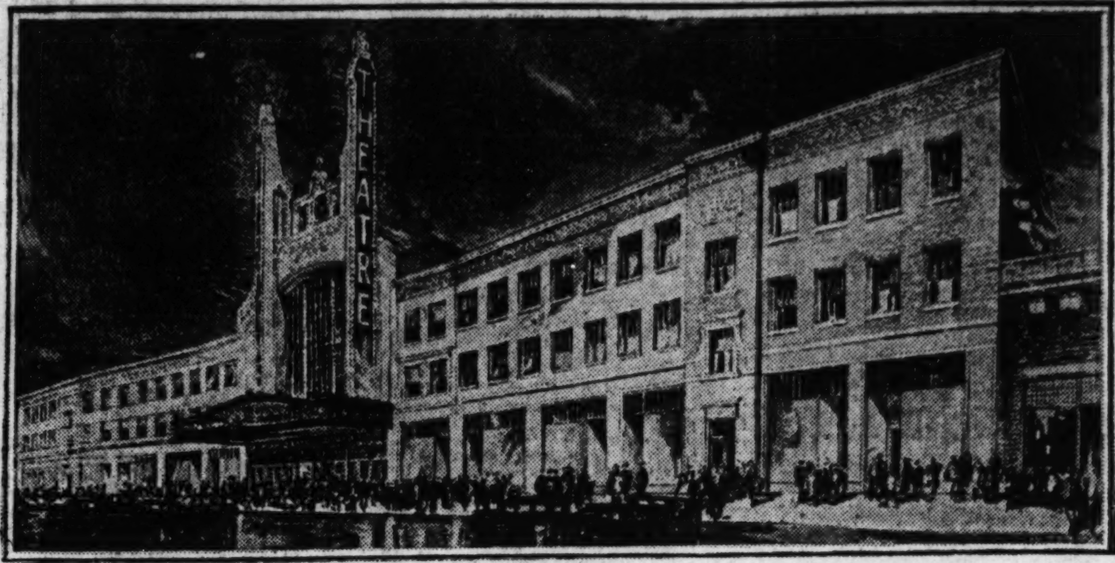
The district also has made a twelve year lease for 65,000 square feet of industrial property at Laramie and West 65th, and a one story building of 35,000 square feet for the Bersted Manufacturing company, electric household appliances, who will occupy it during February.

The William F. Klemp company, steel gratings, has bought 22,500 square feet at Melvina and 66th place, improved with a one story building and will move in during April. Chandler & Montague who represented the Klemp concern report that Joseph F. Hora bought the present Klemp plant at 2131 South Turner for $14,000 and leased it to the Anchor Manufacturing company.

WEST MADISON STREET DEAL.

Joseph B. Drell has bought the one story store at 660 West Madison, thirty feet frontage, from Theresa B. Ross for $50,000, through Cremin & O'Connor. The lot extends through to Meridian, where there is a three story building.

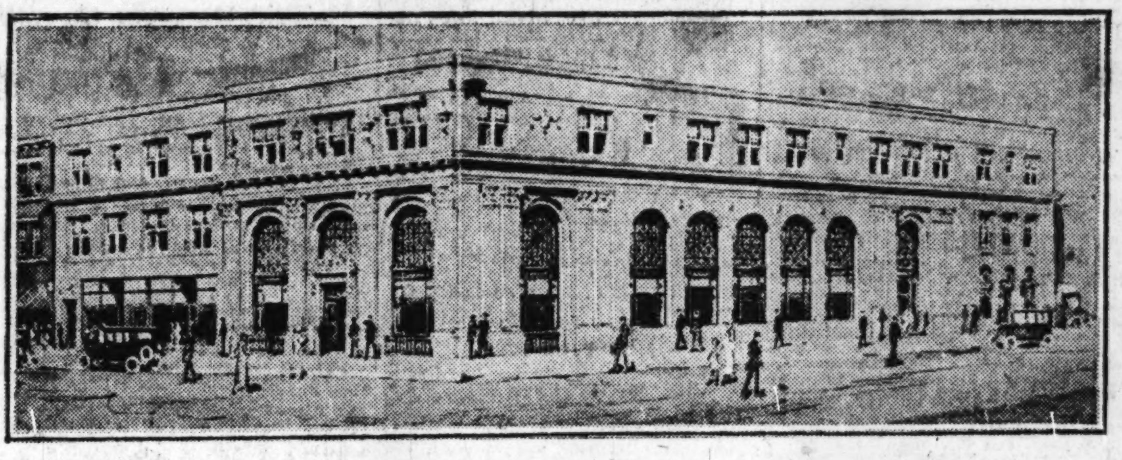
Howard Street's New Film Theater



Above is the 3,500 seat theater told about in this department on Sunday, Nov. 2, 1924, which is to be built on the south side of Howard street, 233 feet east of Clark, by the Ure Building corporation and leased to Balaban & Katz for twenty-five years at an annual rental reported to be $90,000. In order to have wide sidewalks the owners will have the main entrance ten feet back from the building line, so movie fans will have twenty-six feet of sidewalk.

The building will be of granite style terra cotta and will have eight stores, with offices and apartments above. Actual work will start in about thirty days. W. B. Drackett of George M. Forman & Co.'s real estate department, which is conducted by Liepold & Hicks, negotiated a $1,250,000 ten year 6½ per cent loan. The above movie is as yet unnamed.

New Bank Building for Northwest Side



Work is soon to begin on the above new building at the northwest corner of Lawrence and Kenneth avenues, just east of Elston avenue, to be the future home of the Mayfair State Savings bank. Architect Clarence Hatzfeld has designed a structure to contain, in addition to the bank quarters, several stores, offices, and fifteen kitchenette apartments. Among the organizers of the new bank are Charles E. Mitchell, former president of the Hill State bank, and Harold M. Michaelson, for many years with the National Bank of the Republic and later vice president of the Kaufman State bank.

BROKERS' NOTES

Eugene A. Bournique & Co., who have been specializing in high class residence property and apartments in Chicago and suburbs for the last thirty-five years, have incorporated as of Jan. 7, 1925. This was done with a view to enlarging their activities, including the sale and management of business property.

R. ALLEN DUDLEY
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

R. Allen Dudley, for the last two years with Albert H. Wetten & Co., and formerly with the presidents' conference committee, a national body, will be associated with Mr. Bournique in the corporation. He will have charge of the new department of sale and management of business property.

Mr. Bournique, one of Chicago's pioneers in the real estate business, has been in the First National Bank building for twenty years.

Peter F. Reynolds has bought out the interest of Congressman Fred A. Britten in the realty and building firm of Britten & Reynolds and will continue to operate under his own name at the same office in the Hartford building. Congressman Britten has decided to retire from the real estate business and devote all his time to Washington affairs. Mr. Reynolds has been in active management of the firm's activities for the last ten years. The firm was organized in 1892.

PETER F. REYNOLDS.

M. G. Frankel, formerly of Frankel, Casey & Co., of 1333 North Clark street, will continue the business under the firm name of M. G. Frankel & Co. at the same address.

◆

The Prudential Realty company, Devon and Western, has acquired the business of George E. Kletter and bought his building at 2345 Devon, where an office will be maintained. A. Schnabel is now in charge of the branch office at Howard and Western.

FURNITURE COMPANY LEASE.

Weber & Co., furniture dealers at 208 South Wabash, have leased the five story building at 502 South Canal, through Alex Friend & Co., from the Loewenthal estate.

$3,000,000 IN NEW BUILDINGS FOR HOWARD ST.

Big Improvements for Block West of "L."

Howard street's biggest building project, involving at least $1,000,000 and possibly much more, is expected to develop as a result of a syndicate controlled by Baird & Warner securing, through long term leases, 400 feet of frontage on the north side of that much talked of thoroughfare, between the "L" and Clark street and across from the proposed new Balaban & Katz theater pictured in a nearby column.

The site is 150 feet west of the "L" right of way and about 130 feet east of Clark street. The 400 feet were secured in four leases each covering 100 feet of frontage, from Mrs. Harriet A. Mears for 198 years from Feb. 1, 1925.

Option to Buy at $2,500 a Foot.

The syndicate has an option to buy the entire property at $2,500 a front foot between the fifteenth and twenty-ninth years of the leases. The terms of the leases are not disclosed.

According to Ralph H. Martin of Baird & Warner, who, with J. N. Smith of the same firm, negotiated the leases, the B. & W. syndicate will improve the entire holdings as fast as tenants are in sight. It is probable that four separate buildings will be erected.

One of these may be a six story structure, if present negotiations with a large mercantile concern are successful. It is estimated that the improvement of the entire site, which is eighty-five feet deep, will run well over a million dollars in construction costs.

The lease requires that all the buildings be at least two stories high and the new owners expect to build more imposing structures than required. It is hinted that an effort will be made to erect buildings more attractive than the usual commonplace Howard street mercantile structures.

Let's Hope They Do.

"We hope to establish a standard of architectural beauty which will be an incentive to other new building projects along the street," said a member of the syndicate. "We may have them designed in old English style, wtih half timbered fronts, although this point has not yet been definitely determined. We appreciate fully the value of beauty in architecture in attracting an extra high class of tenants and also in maintaining good rentals."

As the total investment in land and building in the new Balaban & Katz theater, across the street, it is claimed, will be $2,500,000, the grand total of new buildings in this one block of Howard street will come close to $3,000,000.

PLANS APARTMENT BUILDING.

Anton E. Sward has bought the vacant 146x161 at the southeast corner of 70th and Dante from John C. Wilkinson at a reported $30,000, through Selz & Southman, and intends building a large apartment building. Anderson & Anderson were attorneys.

A TWELVE MILE HAUL
that saved $100,000.00
AN EXAMPLE OF CONSUMERS SERVICE
During the recent sub-zero weather, a large Chicago corporation, ordinarily receiving coal in car lots, found itself in desperate need of fuel. Late Saturday afternoon the general manager phoned Consumers Company, explaining his predicament. It meant a 12-mile haul over icy roads, but before 11 o'clock Sunday we had delivered 15 truckloads. The emergency had been met. In telephoning their appreciation the owners stated we had saved them $100,000.00 damage to their product.
This is but one of many incidents. A large hotel, due to failure of its oil burner, called on us for coal at 6:00 P. M. and was immediately supplied. A West Side hospital, with less than three hours supply and disappointed by their regular dealer, turned to us for relief and was taken care of. The owner of a large home in Kenwood wrote us that our chauffeur, who arrived with a load of coal at 8:00 o'clock on Christmas Eve, was the real Santa Claus at his house.
Nights, Sundays and holidays our employes stuck to their tasks. 3,120 small orders were delivered in a single day. We do not know of any old or new customer needing coal who was disappointed, and all in the face of the most severe weather conditions when hundreds of automobiles and trucks were ditched and frozen and horses were almost helpless on the ice covered streets.
This emergency has passed—others may follow. It is well to preserve a safe margin in your fuel supply.
An organization which has functioned so efficiently during the coldest December in 52 years, and which will "go the limit" to serve the public—should prove a reliable and satisfactory source of supply at all times.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
Then, too, there is our unqualified guarantee—"if you're not satisfied we will cheerfully remove the fuel and refund your money."

THE LAST GLORIOUS RIDE OF THE FOUR HORSEMEN OF NOTRE DAME—Harry Stuhldreher, all-American quarter back, smashing into the Leland Stanford line in the great New Year's Day battle at Pasadena, Cal. Stuhldreher twisted an ankle early in the fray, but he fought through to the 27 to 10 victory whereby Notre Dame won unquestionable claim to the national championship. This game closed the college career of the Four Horsemen—Stuhldreher, Layden, Crowley, and Don Miller. With their passing Notre Dame loses what has been perhaps the greatest back field combination ever gathered on a college eleven.

SKATER, TAKE CARE! De Wolfe Barton of Boston leaps a hurdle of beauty at Lake Placid with assurance that smacks of strength and skill and patient practice. There's always the possibility of a nasty spill in the feat, but the smiles in the front row here betoken confidence in results.

AN ENCHANTED ISLAND OF ITALY, Isola Bella, one of the four Borromean isles in the Bay of Tosa. In 1611 Count Vitaliano Borromeo set out to build himself here a paradise on earth. His terraced gardens form a theater surrounding a great palace that is still a marvel of architectural beauty. The palace commands a majestic view of Lake Maggiore and the surrounding mountains. The gardens are among the most beautiful ones of Italy.

When that mid-afternoon fatigue overtakes you—do you look to the future as well as the need of the moment?

How often the afternoon hours bring a sense of "slowing down"—slight fatigue with a desire for light nourishment!

This is a warning that the stomach is empty — ready to receive and digest the nourishment you need. Here is a wonderful opportunity to build up vitality and reserve force. Yet it is an opportunity that many waste through lack of information.

Any food that is at all slow in digestion, burdens the system and dulls the appetite for the next meal. Rich sweets, eaten at irregular hours, are a common cause of disorders and ailments.

To avoid these pitfalls, only a little care is needed in choosing your food.

Because it is quick in digestion and because it combines a wonderful flavor with unusual nutrition value, diet specialists have long recognized Horlick's Malted Milk as the ideal food for between meals or at any time when faint or hungry.

Milk and extract of grain combined by a special process

Full cream cow's milk is blended in Horlick's with extract of grain in a form that is exceptionally pleasing and easy to assimilate. The milk in Horlick's cannot form large, tough curds in the stomach like raw cow's milk.

This delightful food drink has been prescribed for years by physicians for all who require a delicate and highly sustaining diet. It is served in eight million homes.

For the robust, it offers a tempting and invigorating between meals drink. It brings immediate refreshment and well being—and new, extra vigor for the future. To those who are easily fatigued, who are nervous or underweight, or, who have "finicky" appetites, Horlick's supplies all the strength and energy-giving food elements in a form that places the least possible tax on the system.

How to serve Horlick's

A complete food in powder form, Horlick's needs only to be well stirred in hot or cold water to make a delicious drink.

Some prefer Horlick's mixed with milk or part milk and water. The two chief disadvantages of raw milk—the tough curds it forms in the stomach and its usual constipating effect—are in large measure offset by mixing it with Horlick's. If desired, flavor with chocolate, cocoa, vanilla, salt, etc.

Serve Horlick's for yourself and all the members of your family, in the morning or afternoon or at bedtime. It is the perfect means of satisfying between meals hunger. Use it at the table, too. Your druggist has Horlick's in three sizes—½ lb., 1 lb., and 5 lb.; also Horlick's Malted Milk Lunch Tablets, an ideal light lunch for shoppers, office workers, tourists, etc.

Send for handy mixer and samples

In preparing Horlick's, many find it more convenient and more speedy to use a mechanical mixer. Here is a new, improved kind, specially designed to fit inside a glass or cup. Far superior to a spoon, as it mixes a smooth solution in just a few seconds. We will send this mixer with an interesting booklet giving many delightful ways of serving Horlick's, for ten cents to cover cost of packing and mailing; also samples of Horlick's Malted Milk, or Horlick's Malted Milk Lunch Tablets, cocoa or natural flavor, for 2c each. Just mail the coupon below.

BRIDGING THE GOLDEN GATE—The war department has approved the building of a great span across San Francisco bay. It will be the biggest bridge in the world's history, 4,000 feet between piers, and 210 feet above the water. The approaches will total 2,640 feet, making the whole span something like one and one-sixth miles across. The piers will be 1,010 feet high—higher than the Eiffel tower, which reaches 984.25 feet into the air. The bridge will cost between $21,000,000 and $26,000,000, it is estimated by those who provided the model pictured here.

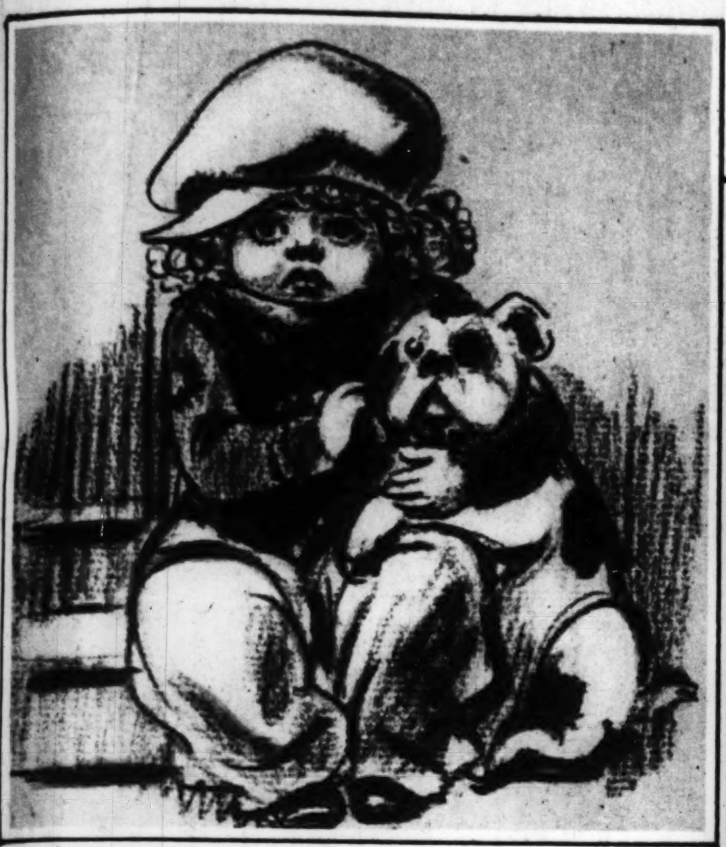
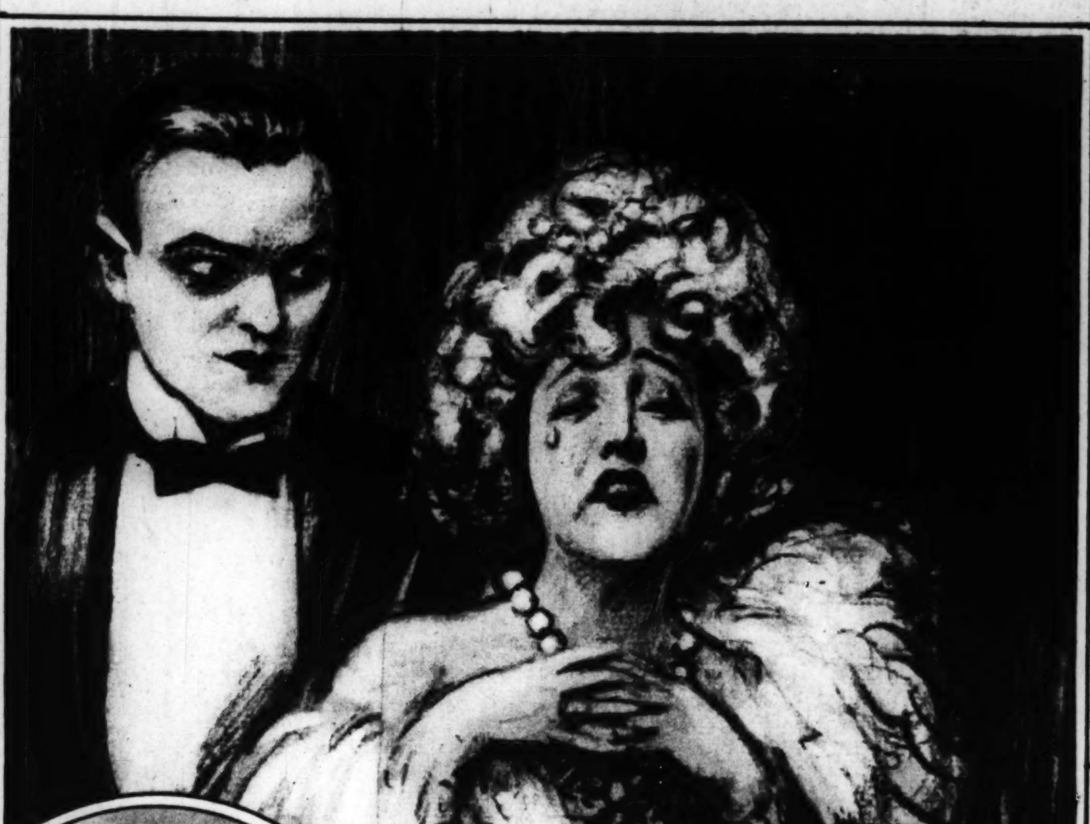
SURE FIRE IN THE MOVIES

By W. E. HILL

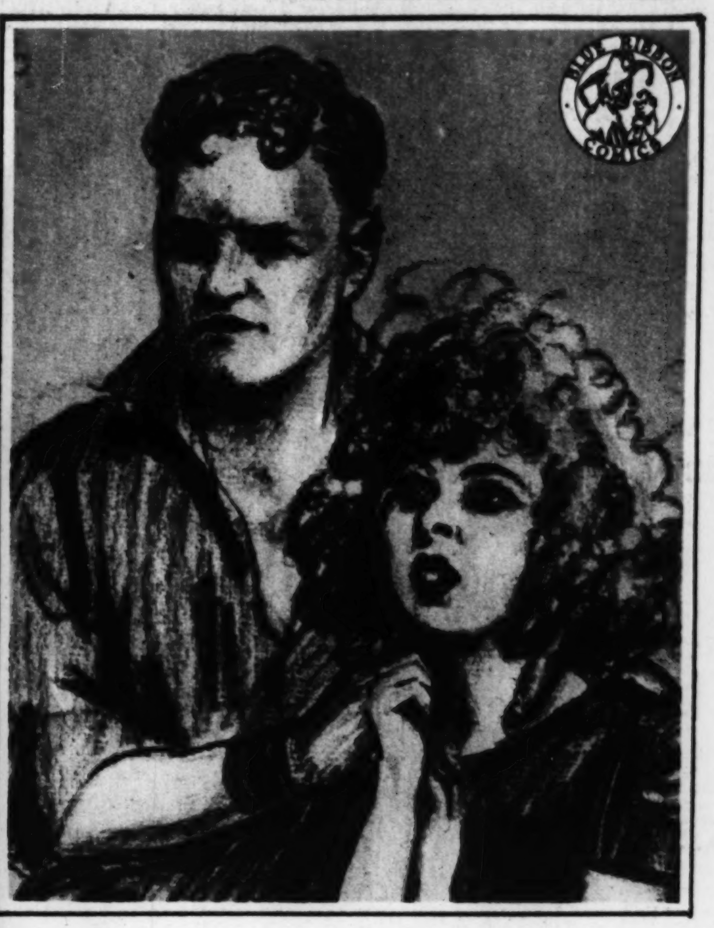
Copyright: by The Chicago Tribune



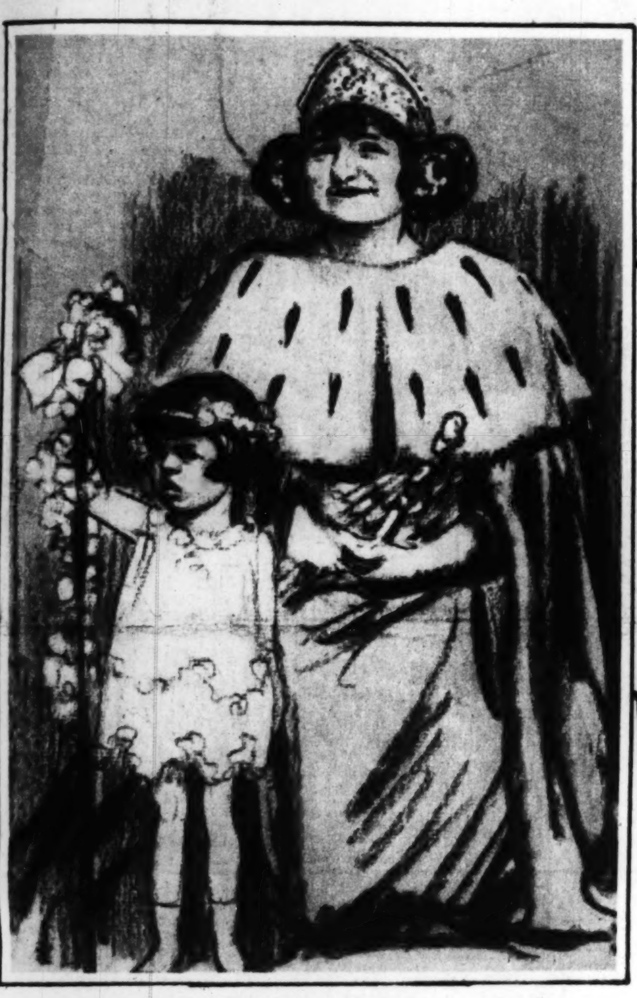
A little ragged boy and a dog are always sure fire. This is one of Jackie Coogan's nine hundred odd followers.



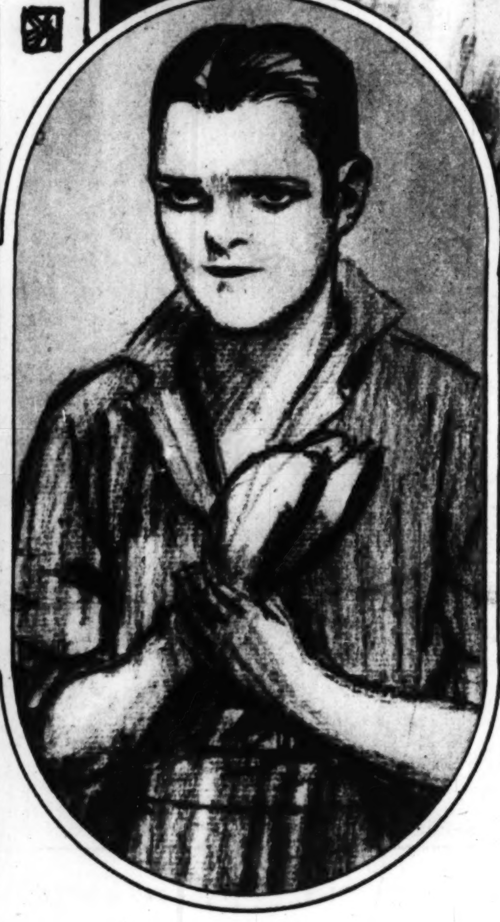
The film of cabaret life on Broadway. Mahdah, the beautiful dancer in a lobster palace, has just been insulted. No wonder the glycerin tear. A handsome millionaire has offered her riches unbounded but no wedding ring. Just because she dances for a living, in three yards of georgette and a few pearls, is no reason she should always be misunderstood. At the end of the film, however, it will be shown that Gerald, for that is indeed his name, has just been testing her. He knew she was one hundred per cent good all the time.



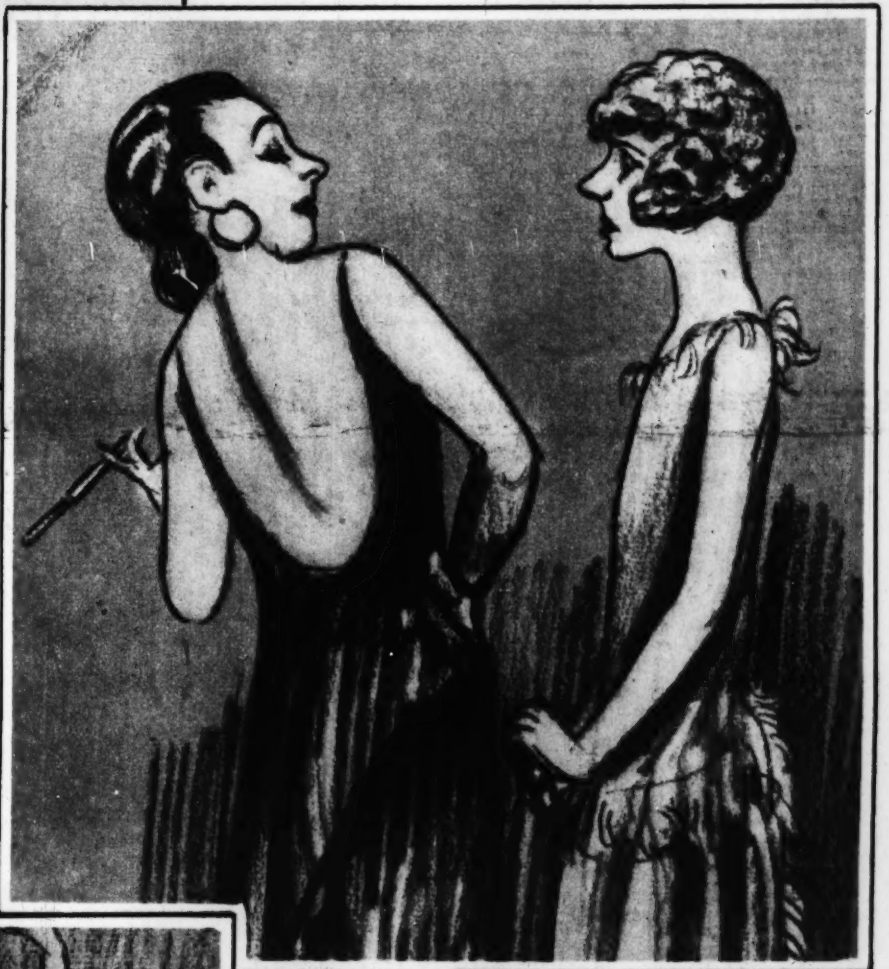
"At last Shirley began to see the bigness of little things." This is the very end of the picture, and it shows Tom, the rough man of the prairies, showing the birds and the butterflies to Shirley, the spoiled darling of a millionaire papa in the East. You can make up the rest of the story to suit yourself.



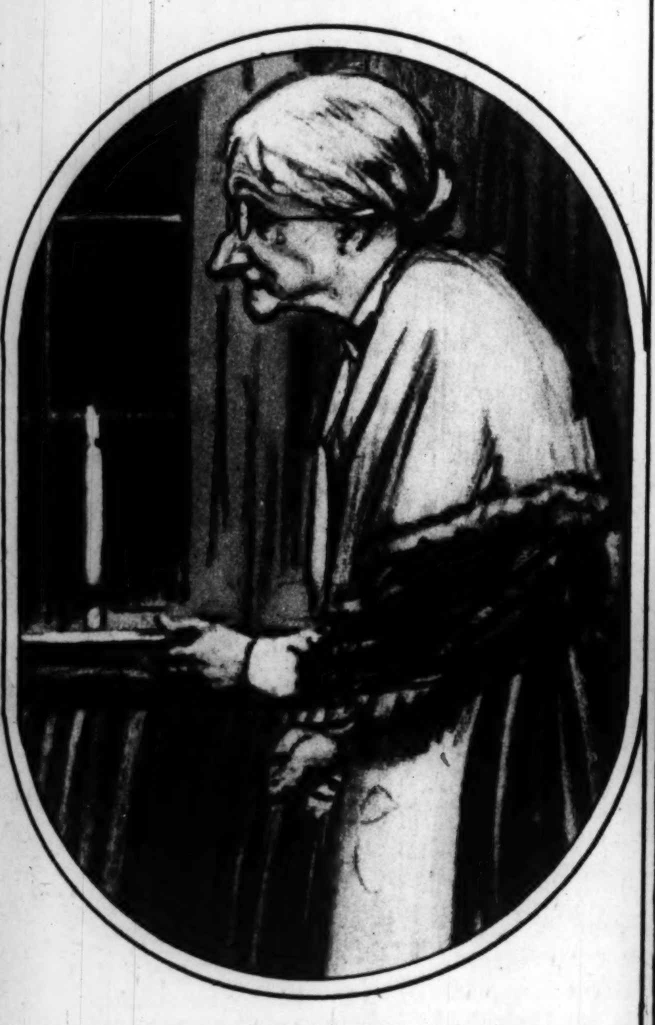
The topical review, showing, as it does, notables from near and far, offers this week Mrs. Fred Zimmerbaum, chosen queen of the carnival at some Mardi gras or other. Her attendant is little Miss Frances McGonigle.



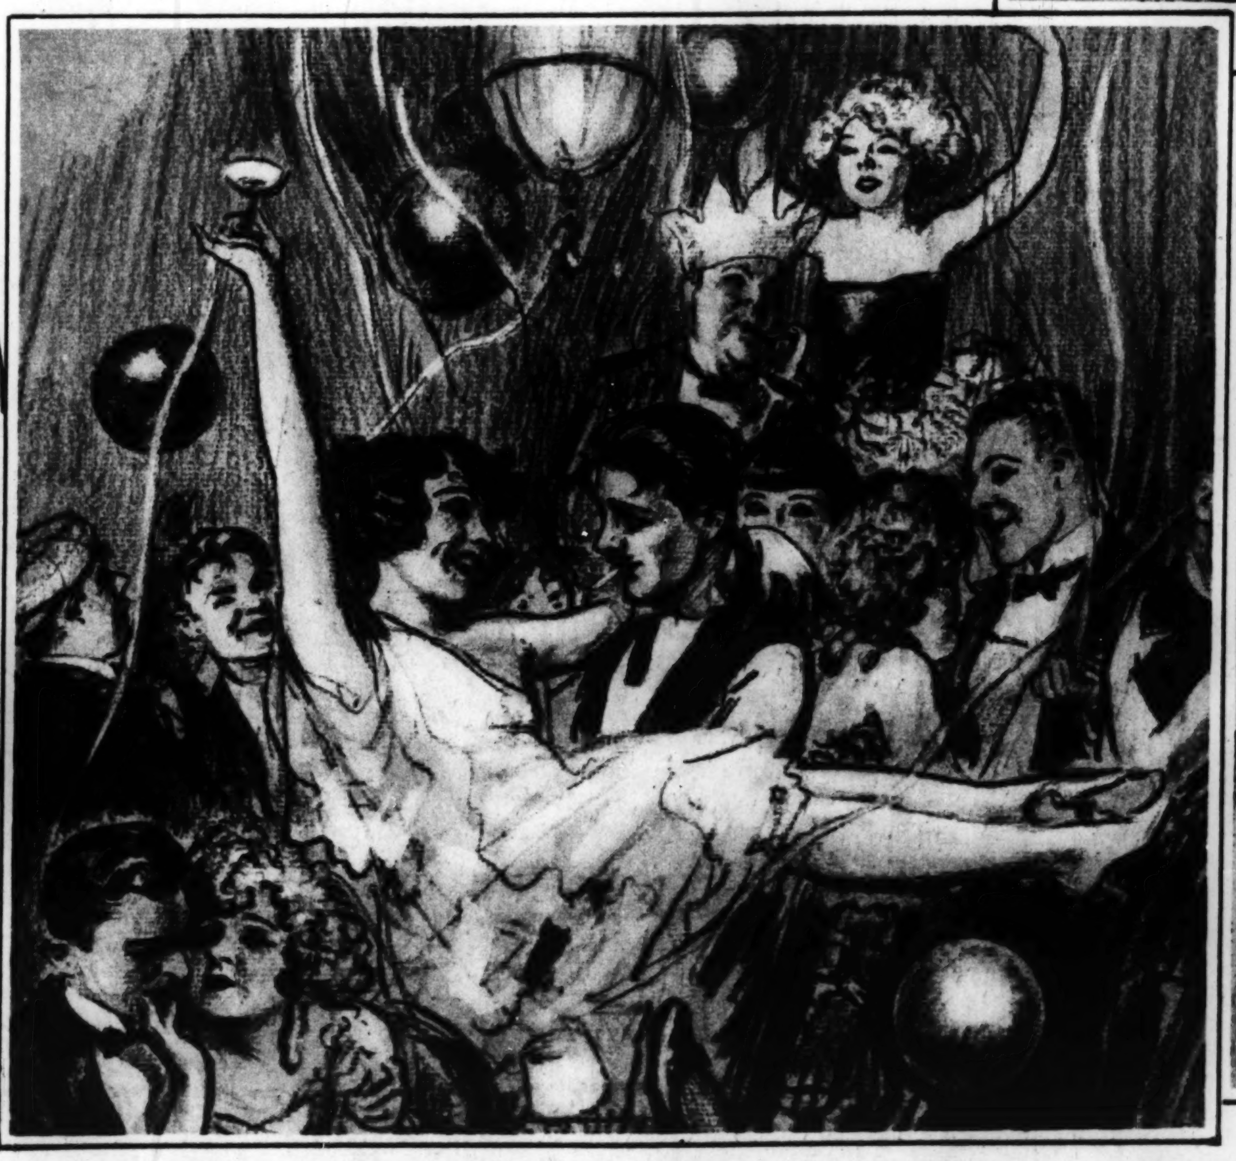
This is the poor, though handsome, hero, looking bashfully at the rich girl. Don't worry, he'll get her later on.



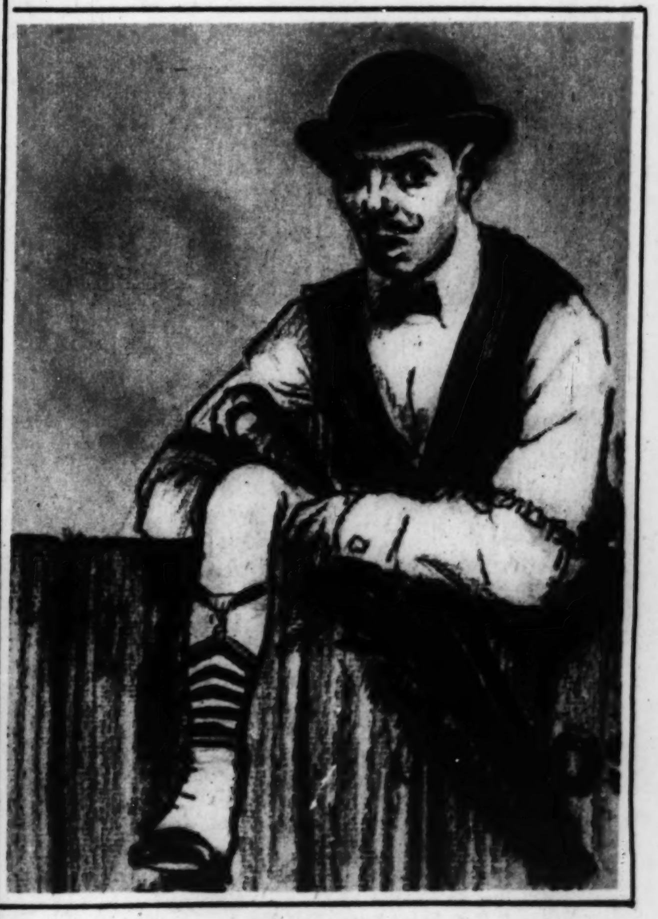
The good little girl and the wicked vamp struggle for a man's soul. Of course the good little girl will win out, but O, those vamps! What won't they do!



The younger the flapper, flapping dangerously in the big city, the older the dear old mother waiting in the country for her child's return, according to the movies.



The high life scene, wherein the wicked younger generation is shown at its wickedest, is a popular theme.



Comic stuff. A young man, or an old one for that matter, who has lost his trousers is the surest of sure fire in the comedy.

for Your Car

IF the President of the United States were to come to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and say: "I want you to make the best lubricating oil for my car that money will buy"—he would be given the grade of Polarine recommended in the chart below.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of its lubricating staff and it shares with them a pardonable pride in their supreme achievement—POLARINE.

You are safe in trusting your car investment to the highly trained intelligence of this staff of scientific workers.

Carrying on their research work with complete equipment and unlimited facilities, they have applied their specialized knowledge, their patient, painstaking experience to this single problem of correct lubrication, and they have declared Polarine to be the best motor oil for the automobile engine yet developed.

One or another of the six grades of Polarine will lubricate your car correctly. The chart below will tell you which grade you should use.

Polarine is a superior product and worthy of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) guarantee and recommendation.

If you would get maximum service from your car—USE POLARINE.

Drain your crankcase every 500 miles and refill with the right grade of Polarine. Consult Chart.

The English statesman and his monocle are prominent in the first row, with Premier Herriot at the right and Aristide Briand, former premier, at the left. Others in the group are identified as follows: (1), Paul Painleve, president of the chamber; (2), M. de Fleuriau, French ambassador to Britain; (3), Georges Leygues, ex-premier of France; (4), Gen. Maurice Nollet, minister of war; (5), Lord Crewe, British ambassador to France; (6), Louis Loucheur, former minister of France's liberated regions, and (7), Pierre de Fouquierres, director of the protocol. California

Californians are twice as prosperous as the average American

MANY families that came to California with only a moderate capital ten years ago or less are well-to-do today.

Californians have about twice the average American bank account—because opportunities in California are exceptionally great. Crops are planted and harvested every month in the year in the Great Central Valley. In business and industry, efficiency is higher, costs are lower. In every walk of life people live more comfortably.

Many come to San Francisco

Thousands of people are locating in San Francisco—to live near the sea, to educate their children in the excellent public schools or nearby universities, to take advantage of the many fine manufacturing opportunities or because they find contented employment, and together with their employers, are working out the destiny of this splendid city.

Is this YOUR Opportunity?

You need only a moderate stake to start, in California. Write today for "California, Where Life Is Better"—an illustrated, reliable, free booklet, published by Californans Inc., a non-profit organization devoted to the sound development of the state. Fill in and mail the coupon to Californians Inc., San Francisco, California.

—How thousands of newcomers feel about life in California is indicated by these typical excerpts from letters to Californians Inc. We can put you in touch with the writers if you desire.

I have roses on my Christmas table from my garden, such as they pay a dollar apiece for in the East.

We can have all the beautiful scenery we want by just driving in the mountains on a Sunday. In every locality the scenery is different, and the rapid development here makes a continual change, so a person does not get tired of California.

Mrs. I. E. M., Orland

To be able to motor for hundreds of miles without leaving the concrete was to us a revelation, and even now we enjoy a 50 or 60-mile drive just as much as ever. Moreover, these highways are a great help to us in our business. Our ranch, consisting of five acres of sandy loam soil, will easily accommodate 3,000 hens.

W. F. D., Petaluma

We bought 140 acres and started with fruit. My husband, who was sick before, has become well. Our children have grown strong and healthy. All of us enjoy this sunny, health-giving climate.

"SH-H-H! Here's the bedtime story!" As easily as she finds a favorite page in her book, Grandmother sets the tuning dial of the KENNEDY. Riotous fun stops. The familiar voice of a friend whom the children love but have never seen fills the quiet room.

Your home is filled with more of life's sunshine when you install a KENNEDY. Your family can choose from wonderful programs, and hear the feature selected reproduced with lifelike brilliancy. Your KENNEDY serves in turn as a newspaper, lecturer, musical instrument, and enlivening story telling companion, all in one.

Something to suit your mood can always be found on the air—your KENNEDY brings in any desired station within a good long range, simply by turning to the dial setting for that station.

A demonstration can be arranged in your home.

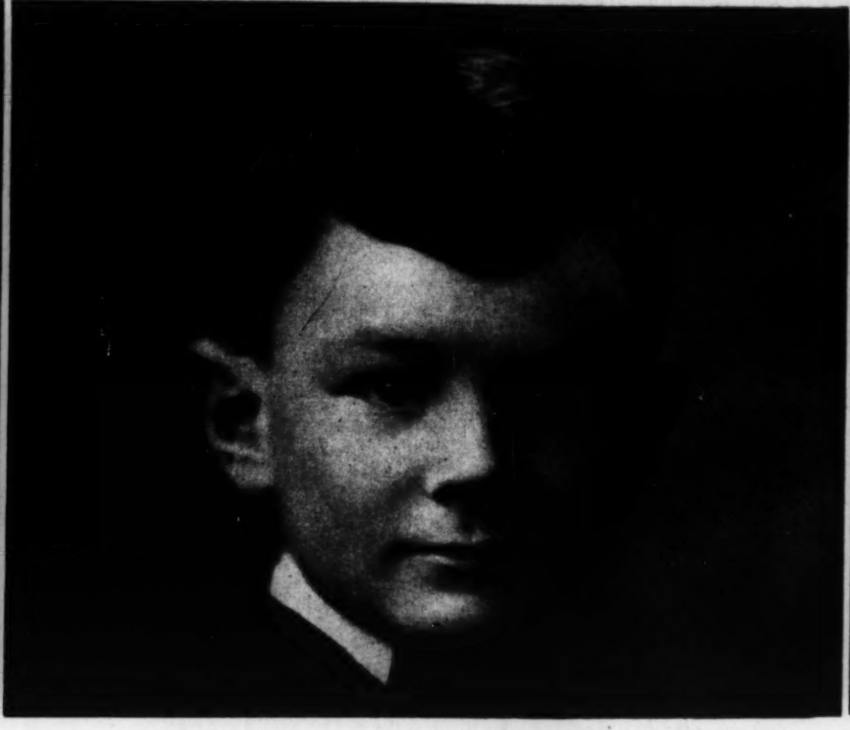
very remarkable

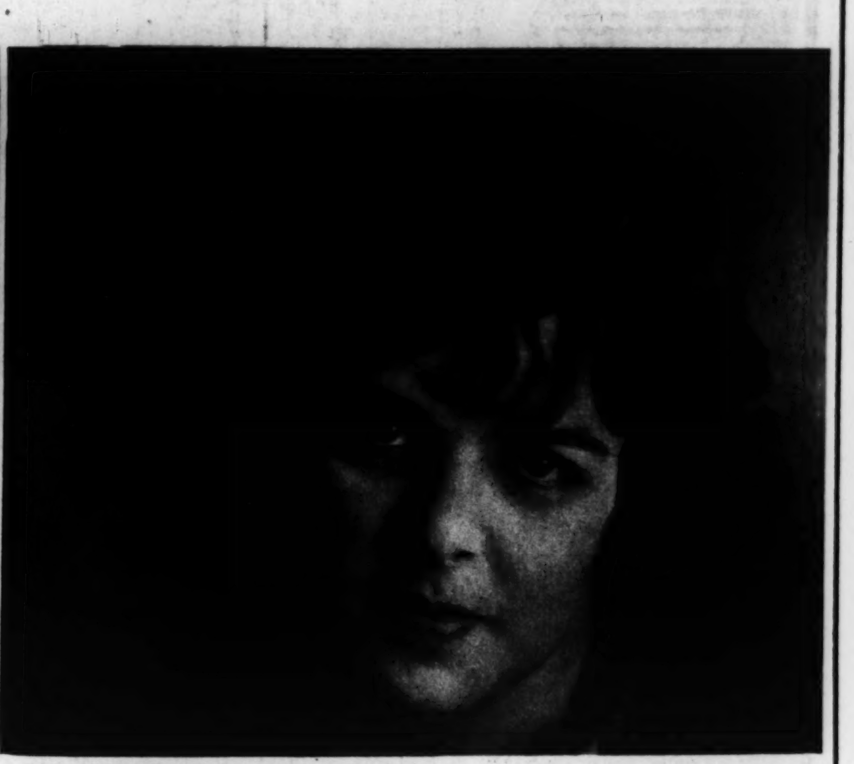
There is fire in this woman's nature. She thinks by great mental bounds, touching only the salient points as she reasons. And then she acts, so fast that her deeds seem impulsive. This can be seen in the build of the bones about her eyes. Her perception and memory centers are strongly developed. But to balance this, the lower part of her face is as strikingly conservative. Her chin and mouth are of the concave build. This means that she is stubborn, tenacious and does not give up easily what she has set out to win.



WARD SAXTON, Tiffin, Iowa. Schoolboy.

Ward Saxton

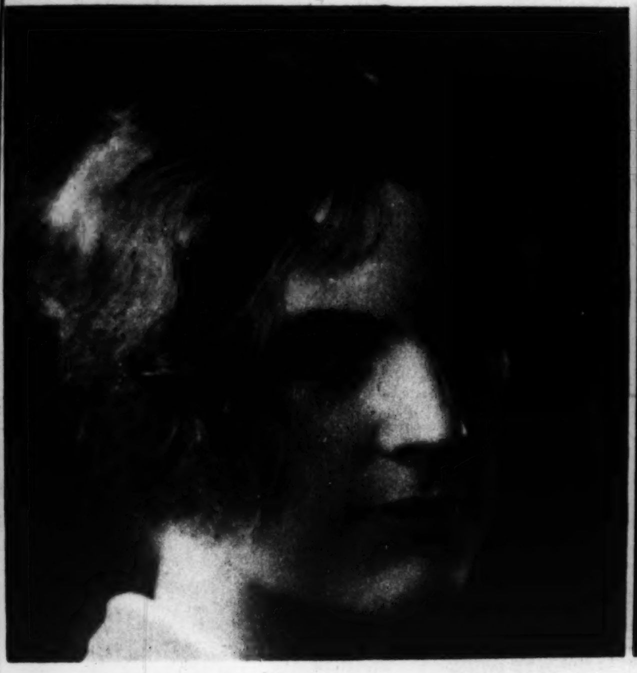
It is easy to see that he has imagination, because his eyes are large and are set far apart. His high forehead further confirms the trait. See how wide his skull is at the temples. Together, these traits indicate that he thinks and remembers almost completely in terms of sounds and pictures, never in abstractions. We know that he will always repress his emotions, because even now he holds his lips firm. His jaws do not balance the massiveness of his crown, and so we know that his actions will always be mental rather than physical.



HELEN CASHMAN, Columbus School, Kenosha, Wis. Teacher.
[Malme Photo.]

Helen Cashman

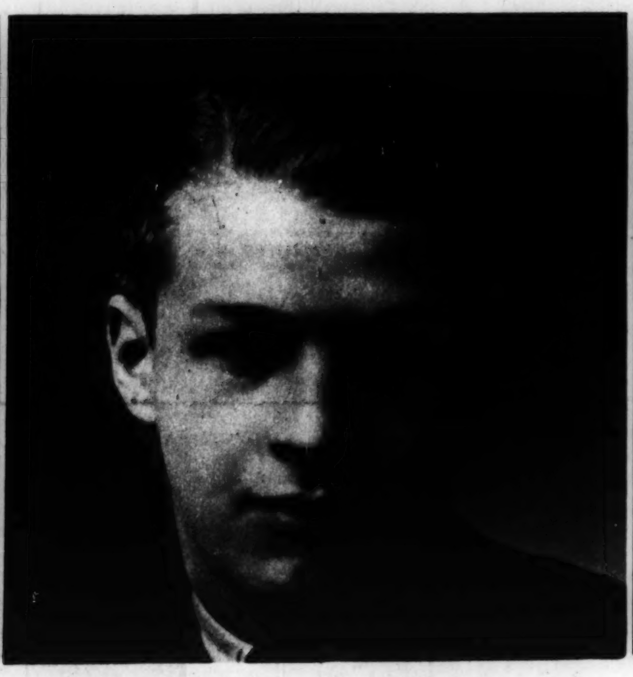
She is strict and tender all in one, able to hold people to the letter of obedience in what she considers right, and at the same time sensing what their innermost thoughts are. This can be seen in her mouth. Her lower lip is emotional, while her upper lip is tight and strong willed. She sees many things in a short space of time, as can be told from her thin eyelids. Her imagination is good, because her eyes are large and set well apart. From the height of the crown of her head, we know that she has strong ambitions.



CHARLOTTE GRIFFIN, 2514 Girard Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minn. Schoolgirl.
[Popular Photo.]

Charlotte Griffin

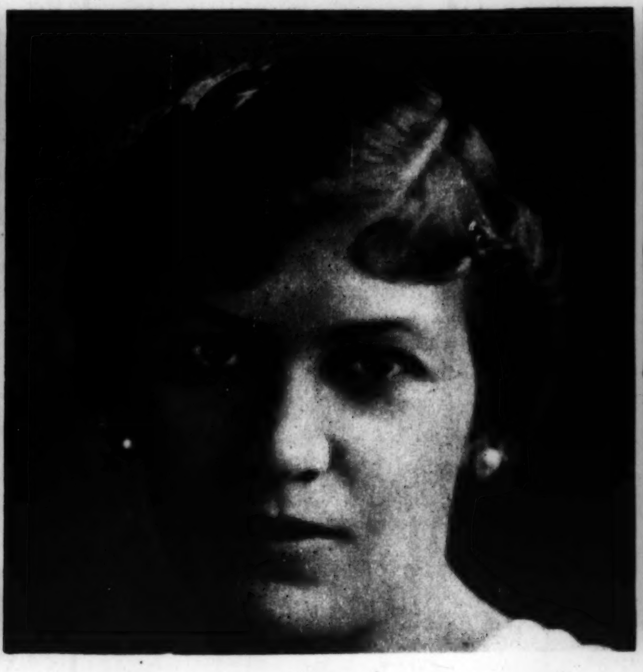
She is calm, self-assured and of a reflective temperament. Her bulging, materialistic brows only serve to further enhance her deep set eyes, eyes that have already reasoned out a philosophy that seems satisfactory to her, and which she will not change without good reason. Her nose is sharp; she has good perspicacity. Her mouth and chin show the stubbornness and repression of her nature, and her writing her innate conservatism. In every question of conduct she tries hard to encompass all the consequences before she starts. This gives her orderliness of mood.



JAMES EVERETTE TRAPP, Rushville, Ill. Salesman.
[Pierce Photo.]

J. E. Trapp

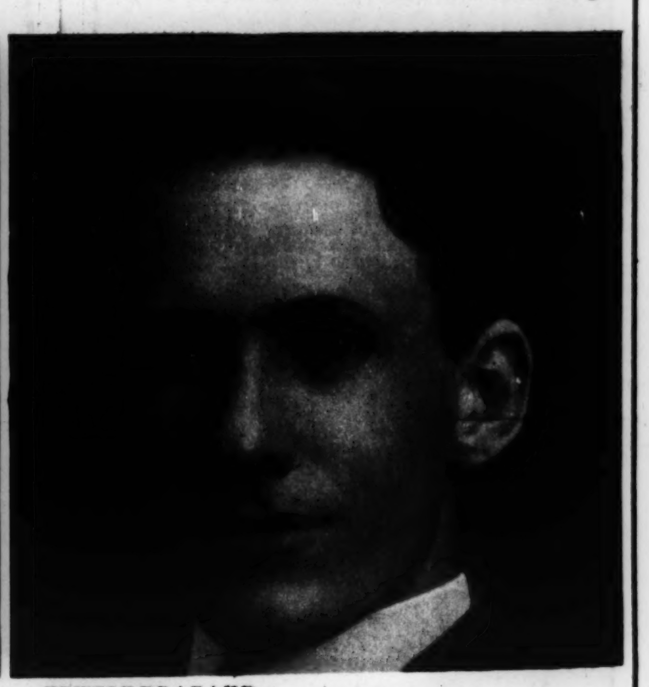
A forehead like this, with heavy knotted bones, marks a materialist and a self-driver. His eyes further confirm this. The lids are thin, and the outer corners are wrinkled, the marks of a person who has many rapid, ectrospective thoughts. He has enough push to achieve his desires. But his mouth is distinctly of the social type. It has full curves. He senses the feelings of other people keenly, and he does not like to hurt them. Hence, he finds it hard to override them. His ears are round. His crown is moderate, showing tolerance, both for himself and for others.



HAZEL BUCKLEY, 5401 Gladys Ave., Chicago, Ill.
[Iowa Photo.]

Hazel Buckley

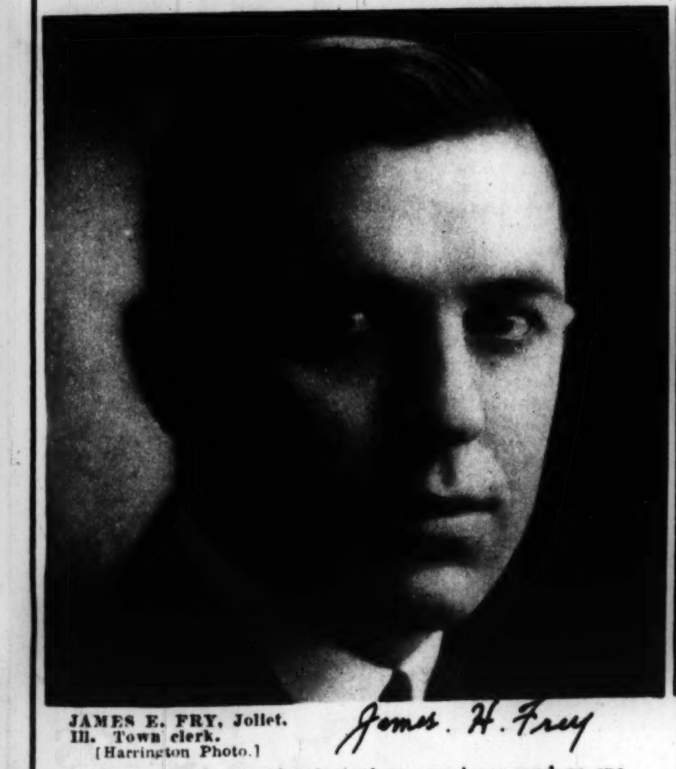
Here is a face of the square, or motive type. She has energy enough and to spare. When she sets out to accomplish something, she does not tire easily, and is able to keep trying when others give up. This can be seen in the massiveness of her brows, and the length of her chin. She has control over her emotions, and never lets them dictate her mind. Towards others, and particularly when there is something to be done, she can be incisive. This can be seen in the firm lines of her mouth. Her sure, bold writing tells how clear her thinking is.



NEWTON BRABAND, 8759 Herndon Ave., Chicago, Ill. Superintendent.
[Wallinger Photo.]

Newton Braband

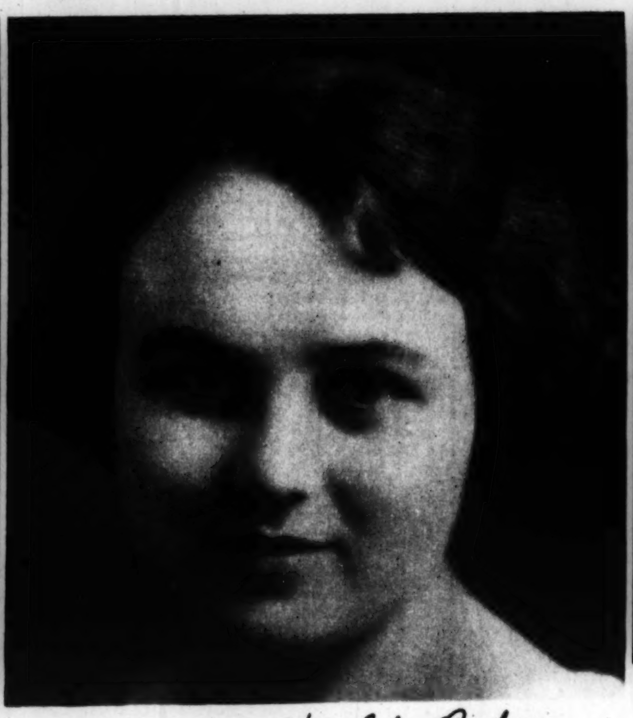
Here is a man who has strong ambitions. See the height to the crown of his head. But his ambitions take the form of holding tight to what he already has, rather than risking things in untried adventures. His face is narrow. This shows that he does not like rough and tumble fights. His chin is long and full. This shows that he is stubborn, and does not give up readily. His eyes, ears and mouth are of the social type, revealing that he tries to accomplish his ends through the medium of people rather than by himself. He has a generous nature, as his mouth shows.



JAMES E. FRY, Joliet, Ill. Town clerk.
[Harrington Photo.]

James. H. Frey

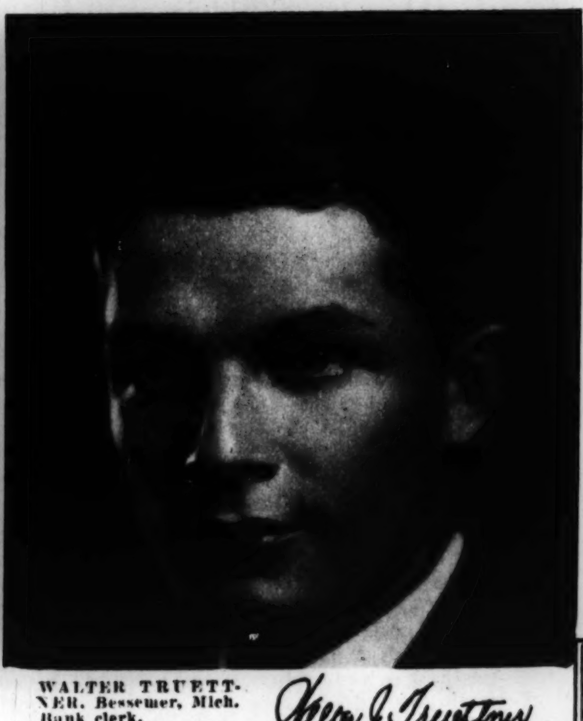
He has strong parietals and strong jaws, and so we know that his combative power is good. His eyes are shrewd about people and things, as we can see, for they are narrow at both outer and inner corners. His upper lip reveals his instinctive liking for people. It is full and curved. He is independent, self-controlled, and firm, and has more power to drive and accomplish things than he uses. He keeps it in reserve. When necessity arises, he will be a hard man to down, because of this very reserve which he keeps tucked away.



VIOLET OGDEN, Laketon, Ind. Bank clerk.

Violet Ogden

The round lines in her face proclaim her of the vital type. She is built to get the most out of life, and to enjoy it as she goes along. The outer corners of her eyes are narrow and wrinkled, denoting materialistic thoughts, and her eyelids are thin, showing rapid visualization. All the other features of her face and her handwriting consistently point to her strong social nature, her love of the companionship of others, her sympathy for people, and her desire to be well thought of. See the optimistic corners of her mouth.



WALTER TRUETTNER, Bessemer, Mich. Bank clerk.
[Rentschler Photo.]

Walter J. Truettner

Here is a man who makes sure that he is right before he goes ahead. His writing shows that his mind habitually holds back, and thinks all around a subject before assenting. He does this thinking quickly, as his sharp features show, and so his mental processes do not seem as intricate to outsiders as they really are. The slant to his nose and forehead show him to be of a practical mind, while his narrow eyes tell that he is shrewd both with things and with people. His power of imagination is moderate, and so he is inclined to grasp the present.

THE CONDITIONS:

1. The public is invited to submit photographs and samples of handwriting to Doris Blake of The Chicago Tribune for character analysis. The Chicago Tribune will pay $1000.00 a week for the ten photographs and handwriting which in the opinion of Doris Blake reveal the most interesting characters. For each analysis published The Chicago Tribune will pay $100.00 in cash.
2. The Character Analysis privilege is open to everybody except employes of The Tribune and their families. It does not matter where you live.
3. Any kind of photograph will do—a cabinet photo, a snapshot, a post card, any kind! Quality of the photograph will not be considered. Photographs will be returned after all subjects have been considered if proper postage is enclosed with the photograph.
4. The name, address and occupation of the person must accompany the photograph. When possible, this information should be written in the person's own handwriting. When photo is sent in as a surprise send along any sample of the person's handwriting.
A coupon will be published in The Chicago Tribune every Sunday. You may use this or write on a separate sheet of paper of the same form.
5. Photographs should be sent by first class mail to Doris Blake, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois.

This offer is open to all. Send in your photograph. You may receive $100.00. Read these analyses and find out how to read character. Another set of photographs and character and handwriting analyses will be published in next Sunday's Tribune.

WORLD CHAMPIONS TEAM UP to play the game of life together. Miss Betty Becker of Atlantic City and Clarence Pinkston of Los Angeles are pictured in the act of saying "I will" before the Rev. Carl S. Patton in Los Angeles. Miss Becker won the women's springboard diving championship in last year's Olympic games in France. Pinkston won the fancy diving championship in the 1920 Olympic meet in Belgium. Which makes it hard to keep from saying something about champion divers diving into the sea of matrimony together—but we'll let you say that.

The Duchesse de Richelieu tells how to have A Lovely Skin

"The woman whose life is given to Society must always appear with a complexion fresh and radiant. Care of her skin can best be obtained by the daily use of Pond's Two Creams. They keep the skin exquisitely soft and lovely."

Duchesse de Richelieu

THE DUCHESSE DE RICHELIEU

Twice an aristocrat. Before her marriage to the head of one of the oldest houses in France she was a "Baltimore belle" of one of the first families. Today she is a social leader in France and the United States. Her New York home, "The House on the River," is often the scene of delightful gatherings of the socially elect.

Every skin needs these two creams.

Hair full of golden lights, shadowy blue eyes and a matchless cream-and-white complexion. This beauty, her social grace and lovely soprano voice have made the Duchesse de Richelieu a leader in the exclusive sets of Paris and New York.

Determined to keep this lovely skin of hers always as fresh and youthful as it is today, she learned of the Two Creams that beautiful women everywhere depend upon to cleanse and protect the skin. At once the Duchesse de Richelieu declared: "They keep the skin exquisitely soft and lovely." This is the method the Duchesse approves:

For Cleansing and Rejuvenating. At least once a day, always after any exposure smooth Pond's Cold Cream liberally over your face and neck. Let its pure oils bring to the surface dust, powder and excess oil. Now wipe off all the cream with a soft cloth. Repeat the process. Just look at your skin now—as refreshed as rose-petals washed with dew!

For a Delicate Finish and Protection. Smooth on just as much of Pond's Vanishing Cream as your skin will instantly absorb. Now see how soft and even the surface looks—transparently lovely. How well this cream takes your powder, too—holding it in a velvety grip long and evenly—and how perfectly it protects you from soot, wind and cold.

Try this method which all the world's lovely women are pursuing. Pond's Creams will keep your skin as creamy-white, as soft and fine as the Duchesse de Richelieu's own. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson St., New York City.

This Cleans The Hair as nothing else can do

WHETHER your hair is bobbed or long, rinse it with lemon juice next time you wash it—and note the difference in the hair—how clean it feels—how much prettier it looks.

The juice of two lemons to an ordinary wash-bowl full of water, is the recipe.

The lemon cuts a soap curd that a shampoo always leaves. Ordinary rinsing, even if repeated with plain water, doesn't take it out.

Only hair so rinsed is really sweet and clean.

Ask beauty parlors to use lemon when they wash your hair.

You'll like the looks—you'll like the feeling of your hair.

Get a dozen lemons now and keep them handy for this purpose.

California lemons, practically seedless and high in acid content are best for the rinse.

"I always have a lemon rinse after a shampoo. It is the only way to really clean the hair."

See your toilet seat as your guests see it

IF YOU were a guest in your own home, would you find the bathroom toilet seat above criticism? Try to see it as a guest would see it. Does it look immaculately white, clean and sanitary? Or does it look old, worn, unsightly and uninviting? Familiarity may be blinding you to imperfections which guests criticise, and which you would be as quick to criticise in another's home.

Thousands now have nicer bathrooms

THOUSANDS of people who have always wanted nicer bathrooms have found that they can easily have them, not by making the bathroom all over, but simply by installing a new Church all-white toilet seat.

The difference a spotlessly white toilet seat makes in the looks of the whole bathroom is certainly a pleasant surprise. Some women say, "looks hundred percent better"; some, "looks dozen times better"; and others, "now I am proud to have guests go into my bathroom."

Church Seats fit any bowl—installed in a few minutes

CHURCH Seats fit any bowl and can be installed easily in a few minutes. So easy that you can install one yourself, although any plumber will be glad to install it for you at small cost. If you move to another house or another apartment, the seat is easily taken with you.

The handsome white surface of Church Seats is a smooth, ivory-like sheathing, which won't wear off as paint is apt to do, and it won't crack, split, discolor, absorb moisture or retain odors. It is as easy to clean as porcelain and is perfectly sanitary. It is above the criticism of any guest.

Church Seats are on display at most plumbers and at plumbing jobbers' showrooms. Any plumber can supply you.

SEND FOR interesting sample of sani-white sheathing and circular describing most popular models of Church Seats. Cut the coupon now and send it today.

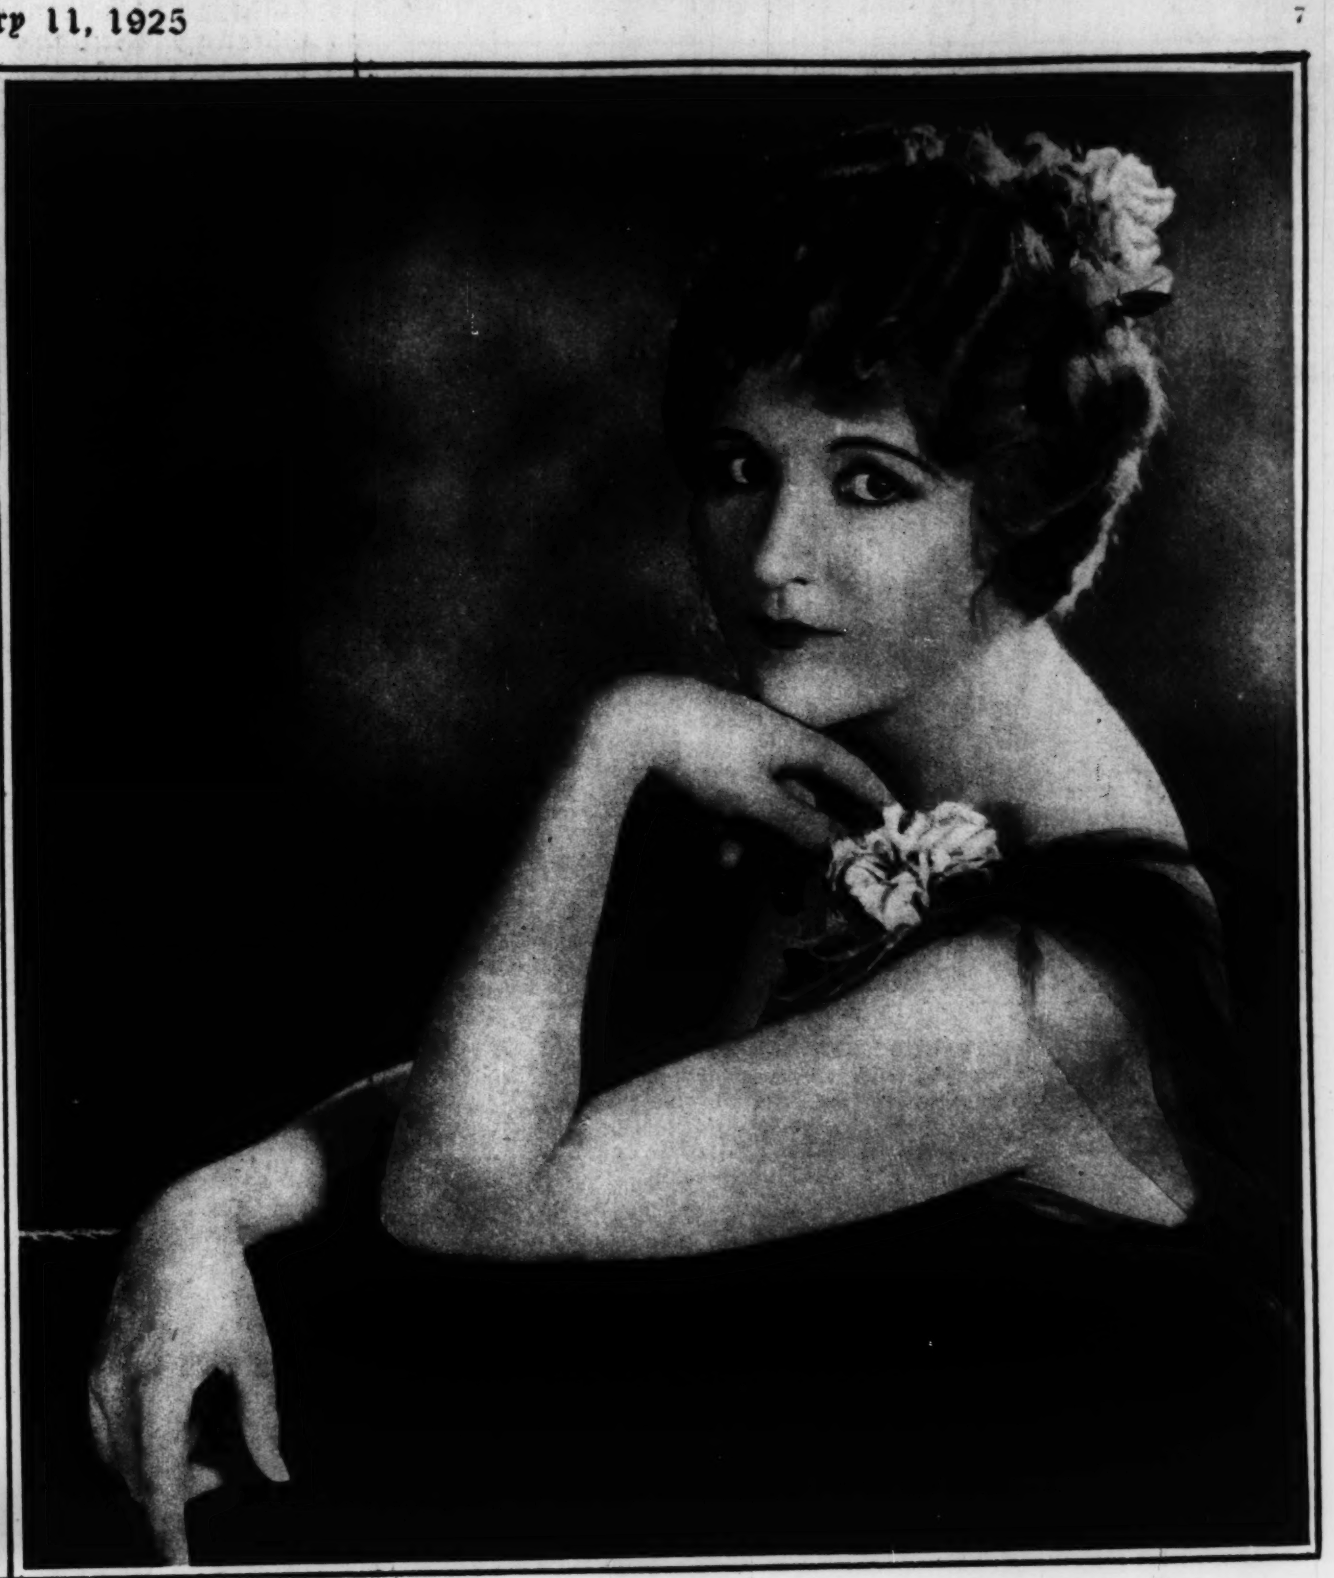
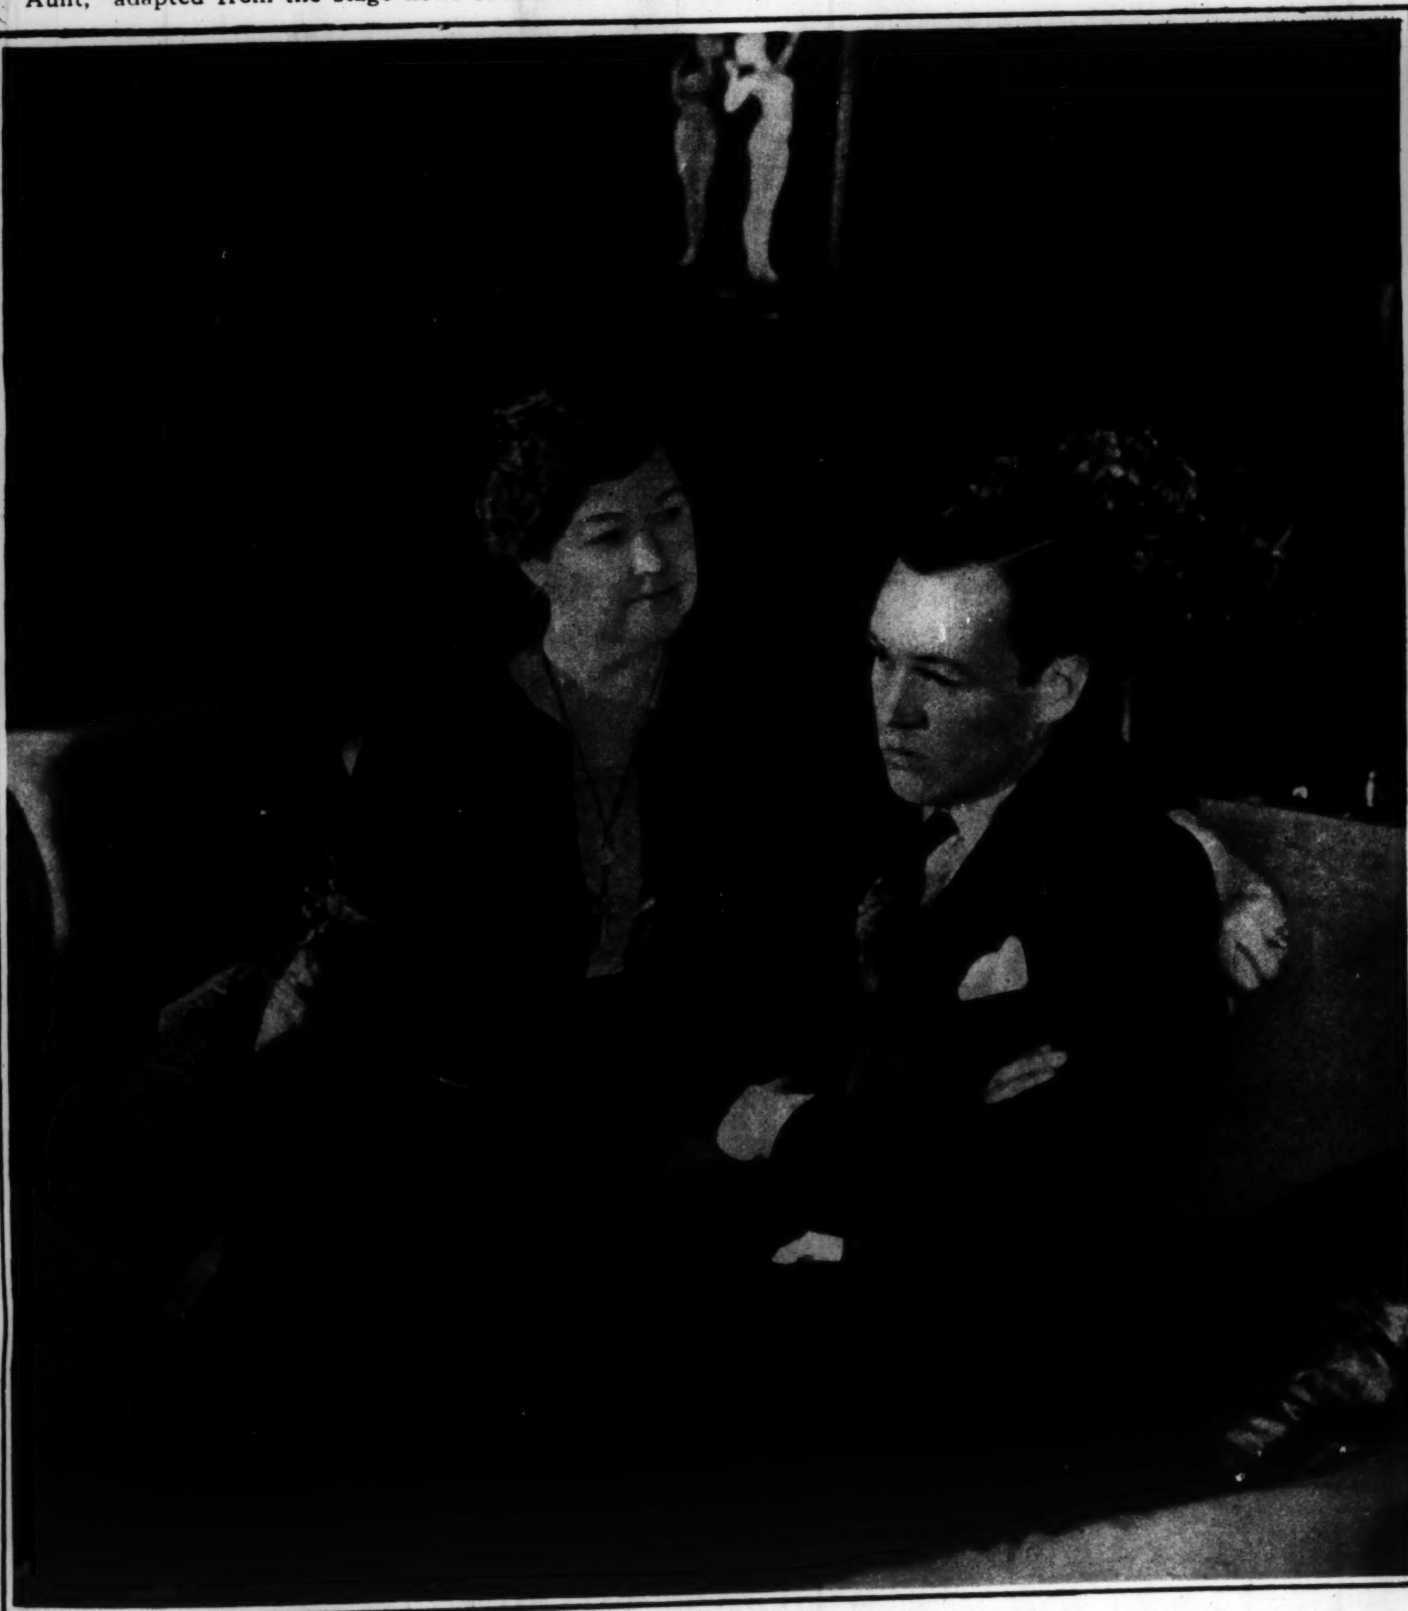
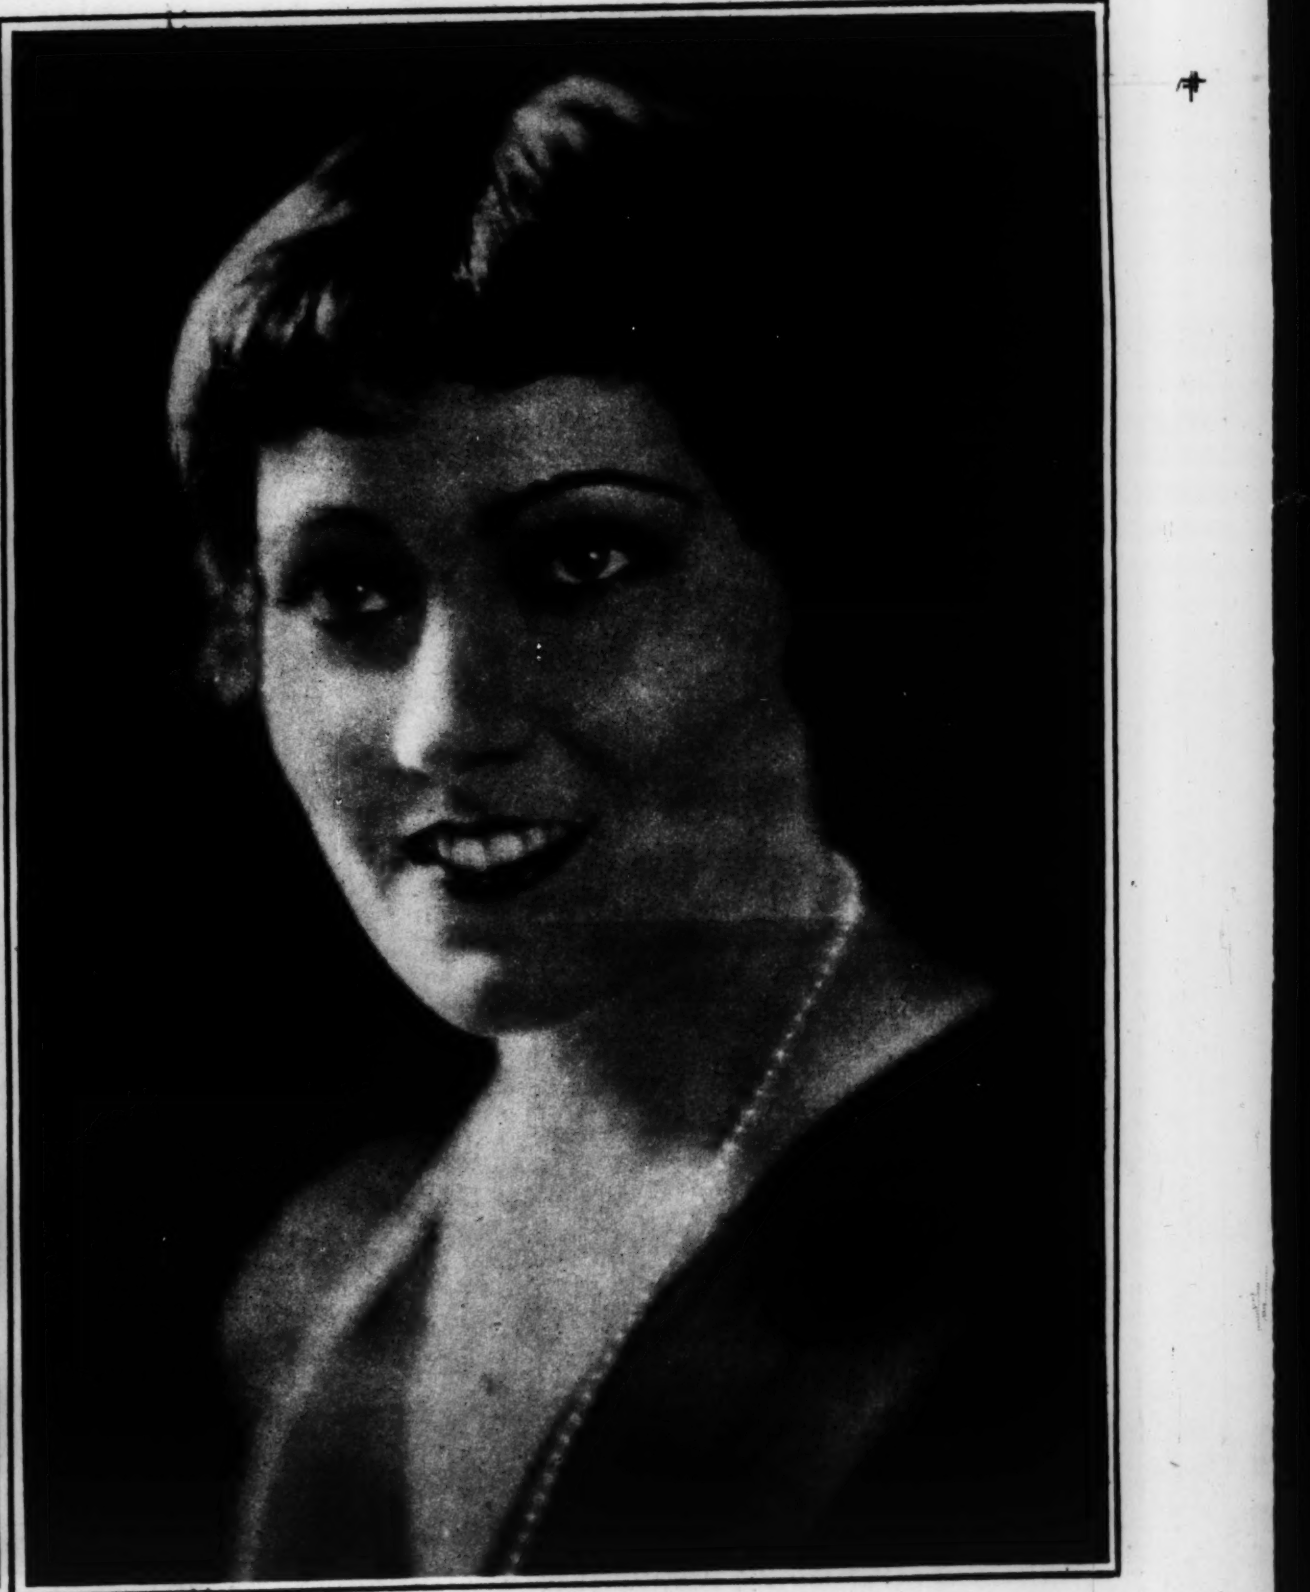
CHAS.' LIL BRO. SYD CHAPLIN looks like this in his new Christie comedy, "Charley's Aunt," adapted from the stage howl of the same name.



JULIA FAYE has an important role in "The Golden Bed" being made by Cecil De Mille from Wallace Irwin's novel.



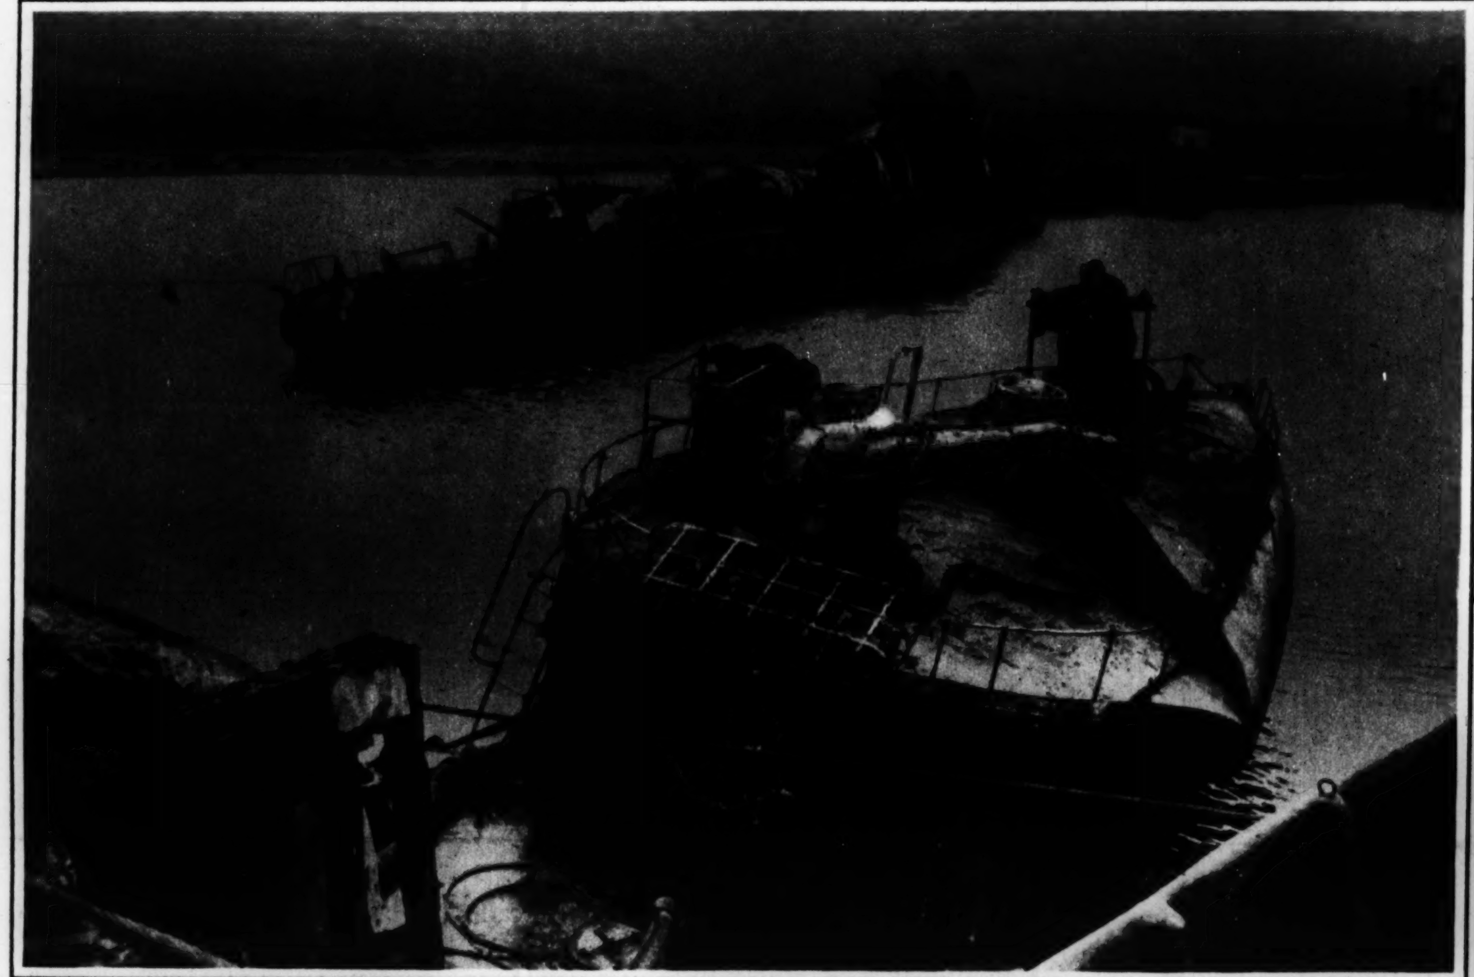
MOTHER'S OWN BOY, isn't he? Charles Ray and his mother had better never try to deny their relationship, now that they've had this picture in the paper. There'll always be plenty of people to flash it on them as proof—and proof it IS. Did you ever see mother and son more closely resemble one another?



MISS SWANSON SHOWS HER TEETH! Most unusual! If you have noticed, photographs of the sleek Gloria generally present her with closed lips. Here is a different—and vurr' lovely view of her. It is her latest picture and was made in Paris, where she has been filming "Madame Sans-Gene" for Paramount.

RAISING THE GERMAN FLEET at Scapa Flow. England has been working for a long time to resurrect the battleships sunk off the Orkney islands by their own crews after the surrender of Germany. The picture shows the bow of one derelict lifting above the water as the tide recedes.

(Photograph from Wide World)



DRAGGED FROM ITS WATERY GRAVE—Here is a later view of the same wreck at Scapa Flow. Hard work by the salvage crew has lifted the sunken man-o'-war until now both bows are well above the water. In the background are two other German battleships hauled out of Davy Jones' locker by the British.

FLYING HORSEMEN OF FRANCE—a couple of soldiers—perform some daring acrobatics on a wooden mount at one of the army's physical culture schools in Brittany. The military gentleman sailing over his pal's back seems qualified for a daring trapeze act. Trick stunts of this sort brighten the weary routine of training. Also they help develop muscle, agility, and courage, all of which makes them ideal for the army's purpose.

A GRACEFUL ICE BIRD from New York, Miss Freda Whitaker, is working hard to put England on skates. She has produced a skating ballet on the London stage, and her act is tempting theater-goers to try their own skill on the steel runners. A camera man at St. Moritz, in Switzerland, caught this exhibition of agility by Miss Freda.

THE GRAND OLD GIANT OF JEWFISH succumbs at last to hook and line. This mighty Methuselah of the North Pacific weighed 500 pounds and his age was estimated at fifty years. He was caught off Point Reyes, in San Francisco bay, by the two chaps standing beside him, Orville Davis and one A. Paladini. The big boy gave them a two hour fight, his conquerors said.

CHESTER GUMP • GHOST EXTERMINATOR
SPOOKS & PHANTOMS LAID WHILE YOU WAIT FAMILY SKELETONS RENOVATED THE GUMPS.
SIDNEY SMITH
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off., Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune.
YOU DON'T HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT LONELY ROADS AS LONG AS I'M WITH YOU- DON'T FORGET YOU ARE A GUMP AND IN THE GUMP VOCABULARY THERE IS NO SUCH WORD AS FEAR-
I HOPE WE GET HOME BEFORE DARK- THIS IS A LONELY ROAD-
NEVER ADMIT YOU ARE AFRAID OF ANYTHING AND YOU WILL GROW UP TO BE A BRAVE, FEARLESS MAN LIKE YOUR FATHER-
OH GEE, PAPA- I DON'T WANT TO PASS THAT HOUSE- ALL THE KIDS SAY IT'S HAUNTED-
NON SENSE- THERE'S NO SUCH ANIMAL AS A GHOST- I'LL JUST WALK IN THERE AND IF THE GHOST IS HOME I'LL DRAG HIM OUT BY THE NECK-
THERE'S A GHOST ALL DRESSED IN WHITE LIVES IN THAT HOUSE- IT RATTLES CHAINS AND EVERYTHING-
THIS IS JUST AN OLD EMPTY HOUSE- THERE IS NOT A THING TO BE AFRAID OF-MAYBE THE OLD GHOST IS HIDING IN A CLOSET OR SOME PLACE READY TO JUMP OUT WHEN YOU ARE NOT LOOKING-
HERE'S THE SHEET THE GHOST HAS BEEN USING TO SCARE PEOPLE WITH- I'LL JUST PUT IT ON AND TEACH CHESTER A GOOD LESSON- WHEN HE STARTS TO RUN I'LL TAKE OFF THE SHEET AND SHOW HIM HOW FOOLISH IT IS TO BE FRIGHTENED WITHOUT ANY CAUSE-OOOO OOOO!!
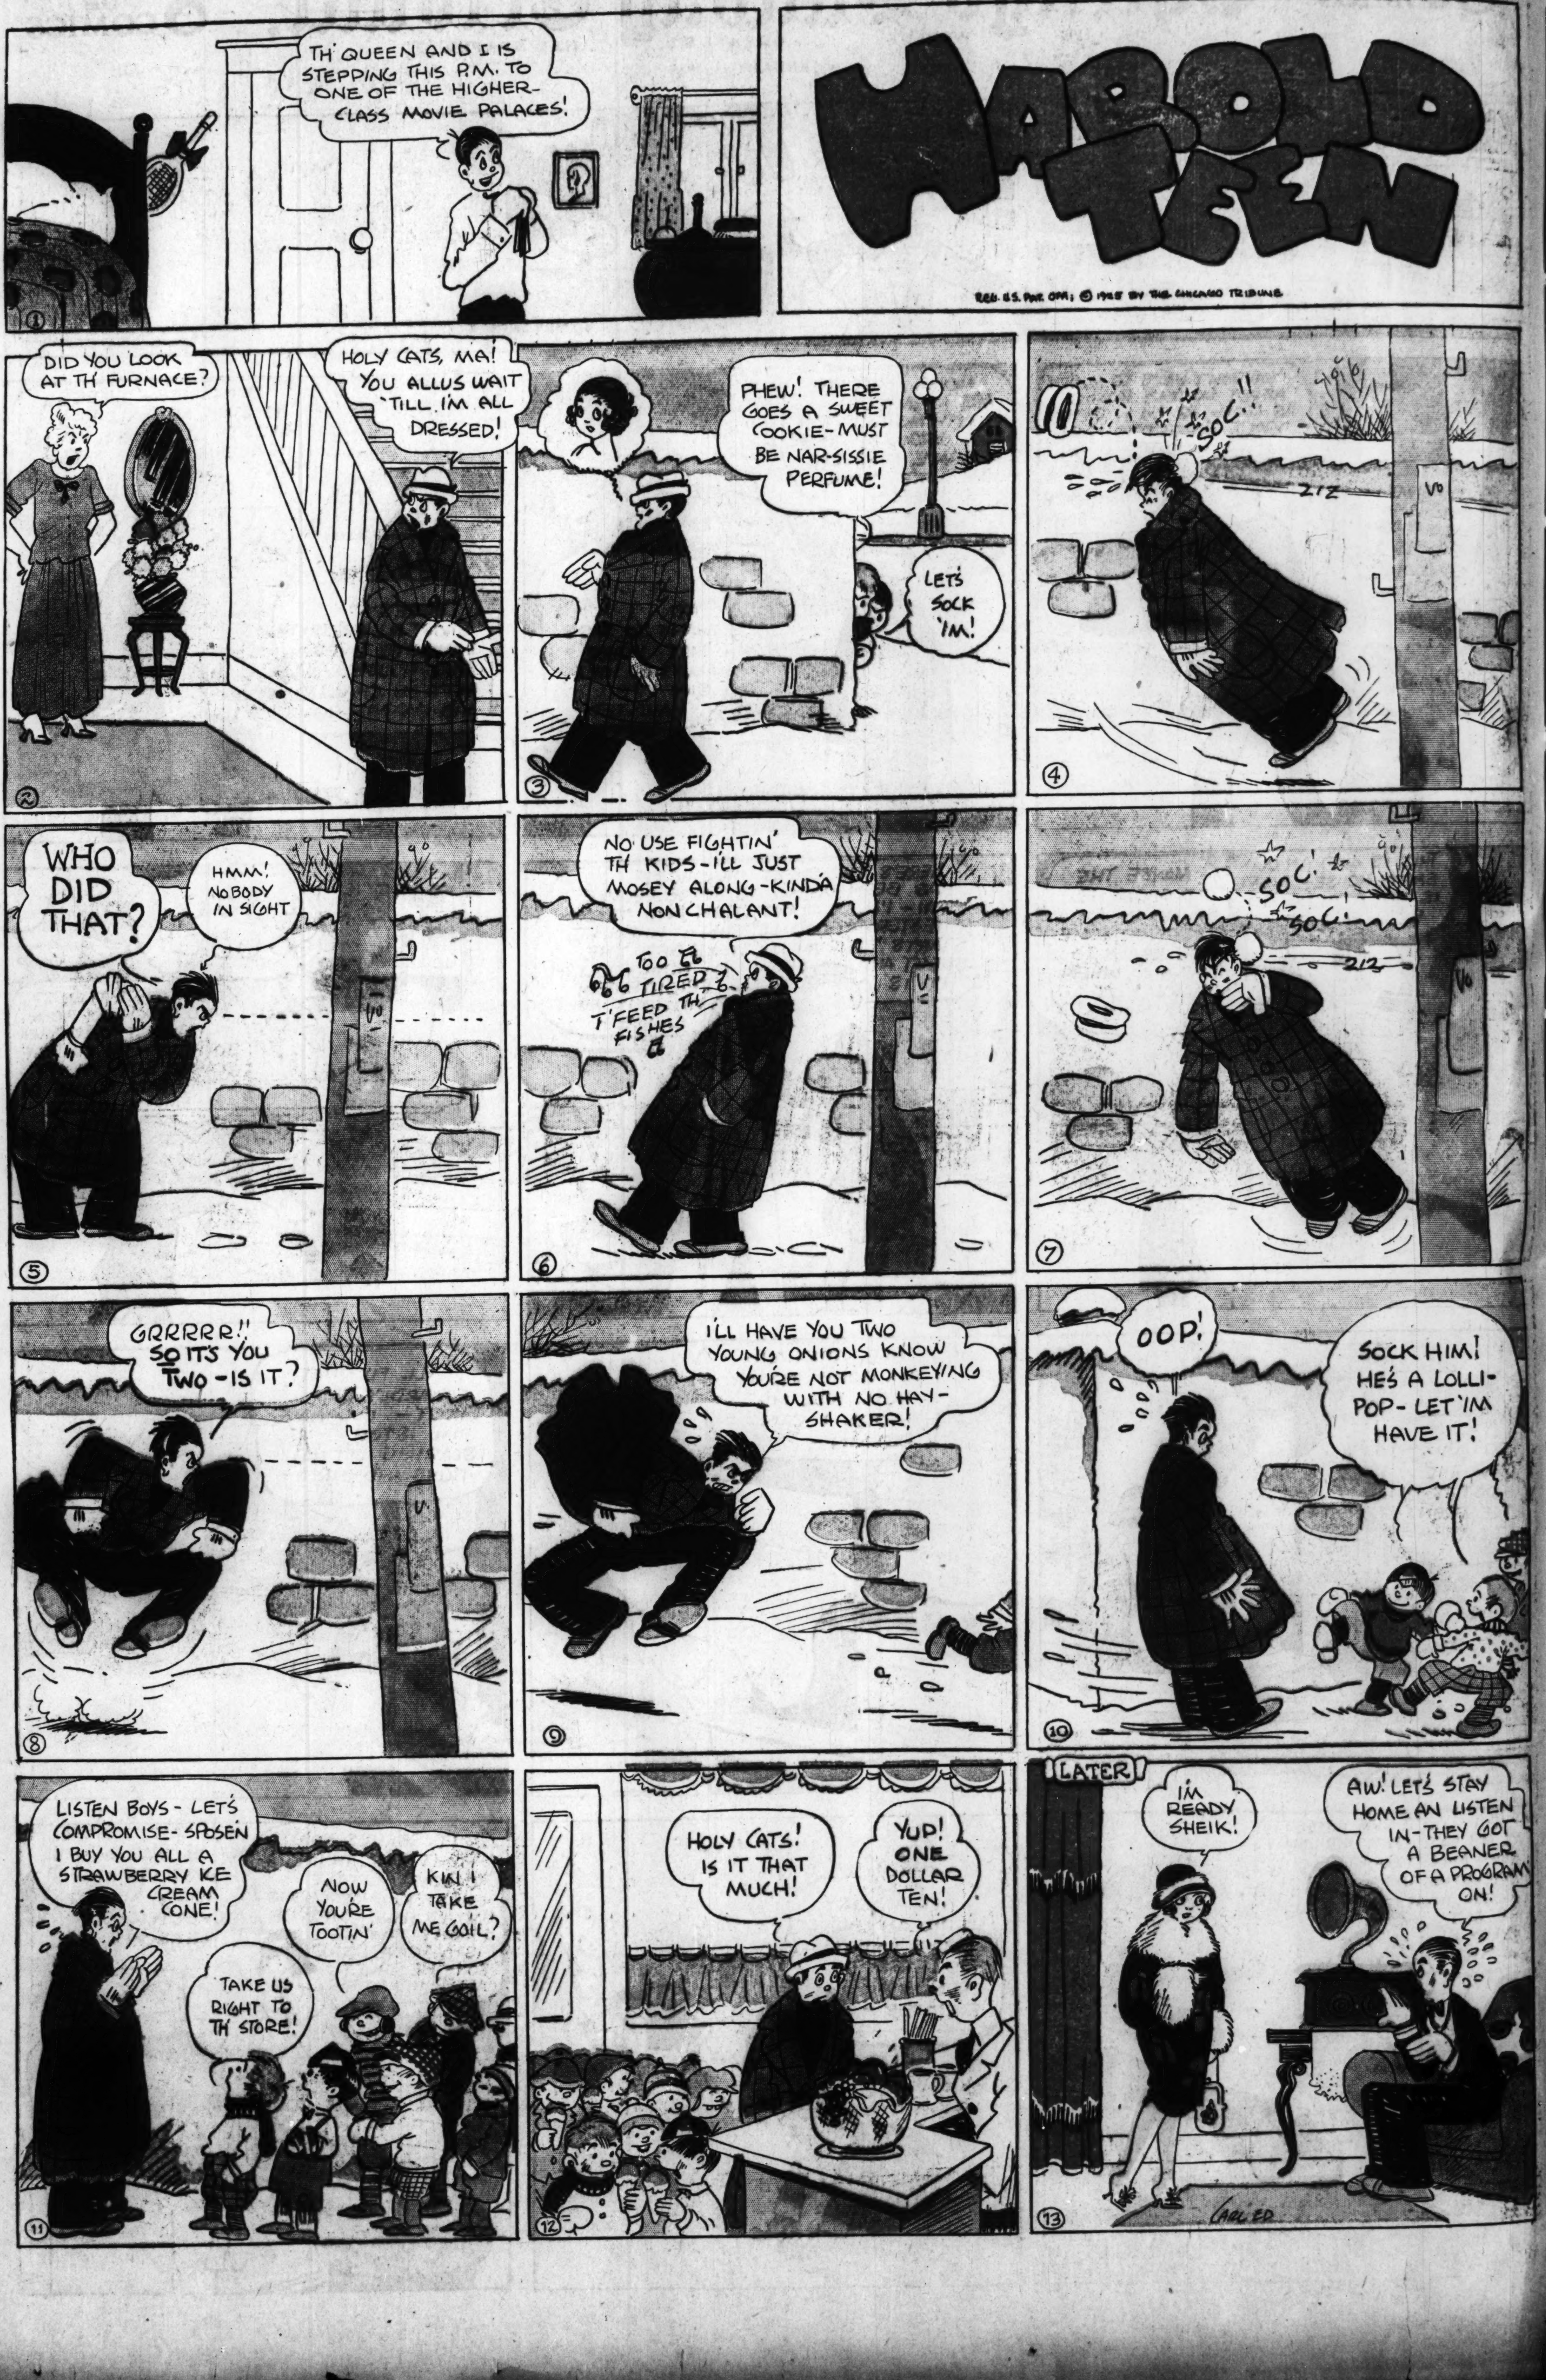
OH BOY- THAT GHOST WILL CATCH MY PAPA IF I DON'T DO SOMETHING TO HELP- I'M KIND OF SCARED BUT I WON'T LEAVE PAPA ALONE IN AN EMPTY HOUSE WITH A BAD OLD GHOST-
LOOK OUT, PAPA- THE GHOST IS IN THE FRONT ROOM
GEE, THAT KID HAS GONE INSANE- HE'LL KILL ME BEFORE I CAN EXPLAIN-
I'LL FIX THAT COWARDLY OLD GHOST- I'LL MAKE HIM STOP SCARING LITTLE BOYS AND GIRLS-
IF I COULD RUN AS FAST AS MY FATHER I WOULDN'T HAVE ANY TROUBLE CATCHING THAT GHOST- THEN I'LL BET HE'D BE SORRY-
GEE, I CAN'T FIND ANY MORE ROCKS AND I'M TOO TIRED TO RUN ANY FARTHER-
IT SERVES YOU RIGHT FOR TRYING TO SCARE LITTLE CHESTER- MOST BOYS WOULD HAVE DIED OF FRIGHT- BUT HE IS A BRAVE LITTLE BOY- HE TAKES AFTER HIS MOTHER-
I WAS JUST TRYING TO TEACH CHESTER A LESSON-



HAROLD TEEN

MISTA WALT, WHAT YOU MEAN TRACKIN' UP MY FRESH WIPED UP FLOOR?
I HAVEN'T BEEN OUT OF THIS CHAIR, RACHEL. IN FACT I'M AFRAID I FELL ASLEEP.
THEN YOU WAS WALKIN' IN YOUR SLEEP. LOOKA THERE!
RACHEL, YOU LEFT THE DOOR UNLOCKED AND A TRAMP GOT IN!
IF HE'S STILL IN THIS PART OF TOWN HE'S GOT ME TO RECKON WITH.
YASSAH, HE WENT RIGHT TO THE REFRIGERATAH AN' TOOK HALF A PIE.
GO AND LOOK RACHEL, AND SEE IF HE GOT ANY OF THE SILVER OUT OF THE DRAWER. I'LL TEND TO HIM IF I GET MY HANDS ON HIM!
OUT OF THE WAY, PAL, I'M TRACKING A BURGLAR. IF YOU WERE ANY GOOD AS A WATCHDOG YOU'D HAVE KEPT HIM OUT.
THE NERVE OF HIM — OUT THE BACK DOOR AND IN THE FRONT. I MUST HAVE BEEN ASLEEP.
A MAN'S HOME IS HIS CASTLE. NOBODY CAN GET AWAY WITH ANYTHING AROUND HERE.
NOW I'VE GOT HIM CORNERED. HE CAN'T GET AWAY UNLESS HE JUMPS OUT OF A SECOND STORY WINDOW.
IF HE'S GOT A GUN I'LL KNOCK IT OUT OF HIS HAND.
GREAT JUMPIN' GRASSHOPPER! YOU!
COME ALONG, MR. TRAMP. I WANT TO SHOW RACHEL I CAUGHT THE BURGLAR AT LAST.
